

single problem is with overlength papers. Substantially overlength papers will be returned to you for shortening prior to formal review.

Page Charges

I've been asked to discuss page charges. Most authors arrange for payment of requested page charges (see inside front cover opposite). If you're among them, you might want to skip on to the next paragraph. Payment of page charges is expected for all the journals of the AIAA. Journal survival is largely dependent on these page charges. The current magnitude of uncollected page charges is significant enough to bring the matter to your personal attention. Recognize that the net result is further increases in subscription and page charge fees. Many of you are under government grant or contract sponsorship. In most cases, specific provision is made in the contract for payment of these charges. I encourage all authors to respond to our request for payment of page charges.

Recognition

On a more pleasant final note, I'd like you to join with me in recognizing several groups of dedicated individuals whose contributions make the Journal of Aircraft possible. First, the New York staff. Mrs. Norma Brennan continues to direct the Editorial Department with excellent results. It is sometimes difficult to see how she can stay on top of all the multiple facets of AIAA publications. We've had several Senior Editors for the Journal. Pam Edwards takes the lion's share of the credit for getting us started on the new preacceptance procedures. Elaine Camhi, Managing Editor, found herself dealing with all journals as principle traffic director during the conversion process. That we were able to avoid loss of files, misplaced papers, etc., speaks for Elaine's skill and patient dedication. Recently, Rick Horgan has become our Senior Editor. Already he's doing a fine job, and all of us look forward to working with him.

I've already recognized the initiative and professionalism of our Associate Editor Team. This brings me to the reviewers, whose names are listed below. We certainly hope no names have been omitted. Last year we could state that very few trivial reviews were received. This is even more apparent this year. I thank them for their fine support.

Finally, it is appropriate to pay special recognition to our contributing authors, who, after all, are most important to the Journal. I've been told several times recently that the Journal quality continues to improve. This is due to the high quality of contributed material. From my viewpoint, the 1984 issues will be the best ever.
