Replacement Part Cross Reference

When selecting replacement parts for your HP products, you may notice that many manuals list only an HP part number for the part, even though it appears that this part is manufactured by one of the large semiconductor manufacturers. Service personnel often ask why only HP part numbers are listed.

It is recommended that HP replacement parts be used to ensure that original performance of the product will be retained. While some parts used in HP instruments are identical to those that can be purchased at a local electronics distributor, many times parts will be selected for certain characteristics, such as gain, bandwidth, capacitance, etc. There may also be slight mechanical differences, such as the shaping or length of leads. In some cases special quality checks are used to ensure that high reliability parts are used at the factory and at HP field offices. Therefore, we suggest obtaining replacement parts from HP to maintain the quality that you have paid for in your instrument.

There may be situations however, where HP replacement parts are not in stock and substituting parts will allow you to return the product to service immediately. In these cases it may be worthwhile to see if a substitute part will work in the circuit. Perhaps an HP part could be ordered and installed at some later date.

To help you in these situations, here is a cross-reference of HP part numbers to JEDEC numbers for transistors and diodes.

NOTE

This is not a comprehensive list. Many semiconductors are made exclusively for Hewlett-Packard and there are no substitutes. If the part number you are looking for is not listed here, it does not have a JEDEC number and must be replaced with the same HP part number. □

Replacement Part Cross Reference

When selecting replacement parts for your HP products, you may notice that many manuals list only an HP part number for the part, even though it appears that this part is manufactured by one of the large semiconductor manufacturers. Service personnel often ask why only HP part numbers are listed.

It is recommended that HP replacement parts be used to ensure that the original performance of the product will be maintained. While some parts used in HP instruments are identical to those that can be purchased at a local electronics distributor, many times parts will be selected for certain characteristics, such as gain, bandwidth, capacitance, etc. There may also be slight mechanical differences, such as the shaping or length of leads, and in some cases special quality checks are employed to ensure that only the highest reliability parts are used.

Therefore, we suggest obtaining replacement parts from HP to maintain the quality that you have paid for in your instrument. There may be situations however, where HP replacement parts are not in stock and substituting parts will allow you to return the product to service immediately. In these cases it may be worthwhile to see if a substitute part will work in the circuit. Perhaps an HP part could be ordered and installed at some later date.

To help you in these situations, here is a cross-reference of HP integrated circuit part numbers to manufacturers "generic type" part numbers (whom in most cases is the originator of the part). Even though the cross-reference only lists one manufacturer, there may actually be several approved sources for an HP part. While every attempt was made to ensure the accuracy of the list, it is advisable to compare the description of the device being replaced with the description of the substituted part. For example, if the service manual describes the device being replaced as a "dual J-K flip-flop", check this against the description of the replacement part.

NOTE

This is not a comprehensive list. If the part number you are looking for is not listed here, the semiconductor is made exclusively for Hewlett-Packard and there is no substitute — it must be replaced with the same HP part number. □

Replacement Part Cross Reference

When selecting replacement parts for your HP products, you may notice that many manuals list only an HP part number for the part, even though it appears that this part is manufactured by one of the large semiconductor manufacturers. Service personnel often ask why only HP part numbers are listed.

It is recommended that HP replacement parts be used to ensure that original performance of the product will be retained. While some parts used in HP instruments are identical to those that can be purchased at a local electronics distributor, many times parts will be selected for certain characteristics, such as gain, bandwidth, capacitance, etc. There may also be slight mechanical differences, such as the shaping or length of leads. In some cases special quality checks are used to ensure that high reliability parts are used at the factory and at HP field offices.

Therefore, we suggest obtaining replacement parts from HP to maintain the quality that you have paid for in your instrument. There may be situations however where HP replacement parts are not in stock and substituting parts will allow you to return the product to service immediately. In these cases it may be worthwhile to see if a substitute part will work in the circuit. Perhaps an HP part could be ordered and installed at some later date.

To help you in these situations, here's a cross-reference of HP part numbers to JEDEC numbers for transistors and diodes.

Integrated Circuits

Replacement Part Cross Reference

When selecting replacement parts for your HP products, you may notice that many manuals list only an HP part number for the part, even though it appears that this part is manufactured by one of the large semiconductor manufacturers. Service personnel often ask why only HP part numbers are listed.

It is recommended that HP replacement parts be used to ensure that the original performance of the product will be obtained. While some parts used in HP instruments are identical to that which can be purchased at a local electronics distributor, many times parts will be selected for certain characteristics, such as gain, bandwidth, capaci-

tance, etc. There may also be slight mechanical differences, such as the shaping or length of leads. In some cases special quality checks are employed to ensure that high reliability parts are used at the factory and at HP field offices.

Therefore, we suggest obtaining replacement parts from HP to maintain the quality that you have paid for in your instrument. There may be situations however where HP replacement parts are not in stock and substituting parts will allow you to return the product to service immediately. In these cases it may be worthwhile to see if a substitute part will work in the circuit. Perhaps an HP part could be ordered and installed at some later date.

