FINE AND SOUGHT AFTER SUBMARINER
AUTOMATIC WRISTWATCH IN STEEL,
REFERENCE 5513, WITH BLACK DIAL

Brand	Rolex
Model	Submariner
Reference	5513
Case Material	Stainless Steel
Bracelet Material	Stainless Steel
Year	1985
Movement Type	Automatic
Caliber	1520
Case N°	9143078
Dimensions	40 mm
Signed	Dial, movement and case

Rolex launched the references 5512 and 5513 in 1962 as the next generation of the legendary Submariner line. Unlike their earlier predecessors, the new references featured crown guards, which gave this tool watches a more robust look, as well as protected the crown during diving of any unnecessary mishaps. The 5513 has a bezel with minute divisions for the first fifteen minutes and silver triangle, the dial can alternatively be glossy or matte with white signature. The depth is rated to 660 ft, and, as of 1964, the designation "Swiss T<25" was added to the bottom of the dial. The present watch impresses by its original and well-preserved condition of the stainless steel case. The bezel has completely preserved its initial dark black color, and highlights a very low use of the watch, but the most fascinating part of this lot is for sure its dial. The tone of the luminous numerals and hands harmonize perfectly with black dial. Out of production in 1989, this lot is one of the best examples of reference 5513 you could find in all marketplace.

For decades, the Rolex Oyster Perpetual Datejust has always been the modern archetype of the classic men's wristwatch. This Oyster Perpetual Datejust 41 in Oystersteel and Everose gold features a sundust dial obtained using masterful brushing techniques that create grooves running outwards from the centre of the dial. Light is diffused consistently along each engraving, creating a characteristic subtle glow that moves depending on the position of the wrist. The light reflections on the case sides and lugs highlight the elegant profile of the 41 mm Oyster case, which is fitted with a pink gold smooth bezel, its original Oyster Bracelet and the Easylink comfort extension link an ingenious system allows the wearer to increase the bracelet length by approximately 5 mm, providing additional comfort in any circumstance. Moreover this lot comes with cover-box, box warranty, booklets and coverfilm on the watch.

Bracelet Material	Stainless Steel
Year	1974
Movement Type	Automatic
Caliber	1570
Case N°	3624195
Dimensions	34 mm
Signed	Dial, movement and case

Signed Rolex, Oyster Perpetual, Date, Superlative Chronometer Official Certified, the present watch is a spectacular example of reference 15200 for a watch lover. The word Oyster was firstly used by Rolex in 1926 when they created the first waterproof and dustproof wristwatch and moreover the word Perpetual was fundamental because gave enormous fame to the brand with the crown since its was the first watch with an automatic movement. This very beautiful 15200 not only is an automatic watch with a waterproof case but also an object which also combines a magnificent style and design. The bezel resumes the same style as the bracelet and is optimally preserved as its tonneau case in Steel. The silver satin finish dial is very uncommon to find while the large window for the date at 3 o'clock with the cyclops lens breaks the balance of the shape of the dial with its massive numbers. With the typical width of the '70s, period in which the timepiece has been manufactured, this watch is perfectly matching the request of a costumer in search of a beautiful and sporting object.

Caliber	22000.100A
Case N°	N°279
Dimensions	36 mm
Signed	Dial, movement and case
Accessories	Box, Booklets and Papers

In the '90s, a fruitful collaboration between Girard Perregaux and Ferrari led to the creation of some particular timepieces such as the present watch, with a very sporty look yet elegant style. This reference 8025 has three body case which has been manufactured in steel and yellow gold with curved lugs, inclined bezel, case back with 6 screws, domed sapphire crystal all preserved in nice conditions with its original steel and gold bracelet. The dial shows the iconic red "Ferrari" color and the white rampant horse at 6 o'clock. With white Arabic numerals, outer minute track with 5- minute triangle markers, aperture for the date and alpha hands, this very watch is number 279 of a limited edition and is also sold with original box and papers.

Year	2017
Movement Type	Automatic
Caliber	3135
Case N°	0Q1835D0
Dimensions	36 mm
Signed	Dial, movement and case
Accessories	Box and Papers

When facing a Rolex Datejust the “anniversary” theme is constantly present because the first ever Datejust model was presented to the world in 1945 and created to celebrate the 40th anniversary of the Rolex brand. On this occasion the iconic Jubilee bracelet was also introduced, which from that moment on was inextricably linked to the “just date” model. Advancing until 1985, to celebrate the 40th anniversary of the Datejust and the 80th of the brand, Rolex decided to introduce another version of the Jubilee, no longer a bracelet but a special dial featuring a repetitive “Rolex-Rolex” pattern engraved on the entire surface of the quadrant. Useless underline the high level of craftsmanship needed to realize such an impeccable dial not only for the tri-dimensional pattern itself, but also for the application of the gold numerals on such an uneven surface. The lot offered here is a precious specimen of reference 116243 in steel and yellow gold with jubilee bracelet consigned in great condition, with unpolished case showcasing perfect edges and proportion: the mark of a timepiece that has hardly ever seen a wrist in its life. The dial features the Jubilee decoration in a very electric champagne with all over the Rolex pattern and diamond-set indexes. This detail is recalled on the bezel that is also embellished with 52 diamonds with brilliant cut. Rolex still produces the Jubilee dial today, and over the years the logo motif has appeared in a wide range of colors varying from black to white, from pink to blue. The present lot is offered with all its original accessories, from box to booklets, passing through tag and warranty.

Signed	Dial, movement and case
Accessories	Original Certificate and additional Rubber Strap

The reference 26040ST, such as the present one, is part of the larger Royal Oak Offshore collection which was conceptualized and introduced in the 1990s, but this one is the particular "ALINGHI POLARIS" collection in a limited edition of 1935. Created as a tribute to the famous Alinghi's victory at the America's Cup in 2003. The striking red, white and black chronograph display incorporates a unique 10-minute countdown arrangement specifically for regattas. The reverse-numbered inner flange can be rotated by the 10 o'clock crown to allow countdown for a different number of minutes. The 43mm steel case and the steel bezel with 8 visible screws are still in perfect conditions like automatic movement calibre 2326/2847 that runs perfectly. This discontinued Audemars Piguet Royal Oak Offshore Alinghi Polaris is the watch that always catches the attention of great connoisseurs thanks also by its Original Certificate and additional Rubber Strap.

Case N°	211121
Dimensions	20.5 x 10.5 mm
Signed	Dial, movement and case

Clients coming from Middle-East and Asia have always been an important core for watches and jewelry manufacturers and for Piaget the same is true. In the 1960's and 1970's, Yves G. Piaget personally visited these countries to receive commissions from the firm's most esteemed clients where a large number of these collectors were women. Just for them, the Swiss brand created some special and often unique pieces, daring with bezels and cases adorned with diamonds, rubies, emeralds and sapphires. The lot here offered is one of these incredible specimens with a tiny and elegant rectangular yellow gold case wonderfully preserved and lavishly set with baguette-cut. Powered by a duoplan movement set by the winding crown on the back, it is further equipped with a black dial with gilt Piaget signature and baton hands.

Nowadays widely considered the greatest watchmaker of all time, the storied brand continues to thrive in the modern era, creating exceptional high-end watches as the Swatch Group's premier prestige brand. In 2000's the maison launched the Heritage Chronograph, a very elegant and charming timepiece characterized by its unique look with "Empire" oval-rectangular shape and signature Breguet coined edge case. The present specimen has been manufactured in platinum and preserved in very notable conditions with oval pushers. The hand-guilché and silver-plated dial is something uncommon and demonstration of ability with painted radial Roman numerals on a plain outer reserve, secret Breguet signatures, subsidiary dials for the seconds, the 12-hour and 30-minute registers, outer ring for the 1/5th second graduation, aperture for the date. The blue steel Breguet hands are powered by the automatic caliber 550. The watch is further offered with box, booklets and original papers.

Always specialized in top-quality timepieces, the Swiss watchmaking company Franck Muller was founded in 1991 in Geneva. In addition to Muller's fine craftsmanship and intricate complications, the brand is often recognized for its modern designs and colorful flare. In the course of its short but notable history, the brand rose to prominence for many models such as the Casablanca, Long Island or the Curvex but one of the most appreciated by collectors and passionate is for sure the Conquistador Cortez, such as the present watch. This reference 10000CC strikes for the quality and beauty of its two-body square case in yellow gold, with screwed-down winding-crown and rectangular pushers for the chronograph. The black dial has the classical Franck Muller layout with large white luminous Arabic numerals, outer minute/seconds division with 5-minute red Arabic markers, aperture for the date at 6 and two counters for 30 minutes and hours registration. This specimen also comes with its original box and papers.

Launched in 1957 alongside the Speedmaster and the Seamaster, the Railmaster was Omega's answer to the anti-magnetic watches produced by IWC and Rolex. The Railmaster's production ceased in 1963 and this short period of production was possibly due to a bad reputation given the history of colonization. Anyway, this name remained in the database of Omega and in recent years it was reused for some modern reinterpretation such as the here offered Railmaster XXL reference 221.53.49.10.01.001. Produced in a limited series of 157 examples in 2007 to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Railmaster launch, its three-body pink gold case with inclined bezel, transparent screwed-down case back and lyre lugs is exceptionally well preserved. The black dial has dart indexes, luminous Arabic quarters, outer minute divisions, subsidiary seconds dial and luminous pink gold dauphine hour hand, arrow for the minutes. Furthermore, the watch also comes with its original box, original papers, booklet and tag.

Movement Type	Automatic
Caliber	3135
Case N°	844XG356
Dimensions	44 mm
Signed	Dial, movement and case
Accessories	Box, Papers , Booklets, Tag and Cover-Bezel

The Rolex Deepsea Sea-Dweller reference 116660 that debuted in 2008 and is still in production took inspiration from the very first Sea-Dweller introduced in 1967 in collaboration with COMEX. The here offered Deepsea features a ceramic bezel, the newly Ringlock System and a larger and thicker 44mm case making it the largest Rolex ever appeared on the market for sale. Nicknamed "James Cameron", it was a tribute to his expedition to explore and document the deepest part of the ocean where no human has ever conquered in 2012. The main difference between this model and the regular Deepsea Sea-Dweller is the blue dial that goes from almost black, dark blue to a lighter blue at the top of the dial; representing the ocean as you get deeper the water gets darker. Offered in remarkable conditions, this specimen is accompanied by the original guarantee, fitted presentation box and booklets.

With a clear focus on technology and development, the Swiss watch manufacturer IWC Schaffhausen has been producing timepieces of lasting value since 1868. Always at the forefront also in terms of design for its timepieces, IWC managed to create some vintage specimens such as the oversized Portugieser or Aquatimer that are especially desirable for collectors. Among them, the Ingenieur is probably the most known: explored in many ways by the firm, was offered to the public with many different complications, such as the present perpetual calendar. The three-body yellow gold case with screw-down back, hinged lugs and sapphire crystal perfectly fits any wrist thanks to its very thin case. The white dial presents applied yellow gold baton indexes and luminous dots, outer minute/seconds track, subsidiary dials for the days of the month, week, months, aperture for the moon phases and the year. Extremely elegant with its yellow gold bracelet, the watch also comes with papers, invoices, service, booklets and additional link.

The Rolex Yachtmaster reference 116655 was released back in 2015 and represents a novel take on the Yachtmaster, with its unique strap and bezel and use of precious metal rather than the classic stainless steel. Cased in decadent 18K Everose gold case, the present watch is by all means a majestic iteration of the Rolex Yacht-Master series. The three body everose gold case with screwed-down case back and Triplock winding- crown has a revolving matte black "Cerachrom" black bezel with 60-minute scale and raised numerals is very well preserved. Within the case of this handsome Rolex beats an automatic calibre 2236 movement with a 55-hour power reserve. The dial Black with applied luminous round, baton and triangular pink gold indexes, outer minute/seconds division. Luminous pink gold skeleton hands. This Everose gold watch also comes with all its original accessories, including box, guarantee and outer packaging.

The Day-Date has been at the top of Rolex non-sports collection since 1958. 57 year later, at Baselworld 2015, it was released a specimen representing a true mixture of modern charm and vintage aesthetic: the reference 228206, with a massive 40 mm case in platinum. The case is the traditional Rolex Oyster one with a 3 body case, with a screw down back and crown and a smooth bezel. The bezel on this platinum version of the Day-Date differs from its lesser cousins in that it dispenses with the iconic fluted bezel in favour of a smooth, polished one, probably given the fact that platinum is way more difficult to machine. The present lot is offered in extremely valuable conditions with no evident signs of wearing both on case and on the platinum president bracelet. The ice blue used on the dial is charming. The rhodium pattern breaks the monotony of the colour, and gives the dial a bit of depth with applied baton white gold indexes and hands. Massive yet elegant, this very lot is further sold with its original case and warranty.

The Breguet Classique 5717 Hora Mundi watch introduced at Baselworld 2011 perfectly exemplifies the spirit of classic standards and traditional values that have always characterized Breguet's creations. Produced in precious materials such as 18-carat pink gold or 950 platinum, three versions of the dial are available, each representing one part of the world: the Americas, Asia and Oceania or, such as the present lot, the European and African continents. Breguet's teams needed three years to design, develop and perfect this complication watch. It is the first example of a mechanical timepiece with an instant-jump time-zone display. The lot here offered is the pink gold version with a three-body case with transparent back, coin-edge band, 2 crowns, rounded stepped bezel and straight lugs, all preserved in extremely beautiful conditions. The silvered gold dial presents painted radial Roman numerals, outer minute/seconds track, concentric gold map depicting the Europe-Africa continents over hand-engraved wave motif coated with translucent lacquer, apertures for the date at 12, world-time cities at 6 and the moon phases at 4. Together with the watch comes its original box.

This 146.3.97 Memovox is part of JLC's sporty Master Compressor line. A striking divers watch featuring the automatic caliber 918 movement, bi-directional rotating alarm disc, date function and grey dial with luminous hands, it represents a massive and solid timepiece for sporty but also everyday situations. The stainless steel three-body case of 41 mm diameter seems large given the complications it houses but the watch sits nicely on the wrist thanks to its beautifully concave and curved lugs. The well preserved case also presents a compressor key for alarm winding crown at 2, time-setting and winding crown at 4, winding crown at 10 for the revolving dive time ring. The grey dial has luminous arabic numerals and dart indexes, outer bi-directional revolving disc for the dive time, apertures for the alarm indication and the date, furthermore this very watch is offered with original box and papers.

The Speedmaster is one of the most iconic watches ever made by any manufacturer. Originally, the Speedmaster was targeted for an "active clientele" but definitely reached world wide fame when chosen by NASA to be the official timekeeper for their space flight missions. In 1999 was introduced a new version of this model, the first one in Omega's history, bearing the split-seconds complication. Only few of these watches have been made during a short time span from 1999 until 2001/2002. The slightly different case of this model compared to the classic Speedmaster has lapidated lugs, a tachometer graduation on the steel bezel up to 350UPH, rectangular pushers and a screwed-down case back with Speedmaster logo, all preserved in very nice conditions. The carbon fiber with checkerbord motif dial has luminous white baton indexes, subsidiary dials for the seconds, the 12-hour and 30-minute registers and luminous white lozenge and fleche hands and arrow hand for the split-seconds chronograph. Powered by the caliber 3600, the present watch is offered with box and original papers.

