Received 3 March 2010; accepted 4 March 2010; published online 24 March 2010

Dear Colleagues

First of all we would like to wish you all the best for 2010!

The First International Meeting on Pharmaceutical Sciences (1<sup>er</sup> RICiFa) will be held in Cordoba on the 24th and 25th June 2010, bringing together a high number of scientists from the academy as well as members of the pharmaceutical industry to exchange new knowledge and best practices and to discuss several issues related with the pharmaceutical sciences.

This conference is devoted to established topics such as advanced drug delivery systems, pharmaceutical biotechnology, micro and nanotechnology, natural products, pharmacology, and many more which will be dealt with in short oral and poster presentations.

In addition, a Workshop on Pharmacy Practice and Education is going to be organized during this meeting. As you know, education plays an extremely important role in preparing pharmacy students for several professional activities. It serves to ensure knowledge, skills, attitudes, and behavior required of pharmacists in order to contribute to communities and health systems in the best possible ways. Whether you are a student pharmacist, this meeting will provide educational programming and networking to keep you on track in your day-to-day practice.

This meeting will give you the opportunity to generate novel ideas, practices, cultural diversity, and practices in order to promote positive changes in pharmacy education and for pharmacy to progress globally as a profession.

The AAPS PharmSciTech Journal [<http://www.pharmagateway.net/PharmSciTech>] will publish an editorialized version of the proceedings including the presentation abstracts and presenters biographies.

The details on the scientific program, registration, and other useful information about the conference will be presented next month.

The versatile program of the congress as well as an attractive social program in this beautiful and historical city will enable you to share your experience with colleagues, discuss interesting topics with the experts on a highly professional level, establish new business connections, and meet new and old friends.

The chairs of the conference cordially invite you to join the First International Meeting and would be glad to welcome you in Cordoba!

On behalf of the organizing committee