To help you in these situations, here's a cross-reference of HP integrated circuit part numbers to manufacturers "generic type" part numbers (whom in most cases is the originator of the part). Even though the cross-reference only lists one manufacturer, there may actually be several approved sources for an HP part. While every attempt was made to ensure the accuracy of the list, it is advisable to compare the description of the device being replaced with the description of the substituted part. For example, if the service manual describes the device being replaced as a "dual J-K flip-flop", check this against the description of the replacement part.

Replacement Part Cross Reference

When selecting replacement parts for your HP products, you may notice that many manuals list only an HP part number for the part, even though it appears that this part is manufactured by one of the large semiconductor manufacturers. Service personnel often ask why only HP part numbers are listed.

It is recommended that HP replacement parts be used to ensure that the original performance of the product will be obtained. While some parts used in HP instruments are identical to that which can be purchased at a local electronics distributor, many times parts will be selected for certain characteristics, such as gain, bandwidth, capaci-

tance, etc. There may also be slight mechanical differences, such as the shaping or length of leads. In some cases special quality checks are employed to ensure that high reliability parts are used at the factory and at HP field offices.

Therefore, we suggest obtaining replacement parts from HP to maintain the quality that you have paid for in your instrument. There may be situations however where HP replacement parts are not in stock and substituting parts will allow you to return the product to service immediately. In these cases it may be worthwhile to see if a substitute part will work in the circuit. Perhaps an HP part could be ordered and installed at some later date.

To help you in these situations, here's a cross-reference of HP integrated circuit part numbers to manufacturers "generic type" part numbers (whom in most cases is the originator of the part). Even though the cross-reference only lists one manufacturer, there may actually be several approved sources for an HP part. While every attempt was made to ensure the accuracy of the list, it is advisable to compare the description of the device being replaced with the description of the substituted part. For example, if the service manual describes the device being replaced as a "dual J-K flip-flop", check this against the description of the replacement part.

See page 14 for manufacturers.

Replacement Part Cross Reference

When selecting replacement parts for your HP products, you may notice that many manuals list only an HP part number for the part, even though it appears that this part is manufactured by one of the large semiconductor manufacturers. Service personnel often ask why only HP part numbers are listed.

It is recommended that HP replacement parts be used to ensure that the original performance of the product will be obtained. While some parts used in HP instruments are identical to that which can be purchased at a local electronics distributor, many times parts will be selected for certain characteristics, such as gain, bandwidth, capacitance, etc. There may also be slight mechanical differences, such as the shaping or length of leads, and in some cases special quality checks are employed to ensure that only the highest reliability parts are used.

Therefore, we suggest obtaining replacement parts from HP to maintain the quality that you have paid for in your instrument. There may be situations however, where HP replacement parts are not in stock and substituting parts will allow you to return the product to service immediately. In these cases it may be worthwhile to see if a substitute part will work in the circuit. Perhaps an HP part could be ordered and installed at some later date.

To help you in these situations, here is a cross-reference of HP integrated circuit part numbers to manufacturers "generic type" part numbers (whom in most cases is the originator of the part). Even though the cross-reference only lists one manufacturer, there may actually be several approved sources for an HP part. While every attempt was made to ensure the accuracy of the list, it is advisable to compare the description of the device being replaced with the description of the substituted part. For example, if the service manual describes the device being replaced as a "dual J-K flip-flop", check this against the description of the replacement part.

NOTE

This is not a comprehensive list. If the part number you are looking for is not listed here, the semiconductor is made exclusively for Hewlett-Packard and there is no substitute—it must be replaced with the same HP part number. □

SEMICONDUCTOR ACRONYMS

BJT	Bipolar Junction Transistors
BNDC	Bulk Negative Differential Conductivity
CCD	Charged-Coupled Device
CMOS	Complementary Metal-Oxide Semiconductor
CRT	Cathode Ray Tube
ECL	Emitter-Coupled Logic
FET	Field Effect Transistor
I ² L	Integrated-Injection Logic
IC	Integrated Circuit
IGFET	Insulated-Gate Field Effect Transistor
IMPATT	Impact Avalanche Transit Time
JFET	Junction FET
LED	Light-Emitting Diode
LSI	Large-Scale Integration
MBE	Molecular Beam Epitaxy
MESFET	Metal-Semiconductor FET
MIS	Metal-Insulator-Semiconductor
MISFET	Metal-Insulator-Semiconductor FET
MOS	Metal-Oxide Semiconductor
MOSFET	Metal-Oxide Semiconductor FET
MOST	MOS Transistor
PLA	Programmable Logic Array
ROM	Read-Only Memory
SCR	Semiconductor Controlled Rectifier
SCS	Semiconductor Controlled Switch
SOS	Silicon-on-Sapphire
TTL	Transistor-Transistor Logic
UJT	Unijunction Transistor
VLSI	Very Large-Scale Integration
VPE	Vapor-Phase Epitaxy
YAG	Yttrium-Aluminum Garnet