The 1988 is the first year of production of the reference 16618, equipped with the caliber 3135 and the calendar with quick functions. The model was available with a variety of dial versions, where the current Sultan one represents a veritable collector's gem in its category and is among the rarest due to its applied diamond and sapphire indexes. The dial that decorates this special Submariner is also called Serti, which derives from the French verb Sertir, whose meaning in the jewelry sector is "to set", and indicates, precisely, special dials with embedded gems of various types such as rubies, sapphires, diamonds or emeralds equipped on various models such as Datejust or Day-Date but usually reserved for GMT Master II and, precisely, Submariner. The here offered 16618 has a yellow-gold bracelet with fliplock deployant in very good condition, and the three body case is perfectly preserved. The beauty and the rarity of the sapphire and diamond indexes on a grey dial is completed with the classic Mercedes hands and the cyclope to enlarge the date at 3 o'clock. Certainly not the classic aesthetic of the Rolex Submariner, the Sultan dial offers something slightly different for those who appreciate their unique and luxurious style and the present lot is further precious since it comes with its original box.

The Datejust's story began in 1945, when Rolex produced reference 4467 to commemorate the manufacture's 40th anniversary. Featuring a coin-edge bezel and an aperture for the date, the model showcased a completely new bracelet design named the "Jubilee". 14 years later, keeping the same DNA but with improved caliber and a reeded bezel, was introduced the reference 1601, such as the present specimen, that became an immediate status symbol for Rolex and watches' lovers. This very 1601 was manufactured in 1968 and features a rare and delightful champagne satin dial with applied baton indexes and hands, creating a perfect blend with the pink-gold Oyster case. This three-body case is wonderfully well preserved and has no evident signs of wearing but very deep and clear hallmarks on the lugs. Equipped with a gorgeous Jubilee bracelet, it is also powered by the caliber 1570 with "œil-de-perdrix" decoration.

Based in La Chaux-de-Fonds, haute horlogerie brand Schwarz Etienne was established in 1902. Since then, it has been driven only by the desire to innovate, through its creations, its manufacture movements and its pioneering components. Its watch range is constantly evolving, giving reign to a boundless creativity, peppered with originality and a pinch of madness thrown to the winds of inspiration that blow from the Neuchâtel Mountains. After having launched three new movements in 2013, was launched a new series which took name Ode à la Semaine. This is an outstanding case with seven exclusive timepieces, representative of the finest Swiss watchmaking expertise. Seven manual Tourbillon Schwarz Etienne (TSE) movements, each distinct and unique, featuring retrograde minute and jumping hour hands. Seven watches, each dedicated to a day of the week. And each day makes reference to a planet in the solar system, hence the name. Each dial contains a different stone, encasing a painting of its star, from Jupiter to Venus, together with a reproduction of Earth. The miniature dial paintings are entirely made by hand by André Martinez, a craftsman from Le Locle, and capture the watchmaker's thoroughness and precision. The cases are in pink or white gold, according to the colour corresponding to the star represented. The stones in the pieces in the centre of the dial were chosen to evoke the texture and shade of the planets in our universe, in a sober, delicate combination of materials and colours. The lot here offered is the "Jeudi", realized in white gold with orange aventurine dial, an absolute beauty for both aesthetic and technical quality.

Daniel Roth is universally known for its complicated watches: the company was created in 1989 after periods working for both Audemars Piguet and Breguet where he contributed significantly to those company's lines of highly complicated watches. One of its signature complications, the Retrograde was inspired by the similar complication made by Abraham-Louis Breguet, which was also the basis for the series of tourbillon pocket watches made by George Daniels that had a similar retrograde-hour display. This very complication is equipped on the Premier Retrograde reference 807L.10 here offered. The iconic shaped and curved case with stepped rounded bezel and curved lugs has been manufactured in stainless steel and preserved by the last owner with notable care and attention. In 1950, Jaeger LeCoultre released the Memovox, also known as "Voice of memory", name derived from the Latin words "memoria" for memory, and "vox" for voice. In 2003, 53 years later the launch of the first specimen, Jaeger launched a new, limited edition of the Memovox, under the Master Compressor collection. Available in only 250 pieces and fully realized in platinum, the reference 146.6.97, such as the present watch is a solid timepiece that, despite the use of one of the hardest materials available, is conformable and charming. The three-body case with concave and curved lugs has a Compressor Key for alarm winding crown at 2, time-setting and winding crown at 4, winding crown at 10 for the revolving dive time ring, all preserved in very good conditions. Link together by a leather strap, on the caseback all the engravings are deep and clear. The blue dial has luminous Arabic numerals and dart indexes, outer revolving disc for the dive time, aperture for the alarm indication and luminous dauphine hands. Furthermore, the watch also comes with its box and booklet.

Excluding the mythical reference 6270 and 6269, Rolex hardly ever embellished their chronograph models with precious stones. Yet, with the introduction of the automatic Daytona, the manufacture gradually incorporated elaborate Daytona designs to their line of production, due to changing tastes in the market. Only a handful of this highly appealing Daytona are thought to have been made and very few have appeared in public and the here offered reference 116589RBR is definitely one of the coolest in recent years. The 40 mm case in white gold is extremely well-preserved and is equipped with a very precious two-lines diamond-set, representation of the rigorous standards in quality Rolex is particularly skilled in. The classic combination of the white gold case and black lacquered dial enhanced by diamond-set numerals is one of the most beautiful variants ever created for the Daytona line. This very black dial has been mounted under special request of a prominent Rolex customer. The watch also comes with its full set composed of box, Booklets, service, tag and papers.

This chronograph was designed to be the ultimate timing tool for endurance racing drivers. More than 50 years after its creation, the Cosmograph Daytona remains in a class of its own among sport chronographs and continues to transcend time. The reference 116 523 was the first stainless steel and yellow-gold Daytona chronograph to feature Rolex's new in-house caliber 4130, replacing the famed Zenith El Primero caliber 4030. The steel 40 mm Oyster case is ringed by the distinctive Daytona gold bezel and a steel case. With its two-tone coloring, steel and 18k gold, it has arguably the most versatility compared to all its steel and all gold stable mates. The white dial is untouched, gorgeous with the red Daytona signature and the applied yellow-gold baton numerals. Moreover this specimen comes with its original box and tag.

During the years many references have been realized, starting from the 6204 in 1953, passing through the 6538 Big crown or Coroncione, the 5513 and the 1680, the first model with date indication. Firstly, produced in stainless steel only, with the changes of tastes were also offered models entirely made with other materials, such as yellow gold, going to subvert the starting idea of a predominantly resistant watch, made of steel, with another one of elegance and versatility thanks to the use of gold. In 1979 a further change of pace, with the introduction of a new reference which added the novelty of the sapphire crystal instead of the classic plexiglass one. Was so born the 16 800 in stainless steel and the 16 808 in full 18k yellow gold, like the present lot. This reference (such as the 16 800) have the quick date change and remained in production until the 1987 and examples in nice conditions with full set such as the present one are very difficult to find. The case with crown guards, the Triplock winding crown and screw back is very nice and crisp and so is the Oyster yellow gold bracelet with original Rolex clasp. The unidirectional black bezel for checking decompression time spans still maintains the original color with no evident signs. The black glossy dial has the esteemed nipple configuration with applied dot indexes for hours/minutes and Mercedes hands. The caliber is the automatic 3035. Sold with original box, booklet and additional bezel.

In 2001, Harry Winston decided to launch The Opus Series, a new creative project designed to reconstruct and redesign time. Building upon the Opus tradition of partnering with an outside watchmaker to develop a new Opus design each year, Opus 9 marks the first time that Harry Winston has partnered with two, independent pioneering forces in the field of haute-horlogerie: 1) watch maker Jean-Marc Wiederrecht, and 2) designer Eric Giroud, giving birth to a totally groundbreaking timepiece. In the present Opus 9, diamonds are not merely a decorative element, but the functional element of time telling. Replacing the traditional watch hands and cyclical dial, time is displayed by two parallel diamond chains, for hours and minutes, composed of 33 baguette-cut diamonds and two mandarin garnets to indicate the hours and minutes. Massive and sophisticated, the sculptural case is designed to emphasize the functional beauty of the diamonds, while supporting the movement. Crafted in white gold, the frame is defined by a structural bridge, which lends both technical and aesthetic stability to the design and covered by a transparent sapphire crystal, the case and movement of the chains remain visible at all angles. Designed with purity and defined by precision, Opus 9 distills fine watch making down to its absolute essentials.

The Portugieser by IWC was firstly introduced over 80 years ago from direct request of two Portuguese businessmen to commission a wristwatch with the precision of a marine chronometer. From that moment on the Portugieser has been explored in many ways by the maison, housing various complications over course of its production, including Kurt Klaus' signature perpetual calendar module. In 2010, IWC introduced the Portugieser Perpetual Calendar ref. 502121 such as the present lot, offering a 7-Day power reserve as well as a moon phase allowing the wearer to read the indication in its hemisphere. The present example from circa 2010 has a solid and massive white gold 44 mm case with crystal back allowing the owner to see the automatic caliber 51614 that powers the watch. Fitted with a blue dial with white arabic numerals and four subsidiary dials, this very watch is one of the most precious creations by IWC and is offered with its full set of accessories. A perfect value for buck perpetual calendar timepiece suitable for any important occasions.

Smart but sporty, functional yet simple, the Datejust is one of the longest produced models in the Rolex catalog. Initially launched in 1945, this watch enjoys over seven decades of successful aesthetic and functional evolution. The last step in its continuous upgrade was the augmentation of the case which translates into a more modern dress watch, thus making it more appealing to the contemporary man who values trends and style. The here offered reference 116334 has the updated case measuring 41 mm and was released at Baselworld in 2009. Differing from its predecessor, reference 16234, also by an enlarged date disc and the new caliber 3136 movement, the unquestionable advantages of the augmented 41 mm case are the wider dial and the increased legibility. The case has been manufactured in stainless steel and preserved in almost untouched conditions while the bezel is in white gold, also called white Rolesor by Rolex. While adding weight and importance to the watch, this choice of materials grants it an extremely elegant look and sportyness with the solid Oyster bracelet. The dial is black with applied big wide luminous hour markers and the large Rolex crown logo located at 12 o'clock, enhancing legibility in any lighting conditions. The 116334 is a very popular option on the market due to its sporty vibe and smart design and the present one is even more appealing coming with its original warranty, box, tags and papers.

Patek Philippe has never produced many Split Seconds complications, making this complication very appreciated and sought after on the watch market. The first split seconds chronograph wristwatch produced by Patek Philippe came in 1923, with a Victorin Piguet-based ebauche housed in an 18K yellow gold officer-style case. Subsequently followed the reference 1436 (about 165 total examples produced between 1938 and 1971), the reference 1563 and the unique piece reference 2512. In 2005 introduced a new split-seconds chronograph, the reference 5959, but at Baselworld 2010 was launched the acclaimed 5950A, the perfect renaissance of the unmistakable late 1920's style of chronograph. The current 5950A has remained perfectly preserved since its delivery in 2012 and strikes for its beauty. The extremely rare stainless steel cushion-shaped case represents an unusual and most appreciated decision since the vast majority of Patek Philippe's complicated timepieces are housed in cases made of precious metals. Discontinued and now followed by the reference 5950/1A - introduced at Baselworld 2015, this 5950A is furthermore delivered complete with all original accessories including its solid case back, certificates and other literature.

Exponent of the reference 3588/1, first series of 3588 launched in 1970 and in production until around the 1980, the present Patek Philippe is a very nice specimen of Chevron Gold of absolutely great quality. The three body case with "Clous-de-Paris" bezel and recessed winding crown is finely preserved with its solid integrated bracelet repeating the bezel decoration. The champagne dial has painted radial Roman numerals decoration and black oxidized gold baton hands. This very reference is powered by the LeCoultre based calibre 28-255, a first time for Patek, that at the time was considered to be one of the favourite ultra-thin self-winding movements in production. Furthermore, this watch is sold with its original box.

Roger Dubuis let the design take the lead with the Velvet, its famous watch collection for ladies. With its unusual shaped case, full of intricate details, is the Velvet not easy to craft, but certainly worth the effort, as it results in one of the most original ladies watches currently available, combining exquisite craftsmanship, eye for detail as well as a superb movement, all in an original design. Made in a vast variety of examples, they all share the same basic shape of the case, but Roger Dubuis made subtle differences that give each member of the Velvet collection its own personality. The here offered reference 86770 is a precious specimen realized in fully 18k white gold. The oval shape with massive curved lugs is preserved in incredible conditions and has been embellished with a diamond-set bezel that weaves with a solid white gold bracelet with internal chain decoration that recalls the diamonds-set decoration of the bezel. The two tone silvered dial shows a glamorous roman-numerals layout with applied grey VI and XII while rest are in black. Offered with its original orange box, this very watch is powered by an automatic movement.

Most of the watches produced by Patek Philippe over the years have always been amazed by its ability to totally break the mold with the aesthetic standards of the period in which they were designed. The Patek Philippe Grand Complication Minute Repeater ref. 5078 is one of the most elegant and simple looking minute repeaters, inside a double-gong chiming mechanism marks the hours, quarter hours and the minutes. Only available in 18K rose gold or in Platinum like the present lot, this watch is set on a black alligator strap with transparent case back, inclined bezel, concave lugs and sapphire crystals. The always fascinating complication of minute repeating on gongs is activated by the slide on the band. The White enamel dial with black Roman numerals, outer minute divisions and subsidiary seconds is completed with a beautiful set of Feuille hands. This lot is offered here complete with all its accessories: Box, Certificate of Origin, Engine for Time-Machine and Book.

At SIHH 2013, Panerai raised the curtain on a new bronze age: the Luminor Submersible 1950 PAM 507. This very model immediately strikes for its massive, 47 mm diameters, aged bronze case, a true new entry for the Italian brand and for the whole watch industry. Panerai's bronze draws its enduring strength from the metal's ability to shield itself from decay with a dynamic smoky green patina giving every single watch a distinctive unique look. Another notable detail is the green dial, further enhancing its military appeal, with applied dot numerals, big luminous hands, date and power reserve indication. The reference PAM00507 has been produced in a limited edition of only 1000 pieces, and the lot here offered is number 803 as testified by the engravings on the back. Furthermore, the lot comes with its original set composed of box and papers.

In 1993, Audemars Piguet decided to “update” the iconic Royal Oak with a sporty and even more masculine aesthetic. Emmanuel Gueit was charged by the AP’s managing director Stephen Urquhart to give a new and more fresh look to this model, enlarging the size of the case from the standard 39 mm to 42, in order to attract younger and more recreational buyers. The result was a massively new watch, with way thicker case and featuring a chronograph and calendar mechanism, along with a prominent rubber gasket sandwiched between the bezel and case and the rubber coated chronograph pushers and screw down crown. The present watch is a very rare and extremely impressive iteration of that famed design, featuring a date and chronograph complication. This reference 26079IR.OO.1000IR.01 has been manufactured in titanium and pink gold in the occasion of the Queen Elizabeth II Cup, an annual horse race held in Hong Kong from 1995, and that is testified by the engraving on the back. The black dial has an outer circular engraved decoration while internally there is a chessboard one. The counters are located at 12, 6 and 9 o’clock while at 3 is positioned the date. The big arabic numerals have pink gold border and white inside, except for the number 8, fully paved with small, brilliant cut diamonds since the number 8 has long been regarded as the luckiest number in Chinese culture.

