In "Quantitation of Superoxide Production in Human Polymorphonuclear Leukocytes from Normals and 3 Types of Chronic Granulomatous Disease," by Niels Borregaard, Kirsten Staehr Johansen, and Viggo Esmann, pp. 214-219, the authors wish to correct a misquotation in the Discussion section on p. 217. The authors quoted that when measuring superoxide production by IgG-latex stimulated cells (Weening, R. S., Wever, R., and Roos, D. (1975) J. Lab. Clin. Med. 85, 198-207) cytochrome c was not added until after the reaction had been stopped. This is not correct. Cytochrome c was present during the stimulation of the cells.
