D MASK+

Should it stay or should it go? (The faceplate, that is.) Kenwood gives you the choice. Introducing D MASK+ — an advancement on our revolutionary MASK fully automatic revolving, self-hiding faceplate. This year, Kenwood engineers have added a removable faceplate to MASK. When the power is turned off, the D MASK+ faceplate revolves to a standby position and remains there for a few seconds (you decide how long). If you wish, you can detach it. Otherwise, D MASK+ continues revolving, until it shows only a blank panel. D MASK+ models also include the MASK angle adjustment, which lets you choose the angle that maximizes visibility in your installation (particularly if the unit is mounted low in the dashboard).

D MASK

Kenwood also introduces DMASK, which combines a manual MASK mechanism with a removable faceplate. Like D MASK+, you choose whether to remove the faceplate or not. The DMASK faceplate flips down at the touch of a button, allowing you to remove it or manually flip the whole faceplate over so that it shows only a blank panel. When it comes to DMASK+ and DMASK faceplates, you can take them or leave them. It's your choice.

Power Amplifiers

Sigma Servo

A speaker that vibrates after its input signal stops will sound muddy. That's why Kenwood invented Sigma Servo, a special circuit in Kenwood amplifiers that tightly controls the speaker. A feedback loop that goes to the speaker terminals gives the amp the information it needs to damp the speaker. Instead of a damping factor of 100, which is typical of most amps, Kenwood amps with Sigma Servo have a damping factor of up to 9,900. You get a more accurate sounding bass than amps without Sigma Servo. Sigma Servo is something only Kenwood has.

A Better Wave

The new and unique Tornado-Type cone is just one of the many reasons why Kenwood is able to fill any car with powerful, accurate sound.

Never mind its radical appearance. Kenwood's new "Tornado Type" cone is very strong. Its striking shape functions to stiffen the cone, making it much less prone to unwanted vibrations. This reduces distortion while also improving bass definition and clarity. Furthermore, the new Tornado-Type cone resonates at about 170Hz, which is far above the woofer's usable bass frequency range of 25 - 100Hz. This makes its resonance irrelevant, further improving bass clarity. Conventional woofer cones resonate at around 100Hz, which is low enough in frequency to create unwanted low-frequency distortion.

As a result of the Tornado-Type cone, in combination with a longer-throw voice coil and bumped back plate, these new subwoofers also have excellent power linearity, which you can't get without cone strength. Power linearity means that the woofer's frequency response remains linear at high and low power levels, giving them extremely clear sound even at chest-thumping volume. Their sound is just as radical as their appearance.

Control is Good; Remote Control is Better

The KSC-WA82RC responds to your commands, even when you're up front and it's tucked-away in the trunk.

For maximum control while listening, the KSC-WA82RC's control section detaches and becomes a remote control. Connect the extension cable, and you can control the subwoofer's volume, crossover cut-off frequency, and phase from the driver's seat. Now you can fine-tune the subwoofer's performance while you're listening to the system, making it easier than ever to get just the right sound.