From the first moment the wristwatch was presented to the world, the brands tried to develop its design in the most beautiful and elegant way possible. From this will was born therefore one of the most particular and appreciated forms ever produced, the Tonneau. Widely explored by various brands, this shape reminiscent that of a barrel (in Frances Tonneau) was also used by Patek Philippe to give life to its iconic Gondolo model, now much sought after by collectors. Superb example of the Art Deco modern style and prominent exponent of the roaring twenties, this model was produced in the late 1910s and early 1920s in an exceedingly small series, often for Patek's celebrated Brazilian retailer Gondolo & Labouriau Relojoeiros in Rio de Janeiro. In 2007, Patek Philippe paid homage to the beloved watch by launching reference 5098 in platinum. This example is the perfect opportunity for the lovers of fané wristwatches. Its platinum case still maintains the original proportions with the thin screwed lugs. The watch features a wonderful Guilloché two-tone silver dial with painted black radial Breguet numerals on a plain reserve, outer minute track, and a very discreet diamond set within the case between the lugs at 6 o'clock, the firm's signature for platinum timepieces.

The Submariner is among the most iconic — if not the most iconic — timepieces Rolex has ever produced and beyond any doubt one of Rolex's most coveted models in the history of horology. The first yellow gold Rolex Submariner was introduced in 1969. It came with either a black nipple dial and black bezel or a blue nipple dial and blue bezel. Colors schemes that have stuck with the yellow gold Submariners to this day. This example was introduced in 2010 for the newest and current Yellow Gold Submariner, reference 116618, exactly like the wristwatch offered here. The 18K yellow-gold case and bracelet further add an aura of lavishness to the very durable tool watch. Not only is the stylish proportions retained, but it is now even more opulent in a yellow-gold case which contrasts perfectly with the pitch-black dial for an outstandingly powerful final aesthetic effect. The black dial with applied indexes is completed by its black bezel in untouched condition that still present its original cover. Accompanied by the Original Rolex Box, warranty, booklet and tag.

The present Day-Date is a reference 118346 and must be regarded as one of the most luxurious versions of the model that was firstly launched in 1956. Combining the substantial platinum case and bracelet, its rarity is given by the special bezel enriched with 52 brilliant cut diamonds on the bezel. This piece can be considered the culmination of preciousness and elegance. It features the noblest case metal of all, platinum, that has been preserved in almost untouched conditions in both bracelet and case: as know, platinum is extremely rare and precious, and it is supremely striking with its silvery whiteness and vibrant effulgence. The Day Date watches have a strong identity and they are flawlessly legible, there is absolutely no clutter, and only essential precious elements are included. This case is different, in fact the silvered dial has been embellished with hour markers fashioned from round brilliant diamonds, with the 6 and the 9 being baguette step cut diamonds and outer minutes/seconds track. A Day-Date transcends its incredibly precious materials and intrinsic value with unequivocal personal meaning and will always be cherished, but this very specimen, sold with its box, is a true emotional symbol.

Constantly in production until the present day, this dynasty of chronograph with perpetual calendar and moon phases was born in 1941 with the legendary 1518 replaced only a few years later by the equally iconic 2499 (in 1950) and after that by the 3970. The 5970 were introduced in 2004 by Thierry Stern as the successor to the reference 3970. In devising the 5970, Thierry wanted to create a watch that would cater to the younger generation while also inheriting the legacy that defined Patek's remarkable history. The Patek 5970 was the last of Patek's perpetual calendar watches to utilize the Lemania 2310-based movement. The yellow-gold case of the lot offered here is exceptional, equipped with a very elegant Matte silver dial with applied yellow gold faceted baton indexes, subsidiary dials for the seconds, 24 hours, 30-minute register and leap year, graduation for the days of the month, minute/ seconds track and tachometer scale, outer 1/5th seconds track, apertures for days of the week, months and moon phases, completed by the Yellow gold feuille hands. An icon and a piece of history is offered here for true lovers and enthusiasts. Accompanied by its Certificate of Origin confirming the case material, caliber and the sale on the 13th August 2008.

1988 was a very breakthrough year since the iconic Oyster Perpetual Cosmograph Daytona series reference 16 500 was launched. Taking advantage of the increased size of the case from 37 to 40 mm, these models came equipped with the legendary 4030 caliber with Zenith El Primero ebauche. There were several novelties compared to previous models such as a sapphire crystal which replaced the previous plexiglass one. This timepiece encountered great success and throughout the years has become an icon amongst Rolex collectors. The present Daytona is a reference 16 520 which means that its case and bracelet are entirely made in stainless steel. Preserved in good conditions, this specimen impresses for the quality of its case and rare black Mark IV Patrizzi dial. Patrizzi dials are extremely well know and sought after among collectors and are not other than dials where the original white chapter rings have reacted to sunlight and other environmental factors then turning into shades of brown. This 16 520 is a very nice one for its well preserved case and original bracelet and it's black special dial, moreover it is sold with its Rolex Box.

For many year, the Air-King reference 5500 represented the entry-level, time-only watch for Rolex, especially created in honour of RAF pilots after World War II. Produced by Rolex in the 40's, is part of an obscure group of "Air" watches that comprehended the Air-Lion, Air-Tiger, and Air-Giant. Based on its popularity, Rolex later added the Air-King-Date in 1958 with the reference 5700, such as the lot here offered. This very model was produced in a way smaller quantity than the non-date 5500 usually presenting the inscription "Air King- Date" on the dial. The here offered model is a way more precious version with a particularly rare black dial with applied baton indexes and signature "Explorer Date" at 12 o'clock. With a 34 mm stainless steel case preserved in a good conditions and an Oyster bracelet of the same material, this very watch is undoubtedly a piece of collection for any collector and passionate in history. Understated in both appearance and size, the 5700 offers a practical, versatile alternative to Rolex's other highly-purposeful wristwatches.

During the early days of the Explorer, launched in 1953, Rolex was unsure of the model's potential and for this reason the Explorer name was affixed to a number of watches not immediately recognizable as Explorer. Equipped on the reference 5504 usually applied to the Air-King, was chosen the so called Explorer dial that could have two variants: the "Precision" and the "Super Precision". This second version is the one equipped on the present lot, remarkable for its quality and beauty. As one of Rolex's most popular sports watches, the Explorer is easily recognizable by its black dial with the luminous triangle at 12, luminous Arabic numerals at 3, 6, and 9 o'clock and luminous baton numerals for the remaining hours. This example features a beautiful black dial equipped on a three body stainless steel case with screw back finely preserved. The aging of the radium is defiantly fascinating gaining a brown color capable of striking the passionates and surprise the neophytes, a true magical piece for any collection.

The Explorer is simply an expression of the basic Oyster Perpetual: it doesn't boast construction like Deep Sea or Sea-Dweller beasts, nor does it feature a revolving bezel. It simply promises the wearer absolutely faultless legibility, abetted by all of the security imparted by the standard Oyster case. That why, this very model was the one chosen by Rolex experts to accompany Sir Edmund Hillary on his successful ascent to the top of Mount Everest. Immediately after this quest, this very model gained popularity so that Rolex decided to produced different variations. One of them is the reference 5500, that was essentially an Air King with Explorer dial. The present specimen is a fair and gorgeous 550 with a three body stainless steel case preserved in fair conditions still maintaining the original proportions. The black dial has the iconic configuration with the luminous triangle at 12, luminous Arabic numerals at 3, 6, and 9 and luminous baton numerals for the remaining hours and the "Super Precision" designation at 6 o'clock.

Known by collectors as the Ovettone, the reference 6298 impresses by its large case size of 36 mm and its domed back further increasing its wrist presence. The inventiveness of Rolex in finding new names for its creations seems never to end. One more name has been used in that years and now is very difficult to find and is that of Explorer. This wording was present only on some rare dials equipped on the reference 6298, a Precision model available in stainless steel, launched by Rolex as prototypes for the future Explorer line, these early versions feature the word Explorer on the dial. The lot offered here is one of this specimen in very nice conditions, the argenté dial of this lot, in addition to presenting the precious writing, has the further peculiarity of the applied baton and arabic numerals at 3.6 and 9 with the nice alpha hands with inner luminous material.

The story begins in 1952 when number of climbers travelled to the Tibet and China border as part of a research trip in preparation for the 1953 assault of Everest and Rolex wanted to help in this venture giving them its first prototype Explorer in a 36mm steel case called Big-Bubbleback. A few years later, in 1959 the Explorer model 1016 was launched, it was the first Explorer to be marked 'Superlative Chronometer Officially Certified' on the dial, and was also the first to feature minute marks which went to the very edge of the dial. This example is one of this family and it comes in untouched conditions with sharp case and oyster riveted bracelet. The Dial is perfect aged with its black matte color and the well-know 3,6,9 indexes filled with tritium turned into a ocre color that identifies this model. It is important to underline that until the early to mid 1960s Radium had been used but being its potentially catastrophic effects were after replaced by the tritium, identified by the 'SWISS T<25 or T-SWISS-T' signature on the bottom edge of dial like the present lot.

Rolex were adamant that they wanted their watches on the summit and so in 1952 they equipped the British climbers with large size Oyster watches. These watches were what collectors now refer to as Pre-Explorers, essentially prototypes of what would ultimately become the Explorer. This example of Explorer reference 1016 watch is not one of the first but it features the same 36 mm sized Oyster case like the first one that climbed the mountains. It presents no evident signs of wearing, along with an Oyster bracelet in nice conditions as well and its black matte dial, introduced in the late 1960s, instead of the previous gilt one, has a white iconic trio of Arabic numerals at 3, 6, and 9 o'clock. Completed by the signature of this model with baton indexes, outer minute/second divisions and luminous steel Mercedes skeleton hands this watch is an unmissable piece of history reminiscent of human feats.

The Explorer history dates back to the references 6098 and 6150 in 1952, followed by the 6610 three years later. The 5500 is not a reference of a Explorer family, in fact, clearly identifiable as an Explorer with its 3-6-9 dial, the present reference 5500 is a transformed Air King model with a 34mm case instead of the usual 36mm. The DNA of the history of the model is undeniably present, but is a bit re-interpreted with a smaller twist, noticeable especially in its perfect stainless steel case and by its dial design, with its black gilt configuration, preserved in immaculate condition and with an important feature: the presence of an "underline" along with the rarely seen double "-T<25" printing on both sides of the "SWISS" designation at 6 o'clock, printed later in a different silver tone.

The conditions in the high mountains represent the ideal environment for evaluating the reliability and robustness of a watch. For Rolex, the Himalayas were the best natural laboratory.

Most people believe that the Explorer I was launched by Rolex for commemorating the Everest expedition and that this watch was with British explorer team consisting of Edmund Hillary, Sherpa Tenzing Norgay and John Hunt on 29th, May of 1953, achieving a great task of human being climbing. This story is definitely magic and attractive, but it still has a certain distance to the real fact. Rolex indeed had supported Himalayan expedition since 1933, and later in Everest expeditions, Rolex had been always the official supporters, so Rolex endorsed each explorer team with its wristwatch.

During the first half of the twentieth century, the Himalayas and its untouched peaks aroused the interest of nations and fascinated mountaineers from all over the world. Everest in particular, this colossus overlooking the mythical mountain range, has been the subject of great interest. This call for the highest peaks, felt on an international scale, combined with the possibility of testing their watches "in real life", has led Rolex to join numerous teams of pioneering mountaineers. Between 1933 and 1955, seventeen expeditions equipped with watches of the brand set off to conquer the highest peaks.

These watches have witnessed several "first" ascents, starting with Everest in 1953, the highest peak in the world with its 8,848 meters, followed by K2 in 1954, the second highest peak in the world with its 8,611. meters, from Mount Kangchenjunga in 1955, the third highest peak in the world with its 8,586 meters and from Mount Makalu in the same year, the fifth highest peak in the world with its 8,485 meters.

The Explorer was based on the already existing tough and hard wearing bubbleback, which has been modified by Rolex for the more active and adventurous customer. In 1952, the references 6098 and 6150 (both using the A296 movement) were in fact the first prototypes of Explorer to be used by climbers; they were watches with white dials and leaf shaped hands and did not bear the name Explorer yet.

Returning from each of these expeditions, the climbers, through their feedback, have contributed to improving the performance of future Rolex watches. Thus, just as movement feeds on the gestures of the wearer, watch-making technology has progressed thanks to the exploits of explorers, to better accompany them in the challenges that have made it possible to discover the less accessible places on the planet.

In 1953, the same year that Hillary successfully climbed Mount Everest, the results of these models became the reference 6350, like the present lot, when they were fitted with the "Explorer" moniker on the dial, making it the first "real" Explorer ever produced by Rolex. As such, all references before the 6350, are often dubbed "pre-Explorer." Although Rolex had registered the trade mark of Explorer in Geneva on 26th, Jan of 1953. As mentioned, all of the pre-Explorer references do not sport uniform dial layouts the way all true Explorer references have.

With this official reference 6350 "explorer", the climbers were equipped for the mission on K2, one of these specifically is proposed to the mountaineer Ugo Angelino, in fact it was precisely in 1954 that Ardito Desio chose him as one of the mountaineers who would face the expedition to K2 of the same year. The Karakorum, 8,611 meters, is the second highest peak in the world. Second compared to Everest (8,848 meters), but first in terms of difficulty due to its characteristics: steep walls, extremely difficult climbing passages, unpredictable weather and storms that last for days. Everest, a few degrees further south, is less steep and is considered affordable even for relatively less experienced climbers and that is testified by the fact that over 3000 people in the course of history managed to reach the top of the Everest, while for the K2 only less than 300.

Previously, Angelino had taken part in the training at Plateau Rosa, along with other climbers who aspired to take part in the expedition. He himself, after training, took care of compiling the list of materials needed to be transported to Pakistan among these he inserted the watches that at that time were on everyone's lips having already passed the Everest test, we are talking about this Rolex

Explorer watch present in this auction. Since that day, due to these successes in these various missions, Rolex made people talk about themselves all over the world and decided to change its company policy, moving to the creation of tool watches, in order to help operators in the sector such as aviators, divers, speleologist, regatisti, pilots, laboratory physicists exposed to strong magnetic fields and many others, in everyday life. Rolex therefore decided, starting from the basic concept of watches with an oyster case that guaranteed their water resistance, and the perpetual automatic movement, the creation of new specific models, as we know them today, such as the most iconic Daytona, Submariner, Gmt Master, Yacht Master up to Milgauss.

Agatha Christie once said "One coincidence is just a coincidence, two coincidences are a clue, three coincidences are a proof", and by following this idea, Rolex understood that, based on the actual excellent results of its creations subjected to extreme environments, the way to go was probably slightly different than the first one undertaken by Hans Wilsdorf. Therefore, no longer watches produced with precious materials and with fascinating complications such as "moon-phases" or "triple calendar", but rather tool-watches, suitable for challenges and extreme environments, but also perfect for everyday-life. The Maison realized that the elite of the population was no longer the only target to aspire to, but rather the whole world! Wilsdorf understood that a change of course was necessary, dedicating its production to watches that the entire population had the possibility of accessing. And it was precisely this last clue that made things clear: the audacious expedition to the Karakorum in 1954 in which Ugo Angelino took part, definitively contributed to marking the road then followed up to the present days. A tiny, efficient and gorgeous watch led the road to what for almost 70 years has marked the times of Rolex creations: the watch that went on the K2, the watch that changed everything, the watch that is offered now to you by Monaco Legend Group!

Going into the details of this specimen, as with most early Rolex models, the dial is gilt (golden type print) and is a so called chapter ring (due to the ring around the outer circumference of the dial). Rolex also stamped it OCC or 'Officially Certified Chronometer'. In terms of the hour markers- the Explorer was the inspiration for all legendary dials that would come afterwards including the Submariner and Turn-O-Graphs. The 6350 dial is among the most beautiful in terms of simplicity and readability

Reference 9083 such as the present lot has been firstly introduced on the market in the middle of 1950's and ever since collectors and passionates have been calling it UFO for its round case, which is reminiscent of a flying saucer. The lot here offered is exceptionally well preserved with deep and crisp serial number and Rolex crown on the back. This model is atypical for the brand considering its slightly recessed crown to give a symmetrical look to the whole watch and for the geometrical lugs with a Oyster riveted look-like bracelet. The dial has developed a light and beautiful patina throughout but the main characteristics are the non-lume variety and the honeycomb texture that give a unique charm to the watch.

The lot here offered is a noble and elegant Calatrava made by Patek Philippe, the typical size that people used to wear in the first part of the century, and the unmistakable style. What you are looking at is one of the last example of the "old-style" wristwatches that Patek Philippe kept within its production until the end of the 20th century. The maintenance of the two-body solid, polished, brushed case with snap back and thin straight lugs is really remarkable for its quality. The dial has the classic champagne but with that touch of class represented by the painted black Roman numerals. These style elements with the thin hands give this watch a classic Patek Philippe look and feel.

The Rolex GMT Master was first introduced in 1954 with the reference 6542, but the model is still manufactured today and during all these years multiple examples have been produced featuring different dials, sizes and used materials. The two-tone gold and stainless steel reference 1675 here offered is one of those and along with the one in steel, and the one in gold were introduced in the 1959. They were launched because Rolex decided to update the precedent reference changing the bezel in metallic and the mechanism in a new one. This lot is preserved in very beautiful conditions with a nice satin finish on the lugs: the crown guards, introduced with this model, are still cool and defined. The dial has indeed been realized in a dark brown color with applied luminous yellow gold baton, triangular and dot indexes, for this reason also know as nipple dial given the particular shape of these numerals. The outer minute/seconds divisions is open while is for sure present the aperture for the date, magnified by the cyclops lens on the crystal glass.

The Explorer I was created especially for mountain climbers, while the Explorer II, with its 24-hour graduated bezel and its large, luminescent 24-hour hand arrow, was intended for those spending extended time in dark environments, such as spelunkers. It was 1971 when the first Explorer II reference 1655 was presented like this watch. The dial of the present "Freccione" reference 1655 displays a "T Swiss <25 T" designation underneath 6 o'clock, instead of "T Swiss T", which previous generation dials would feature. The lot offered here is one of these wonderful examples with also its very nice indexes with luminous material which is turned to an exciting color. This Explorer II delights with its condition, crisp, perfect case, and beautifully aged dial.

The world's largest airline Pan Am commissioned a specially designed watch allowing their pilots to keep track of time in two locations and allowing the success of the reference 6542, Rolex introduced in 1959 the following reference 1675 which remained in production until 1980. The lot offered here is an astonishing specimen of 1675 with special features: the stainless steel case is in great conditions with a well-preserved Pepsi bezel and the luminous material has aged nicely gaining a cream-brown together with its hands but the most important thing is the "Quraysh Hawk" logo, printed on the dial in different 'padded layers' that create a tri-dimensional effect. The present watch was presented as a gift by the then-Minister of Defense to an American friend working in Dubai, Mr. Raymond Trahan. Raymond Trahan played an important role in completing some of the largest oil platform constructions in the region and met Sheikh Mohammed in the mid 70's becoming good friends. In 1978 Raymond was invited to a skeet shooting competition with the royal family of Dubai. As an award for winning the competition, he was gifted this Rolex GMT 1675 watch by Sheikh Mohammed himself. The back case of this extraordinary example is engraved: "PRESENTED TO R. TRAHAN, BY SHAIKH M B R AL-MAKTOUM, MINISTER OF DEFENSE, ON APRIL 2.78". Featuring the United Arab Emirates (UAE) crest and the Arabic text translated as "Ministry of Defense" the present specimen stands out not only for its rarity and its history but also for its extraordinary condition.

In 1926, he gave birth to the first totally waterproof case, named Oyster. Only 5 years later the company introduced the world's first self-winding mechanism, a totally new era of convenience and functionality. From that moment on these two innovations were at the basis of basically all Rolex's creation, such as the present example of reference 6284. The present watch is very beautiful thanks to its stainless steel and yellow gold Jubilee bracelet in nice conditions and nowadays difficult to find. The case is in stainless steel and gold and is surprising for the conditions of both case back and bezel. It has a special silver-plated dial with patina, dagger indexes, dauphine hands with central luminous material and, above all, the exceptional indexes at 3, 6 and 9 o'clock with 3 brilliant-cut diamonds each. This watch has been retailed through the Cuba-based jewelry Joyeria Riviera. Located in the luxury "Galiano Boulevard" in Havana, Joyeria Riviera was part of the very few retailers allowed to have their name printed on the dial underneath the Rolex and model's name. With a captivating aesthetic, the current 6084 is an added value for any collection with its unusual silver dial and extraordinary diamond

The reference 6029 was introduced in the early 1950's and is also known as the "Super Oyster". It is characterized by its large screw down case back and crown and on this reference happens to see some particular dials. The lot here offered is a gorgeous and genuine specimen realized in pink gold and still incredibly well preserved. Considering its almost 70 years of age, no major signs are present nor on the back or the rest of the three-body case but rather the proportions are definitely notable. The presence of a "tile" bracelet with rhomboidal decoration in the inner part makes this watch extremely fascinating. Further fineness is the gorgeous honeycomb dial with its light patina and aging that confer additional charm to this very appreciated variation of dial. With black printing, gold baton faceted indexes, alpha hands and outer minutes and seconds division, this watch is the truly essence of Rolex style and design, and iconic testimony of good old days.

The present reference 6305 is part of the early Datejust models still featuring a narrow stripped bezel that was in production from 1953 until 1956. Extremely charming, its pink gold oyster case seems it has almost never been worn during over 60 years, such as its jubilee bracelet. Important historical testimony, this very watch has been given as a present in 1957 for the 20 years of service of an employee as demonstrated by the engravings on the back: the incredible peculiarity is that these inscriptions are extremely deep and clear, demonstrating that the watch has almost never been worn by the previous owner. Safely conserved in one of the most prestigious Rolex collections, its incredibly high quality makes it one of the nicest and most rare that can be found on the market nowadays. Moreover, to make it even more precious, is the signature on the dial of the famous Venezuelan retailer Serpico Y Laino, active from 1925 to 1966 and known as one of the best watches retailers in the whole South America.

The here offered reference 5027 is definitely one of the most attractive Oyster Perpetual creation of the 1940's. The two-body case with screw down back in yellow gold still retaining its original finishing and conditions with the unusual graduated bezel with no evident signs. The watch is also equipped with a charming "maillons plaquette" gold bracelet with big logo deployant. The absolutely most striking element of this watch is however the dial: its surface is finished with the highly sophisticated honeycomb technique. Preserved in stunning conditions, this work of mastery is embellished with applied gold faceted baton indexes, outer perlage minutes divisions, seconds at 6 o'clock and the unusual designation "Precision" at 12. Highly charismatic example presented in remarkable condition, the present lot is one of the most fascinating time-only Rolex ever appeared at auction in recently years and is further precious considering its notable pedigree being preserved in the collection of a very notable Italian collector for many years until this moment.

CATCHING AND CHARMING "EMPIRE"
OYSTER PERPETUAL WRISTWATCH
IN YELLOW GOLD, REFERENCE
3548, WITH BLACK DIAL RETAILED
BY CUERVOS Y SOBRINOS

Brand	Rolex
Model	Empire
Reference	3548
Case Material	Yellow Gold
Bracelet Material	Yellow Gold
Year	1938
Movement Type	Automatic
Caliber	9 3/4"
Case N°	45737
Dimensions	32 mm
Signed	Dial, movement and case
Accessories	Cuervo Y Sobrinos

This reference 3548 perfectly captured the Rolex's essence of ingenuity adding a distinctive flair. Its style is essential, set mainly on an elegant aesthetic and a delicate shape, but at the same time precious considering the use of the yellow gold. The water resistant two-body Empire-style case with screwed-down case back and winding crown and straight lapidated lugs has been manufactured in yellow gold, something uncommon on this model and despite the almost 80 years of age is conserved amazingly with totally visible engravings on the back. The black gilt dial has Arabic with outer 5 minutes track, outer minute track of a fascinating ocher color, with a charming patina but in real nice conditions. On the dial is also present the signature of the Cuban retailer Cuervos y Sobrinos. To further embellish the whole watch a yellow gold bamboo bracelet.

REMARKABLE AND UNUSUAL DATEJUST
AUTOMATIC WRISTWATCH IN YELLOW
GOLD, REFERENCE 6305, WITH DIAMONDS
INDEXES AND VERY UNUSUAL BRACELET

Brand	Rolex
Model	Datejust
Reference	6305
Case Material	Yellow Gold
Bracelet Material	Yellow Gold
Year	1955
Movement Type	Automatic
Caliber	A.296
Case N°	114581
Dimensions	36 mm
Signed	Dial, movement and case

In production between 1953 and 1956, reference 6305 such as the present watch is nicknamed "Ovettone" due to the likeness of its case to an egg. This very lot has a wonderful yellow gold three-body case with screw down back and reeded bezel, all heavenly aged and preserved, with a very deep hallmark on the lug. Anyway, the real exclusivity of this watch lies in its dial. Like on the Day-Dates model, Rolex decided to dare and experiment to express its creativity and audacity on some special Datejust dials and the lot here offered is surely one of the best demonstration of this inclination. The silvered dial indeed displays 6 round cut diamond hour markers for the even numbers, with the odd numbers indicated by gold applied triangle indexes. The black and red date wheel, called roulette, adds another level of flamboyance to the overall appeal of this beautiful watch. Precious but at the same time sophisticated, this 6305 is also equipped with a fantastic yellow gold bracelet decorated with a tile motif. The presence of this special dial rarely seen on the market and made in very limited numbers makes this lot a truly gem for Rolex collectors.

Bracelet Material	Leather Strap
Year	1941
Movement Type	Automatic
Caliber	9 3/4
Case N°	128483
Dimensions	32 mm
Signed	Dial, movement and case

Introduced in 1930's, reference 3536 by Rolex is an exceedingly rare example of an early Oyster Perpetual Bubbleback and was available in stainless steel and pink gold or stainless steel and yellow gold or stainless steel such as the present specimen. This latter version is doubtlessly one of the most stylistic models ever made of bubbleback with its concave enlarged bezel and slim straight lugs and probably the most sought after by collector. The lot here offered has an incredibly well preserved case with absolutely deep and crisp engravings on the back and very strong proportions. Many different dial layouts were offered for this model and among the most appreciated there's for sure the salmon one such as the one equipped on the present lot. A fascinating design with Roman numerals, closed seconds track interpose with arabic 5 seconds makes it a true missing piece for any Rolex collection.

Signed	Dial, movement and case

In the early 20th century the Art Deco movement has been associated with luxury, glamour, exuberance, and modernity. It was an international design movement impacting all walks of life, from architecture and furniture, to jewelry and timepieces. From this new conception of art Rolex took inspiration to create a totally new design for its creation: giving birth to one of the symbols of luxury during the Depression-era, the lot here offered is a totally groundbreaking specimen that represented the anticipation of the Prince. Made in stainless steel and yellow gold and preserved in fine conditions with a spreading oxidation, the modernistic, slender case consists of two parts: the curved stainless steel bottom with hooded lugs in gold and the superimposed, massive "snap on" bezel in steel that comes out to reveal the movement. The strap is totally covered by the lugs and this last detail is what breaks the rule compared to almost all the other Prince that will follow and made the present watch a special piece. Moreover the two-tone champagne dial has a fine and elegant oblique quadripartition of great charm with black baton faceted indexes and the classical seconds at 6 o'clock.

Bracelet Material	Leather Strap
Year	1946
Movement Type	Automatic
Caliber	10 1/2"
Case N°	460477
Dimensions	35 mm
Signed	Dial, movement and case

In production on from 1945 to 1949, reference 4467 represents the beginning of one of the most recognized names in modern horology: the Rolex Datejust. Made in celebration of the brand's 40th anniversary, the model would evolve into one of Rolex's most iconic models of all time, today nicknamed "Ovettone" due to its likeness to an egg. An exceedingly rare timepiece, the first 100 examples were available only through a coupon found on the Genève newspaper "Tribune de Genève". This particular yellow gold example has been preserved in good condition with its distinctive reeded bezel. The silvered matte dial with applied dagger numerals, sweep centre seconds, outer fifth of a second divisions combined with Arabic five minutes divisions doesn't presents luminous accents nor hands. Technical necessities dictated by the presence of the rotor commanded quite a large case design for the time, which grants to the piece a gratifying massiveness, measuring 14 mm, making it in the course of history a cult favorite among collectors, representing an inedible landmark moment within Rolex's history.

Rolex Bubbleback is one of the most versatile models ever produced by the brand: among the many variants of the legendary "bubble back" series, this very nice hooded lugs reference 3065 is probably the most sought after one, standing out for its many details and qualities. The three-body yellow gold case is solid, very well preserved and presents a smooth, concave bezel, screw down back and crown and gold cachet lugs. The mat silver dial has gained a supercool patina which transformed the original color to a light-yellow one and bears luminous dagger and Arabic numerals with outer minutes/seconds division, feuille gold hands and blue hand for constant seconds. Moreover it is also equipped with an Oyster, elastic, riveted bracelet. Slightly below the Oyster Perpetual designation is located the rare signature of the retailer Serpico Y Laino, based in Caracas that between 1925 and 1966 was the ruling seller of prestigious wristwatches on the Venezuelan soil.

The foundation of Universal Genève dates back to 1894, in the Swiss city of Le Locle and during its long history of over a century it has been able to stand out for the great aesthetic and performative quality of its watches, for the great variety of models offered but above all for being one of the first brands to present wrist chronographs. Moreover, Universal occasionally also tested itself in the creation of very large specimens of chronic and the reference 12515 here offered is definitely one of those. A single glance is sufficient to realise the supreme aesthetic impact of this very watch, featuring an incredibly oversized case measuring 46 mm. Such a large diameter is beyond unusual for the time, and it points to a professional or military intended destination of the piece. The yellow gold case is absolutely well reserved with fine proportions and still deep and visible the reference and serial numbers on the case. The dial is perfect for the vintage lovers, with its age charm and appeal presenting black arabic numerals, outer tachometer scale and the three subsidiary dials for constant seconds, 30 minutes and 12 hours registration.

Signed	Dial, movement and case

Made for approximately 20 years, the family of Dato Compax includes references 4767, 5036, 6036, and 6236 and has to be considered a landmark model as it represents the first foray of Rolex into the market of complicated timepieces: offering a chronograph function with triple calendar, there was no other Rolex chronograph model presenting more complications. These models were available in either stainless steel, yellow gold, or pink gold, with a variety of different dial designs. Reference 4767, such as the present watch, is probably the best known representative from this family, and was in production for most of the 1940s. It is believed that the Olympic skier Jean-Claude Killy wore a reference 6236, and it is for this reason this family of chronograph watches were bestowed the "Killy" nickname. The present specimen has an unbelievably crisp and well preserved two body steel case retaining excellent definition to all edges and preserved in original conditions. The two-tone dial is highlighted by the applied numerals and the outer blue date indication with English indication of the triple calendar displayed by the two windows at 12 o'clock. A most prominent trophy in any Rolex collection in the world.

The late 1920's and early 30's saw Rolex at its top for creativity and dynamism. Having launched the world's first truly waterproof and commercially successful (Oyster) watch in 1926, this relatively young company, established in 1906, went on to launch its first automatic waterproof wristwatch, the Oyster Perpetual Chronometer in 1934. In the 30's Rolex, also presented some watches powered by a more sophisticatedly assembled movement, making use of micrometer regulators and capped sapphire end stones that were and still are today known as "Observatory". The use of such a regulator allowed for increased precision, and friction-reducing capped jewels made for superior oil reservoirs, adding up to a properly consummate caliber worthy of the observatory title. Prior to the granting of Kew A certificates, this was the highest quality movement Rolex offered, affording it a significant place in the brand's history. The extremely rare example here offered of reference 907 is one of those watches equipped with this incredibly important movements. Despite its caliber, this very watch is definitely precious and esteemed for the unusual design of the case and its scarcity on the market. The rectangular, stepped case with recessed winding crown and external lugs has been manufactured in white gold in England, as confirmed by the London hallmarks engraved in the back and has been preserved in astonishing condition former than 80 years. The Two tone dial with oblique quadripartition is gorgeous with black baton numerals, subsidiary dials for seconds at 6 o'clock and steel, blue, baton hands. Historical time capsule, this very specimen is the best example for collectors an passionates in Rolex for an incredibly rare movement and case design.

Patek Philippe is probably the most illustrious watch brand in the world for beauty and quality of its creations. The great efficiency of the movement was granted by the technicians in Patek's factory while the cases were supplied by many case makers such as Taubert for stainless steel one or Wenger just to name two. The beauty of those metal shells was notable and was more so for some particular creations with unusual shape. In 1955, Patek Philippe teamed up with Gilbert Albert, at the age of 24, a young renowned Genevan jewelry designer and artist. During the seven years he spent with the manufacturer, he created some of the firm's most daring designs, most notably the asymmetrical models from the "Ricochet" series. The present "Ricochet" watch is one of few examples of a reference 3424 in yellow gold with champagne dial which appeared to the public. In addition, this dial with black baton indexes in contrast with a shining champagne make this watch one of the most charismatic and ever produced by the Patek Philippe maison. The talented artist took his inspiration from his passion for modern art, notably works by Brancusi and Mondrian, the unusual yet timeless designs are considered as cutting-edge and unconventional today as they were when first produced 60 years ago. His designs were awarded the prestigious "Oscar" award at the Diamonds International Awards ten times - three for Patek Philippe, two for Omega, and five under his own name. There are few wristwatch models that have achieved a cult status like Gilbert Albert's Patek Philippe designs.

In 1969 was launched the Monaco reference 1133 as part of a line of automatic chronographs. The Monaco might be one of the most recognizable watches of the 20th century, and was equipped with a self-winding caliber 11, becoming the first automatic chronograph ever produced. Popular with racers and enthusiasts alike from its launch became famous because Steve McQueen wore a Monaco in the car racing movie "Le Mans" but above all for the unusual square-shaped case made by Piquerez. His association with this model began when McQueen sought the advice of his friend Jo Siffert to increase the accuracy of his race car driver role. This watch in stainless steel features a spectacular blue dial with white registers, applied baton indexes and red accents on the outer scale for hours and minutes which recall the details and color of the hands. The union of the interesting case design, a very beautiful dial, a rich history, and an innovative movement make this watch sought after by collectors and a statement piece.

The rotating bezel has always been a landmark feature in Rolex's production line, as a constant aid to divers, pilots and other technical-related professionals. One of the most iconic and of immediate recognizability was the one with minute divisions and fine dividing lines advertised in one of the first Rolex catalogues in 1956 on a reference 6309 bearing the emblem of the US Air Force flying team "Thunderbirds". Considering this association, this type of bezel is known as Thunderbird. The present watch, reference 6309, is a later reinterpretation of the original 'Thunderbird', featuring a rotating bezel and date wheel, replacing the original non-date reference 6202. The pink gold oyster case is gorgeous for its quality and even more so with the exceptional pink gold tile bracelet. The dial with applied baton indexes is a further element of preciousness since its one of the most difficult combination that can be found for this model considering the fact that this model was not particularly commercially successful during its day, which brought to a number production and making it today extremely rare.

Rolex launched the references 5512 and 5513 in 1962 as the next generation of the legendary Submariner line. Unlike their earlier predecessors, the new references featured crown guards, which gave these tool watches a more robust look, as well as protected the crown during diving of any unnecessary mishaps. The 5513 has a bezel with minute divisions for the first fifteen minutes and silver triangle, the dial can alternatively be matte with white signature or, like the present lot, gilt with gilt printing. The depth is rated to 200 m – 660 ft, and, as of 1964, the designation "Swiss T<25" was added to the bottom of the dial. The present watch produced in 1965 as confirmed by the case numbers, impresses by its original and well-preserved condition of the stainless steel case. The ivory tone of the luminous numerals and hands harmonize perfectly with glossy black and its classic gold lettering, but it is impossible not to notice and fall in love with the brown patina that is slowly taking possession of the entire dial.

The Rolex Turn-O-Graph debuted in 1953 with the reference 6202, and the present lot is an example of the reference 6609, introduced in 1954, and in production until 1960 within the Datejust family. This new reference was nicknamed "Thunderbird" thanks to the partnership between Rolex and the United States Air Force air demonstration team that was established in 1953 at Luke Air Force Base in Arizona also known as "Thunderbirds", by placing the team's emblem directly on the dial. The lot here offered is one of these specimens and is one of the very few in steel to appear at auctions in recent years. This lot is very nice with its three-body solid case with screwed-down back where is engraved the Thunderbirds logo, bidirectional revolving reeded and graduated bezel all manufactured in stainless steel. The silvered dial with applied baton indexes and Rolex signature is finely aged with the date at 3 o'clock and the prestigious emblem at 9. It is believed that these wristwatches with the Thunderbird emblem were never available in serial production and were instead only given to those who qualified to serve on the prestigious air demonstration team, considering this, the present lot is an incredibly rare opportunity to purchase a piece of history for military lovers and watch aficionados.

Skeletonized models are among the most popular and sought after versions of watches by collectors. Furthermore the present lot features a perpetual calendar and moon phase complication making it a true masterpiece. One of the most popular models among watch connoisseurs, Royal Oak has been a true legend of Haute Horlogerie since its debut in the 1970's. The lot here offered is the stainless steel version with platinum bezel produced in limited edition of only 25 pieces. The three body case has a fully steel composition and is very well preserved with all fresh and crisp engravings on the back. The octagonal bezel with 8 hexagonal recessed white gold nuts is the single platinum component that adds that touch of preciousness and beauty. With the breathtakingly beautiful open-worked dial, this watch also displays a wide array of complex and delicate finishing techniques with subsidiary dials for the days, the months, the age of the moon and aperture for the moon phases. An exceptionally rare and exquisite piece of art wristwatch, this 25636SP is a truly masterpiece for any watch collector and is further sold with its box and extract from the archives.

The reference 18 348 made by Rolex is one of very few equipped with the more precious and unusual diamond bezel instead of the classic fluted or a smooth one. The present lot is a specimen of this reference and has been produced in 18k yellow gold with a three-body solid tonneau case extremely well preserved and fresh with clear and deep hallmarks. Another interesting peculiarity is that both bracelet and case are completely oxidated, showing the original design like when it left the Rolex company. Moreover, the dial is full charm with a champagne layout, brilliant and baguette diamonds applied indexes, English calendar disc and yellow-gold baton hands. The movement is the automatic caliber 3155 and it is completed by its original Warranty of the famous official Swiss retailer Bucherer.

Signed Rolex, Oyster Perpetual, Datejust, Official Certified Chronometer, the present watch is a truly remarkable example of reference 6305 for a watch lover. Preserved in spectacular condition, the exquisiteness of this Rolex Datejust is quite remarkable: exemplary in perfect state of conservation of the reference 6305 produced by the brand with the crown only from 1953 to 1956, there are many precious details to be noted of this lot. First of all the beauty of the three body case in yellow gold and its jubilee bracelet. Secondly, this early Datejust was retailed by the jeweler Serpico y Laino. In business since 1925 and based in Caracas, Venezuela, the famous shop has had the privilege of stamping their name on vintage Rolex watches. Further peculiarity, the dial It has taken on a light layer of patina over time, which gives the watch so much charm and charisma. The red Datejust accents and date wheel are characteristic of Datejusts from the 1950s and are correct for the serial number. The main rarity it's the double "Datejust" signature, the first one logically located at 12 o'clock, while the second and unusual one had been previously printed between the "Official Certified Chronometer" designation. Truly special and almost never seen before, this very lot is an absolute rarity and exceptional piece for every collection.

This amazing watch is also referred to as 'Octopus' due to the design of its President bracelet and is a rare example of a Datejust reference 6913/8, manufactured with a beautiful diamond-set bezel, with a very colorful Malachite dial produced in small number by Rolex. Over the years Rolex has and continues to experiment many different dial designs with a variety of hard stones. Due to their fragile nature, many of these dials break during production which increases the manufacturing cost, so these watches are highly sought after by collectors. This particular ladies Rolex boasts a striking stone dial and it is completed by its original Rolex Warranty, and additional Champagne diamond-set Dial and hands. Of outstanding quality the present watch is an exceptional Datejust that will mesmerise those who are able to marvel first hand at its beauty.

VERY RARE AND ELEGANT "CALATRAVA" AUTOMATIC WRISTWATCH IN STEEL, REFERENCE 3466, WITH ORIGINAL UNTOUCHED TROPICAL DIAL, ORIGINAL BOX, ENVELOPE AND CERTIFICATE

Brand	Patek Philippe

Accessories	Original Certificate, Envelope and Box

With Patek Philippe Certificate of Origin confirming the movement, case material, caliber, reference and the sale in 1968. Less than 1000 examples produced, approximately only 8 years of manufacturing and just one material used: these are some of the features that define to reference 3466. From 1962 to 1970 Patek Philippe has ventured into the production of this particular model setting aside precious materials such as yellow or rose gold or platinum in favor of the humble, practical and always appreciated stainless steel. The present lot is an example of one of the later models, attested by the flatter case back and printed signature on the dial. The solid, straight and sharp lugs are what characterize more this appreciated model together with its caliber, the 27-460, also known among collectors as "la grande dame des automatiques Suisse," with its full 18k yellow gold rotor, beautifully and lavishly engine-turned which remained in production until 1985. It's important to consider how strange is the combination of such a precious movement on a "simple" stainless steel wristwatch such as the 3466. The present example also features a very nice argentè dial with elegant and charming patina with a light pink color. Nowadays stainless steel Patek Philippe watches are highly collectable and the present one is a good opportunity to own a very beautiful example in seemingly unpolished condition with its original Certificate of Origin with envelope and presentation box.

Accompanied by a Patek Philippe Certificate of Origin confirming the material of the present watch in white gold 18 kt, argentè dial with applied gold hour markers and its subsequent sale on April 14th 2009. The reference 5140 was produced in 2006 in white gold, followed in 2007 by yellow gold examples and in 2010 with platinum and pink gold ones. Replacing its predecessor, the reference 3940, the 5140 was updated with a wider case (37mm), modern touches, still remaining faithful to the classic and timeless styling, and the same caliber, the 240Q which has been used for decades. The elegance and proportions of this watch are one of the distinctive features of the model which, more than many others, fully represents Patek Philippe's style. The White-gold case of the lot offered here is exceptional, with the creamy-white dial is completed by the sunken subsidiary dials for 24-hour indication, day, month, leap year, moon phase and date making up a perfect picture completed by the signature at 12 o'clock. An icon and a piece of history with all the accessories is offered here for true lovers and enthusiasts.

The Patek Philippe reference 3700/1 here offered takes a very prestigious position as being one of the rarest, most exclusive, and certainly the one of most coveted examples of Nautilus ever offered at auction. Fresh to the market, the present lot not only is a highly important new discovery of Nautilus in stainless steel but is part of a very limited series of specimens made under special order for the Royal household of the Sultanate of Oman as testified by the white Khanjar logo at 6 o'clock. This "Khanjar" watch was for sure commissioned to the retailer Asprey of New Bond Street in London since no official watch agents were available in Oman, making necessary to go directly abroad to obtain such a precious piece. Until the appearance of the present watch, only three examples in stainless steel have appeared to the market:- the first bearing case no. 536'201 and movement no. 1'304'954 was sold by Christie's, Geneva, on 14 May 2012, lot 315.- the second with the immediately preceding case number of 536'200 and movement number of only two digits difference, 1'304'952, was sold by Christie's, Dubai, on 19 October 2016, lot 137.- the third had case no. 536'186 and movement no. 1'304'895, sold by Christie's, Geneva, on 20 May 2020, lot 96. The latter one is precisely one number away for both case and movement from the lot offered today, which has case no. 536'187 and movement no. 1'304'896. Both these watches were manufactured in 1978 and subsequently sold on 31 July 1978 as confirmed by the extract from the archives, as a testimony that were part of a special order for His Majesty Sultan Qaboos bin Said al Said. It is interesting to notice that all four of these exceptional Nautilus watches have serial numbers within close proximity of each other, all between 536'185 and 536'201, suggesting that the specimens produced with this unique dial could be less than 20 units. This particular example is preserved in very notable conditions, with very limited signs of wear and never having been polished, the sharp bevels, angles and curves are perfectly preserved. The dial is surely original and absent of any restorations, with beautifully patina of aging spreading all over, around the luminous baton hour markers and in the lower part of the dial. The present lot's historical significance, royal provenance and rarity make it one of the most exciting and important Patek Philippe Nautilus watches, a must-have for both the Nautilus collector and the collector of Omani designated watches.

From an artistic point of view, the '50s are represented by the movement developed in America of Abstract Expressionism whose major exponents are Mark Rothko and of course Jackson Pollock. This movement takes its name from the combination of the emotional and self-expressive intensity of its works of art able to communicate an image of rebellion, anarchic and highly idiosyncratic. On the other side of the ocean, in Switzerland, Patek Philippe was not minimally affected by this current and instead keeping to carry on intact and solid its ideas of linearity and refinement. Exponent of this idea is the here offered reference 3420, which was in production from 1959 until 1983. Its very thin and elegant case is the perfect representation of Patek's way of intending a wristwatch that could fit a male wrist for gala occasions: subtle, with concave lugs and small bezel, the yellow gold case is finely preserved with still visible hallmarks. The dial has aged uniformly and heavenly showing a light brown tropical patina with applied baton indexes and baton hands. Furthermore, this watch also comes with Patek Philippe box.

In 1927, as soon as Charles. A. Lindberg set foot on French soil after completing his crossing of the Atlantic in 33 hours and 30 minutes, his thought was aimed at developing a tool to improve this type of travel. Thus, in 1932 was introduced to the market the hour angle watch, designed for aircraft pilots to precisely locate and understand their position during flights. The watch here offered is a way smaller version of the gigantic 48mm case ideated in the 1930's. The four body case of this lot has a 10k yellow gold with revolving ridged bezel with 15 degree graduations, graduated case band and crown activates the revolving central dial at 2 o'clock that was produced directly in America under license of Longines. Indeed the Swiss brand was manufactured and invoiced the movement on 4 April 1941 to the company Longines-Wittnauer Company, INC, that was at the time their agent for the USA soil where the whole watch was assembled as confirmed by the extract from the archives.

It was 1875 when Jules Louis Audemars joined forces with Edward Auguste Piguet. They worked together to develop watches equipped with complex mechanisms and precision still found in the watches today. Over the years Audemars Piguet has been a source of inspiration and an example for many watch brands due to the incredible innovations, it has been able to bring and for the large number of challenges it has faced. In 1957 was introduced the first Audemars Piguet wristwatch with a perpetual calendar and in 1967 the thinnest self-winding calibre with a central rotor was released at only 2.45 mm. Watchmaking milestone, Audemars Piguet deserves a place of honor in every self-respecting collection, and the pocket watch here offered is one of those objects that best represents the AP ability in terms of aesthetics and quality. The ultra-flat case in yellow gold with profiled lunette and matte-finished side is due to its ultra thin movement and is charged by its crown with sapphire cabochon. At the center of which is the heart of the watch: White dial with black Roman numerals, blued hands, date, month, day of week and moon phase indication. Precious jewel for its unique style, this watch is further proof of Audemars Piguet's skill.

Signed	Dial, movement and case

The common practice of Patek Philippe was to make watches mainly with noble materials given the elegance and preciousness of its creations. The watch offered here is an exponent of this aspects made in 18-karat yellow gold, with its case still perfectly preserved. A myriad of dials variations throughout its production period have been produced but this one is one of the rarest: Its silver color is perfect, the long enamel signature at 12 o'clock is correct for the manufacture date, painted Arabic numerals and indexes and auxiliary seconds complete it but most important is the sectory graphics that is very uncommon to find on a wristwatch of that age. Moreover to embellish the dial it present the rare signature in the middle, Cucco. It all began in 1886 when Ottavio Cucco, having gained valuable experience at the reputable Gramaglia jewellery shop in Turin, opened his first prestigious jewellery shop at number 62 via Umberto, Biella. The shop soon became the city's official jeweller, with Patek Philippe as its lead brand.

Mostly when we speak about vintage watches, the point is that each piece is a unique piece, since each of them has one or more lives behind them. The lot offered here is a specimen of the reference 3415, made beginning in 1958 and discontinued in 1960, making it one of the rarest of all Patek Philippe automatic watches. In fact, approximately 300 were made in yellow gold and only 40 in this reference were made in pink gold. The silver dial has applied pink-gold baton indexes, subsidiary seconds dial and gold baton hands. To further enhanced this gorgeous timepiece, a precious tile-style Patek Philippe bracelet. Made with the celebrated caliber 12-600, the same movement used on the reference 2526, the reference also shares the coveted double PP crown. Due to its peculiarities and the aging it has had, this reference 3415 can certainly be defined as unique and worthy of being included in a collection.

The reference 2442 was one of those amazing creations with both case and caliber with rectangular shape and the lot offered here is a really nice and fashionable example of it. The reference 2442 model "Hour Glass", also called by Italian collectors "Marylin", was introduced into the market in 1948 and could be found in Patek Philippe sales catalogues until circa 1960. Featuring the 9' 90 caliber, no more than two hundred watches were made in total and most of them were made in yellow gold and a very limited batch in pink gold like the present lot. It immediately strikes the lovers of watches by its storage conditions are remarkable considering the over 60 years of life. The pink dial has a decoration with Arabic indexes and applied pink gold dagger. Their oxidation cannot leave impassive with that coppery color that only some watches are able to reach. Gorgeous, elegant and precious, this sophisticated piece is one of the nicest shape watches ever produced. With Patek Philippe Extract from the Archives confirming production of the present watch in 18kt rose gold in 1951 and its subsequent sale on 12th June 1953.

The reference 600 was officially launched in 1933 and remained in production until 1969: although it is a time-only watch, it still represents one of the most desired modern style pocket watches ever produced. Made with all the 4 noble materials, this Patek Philippe 600 can be considered an absolute chimera for some of its characteristics that is difficult to find on other similar models. The number of production of these objects is really low and even lower is the number of pieces that has passed through the auction market: for this reason the lot offered here is a really rare chance and opportunity to purchase an unusual example of high craftsmanship. The present watch is part of a small series of 200 openface dress watches made as of 1953 to special order for the household of King Saud bin Abdul Aziz, in commemoration of his accession to the throne the same year, after his father and country's first King Abdul Aziz al Saud passed away. For this series has been used the reference 600/1 especially realized with enamel dial, while the reference 600 had a standard metal dial: it is interesting to notice that these two reference despite being almost identical had a different diameter (5,8 mm the first one and 4,8 mm the second one). This watch distinguishes itself for its very good overall conditions and the beauty of the ivory-coloured enamel dials with ruby-set numerals. The King's portrait has been executed with the complex technique of the Grand Feu or Big Fire and the result is simply perfect. These creations were given as gifts to dignitaries or friends of His Majesty and nowadays are extremely rare find. Furthermore impressive, this watch comes with its original box, tag and additional glass.

After inventing the first world time mechanism, in 1937 Louis Cottier made his first 17"170 world time pocket watch movement for Patek Philippe and until 1964 he delivered 95 of these calibers to the Swiss-polish maison. Most of them is believed were cased in the illustrious reference 605HU (where HU stands for Heures Universelles). Despite being one of the most fascinating and innovative timepiece available at the time, this reference, equipped with silvered or pink dials wasn't received with enthusiasm but rather sales showed negative trends. With the passing of time, this amazing clock manager obtain the respect and importance it deserves. Among the most known Universal watches, the family of Tricompax, Bicompax and Compax certainly stands out, of which this lot is a magnificent representative. Very attractive and highly sought-after, the present reference 22430 stands out as an early and oversized steel chronograph. Dating to the mid 1940s, the watch has a diameter of 46 mm, a rarity for this time in production where few are known to the market. The massive stainless steel case with straight and solid lugs is a perfect example of excellent preservation given its still sharp edges and its square buttons of the chronograph almost untouched, presenting the engraving on the back "Dr. M.V. Armstrong" still perfectly intact. The dial aged incredibly, presenting an outstanding quality, with outer tachometer scale, minutes and seconds track, the three sunken subsidiary dials, the applied dot and silvered 3,6,9 and 12 indexes and radium hands.

This oversized watch might be a bit uncomfortable nowadays given the 47 mm in diameter but has to be considered that this watch has to be worn over an aviator suit and handled with very bulky gloves. Giving this, there's another important and distinctive characteristic of the "Weems" and is the large ball-sized winding crown, allowing a pilot to rewind the movement without taking off the gloves. The present watch is very particular since it has been manufactured in silver has confirmed by the hallmarks. The silver hinged cuvette has been really well preserved still very clean and reflective. On the whole case is spreading a logical oxidation that adds much charm to the present timepiece. The two-tone dial with white enamel chapter ring and silvered rotating inner disc to set the time in seconds shows Breguet numerals blued steel moon hands. A true "time capsule" piece, its pristine state of preservation makes it a trophy watch for the connoisseur. Since its introduction in 1972, the Royal Oak has seen a succession of numerous re-editions which, in some ways, have also distorted its simple and linear design with which it was conceived by Gerald Genta. The resignation has in fact been changed and its thickness has likewise undergone enormous variations going to meet the tastes of the customers who invoked aloud a more massive specimen. Audemars Piguet has always been in the forefront when it comes to using materials like the present lot fully made in Titanium. The bicolor black and anthracite "Clous de Paris" decoration with luminous Arabic numerals on a black reserve, subsidiary guilloché black dials for the seconds, the 12-hour and 30-minute registers, aperture for the date between 4 and 5 is completed by its white luminous "baton" hands. This titanium chronograph was produced as a limited edition of 50 pieces for the Audemars Boutique in Paris with an extremely rare bracelet made in full titanium. The back of the case is embossed with a depiction of the Audemars Piguet factory in Le Brassus and "Audemars Piguet La Boutique Special Edition" engraved around the border. The Royal Oak is not only famous for its now unmistakable case design, but also for what it represents for horology's history. First released in 1972, the original Ref. 5402 was a bold stainless steel watch designed by Gerald Genta and was designed as a luxury sports watch and the scandalous part was that it was priced accordingly- the same as an equivalent gold watch of its era. Later on, this model gained that popularity and desire that today makes tone of the most appreciated by collectors. That the reason that led Audemars to create many versions of this specimen, one of them was realized in 2003, the the Maison opened its flagship store in New York to commemorate its launching. It was the here offered La Boutique Royal Oak", produced as a limited edition of 150 pieces. Powered by the caliber 2226, the three-body PVD-coated case with octagonal bezel, screw-down steel and rubber wind-up crown and pump pushers is still very gorgeous, that demonstrated by the deep engravings on the back featuring the façade of the boutique and La Boutique 40E, 57th. The dial recalls the black of the whole watch, with checker board decoration and luminous radial Arabic numerals, subsidiary dials for the seconds, the 12-hour and 30-minute registers, aperture for the date between 4 & 5 and luminous white baton hands. This limited edition watch comes with its original box and papers.

Asprey has a history of selling customized Rolex watches dating back to the 1970's when the government of Oman ordered a series of customized 'Omani' dial Rolex watches as gifts for British SAS soldiers who helped to suppress the Dhofar Rebellion between 1970-1976. Later on in the years, this British jeweler and luxury goods house has partnered with Bamford Watch Department to create a capsule collection of customized Rolex watches with Bamford's signature black PVD treatment. Bamford has taken a handful of Submariners, Milgausses, and Daytonas, given them the signature black PVD treatment, and detailed them in iconic Asprey purple. The present 116400 is numbered 3 of a limited edition of 50 pieces only and is one of the specimens of Milgauss that came out from this collaboration. The massive 40 mm three-body case, with screwed-down back and winding crown, has the iconic special anti-magnetic shield to cover the movement and the whole watch is basically untouched, capable of striking at a first glance for this unconventional combination of colors. The black PVD Oyster bracelet adapt to the whole composition where the total purple dial has applied purple baton indexes and steel border that recall the same tone of the hands for hour and the thunderbolt one for the seconds. The only white detail on the dial is the Asprey signature at 6 o'clock. The watch is presented with original crocodile Asprey box and papers.

Among all Patek's masterpieces, in the last years there is one which has gained a really special place in people's heart thanks to its unique design: the Nautilus. It first saw light in 1976 and it has been advertised as a watch that worked equally well with a wet suit as with a dinner suit. Coming from yet another great idea by Gerald Genta it has been realized in many different materials and with many complications, all having in common the shape of the case looks like a porthole with protruding "ears" on each side of the case and with an eight-sided, curved bezel. This particular model offered here is a very rare and unusual reference 4700 realized in Stainless Steel and Yellow Gold with bracelet and quartz movement. Its stainless steel and yellow-gold case features a beautiful bezel and the double-material bracelet as well is preserved perfectly. The champagne sigma dial is pure featuring yellow-gold baton minute indexes. Preserved in excellent overall condition, this further enhances its overall appeal making it a highlight for the collector of rare timepieces.

Rolex first decided to concentrate on the quality of the movements and its relentless quest for chronometric precision rapidly led to success. In 1914, Kew Observatory in Great Britain awarded a Rolex wristwatch a class "A" precision certificate, a distinction which until that point in time had been reserved exclusively for marine chronometers. It's not a case that the English origin brand decided to call one of its models simply "Precision", to emphasize and make this their ability and peculiarity even clearer. The Reference 4890 here presented to all of you is probably one of the nicest in all its simplicity. The circular steel stepped case is refined with very nice and well-preserved fancy lugs and a snap on back with no evident signs of wearing completed by the silvered dial with subsidiary seconds at 6 o'clock which contrasts with the pink indexes and hands.

The Octo collection was launched in 2012 and represent Bulgari's use of innovative materials and highest precision, becoming a major player in the luxury sports watch market in just a few short years. Inspired by the arches of Maxentius Basilica in the Roman Forum, the Octo displays a distinct, eye-catching appearance, sleek taught lines and powerful appearance. The Octo exists in a variety of metals such as titanium, steel, ceramic and pink gold but recently Bulgari offered to the market and incredibly astonishing version in white gold with full-diamond set: the Octo L'Originale, such as the present lot. Just to make clear the preciousness of this lot will be needed the help numbers: on the case, bracelet, and crown, you've got 979 baguette cut diamonds at VVS quality. On the dial, you've got 192 baguette cut diamonds at VVS quality and one round rose cut diamond at VVS quality, totaling approximately 7.74 carats. This means a total of 1,172 stones totaling OVER 50.25 carats! Despite all of the stones, the case's architecture is still extremely clear and crisp. As you get closer and closer to the center of the dial, you need smaller and smaller baguettes, and finding stones that were small enough with the right geometry was tough, moreover the numerals and hour markers are set in between the stones, and the logo is printed on the underside of the crystal. To make the present model more desirable and precious compare to similar full-diamonds creations by Patek Philippe or Audemars Piguet is that the Octo is set entirely with baguette-cut diamonds, not smaller brilliant-cut stones, so the cost-per-carat is higher compared to the others. The only round-cut stone is the one set into the crown. Offered in basically unworn conditions, the lot also comes with its original box and papers and is definitely one of the most shining and highly crafted specimens ever appeared on the market in recent years.

Rolex launched the Datejust in 1945 and is one of the most iconic watches ever produced by the English origin brand. The reason why it has been called Datejust is pretty logical since this model has the capability to show "just" the date at the stroke of midnight. Equipped with the famous jubilee bracelet, this watch features the classical waterproof Oyster case with the "cyclops" helping to read the date. The dial is the peculiarity of this watch with the magnificent white turned to a mustard-yellow color, decorated with applied baton numerals and alpha rhodium hands. Exactly under the Rolex Oyster Perpetual stands the signature "Datejust" and the depth both in red that are rare to be found on a similar watch.

Over the years, the Daytona model has strengthened its position among collectors, connoisseurs or simple enthusiasts as one of the most loved and desired models. Its history begins in 1963 when the first model was introduced, the 6239. Subsequently other references were produced as the 6241, 6262 and 6264, but the true turning point happened in 1969 when 6263 and 6265 were simultaneously launched, both with the wording "Oyster" on the dial, present for the first time in the history of the Daytona, and the innovative screw pushers. Success initially failed to arrive but time has then given reason to Rolex considering the fever that has arisen in recent years for these models. The 6265 offered here is a beautiful specimen made of steel equipped with a bracelet of the same material. Very well preserved, the case still has the initial features with sharp lugs, the steel bezel with a graduation of 200 units per hours and the iconic screw keys. The dial comes in an amazing silver color and inside the initial black color of the three counters has gradually gone tropicalizing, conforming and then reaching a delicate brown chocolate of valuable quality. Difficult to find given the necessary concomitance of factors capable of allowing this color change, examples such as this one are highly sought after on the market, so this represents an opportunity not to be missed by anyone looking for something special.

Bracelet Material	Leather Strap
Year	1950's
Movement Type	Automatic
Caliber	P499
Case N°	344024
Dimensions	36 mm
Signed	Dial, movement and case

Time-only watches weren't the main goal for the Swiss watchmaker but with a widespread economic crisis in the 40's-50's, customer's pockets could not afford exaggerated expenses with buying complicated watches. This pushed Vacheron Constantin to focus its attentions and efforts in the creation of some absolutely interesting and charming dials layout. The present reference 4870 it's an oversized version of a time-only wristwatch composed of a two body case with concave lugs interlay realized in pink gold and preserved in incredibly fresh conditions. The most interesting thing is undoubtedly the silvered dial adorned with an inner smooth part with perlage for minutes and seconds and a more refined guilloché decoration with applied gold dart and pyramid indexes and Arabic 12. Extremely handsome, this large vintage time-only Vacheron Constantin specimen offers a great value for an all gold watch.

FINE AND ELEGANT VERIFLAT PRECISION
WRISTWATCH IN YELLOW GOLD,
REFERENCE 6512, RETAILED BY ASPREY

Brand	Rolex
Model	Very Flat
Reference	6512
Case Material	Yellow Gold
Bracelet Material	Leather Strap
Year	1961
Movement Type	Manual
Caliber	1000
Case N°	692823
Dimensions	34 mm
Signed	Dial, movement and case

The present reference 6512 offered here is interesting due to the case that is considerably thinner than the standard Oyster case: measuring only 9 mm, it obtained the award of the thinnest Oyster case made by Rolex. It is equipped with a caliber 1000 which was made for only one year, in 1955 and makes this watch a really collectible piece for fanatics. The yellow gold case is in great condition, while the silvered dial presents a nice rounded shape with sunked subsidiary seconds at 6 o'clock with applied baton numerals. Most important to underline is also the rare and special Asprey signature on the dial. This company was founded in 1781 by William Asprey, and was originally based in the suburbs of London until the company moved into its current New Bond Street shop. From its central London location, Asprey immediately improved its sale and advertised 'articles of exclusive design and high quality' to the point of signing some of the most important watches such as Patek Philippe, Rolex and Audemars Piguet. There are not many of these available on the market today, so this would make an excellent addition to any collection.

The Yacht-Master has been a consistent part of the Oyster Perpetual collection since its debut in 1992. We have seen several iterations of this sporty watch in various sizes and materials but the reference 116695SATS represents the very first example of Yacht-Master 40mm set with Rolex's famous multicolored gemstones. In production for around two years and sure to be remembered as one of Rolex's craziest, colourful creations, the Everose gold three-body case with screw-down back and crown, Triplock winding- crown protected by the Crown Guard of the watch here offered is basically the same from 2015 and has been preserved in NOS conditions. Is fitted with the rich glossy black dial with oversized white lume plots and Everose surrounds. The new entry is represented by the rainbow-colored rotating bezel, set with 32 sapphires, eight tsavorites, and one diamond, fitted perfectly together, creating a vibrant look on an otherwise sporty time-piece. Found in 'as new' condition, still retaining its stickers the watch is offered with its original box and warranty.

George Bamford has always been an avid collector of vintage cars and sports watches. He is particularly fond of sports chronographs such as the Breitling Navitimer, which started his passion for watchmaking. After being offered a Rolex Daytona for his 18th birthday, he went to a dinner party and found out that half of the guests were wearing the same watch and at that moment he has decided to modify his, and here is the result: the steel 40 mm Oyster case is ringed by the distinctive Daytona bezel is coated with a layer in PVD and the case back engraved: Bamford Watch dept. SC Edition. The Dial is particular with a Bicolor black and white with applied luminous white gold indexes, outer red 1/5th seconds track, subsidiary guilloché dials for the seconds, the 12-hour and 30-minute registers. Luminous white gold baton hands and red chronograph hands. Founded in 1875 by Jules Audemars and Edward-August Piguet, the Swiss manufacture known today as Audemars Piguet is part of the rare fine watchmaking companies still held by the families of their founding partners. Among some of their models, there are special editions created specifically to celebrate events, anniversaries or, as in the case of this lot, a film. The Ref. 25770ST is part of the very first, larger Royal Oak Offshore collection which was conceptualized and introduced in the 1990ies. It was launched in 1997 as a predecessor to the Royal Oak Offshore "End of Days" launched in the year 1999, this limited edition is the result of a collaboration between Arnold Schwarzenegger and Audemars Piguet and each of the 500 pieces represents a very rare piece of collection. The legendary "End of Days" a.k.a EOD is one of the first PVD watches ever made and fitted with a charcoal Kevlar aramid fiber strap to give the watch a more rugged feel and it is the first Royal Oak darkened by a PVD treatment. This piece has a water resistance to 100 meters/330 feet and other functions include hours, minutes, small seconds, date, chronograph and tachymeter. To give color to the black dial with tapisserie structure the hands and Arabic numbers were made of a bright yellow with luminous material that shining in the dark.

The Royal Oak is undoubtedly the most iconic watch ever produced by Audemars Piguet, and is the result of the studies and projects of the great watchmaker Gerald Genta, also designer of the Patek Philippe Nautilus and of the Cartier Pasha. Firstly launched in 1972, 10 years later was presented a version with perpetual calendar, something very unusual on a sporty watch such is the Royal Oak. The present lot, reference 25654ST, in absolutely stunning condition was in production between 1982 and 1993 and made in only 272 pieces in steel. This very specimen is the number 183, produced in 1989 and strikes for its quality and beauty. The solid steel bracelet is linked to a very charming case with the iconic octagonal bezel with 8 screws. It is powered by the caliber 2120/2800, base on the previous 2120: it was launched in 1977 making it the world's slimmest perpetual calendar movement with a thickness of only 3.95mm. The subsequent years were used in finalizing the development and finally in 1982 equipped on the present watch. With a silvered dial, applied baton indexes and 4 subsidiary dials for date and moon phase, the distinctive design of this watch has now become extremely sought after and recognizable and the present lot with its sporty look is perfect for every occasion.

The Royal Oak, with its masculine octagonal case, exposed screws, and integrated bracelet is one of the most distinctive watches in the market today. First launched in 1972, the model became an icon and fan favorite for its rugged, masculine, and sporty aesthetic, and since then, Audemars Piguet has released every imaginable complication and color for the Royal Oak, all extremely desirable for some particular reasons. One of the most desired versions of the Royal Oak is the Openworked 15305ST, such as the one here offered. This 39 mm case was presented at the Salon Internationale d'Haute Horologie, in 2010 and combining the horological refinement of a skeletonized movement with the wearability and relaxed elegance of the classic Royal Oak immediately struck watches' lovers. The three body octagonal case with 8 white gold hexagonal nuts and integrated bracelet is fully realized in steel and preserved in honest conditions. It is powered by the very first in-house self-winding movement, the cal. 3120, through the glare-resistant sapphire caseback, it is possible to see the hand-finished and skeletonized ruthenium-plated bridges and mainplate, as well as the striking 22K gold winding rotor. Very rare and produced in very low numbers, it is a watch that finished to the highest standards and perfect for those looking for something even more special than a normal Royal Oak and further embellished by its original box and papers that come with the watch.

Manufactured in 2002 to commemorate the 30th anniversary of the iconic Royal Oak collection, the Audemars Piguet Royal Oak Concept was considered a radical re-interpretation of the original designs of Gerald Genta. The Royal Oak Concept Watch's case is made from Alacrite 602, an innovative and durable alloy consisting of cobalt, chrome, tungsten and traces of carbon, silicon and iron, with purposes in the aerospace industry and medical applications and represent the first timepiece ever produced with this particular material. Developed in only 150 examples, the timepiece features a skeletonized dial encompassing a complex tourbillon mechanism with a vertical in-line power reserve and dynamograph indicator developed by AP's complication specialists Renaud et Papi. At the 12 o'clock position, Audemars Piguet added a "dynamographe" to represent the quality of torque on the mainspring, and to its right is a unique linear power reserve spanning the length of the dial from 1 o'clock to 5 o'clock. At 6 o'clock, a function selection indicator showing the current function of the crown: winding (R-remontoir), neutral (N-neutre) and setting (H-heures). Through the screw down push button below the crown found on the case at 4 o'clock, the watch is set to the desired function in order to wind or set the time. Through its surprising design, groundbreaking case materials and strong heritage, the present timepiece is also offered with its original papers.

The case's shape of the reference 3485 offer here indeed clearly recalls the frame of a painting. In production from 1963 to 1970, the finishes of this particular model surprise at every single glance. The tiny inclined lugs are welded to a stepped case in yellow gold with still perfectly preserved and sharp edges. The movement is the automatic caliber 27-460. The dial reflects a work of minimalist art with its simple composition: silver background untouched, applied baton index in yellow gold, slim hands, separated second's counters at 6 o'clock and right in its middle, the precious signature Jost. Is not known exactly when this shop opened to the public, but the business originated from the will of a Swiss gentleman who adopted Genova as his home, to give free rein to his passion for watches. This is how Bernardo Jost opened his shop and became the official Patek Philippe retailer in piazza Corvetto 9, Genova. He owned the title till 1970's when Mr. Carlo Fasolo bought it keeping the name. After his disappearance in 2013 the shop was definitely closed but it is still considered an institution of the city of Genova. Accompanied by a Patek Philippe Extract from the Archives confirming production of the present watch in yellow gold in 1963 and its subsequent sale on 7 December 1963.

The present post "Art-Deco" watch is a very elegant reference 1482 made by Patek Philippe. This very reference has been produced by 1940 till 1949 and considering its very unusual lugs has been nicknamed by collectors Triple Lugs. The lot here offered is a really nice conservation of the pink-gold case with a snap on back and highly triple large curved overhanging lugs. The glass is massive and its height allows for the lugs to actually sit on a higher plan than the very beautiful pink dial. The applied Roman and square numerals with seconds at 6 o'clock and thin hands further decorate the dial. This very model is powered by the rectangular manual winding caliber 9'90, a trustworthy and great-looking movement proudly used by the brand for many of its shaped wristwatches. Moreover this precious timepiece is attached to a three-prong fastener with a genuine tile bracelet fully made in pink gold. Truly indeed, Patek Philippe is tagged as one of the supreme designers of modern-day timepieces up to this point in time. This watch is also provided with the extract from the archives confirming its pink-gold case and its production in 1942 and subsequent sale on the 28th of May 1942.

The present lot is an extremely rare variation of the reference 2554, one of the rarest rectangular wristwatches of Patek Philippe's post-war production and also to be considered as one of the most avant-garde designs. Launched in 1952 and in production for few years the present 2554 can for sure be considered as one of the nicest and most rare ever realized by the brand: the white gold case 41 mm wide is very fresh, the satin finish is beautiful and the dial is absolutely spectacular. The argenté color is well preserved and is beautifully harmonizing with the icy tone of the steel case, all is completed by the caliber 9-90, that is probably one of the most appreciated and sought after movement made by Patek Philippe. To commemorate the beginning of the third millennium, Patek Philippe re-issued the 2554 case design as the reference 5100. Charismatic, precious and with an historically important movement, this watch is the utmost in understated elegance. Accompanied by a Patek Philippe Extract from the Archives confirming production of the present watch in White gold in 1956 and its subsequent sale on 30 May 1958.

This is the iconic Skin Diver reference 7981-3 30CH. This specific model presents the tachymetric scale inside the dial for motor racing and a rotating bezel that can be used by divers and also aviators (given its ability to indicate a second time zone). The lot offered here is a splendid specimen of Skin Diver very well preserved with a 40 mm diameter steel case, a screw back and bracelet. The red ring graduated at 60 minutes for diving and provided with the dual time zone is perfectly intact with still its live and fresh garnet color. This watch is also known with the name of Big Eye and the reason of this nickname it will certainly not have escaped the attention of an expert given the decidedly larger size of the 30-minute counter than that of continuous seconds. Equipped with the 30Ch movement (the latest produced fully in-house by Longines) this special wristwatch presents a black matte dial with tritium, a totally collectible piece to not be missed. This specific watch is published in the LONGINES LEGENDARY WATCHES book on pages 544-545. With the Longines Extract from the Archives confirming case, movement, production and subsequent sale on 8 February 1968 to the company Longines-Wittnauer Watch Co., which was at that time the Longines agent for the USA.

In 1950 Jaeger LeCoultre launched for the first time its iconic collection of Memovox, the voice of memory, capable of sound an alarm to a fixed hour. 9 years later, with the growing popularity of devices for pilots and, most of all, divers, LeCoultre decided to go one step beyond and create an oversized, automatic waterproof divers' wristwatch with alarm. It was the 1959 when it was offered the Memovox Polaris: produced in around 1968, the present reference E859 was produced for the American market as testified by the simplified "LeCoultre" signature instead of the full Jaeger-LeCoultre brand name for Europe. The esthetic of the present lot is absolutely stunning with the two bodies circular case in steel with curved lugs, inclined bezel and two symmetrical crowns at 2 and 4 o'clock for the setting of time and the disc of the alarm complication. On the back 16 holes for sound emission with patented Piquerez Compressor system triple back. All preserved in very nice and original conditions this lot is a precious example with a rare black dial with applied stainless steel baton indexes, revolving alarm disc in the center and luminous material, aperture for the date at 3 and steel luminous alpha hands.

Bracelet Material	Stainless Steel
Year	1944
Movement Type	Manual
Caliber	10'''
Case N°	278508
Dimensions	37.5 mm
Signed	Dial, movement and case

The present lot is one of the greatest Rolex steel oversized Calatrava time-only ever produced by crowned brand, with its 37.5 mm diameter wide: it is something uncommon for Rolex standards considering the stylish and elegant concave lugs, apparently a bit less massive if compared to the rest of the whole case. In the last years, this three-body very thin case in steel has been preserved with obsessive care by one of the biggest Rolex collectors and this is testified by the quality of the edges and the crispness of the serial numbers on the back. The dial is definitely rare and matches perfectly with the material of the case given its two-tone color which has aged nicely conferring a charming patina with gilt Arabic numerals and dot markers, guilloché sunk subsidiary seconds and pink gold baton hands. Totally groundbreaking and unconventional, this lot is a must-have for every watch aficionados who aspire to possess a collection of absolute level for rarity and above all quality.

Rolex launched the Datejust in 1945 and is one of the most iconic watches ever produced by the Rolex brand. The reason why it has been called Datejust is pretty logical since this model has the capability to show "just" the date at the stroke of midnight. The present example is a distinguished specimen of Datejust reference 6105, the larger case embodiment of the Bubble Back model in production between 1951 and 1953. Its two-body case with screw down back is in full yellow gold and preserved in astonishing conditions considering its age. Supplied with a yellow gold jubilee bracelet, it is also equipped with one of the most rare and sought after dials ever produced by Rolex: an intact black gilt surface with applied yellow gold faceted dart indexes and 6 round brilliants that confer to the whole watch an even more sophisticated taste. Kept in a private collection for many years it represents an almost unique opportunity to purchase one of the rarest vintage Datejust ever produced.

Hardly published in literature and scarcely appearing in public, reference 3536 by Rolex is one of the most elusive time-only examples of the firm. In production from the 1930's, represents one of the most unusual "bubble back" models ever made and easily distinguishable from the better known versions by its unusual design, featuring a round case, a concave or inward-curved enlarged bezel and slender straight lugs. The present specimen immediately strikes for the quality of its steel and yellow gold case and grain de rig bracelet. Furthermore impresses by its extremely attractive champagne and black dial, perfectly matching the combination of case and bracelet. To make it even more desirable the rare signature at 12 o'clock of the Cuban retailer Cuervo Y Sobrinos active in l'Havana from 1982 until 1953.

Case Material	Yellow Gold
Bracelet Material	Yellow Gold
Year	1952
Movement Type	Automatic
Caliber	A296
Case N°	912107
Dimensions	36 mm
Signed	Dial, movement and case

Highly desirable amongst collectors, the reference 6098 represents the largest Bubbleback with no complications ever produced by the firm. Clearly designed as a robust sports' watch meant to withstand even the most difficult conditions, a group of around 30 watches of this reference was used to several Everest expeditions and specifically for this reason is also known as the Pre-Explorer. Considering its sportiness, it was predominantly available in stainless steel, rendering the few examples in gold appearing in public exceedingly rare. Moreover, in very scarce cases, this already limited number of examples in gold was even equipped with an highly appealing honeycomb dial furthermore highlighted with the sought after star-shaped numerals, more commonly associated with the celebrated reference 6062. We are honored to be able to offer one of these incredibly rare specimen: the two-body yellow gold case is genuinely nice and equipped with a gorgeous jubilee bracelet. The untouched conditions of the "Stelline" style-dial featuring a honeycomb finishing with star-shaped hour markers and dagger numerals at 3, 6 and 9 o'clock is amazing from the very first glance. Coming from one of the most important private Rolex collections, where it has been for many years, this lot can possibly be one of the most sought after time-only references ever produced by Rolex.

Signed	Dial, movement and case

This watch with its black two-tone dial is among the most collectable of Rolex's Time Only watches. This model is nowadays very difficult to find and the present lot is probably one of the nicest ever produced by Rolex for its special configurations of the dial. Affectionately nicknamed "Bombay" French for "domed" by collectors due to its curvaceous, sculpted lugs, this watch is a very attractive example of a reference 6090 Oyster Perpetual. It is indeed a demonstration of the highest craftsmanship: the outer ring has the always appreciated pink color, internally the rarest peculiarity: a black laquered with gold hour markers for the hour and applied dot minute track. This special decoration is further enhanced by the gold lettering and dauphine hands. The case is perfect well preserved maintaining sharp edges and right proportions. The pink-gold bezel is the perfect frame for an absolutely astonishing dial. With the typical Oyster case to prevent the water entering in the movement, this watch represents an unusual, rare and striking alternative to classic Oyster models. Very unusual period pink gold mesh bracelet.

Rolex launched the Datejust in 1945 and is one of the most iconic watches ever produced by the Rolex brand. The reason why it has been called Datejust is pretty logical since this model has the capability to show "just" the date at the stroke of midnight. This watch features the classical waterproof Oyster case with the "cyclops" helping to read the roulette black/red date better. Preserved in NOS conditions, this specimen left the Rolex manufacture in 1950s and impresses for the quality of its case and condition of the dial. In fact on the caseback is clearly visible the original engraving "REGISTERED DESIGN" and "MODELE DEPOSE" very unusual to find as this disappeared immediately after being worn even for a few times. Another peculiarity of this watch is the dial with the magnificent untouched white color, decorated with applied dagger numerals and alpha rhodium hands. Exactly under the Rolex Oyster Perpetual stands the red writing "DATEJUST" that is very uncommon to find for this model. Moreover it's sold with its original box and the tag.

Literature	This specific watch is published in the LONGINES LEGENDARY WATCHES book on pages 406-407

During the history of watchmaking, many brands have dedicated themselves to the creation of cases of particular shape able to amaze and steal the heart of collector. Moreover, if to this is added one of the most important calibers ever manufactured by a brand and a totally unusual configuration to express the chronometric registration, automatically that watch becomes an amazing piece. Longines from this point of view can absolutely be considered an innovative brand and one examples is provided by the here offered Minute Counter. At a first glance it might seem like a simple chronograph but its peculiarity lies in the highly unusual arrangement of the chronographic hands: instead of having the minutes register at 3 o' clock, there is a supplementary central hand for the minutes while the subsidiary counter are used for 12 hours registration and constant seconds. The caliber used is the 13ZN and is stored into a three bodies stainless steel case of 39 mm diameter with snap on back excellently preserved by the past owner. The silver dial is wondrous for its daintiness with an electric blue tachymeter scale that complete it. Nowadays, the central hands can be found on a number of modern watches but the present example can be considered as one of the fathers of this always appreciated innovation. With the Longines Extract from the Archives confirming case, movement, production and subsequent sale on 21 March 1945 to the company Hitz, which was at that time the Longines agent for Venezuela and published in the LONGINES LEGENDARY WATCHES book on pages 406-407.

When hearing the name Audemars Piguet, thoughts immediately go to the legendary Royal Oak. Iconic as very few other models have been in the history of horology, it is the umpteenth creation of the immortal designer Gerla Genta. Launched at Baselworld in 1972, it represented a real novelty in the Audemars universe as it was the brand's first true sporting pride. It was the first luxury watch in steel with integrated bracelet in order to offer its customers a precious but at the same time sporty alternative. The present example is absolutely remarkable for its conservation: the whole bracelet and clasp are in excellent conditions and also the back still presents the case number engraved very crisp. The case and the immediately recognizable bezel are still maintaining their original proportions. The surface of the originally black dial is starting to tropicalize and the guilloché mini-“tapisserie” pattern — a texture found on all early Royal Oak dials — is still nice and well defined. It is decorated with applied baton indexes and the AP logo at 6 as in the first models, while at 3 o'clock is located the date window.

In 1875 Jules-Louis Audemars and Edward Auguste Piguet established a workshop. They worked together to develop watches equipped with complex mechanisms and precision still found in the watches today. In 1934 the first skeletonized pocket watch was produced and in 1946 came the thinnest wristwatch. Watchmaking milestone, Audemars Piguet deserves a place of honor in every self-respecting collection, and the pocket watch here offered is one of those objects that best represents the AP ability in terms of aesthetics and quality. This refined pocket watch made in White Gold stand with polished ring and Roman numeral hour track on the bezel is an object of the finest quality, at the center of which is the heart of the watch: Skeleton dial featuring blued steel leaf style hour hands. Precious jewel for its unique style, this watch is further proof of Audemars Piguet's skill.

In 1860, the young artisan watchmaker Louis-Ulysse Chopard, son of a farmer from Sonvilier, used to create works of art with innovative designs and at the early age of 24 quickly started conquering firstly Switzerland and later the whole world arriving even to the court of Tsar Nicholas II of Russia. With the passage of the business to his son, Paul-Louis, the tradition of creating good quality and reliable watches continued mainly thanks to the move of the production factories in the capital of watchmaking, Geneva. Thus it was that Chopard started specializing in the production of real jewel-watches, slowly earning a first-class place. The lot that we are pleased to offer you is the result of the technical and manufacturing researches that Chopard has dedicated itself as well as the search for special materials: The watch is internally made in Yellow Gold and outside the pavé diamond-set dial is present an usual turtle shell protect it. A perfect creation of a very rare watch with unique materials.

PRECIOUS AND STRIKING GMT-MASTER II SARU AUTOMATIC WRISTWATCH IN YELLOW GOLD, REFERENCE 116758, WITH DIAMOND, SAPPHIRE AND RUBY-SET

Brand	Rolex
Model	GMT-Master II SARU
Reference	116758
Case Material	Yellow Gold and Diamonds
Bracelet Material	Yellow Gold
Year	2007
Movement Type	Automatic
Caliber	3185
Case N°	M800203
Dimensions	41 mm
Signed	Dial, movement and case
Accessories	Box

Designed to show the time in two different time zones simultaneously, the GMT-Master was launched in 1955, immediately represents the epitome of sportiness and efficiency. The use of precious materials for this specific model has always been limited despite reference 6542 and 1675 were sometimes cased in precious metals, these were infrequent occurrences. With the advent of the 16758, the GMT started displaying rubies, diamonds and sapphires. The lot here offered is a wonderful representative of the reference 116758, also nicknamed as "SARU" standing for "SApphire" and "RUby". Solid and robust, this very watch has a massive 41 mm case in 18k yellow gold nicely preserved with lugs and crown-guard set with 76 brilliant cut white diamonds. The sparkling bi-directional revolving bezel is enriched by the iconic set of 22 baguette white diamonds, a triangular white diamond, 18 baguette sapphires and 18 baguette rubies. The final result is nothing short of spectacular as Rolex has managed the feat of balancing the sporty ethos of the watch and its bedazzling decoration.

POSSIBLY UNIQUE AND EXTREMELY ATTRACTIVE, PRE DAYTONA CHRONOGRAPH WRISTWATCH IN 18K YELLOW GOLD, REFERENCE 6238, BLACK LACQUER DIAL, FORMER PROPERTY OF JOHN GOLDBERGER, PUBLISHED IN THE 100 SUPERLATIVE ROLEX WATCHES BOOK.

Brand	Rolex
Model	Pre-Daytona
Reference	6238
Case Material	Yellow Gold
Bracelet Material	Yellow Gold
Year	1964
Movement Type	Manual
Caliber	722
Case N°	1038629
Dimensions	36 mm
Signed	Dial, movement and case
Literature	This specific watch is published in the 100 Superlative Rolex Watches book on pages 134-135

Produced from the early 1960 until 1967, the reference 6238 became known as the "Pre-Daytona" because following this model, Rolex removed the tachymeter scale from the dial and added it to the bezel. Quality 6238s are extremely rare to find and the present specimen is certainly one of the most exclusive, attractive and well-preserved examples of reference 6238 to appear on the auction market. First of all, the quality of the watch itself, with a three-body case in yellow gold that shows hardly any signs of wear, retaining its crisp edges, factory finishing, and original proportions. The Oyster riveted bracelet as well is still very nice with its Rolex clasp. What really makes the present lot an extremely desirable wristwatch is the gorgeous and rare black lacquered dial. Examples of any reference 6238 presented in such excellent condition fitted with such dials have rarely appeared on the market so far, making the present lot a must-have for collectors of vintage Rolex sports watches. The present specimen can be definitely considered as the "Holy Grail" for any true watch collector: the case of this 6238 has in fact manufactured in 18k yellow gold, an extremely rare version of this model since the vast majority have been produced in 14 carats and can possibly be considered as the only one known with black lacquered dial. A similar example in 14kt has been sold by Phillips in 2017 and on the catalogue is confirmed that only one other 6238 in yellow gold 18kt is known to exist with a glossy dial: the one that Monaco Legend is proud to offer to all its clients and friends.

FINE AND PRECIOUS CALATRAVA WATER-RESISTANT WRISTWATCH IN PINK GOLD, REFERENCE 2508, PINK GOLD INDEXES WITH RADIUM INSERTS, RADIUM HANDS, BOX AND CERTIFICATE OF ORIGIN SOLD BY THE FAMOUS RETAILER EBERHARD MILAN

Brand	Patek Philippe
Model	Calatrava
Reference	2508
Case Material	Pink Gold
Bracelet Material	Leather Strap
Year	1955
Movement Type	Manual
Caliber	27 SC
Movement N°	703724
Dimensions	35 mm
Signed	Dial, movement and case
Accessories	Box and Certificate of Origin

The reference 2508 is also known as “Grande Calatrava Waterproof” and was launched in 1950 alongside its sister reference 2509. The two differ by having either subsidiary seconds or sweep seconds such as the present watch. Reference 2508 was produced until at least 1967 and not many examples have been produced in pink gold such as the present specimen. This lot simply surprises for its preservation quality, conserved in beautiful condition with crisp hallmark to the side of the case. Inside the screw case back, covering the legendary 27 SC, there’s a metal dust cap to keep moisture and magnetism outside. The dial is very charismatic with an incredibly charming untouched silver color, pink gold indexes with radium inserts and radium hands completed by an outer minutes and seconds track. Accompanied by a Patek Philippe Certificate of Origin confirming the calibre, movement, reference and case.

GENERAL TERMS & CONDITIONS

BUYER'S PREMIUM

The buyer will pay to the order of Monaco Legend Group, in addition to the hammer price, a buyer's premium of: Until €1.000.000: 30% incl. VAT (25% excl. VAT). Major of €1.000.001: 24% incl. VAT (20% excl. VAT).

Lots marked with * :
a 20% import VAT is due on the final price (including buyer's premium), ONLY if it is delivered within the EU.

LAW AND JURISDICTION

These general terms & conditions, and all that relates to the sale are governed by Monégasque law and, in particular, by Law No. 1014 of 29 December 1978 concerning public auctions of furniture. Any dispute regarding the existence, validity, and enforceability for any bidder or buyer falls under the exclusive jurisdiction of the courts of the Principality of Monaco.

VAT FOR NON-EUROPEAN BUYERS

Non-European buyers will directly receive the invoice excluding VAT under certain conditions: the item(s) must have been shipped outside of Europe within a delay of 3 months from the date of the sale and Monaco Legend Group must appear as a shipper on the export document and the buyer as the consignee. The exportation has to be done within the legal delays and a maximum of 3 months of the date of the sale.

CURRENCY CONVERSION

Auctions are conducted in Euro in Monaco. A currency conversion board is made available in the saleroom and online, indicating approximate exchange rates for various major currencies.

INDICATIVE NATURE OF THE ESTIMATES

Estimates are listed for each lot and are an indication of the price range the lot is expected to fetch. Estimates do not include the buyer's premium or sales tax.

NO RESERVE

Unless the no reserve lots, all lots in the catalogue are offered subject to a reserve. This is a confidential value established between Monaco Legend Group and the seller.

CONDITION OF THE LOTS

Lot descriptions provide technical data carefully compiled by our experts for each lot in the sale and are often enhanced by historical or biographical comments. Auction catalogue can be viewed online on www.monacolegendauctions.com

We are at your disposal to provide you a detailed report on the conditions of the lots.

All lots are sold in the condition in which they were offered for sale with all their imperfections and defects. Dimensions, colors and weight of the products are provided for information purposes only and are not binding.

No claim can be accepted for minor restoration or small damages. It is the responsibility of each prospective bidder to inspect each lot prior to the sale and to rely on their own judgment to acquaint with the characteristics and the potential repairs or restorations. No claim can be considered once the auction is pronounced. Restored or repainted dials regarded as protective measures and not as vices will not be reported. The conditions of the bracelets and the water resistance of the screwed-back watches are not guaranteed, and neither are the deployment clasps and tang buckles. It is important to note most of the waterproof watches have been opened to identify the type and quality of the movement. There is no guarantee the watches are still resistant to water and it is recommended to consult your watchmaker before using the item. Dimensions of the watches are provided for information purposes only. Absence of any indication of the existence of restoration work or of an accident by no means exempt the jewelry from having a defect. Precious and semi-precious stones may have been subject to treatments with the intention to showcase them. (i.e.: oil treatment of emeralds, heat treatment for rubies and sapphires, whitening of pearls). These treatments are traditional and accepted by the jewels international market. Considering the rise of new treatments, the stones submitted to the auction with no certificates will be sold without guarantees about the treatment. It shall be stated that the origin of the stones and their quality (color and purity of the diamonds) reflect the opinion of the laboratory issuing the certificate. No claim will be accepted in case another laboratory gives another opinion, and will in no way engage the responsibility of the auctioneer and expert.

The jewelry advertised in our catalogue as yellow-gold or white-gold with no hallmark are always in gold 18K, that is 750‰ – Gold 14K: 585‰ – Gold 9k: 375‰. Relining, inlay work and varnishing are considered a protective measure and not a vice, they will not be reported. Dimensions are provided for information purposes only.

AUCTION PREVIEWS

Previews are conducted by Monaco Legend Group prior to each auction and details of these exhibitions are found at the beginning of the catalogue or online. Previews are open to the public and prospective buyers are encouraged to view and examine lots offered for sale prior to making their purchases. Our specialists are available to give advice and Condition Report.

We would be pleased to provide you with a preliminary evaluation directly by e-mail: info@monacolegendgroup.com. We can also welcome you by appointment in our Showroom in Monte-Carlo. For important collections we can travel worldwide.

Our experts will recommend an estimate range and a minimum price, agreed with you, below which we will not sell your item during the auction (reserve price).

Our estimates are free and confidential.

2. Promotion

We do global marketing and advertising, making sure your goods are seen by the right people.

We are in contact with collectors from all over the world.

Your goods will be published online, in printed catalogues and exhibited during the auction preview.

Get the best value of your collectibles.

3. Sale

Our auctions take place in our showroom or in a prestigious location of Monte-Carlo such as Hotel Hermitage.

The event is broadcasted live on our online auction platform as well as on other online auction platforms.

We can also buy or sell for you your goods through private sales if appropriate.

Please contact us for more information about consignment:
