Unce again those amazing unpredictable Dodgers take to the field to pick up another pennant in 1942!

And once again it's the fan's favorite, "RED" BARBER, broadcasting every game - at Ebbets Field and away - as only he can.

But it's a new station this year ... and it was easy for Old Gold to pick the station which they knew from experience would do the most effective selling job. By experience we mean two solid years of broadcasting with continually increasing results.

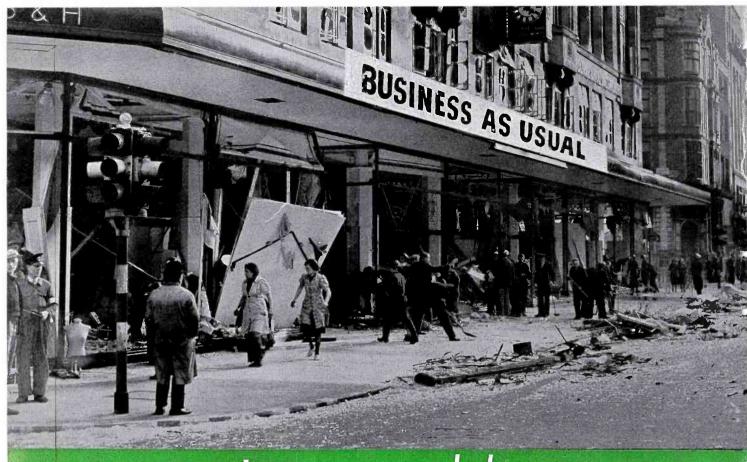

Maybe America's most powerful independent station belongs in the lead-off spot at the top of your station line-up.

PROPAGANDA?

LET'S get straight on this matter of propaganda.

Too few of us know what it is and too many of us think Nazi propaganda is the only propaganda.

The Axis, has changed its meaning like that of censorship to mean, infamous lies, half truths, and products of vivid imaginations of fiendish minds.

So when one hears that the radio stations in America are "full of propaganda," the Fifth Estate becomes at once the object of misunderstanding, calumny and aspersion.

Propaganda, as any dictionary will tell you, is nothing else in the world but a method of spreading a particular doctrine or system of principles. Thank Heaven, we can propagandize forever about America, Democracy and the American way of life, tell absolute whole truths and never be able to tell all of the many advantages of the American way of life.

There is a lot that can be said about this country that we love from the cradle to the grave, and Radio is going to tell all it can. The salient factor of American Propaganda is that our truths will triumph over the infamous lies of the Axis war lords, completely, giving all people a right to live as free men and women.

The difference between Nazi propaganda and American propaganda is the difference between Mein Kampf and the Bible.

WSM is proud that as a part of the great

Fifth Estate, it is fostering national unity, strength, and courage by spreading the principles of Democracy and Americanism. For, without this "propaganda," there would be no unity... without Unity no Victory.

TRY THIS INTRODUCTORY PACKAGE

The only way you can tell what network radio will do for you is to try network radio. There just is no equivalent. But it doesn't require a coast-to-coast investment.

By making your network radio test on Columbia Pacific, you can buy an actual "introductory package" of network radio—a regional network which closely mirrors nationwide conditions.

At the right are the reasons why the West will give you accurate, dependable answers as no other section can. Study them. They will show you why the economical, the practical way to prove out network radio is to "try the West, then add the rest."

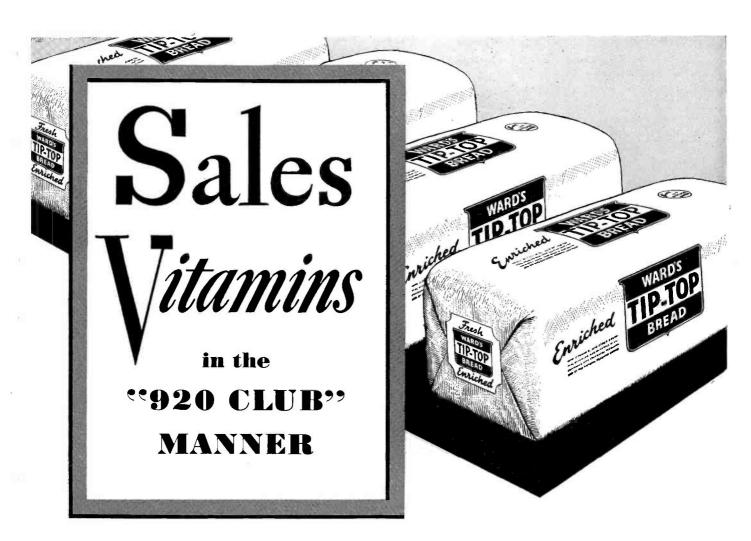

TRY THIS INTRODUCTORY PACKAGE... Coast network radio combines these eight necessary radio test factors: (1) TOP-CALIBRE PRODUCTION from Hollywood, Western production center for all networks. (2) Western Networks are "basic," carry all coast-to-coast programs. Your program gets true network sequence and competition. (3) Western Listeners are Network-Conditioned. Your radio program will be judged by listeners accustomed to the best. (4) All Listener types. Audiences include city, farm homes; class and mass markets. (5) Measured audiences. C. E. Hooper counts your listeners. (6) No outside conflicts. Other regional campaigns do not penetrate the far West. (7) Isolated Market. Sales areas are sharply defined. (8) Low time costs—only one-tenth of full coast-to-coast rates.

How true it is that man's Fate hangs but by a hair! Shaving under his chin, one day, Gilbert Wright discovered the basic acoustic principal that led to his invention of Sonovox. Thus literally "by the beard of his chin", Gil became the father of talking and singing sound—certainly one of the most astounding developments in the radio world.

"Astounding?" Yes! From all over America come indications of such audience-reaction as you have never heard before. Distributors of Sonovox-

Move to Revamp NAB Gets Under Way

4th District Urges Board to Probe Activities

FULL-SCALE reorganization of the NAB, which may involve the future status of its president, Neville Miller, as well as other head-quarter staff officials, is being advocated by a formidable group of broadcasters because of dissatisfaction over the trade association's activities.

While veiled hints have been given for several months about a housecleaning, the first tangible step came March 7, when the 4th District NAB meeting at Roanoke adopted a resolution memorializing the full board to appoint a committee to study the management, structure, and finances of the trade association, looking toward "greater unity, economy and efficiency." The full board meets in New York this Thursday and Friday (March 19-20) and will consider the resolution, among other things.

Defense Problem

Industry unrest over NAB leadership has been manifest since the last NAB convention in St. Louis, which resulted in an open break between Mr. Miller, FCC Chairman James Lawrence Fly and other leading industry figures. Since then, Broadcasters' Victory Council was formed, made up of representatives of each of the trade groups in broadcasting, for the avowed purpose of rehabilitating industry relations with Government during the war emergency.

Mr. Miller, on the premise that only "practical broadcasters" should serve on the council, was excluded from membership, with the NAB represented by John E. Fetzer, WKZO, Kalamazoo, as chairman of the trade association's Defense Committee.

Proponents of full-scale reorganization propose to crystallize their plans at the forthcoming NAB convention in Cleveland, May 11-14. Mr. Miller is under contract until June 30, 1944, his term having been extended one year at each of the last two conventions.

It is an open secret that Mr. Fly favors a reorganization of the NAB. Moreover, he endorsed the creation of the Broadcasters' Victory Council, which in some quarters was regarded as a rebuff to NAB.

BVC, headed by John Shepard 3d, president of the Yankee Network, is regarded as an interim organization to cover the Washington regulatory front until the reorganization is effected. Mr. Shepard has publicly stated that BVC will be dissolved if the reorganized NAB meets the requisities prescribed by the Council.

Those who foster the NAB housecleaning, along broad lines, urge:

1. That the major networks be relegated to associate rather than active membership and that no network executive, employe or official be permitted to serve on the board of directors.

2. That new leadership be infused in the NAB, probably through restoration of a practical broadcaster as president.

3. That economies be effected in NAB operation with certain of its present activities discontinued.

4. That experienced "legislative counsel" be retained to handle Congressional contacts and other Washington-front activities.

5. That the association be streamlined and placed on a war footing, with non-essential peacetime pursuits eliminated.

Purported network domination of the NAB, repeatedly attacked by Chairman Fly, is one of the keynotes of the reorganization crusade. NBC already has expressed its willingness to accept associate rather than active membership. CBS, on the other hand, has maintained that networks are entitled to active membership because of their important status in the industry.

MBS, third of the national networks, has been at loggerheads with the NAB since before the St. Louis convention episode, and many of its important affiliates already have dropped out of the association. It has repeatedly disclaimed NAB's position as industry spokesman, asserting that the NAB has never represented the interests of MBS affiliates. This stemmed from NAB's opposition to the so-called network-monopoly rules, now in litigation.

Support for NAB

Despite the move toward reorganization, with President Miller in the center of the controversy, there is strong industry sentiment, particularly in the less populous

Taylor Takes Victory Council Post

Texan Assists Shepard As Capital Liaison For Groups

IMPLORED by both industry and Government figures to pitch in, O. L. (Ted) Taylor, president and general manager of the Taylor-Howe-Snowden stations in Texas, arrived in Washington last Friday to become executive secretary of Broadcasters Victory Council, a coalition of industry trade groups set up to maintain liaison with the Government.

Mr. Taylor, a director of the NAB and a member of its executive committee, fills a post created by the Council upon its formation last January. He will serve with John Shepard 3d, Council chairman, and remain on the Washington scene for three weeks each month. Mr. Shepard, who has been in Washington since formation of the Council, intends to spend one or two days a week there, devoting the balance of his time to directing the affairs of the Yankee Network, of which he is president.

Supporter of NAB

A strong proponent of NAB as the single industry trade association, Mr. Taylor was prevailed upon to accept the BVC appointment in the interest of the industry. He is for certain changes in the bylaws of the NAB at the NAB Cleveland convention in May.

In addition to Messrs. Shepard and Taylor, BVC members are George B. Storer, Fort Industry

New BVC Executive

Co., vice-chairman, and president of NIB, who originally proposed the Council; James D. Shouse, Crosley Corp. vice-president, representative of the Clear Channel Broadcasting Service; John E. Fetzer, WKZO, Kalamazoo, NAB director and chairman of its National Defense Committee, NAB representative; Eugene C. Pulliam, WIRE, Indianapolis, president of Network Affiliates Inc.; Walter J. Damm, WTMJ, Milwaukee, president of FM Broadcasters Inc.

Mr. Taylor, it is understood, was urged by members of BVC to take over the executive secretaryship. He will serve without salary, as does Mr. Shepard.

Gene Howe, chairman of the board of the four-station chain and four newspapers owned by the group, authorized Mr. Taylor to assume the post and take a temporary leave of absence from the organization, it is understood. Stations in the group are KGNC, Amarillo; KTSA, San Antonio; KFYO, Lubbock; KRGV, Weslaco.

Mr. Taylor has been active in NAB affairs virtually since he first became interested in radio in 1934. He became president of the Texas

NAB Should Be Converted to Wartime Basis—An Editorial

IT IS UNFORTUNATE that the NAB must undergo a stem-to-stern housecleaning in these tense times. Nothing can be gained by rehashing the provocations that make a change necessary. There's anything but unity in the industry. Without a reorganization, the result can be all but fatal.

In many ways the NAB has done a good job. Copyright, for example. But it lacks recognition in certain quarters in Washington. Personal animosities have superseded best industry interests. FCC Chairman James Lawrence Fly, who also sits as chairman of the warborn Defense Communications Board, has in effect refused to recognize NAB President Neville Miller as the industry spokesman. Such a situation, in wartime, is untenable.

We do not condone Mr. Fly's actions or attitudes. Nor do we condemn Mr. Miller. His entire energies since he took office in 1938 as the NAB's first paid president have been directed to defense of the industry against undue regulatory encroachments. The fact remains, however, that the NAB as now constituted is persona non grata in important Washington quarters. It is no secret that certain industry interests, in the light of the war, have found it expedient to alter their positions toward Mr. Fly, new legislation and the NAB.

Since the ill-starred NAB convention in St. Louis last year there has been an ever-widening breach in the industry. A rash of new trade groups has broken out. Chairman Fly has fostered anti-NAB activity—properly or not.

The industry would have suffered even worse had it not been for the formation of Broadcasters Victory Council. It has supplanted NAB in maintaining official liaison with the war agencies. Because Chairman Fly likes BVC, and dislikes NAB, the latter has been able to keep things moving.

BVC an Interim Expedient

The BVC is serving as a voluntary interim organization until NAB is reorganized. Chairman John Shepard 3d, avowedly a pro-NAB, single-trade-association man, volunteered to take over the chairmanship. Now O. L. (Ted) Taylor, a member of the NAB board and executive committee, and an outspoken opponent of rump movements in the industry, has taken leave from his Texas stations to serve as executive secretary of BVC. A majority of the members of BVC are serving with the conviction that the organization should not remain permanent, but that the industry must have new leadership in Washington.

The NAB board meets in New York this week. It will consider the resolution of the 4th NAB district that the management, structure and finances of NAB be studied looking toward "greater unity, economy and efficiency". It probably will order the study, with action at the Cleveland convention or sooner.

Now more than ever before radio must have wise leadership. The NAB should be streamlined and placed on a wartime basis. There should be post-war planning for radio, just as there is post-war planning for Government. There will be FM, television and other new services after the war. And there will be a new economic order.

Commission members and chairmen come and go. It won't always be this way. But radio, under efficient leadership and management, will remain. Radio has been fighting windmills since St. Louis. The facts are clear. The job can be done at Cleveland in May.

areas, for continued support of the NAB as at present constituted. This has been reflected in repeated actions of the NAB district meetings, pledging support to the association and giving Mr. Miller a vote of confidence.

The highly successful campaign waged by Mr. Miller in the copyright battle since he assumed office in 1938 has won the plaudits of rank and file broadcasters, and even those now fostering reorganization concede that the almost impossible was achieved in subjugating ASCAP and in building Broadcast Music Inc. as a topflight competitor in the music field.

Some conversation has centered around buying out Mr. Miller's present contract should the membership, at the forthcoming Cleveland convention, decide on a complete reorganization which would entail new leadership and possibly the return of a broadcaster-president.

Opposition Lines Forming

With the die cast by virtue of the 4th District resolution, opposition lines are expected to be formed quickly. There are those in the industry who feel that Chairman Fly has insinuated himself into purely industry affairs without proper basis. Even though he admittedly has personal grievances with Mr. Miller because of the St. Louis incident and with certain network officials because of the chain-monopoly regulations, this school feels he has no right to foster reorganization of the trade association or to advise and counsel on matters other than the purely regulatory aspects of the FCC's work.

The resolution adopted at Roanoke was drafted by a committee of representative broadcasters and approved in executive session. The discussion, it is understood, centered around Mr. Miller's difficulties in dealing with certain Washington officials, notably Chairman Fly, a proposed increase in the NAB budget from approximately $250,000 to some $300,000 for the current year, and the status of certain staff executives of the NAB.

Contract Renewal

Several broadcasters, it is reported, freely express the view that in trade association work top officials outlive their usefulness. The cycle usually runs two or three years, it was pointed out. Mr. Miller, the industry's first paid president, was retained in 1938. A lawyer by profession, he earned a national reputation as Louisville's "flood mayor".

Mr. Miller was appointed for a three-year term. At the San Francisco convention in 1940, however, his term was extended from 1942 until 1943, with an increase in salary from $25,000 per year to $35,000 per year, plus $5,000 in allowances. At the ill-fated St. Louis convention, his term again was extended until 1944, with the same salary.

The resolution adopted at the Roanoke meeting reads:

"Resolved, it is the sense of the 4th District membership assembled at Roanoke, Va., on March 7, 1942, that the Board of Directors of the NAB immediately appoint a committee to make a study of the management, structure and finances of the NAB, looking toward greater unity, economy and efficiency.

UP EARLY and late for commercial broadcasts, Norman Ross, announcer of WMAQ, Chicago, sandwiches air patrol duty over the Chicago Loop north to the Illinois-Wisconsin line along Lake Michigan. Ross, a former Olympic swimming champ and aerial acrohatics instructor in the last World War, has been appointed commander of Squadron I of the Civil Air Patrol in Illinois of about 100 civilian pilots in the Evanston area.

"And be it further resolved, that the committee make its report setting forth its recommendations in detail to the membership at the 1942 Cleveland convention."

Advance Discussion

The preponderant view on BVC is for reorganization of the NAB, rather than its dissolution. Mr. Shepard already has announced that, in compliance with NAB bylaws, a proposed amendment to the bylaws regarding qualification for membership will be dispatched to all stations 30 days in advance of the Cleveland convention, or by April 11.

Basically, the plan is to propose that no employe or officer of a national network be eligible to serve on the board, with the networks themselves relegated to associate membership along with station representatives, transcription companies, manufacturers and other non-independent station operators. Presumably, managed and operated stations of the networks would be eligible for active membership. Directors of networks, as distinguished from officers and employes, might be qualified for directorships on NAB.

Before the full NAB board of 26 members meets in New York this week, the wires will burn on the reorganization proposal. As in the past, certain board groups are expected to meet in advance the regular session to devise their plans.

Membership of BVC is preponderantly in favor of retention of the NAB structure, but with a reorganization. All of its members do not agree, however, on the degree of reorganization deemed essential. All are agreed that a more amicable relationship should exist between Government and the industry and that as things stand now, this cannot be accomplished with the present organization of the association unless there are unforeseen changes on the FCC.

In addition to Mr. Shepard, who favors retention of a reorganized NAB, Messrs. James D. Shouse, WLW-WSAI, Cincinnati; John E. Fetzer, WKZO, Kalamazoo, and O. L. (Ted) Taylor, KGNC, Amarillo, are proponents of a reorganized NAB. All three are NAB directors. Mr. Taylor became executive secretary of the BVC on an interim basis last week.

Renewals Brighten Network Prospects Wentworth Leaves

Fewer Cancellations by Sponsors; Gains in Spot Noted

CHANGES in the network pictures took a more optimistic turn last week, with a total of seven renewal contracts and a small number of cancellations due for the most part to the end of seasonal campaigns rather than to wartime rationing.

NBC reported the largest inincrease in business, together with sponsorship of Dr. I. Q. by Vick Chemical Co. April 6, the week after the former Dr. I. Q. sponsor, Mars, Inc., relinquishes the show. Vick is currently sponsoring The Nicholls Family of Five on NBC, but will give us that program for its cold remedies at the end of the cold season in March, probably promoting its vitamin products on $Dr.\ I.\ Q.$

Many Renewals

General Mills this week is reshuffling its serial programs on NBC, moving Hymns of All Churches and Betty Crocker from CBS to NBC to fill out the 2-3 p.m. period Monday to Friday with Light of the World, Arnold Grimm's Daughter and Guiding Light.

Renewals on NBC included Cudahy Packing Co., Helpmate, for 52 weeks, through Blackett-Sample-Hummert; International Salt Co., Wifesaver, for 13 weeks, through J. M. Mathes Inc.; Bell Telephone System, Telephone Hour, 52 weeks, through N. W. Ayer & Son; General Foods Corp., which plans to continue Coffee Time, with Fanny Brice and Frank Morgan, through the summer, instead of taking the program off for a 13-week vacation as in the past. On June 4, General Foods will promote Post Toasties on the program instead of Maxwell House Coffee, product affected by the canning restrictions. Agency is Benton & Bowles.

Another seasonal advertiser, Sloan's Liniment, which sponsors Gang Busters on the BLUE, will reach the end of its contract April 3 and will discontinue the program. Pan-American Coffee reau also plans to go off the BLUE April 5 with its series of talks by Mrs. Roosevelt, but will probably continue using radio for the iced coffee season with a campaign of spot announcements on 8 or 10 stations, according to Buchanan & Co., the agency.

Although General Foods will replace We, the People with Duffy's Tavern March 17 on CBS in the interest of Sanka Coffee, another client of Young & Rubicam, Gulf Oil Co., was reported last week to be interested in continuing the former show on CBS.

April 1, Lever Bros. Co. is taking the Meet Mr. Meek program out of the Wednesday 8-8:30 p.m. period on CBS but, according to its agency, Ruthrauff & Ryan, has not yet decided whether it will relinquish the time or fill it with a new program.

Mutual received one renewal last week when Gospel Broadcasting Assn. signed a year's contract for its Sunday evening Old Fashioned Revival. A rumored war casualty may be the MBS Bulldog Drummond series, which is reported leaving the air March 22 because of the wool shortage affecting its sponsor, Howard Clothes. This was not confirmed by the agency, Redfield-Johnstone.

Dried Soups Progress

Progress in the field of dehydrated soups was reported last week by Thomas J. Lipton Inc., which stated that its subsidiary, Continental Foods Inc., has shown such an increase in the sale of its dried soup that further expansion is planned for 1942 in the field of advertising, although no definite plans have been announced as yet. The product has been promoted occasionally with announcements on the CBS Bright Horizons show, sponsored by Swan Soap, through Young & Rubicam.

Washington Coffee Refining Co., which produces both dehydrated broth and soup, already is using radio for the products. Since last fall, it has sponsored Marjorie Mills, on the Yankee Network, Nancy Craig, on WJZ, New York, and June Baker on WGN, Chicago, for its broth, and since the first of the year, has started an intensive campaign in Philadelphia for its dried coffee, including Lawyer Q, half-hour weekly program testing on WCAU; one-minute Yiddish announcements on WDAS, and Ruth Wiles' program on KYW.

In anticipation of the tin shortage, General Foods in its annual report, stated that Maxwell House began packing a portion of its production in glass jars in July, 1941, and since then additional glass packing lines have been installed. GF also is continuing to seek various suitable substitute packaging materials for its products, having also developed in 1941 such a substitute as domestic emulsifiers to replace Japanese wax and for domestic perfumes. These are used in Latina and LaFrance, GF laundry aids, the report says.

Gain in Spot Accounts

NBC's national spot and local sales during the first two months of 1942 has reported a "healthy increase", according to James V. Mc-Connell, manager of that division, who stated that "greater expenditures may be expected for advertising new packaging as well as products which are being brought out as substitutes for others affected by priorities.

"There is a noticeable increase in time sales to strictly local accounts. Local payrolls are higher than ever before with the result that the lower income bracket will this year be able to afford many purchases that they have been unable to make in previous years . . . Considering the flexibility of spot radio, present advertisers will continue to look to it as an essential medium and schedules from news sources give every indication of being sufficient to offset any casualties resulting from priorities."

In line with Mr. McConnell's observations on the "flexibility" of spot radio, all spot business seems to be on the upturn, although contracts are being signed on a shorter term basis. National Biscuit Co., for instance, which starts a spot campaign for NBC Bread March 16 in 20 markets, is signing all schedules on 13-week clauses, while last year the company placed 26-week contracts for a similar

Pacific Coast Placements Rise As Listening Expands Sharply

Sponsors Take Advantage of Payroll Increases To Use Both Network and Spot Schedules

RADIO LISTENING on the West Coast took an impressive upward turn in the two months following the Jap attack on Pearl Harbor, according to figures compiled by Robert McAndrews, NBC western division sales promotion manager, from the C. E. Hooper Inc. sur-

Daytime listening audiences showed a 20% increase for January and February, 1942, over November, 1941, according to Mc-Andrews. Nighttime audiences showed a 10% rise for the same

He pointed out that 17 news commentary programs included in the survey showed an increase in listeners, only one dropping below pre-war figures. The daytime average rating of news and comment shows was up 28% over the rating of November, last year, according to the all-network survey.

More Funds for Radio

This increased listener interest does not mean that the West Coast population for the most part is huddled in its homes, afraid to venture out to work, shop or play, as is widely held in some quarters. On the contrary, as with practically all thriving areas of the country, war industry is playing a stellar role in the accelerated pace of Pacific Coast prosperity. Pacific Coast people are working more hours. They are also earning and spending more money.

As result, hard-headed business men are "cashing in" on that prosperity, thereby intensifying their

Disc Business to Aid in War Effort

Sells Interest to Cote Who Is Secretary-Treasurer

RALPH C. WENTWORTH, president of Lang-Worth Feature Programs and partner of this company and its affiliated corporations, has resigned from the organization and has sold his stock interest to Emile Cote, wellknown musical director. Mr. Wentworth stated that "the motivating factor in this has been my keen desire, which has grown progressively since Dec. 7, to have at least some minor part in the war effort."

C. O. Langlois, partner with Mr. Wentworth in the transcription business, becomes president of Lang-Worth Feature Programs and continues to serve in that capacity with Langlois & Wentworth and Lang-Worth Publications. Mr. Cote becomes a full partner in the firm, with the title of secretary-treasurer of the three corporations, which will continue operations under their original names.

Cote Heads Production

In announcing the new partner-ship, Mr. Langlois said: "Langworth will continue to function in exactly the same capacity as it has in the past. The firm of Langlois & Wentworth will renew its original function as a program producing organization for advertisers and their agenices. Mr. Cote will take over all production work and the staff will be broadly expanded to give him all the assistance he needs in the way of continuity writers and production men.

A radio veteran of nearly 20 years standing, Mr. Wentworth began his career in broadcasting as an announcer for WEAF, New York, in 1924. He was also associated with CBS and was active in the agency end of radio before entering the transcription field some seven years ago.

In announcing his withdrawal from active participation in the industry, he stated: "I was lucky enough in 1924 to get a job in the broadcasting business and I have been at it continuously ever since. I am rather afraid that the habit of broadcasting is going to be difficult to break and whether or not I succeed is still problematical. However, until we are through this war period I do want to at least offer my services to the country in any capacity in which they can be used."

Mr. Cote has been an "associate without portfolio" with Lang-Worth and directed the first vocal programs for the library service.

Fly Opposes Probe at House Hearing

Rules Committee Plans Further Study of Cox Measure

WITH hearings already definitely slated to begin April 14 before the House Interstate & Foreign Commerce Committee on revision of the Communications Act, the House Rules Committee currently is considering the Cox Resolution for an inquiry into the FCC and its personnel. Rep. Cox (D-Ga.) confidently predicted last week his proposal would be reported favorably, with likelihood of concurrent investigations in the House.

Fly Takes Stand

Amid charges that the FCC is shot through with staff members having Communistic leanings, the important House Rules Committee last Thursday opened its preliminary hearing on the Cox resolution. FCC Chairman James Lawrence Fly, accused by Rep. Cox of seeking to "Federalize communications", himself took the stand to oppose the resolution but did not complete his testimony. He is expected to appear again Tuesday (March 17) after which the Committee will be called upon to act on the Cox proposal.

The House Interstate & Foreign Commerce Committee, entrusted with radio legislation, last Wednesday announced it would begin hearings on the Sanders Bill (HR-5497) on April 14. The measure would rewrite, the Communications Act and, among other things, set up two autonomous divisions of three members leach, one to handle broadcasting and related services and the other common carriers. The chairman would become the administrative officer, with no regular division vote.

Initially the FCC majority had opposed the Sanders measure but after introduction of the Cox Resolution on Feb. 2, went all out in opposition to that and was inclined to accept the Sanders Bill as the lesser of two evils.

Rep. Cox's measure (HRes-426) proposes a five-man select committee to be named by the Speaker to investigate the organization, personnel and activities of the FCC and to determine whether the Commission "is acting in accordance with the law and public interest". A committee counsel would be named, along with a staff of investigators, with witnesses and records to be subpoenaed. It would be a full-scale investigation rather than a legislative inquiry as proposed under the Sanders Bill.

Chairman Lea told BROADCASTING last Thursday that he expected representatives of the Federal Communications Bar Assn. to be the first witnesses before the committee when hearings begin April 14. The association endorsed rewriting of the Communications Act of 1934 and certain of its proposals were incorporated in the pending legislation offered by Rep. Sanders (D-La.).

It is expected that Judge E. O. Sykes, former chairman of the FCC and now a practicing radio attorney, will appear as one of the first witnesses as president of the bar association. Herbert M. Bingham, Washington attorney and former president of the bar association, who was chairman of its legislative committee, also is expected to testify.

Industry Attitude

Support for the Sanders Bill in industry circles has been lukewarm since the outbreak of war. In some industry quarters, the contention is made that war-born legislation might prove onerous in the postwar period, since factors ordinarily not taken into account might be included in the revised law. On the other hand, members of the committee, and notably Rep. Sanders, have pointed out industry leaders have complained about the existing law being antiquated and that it is the duty of Congress to reappraise statutes from time to time, particularly when charges of improper administration have been made.

Favorable action on the Cox Resolution would in no wise disturb the Sanders Bill proceedings, according to committee members. It is entirely possible, should the Cox Resolution be reported favorably, that hearings will be conducted simultaneously. As now written the Cox Resolution covers only the FCC, its personnel and its administration. Previous resolutions introduced for radio investigations have covered the industry also.

Chairman Lea said he would be disposed to ask the FCC, the major networks and probably other entities identified with radio and communications to appear before the committee if they do not voluntarily testify. It is expected the NAB, as well as other trade groups, will be invited.

The California legislator said his committee desires to expedite the hearings but that sufficient time would be permitted for full testimony. The hearings may run from two weeks to a month, it was calculated.

What action might be taken on the Senate side in the light of proceedings in the House in connection with radio regulation was not clear. During the last several years Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), as chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, has taken leadership in originating radio legislation. No new legislation has been enacted, however. The last such move, on the White Resolution to investigate the FCC particularly in connection with its networkmonopoly regulations, resulted in a stalemate, with the resolution still pending before Senator Wheeler's committee.

Senate Situation

Possibility that the Senate committee might again go into action was foreseen, though nothing concrete has come from Chairman Wheeler. Several members of the Senate committee are known to be out of sympathy with the Fly regime, alleging he is controlling the Commission with an iron hand and has a tailor-made majority on anything he wishes done.

Power Boost: Others Set for Hearing

BECAUSE it has on hand all the necessary materials, WAAB, Boston, owned by the Yankee Network Inc., headed by John Shepard 3d, on March 11 was authorized by the FCC to move its studios to Worcester and its transmitter to Holden, Mass., install a new transmitter and increase its power to 5,000 watts. The grant was made conditional upon approval of directional antenna design. WAAB now is the Boston MBS outlet.

Also because the use of no new critical materials was involved, the Commission reinstated the construction permit of WNAC, Boston key of the Yankee Network, authorizing a power increase to 5,000 watts with a directional antenna for day and night use.

More Set For Hearing

Practically all other pending applications for new facilities considered March 11, even though some of them had already been heard, were designated for further hearings upon additional issues raised by the "freeze order" policy [BROADCASTING, March 2] with respect to new construction during the war emergency.

Ordered to hearing were the applications of KSD, St. Louis, for 50,000 watts on 940 kc.; KROY, Sacramento, for 10,000 watts on 1030 kc.; and the three applications for 710 kc.—those of WTCN, Minneapolis, WHB, Kansas City, and Park Cities Broadcasting Co., Dallas, the latter seeking a new 5,000-watt outlet.

The application of Associated Broadcasters Inc., Indianapolis, for a new station there on the 1190 kc. channel now occupied by WOWO, Fort Wayne, was ordered to hearing consolidated with the application of WIRE, Indianapolis, for 50,000 watts on that channel and that of WOWO for license renewal and power increase from 10,000 to 50,000 watts.

Altogether, 17 applications already heard were designated for further hearing, 11 of them seeking new stations [see page 50].

YANKEE TO OPEN SIX NEW STUDIOS

YANKEE NETWORK will open six new studios in Boston March 20. Built with special regard for broadcasting needs of FM, the studios have been decorated in clear, modern colors.

One of the new studios is three stories high, built to house a new studio organ weighing 15 tons. First program on this Aeolian-Skinner organ will be played by its designer Francis J. Cronin over an MBS coast-to-coast hookup and will be keyed through WAAB, Boston, at 8:15 p.m. (EWT), March 20.

Other programs celebrating the opening, feature Heinrich Gebbard, pianist and composer, in a half-hour of concert music starting at 9 p.m. exclusively for FM stations. Following this will be another half-hour of music on FM by Bobby Norris, violinist and leader of Yankee's Singing Strings. From 8:30-9 p.m., Mutual's network will salute the Yankee net. From 11:30-12 opening night, Yankee stars will join in a celebration program to be carried over the Yankee and Colonial networks from WAAB and WNAC in Boston.

tion last Thursday opened in a surcharged atmosphere. Chairman Fly was present having been invited by Chairman Sabath (D-Ill.). Mr. Sabath repeatedly argued with other committee members when the examination waxed warm.

At the very outset Rep. Cox charged the FCC majority had exerted pressure in attempting to block favorable action on his resolution and had "pulled every political string within reach". He added he was prepared to "make disclosures" of such lobbying activities.

The committee appeared divided on the resolution, with the Republican minority, comprising Fish (New York), Allen (Ill.) and Halleck (Ind.) siding with Rep. Cox. Several Democratic members also appeared to support the resolution.

Wigglesworth's Views

Rep. Wigglesworth (D-Mass.) was called by Rep. Cox as his first witness and supported the resolution. A veteran critic of the FCC and its predecessor Radio Commission, and of purported monopoly in the industry, Rep. Wigglesworth renewed former charges of monopoly reposing in the three major networks and included MBS in the group. He also attacked what he described as "trafficking" in licenses.

When Rep. Cox asked Mr. Wigglesworth whether he was familiar with the "terrible sickening odor that has exuded from the FCC", Chairman Sabath stopped the questioning, calling it improper procedure. He said it was wrong to "smear a Government agency".

Pointing out he had previously introduced a resolution to investigate the FCC, Rep. Wigglesworth said he thought the Cox measure should be broadened to include an inquiry into the industry. He said

ONE OF AMERICA'S GREAT RADIO STATIONS

Advertising and Spot Radio In the War

WHILE priorities and fear of priorities have caused many small marginal manufacturers to cut down their advertising expenditures, it is becoming more and more evident that companies which have spent millions to establish their brand name in the minds of the public will continue advertising in some form.

In the first place, it is important to these companies that they do not lose ground to competitors during the emergency, and, in the second place, more important that new and obscure brands do not use the emergency to place themselves in the position of being a new major competitor.

It is true that advertising formulae will change. Some companies will be forced to strict institutional copy, using defense and war advertising as the vehicle to keep brand names before the public. Quality appeal will in many cases replace price appeal. Service copy and use copy will endeavor to show users how to make products last longer and methods of conservation that will lengthen the time usually necessary for replacement.

No Upward Trend

It would be foolish to expect that advertising will continue its upward trend just as it does in normal times and still more foolish to believe that it will be reduced to a negligible amount.

People during the war will have ample money to spend as billions are poured into defense and offense. Money saved from forced economies in some lines, such as luxury items, will find its way into new channels of expenditure and manufacturers will have to use advertising to secure their proper share of the consumer dollar.

It now appears that the most drastic cuts in advertising will come during the period when any given industry seriously affected by priorities is making a change-over to meet the new situation—with priorities on cans for dog foods, dried beans, mixed soups in effect—some time must elapse before new packages can be developed and new processes worked out so that regular distribution can be resumed.

However, once the change-over is made, more advertising than ever will be needed to introduce the new product or new package and so it can be expected that at least some of the original loss can be made up. Furthermore, due to lack of colors and four-color printing, many labels will change to one color and advertising will be necessary to inform the public of this change.

Many small but soundly financed companies who have never enjoyed substantial distribution in major areas will get this distribution as their large competitors become unable to supply complete lines to all outlets and as the Army and Navy are using more and more of the large manufacturers' products. These small companies will capitalize on this new distribution by increasing their advertising as a means of establishing their brand in important markets.

All Media Affected

The war will definitely affect all magazines, newspapers, radio and outdoor advertising-but to varying degrees, depending how quickly the medium adjusts itself to the situation. Whereas, in the past, advertising has been highly specialized and handled in its entirety by marketing experts, students of audience psychology, expert copy writers, artists, layout men and publicists, advertising during the war now becomes an important point in company policy. Today the policy-making executives of most companies are scrutinizing all phases of their companies' advertising efforts.

Radio, barring severe attacks on this country which may cause radios to be shut off the major portion of the time, promises to be less seriously affected by the war than other media. There is no problem of paper or printing which is already being felt by some media. Radio is today America's No. 1 source of entertainment and promises to continue so. People will need amusement more and more as an escape from the nerve-wracking horrors of war and radio listening will increase as other media are forced to limit their circulation. Thus radio will increase in importance as the low cost selling media.

Radio's all-out effort to help win the war will win wide approval from the American people and will demonstrate that radio is fulfilling its duty under which it is licensed, that of serving the best public interests.

Advertisers will turn to radio during the war as a means of keeping their campaigns, their appropriations as flexible as possible; they will not be forced with long closing dates; they can change their commercials to meet ever-changing conditions and can do this up until the time the program goes on the air and then change it again the next day if expediency demands.

Another very important point that advertisers will consider will be the use of radio in reaching the thousands of camps, naval and military establishments as a means of keeping their product before the millions in our armed service. To accomplish this radio has no equal; radios are considered almost a must in keeping up the morale of the armed forces. They are turned on constantly in most amusement centers and rest rooms and many soldiers and sailors have their own radios. Today, many advertisers are trying to learn when these military and naval men listen to the radio so that they can direct their story to them. It is found that not only entertainment programs but news and sports programs are popular in all camps.

Local Stations to Benefit

Spot radio appears to be in an even better position to serve advertisers than networks. When an advertising appropriation is cut, national appropriations will be concentrated in the most important markets and spot radio offers the manufacturer the opportunity to keep the expenditure much more flexible than is possible on networks.

Likewise, spot radio in major chance for success during the war than spot radio in secondary markets as the major markets will be the last given up by advertiser, who either cuts down on his appropriation or suspends some of his advertising pending aforementioned changes in packages, products etc. Advertisers will hesitate for a long time to give up a tested spot in a major market when their lay-off from advertising is only temporary.

The situation seems to offer spot radio its great opportunity, but spot radio must do its part. It must show the advertiser, not only the low cost per thousand radio homes reached, but the low cost per thousand families reached. It must show advertisers how to use spot radio effectively for institutional purposes. It must subordinate commercialism to anything that will aid the United States in its war effort. It must sell spot radio and radio as an advertising media not only to advertising agencies but to policy boards in large companies, boards of directors, sales managers, advertising managers and treasurers as they all have a say in major advertising plans today.

Spot radio's best prospects during the war should be:

Wines and beers
Cigarettes and tobacco products
Drug and toilet articles, soaps
Amusements
Insurance and financial instruction

Candy and confections

WITH announcement last week by Keystone Broadcasting System that Miles Labs., Elkhart, Ind., has renewed its Lum 'n' Abner broadcasts for Alka-Seltzer on the transcribed network from June, 1942, to June, 1943, KBS now claims to reach 55,000,000 or 41.9% of the U. S., as tabulated in a nation-wide survey prepared by Walter P. Burn & Associates, New York, in collaboration with Miles Labs. and Wade Adv. Agency, Chicago.

According to O. B. Capelle, sales promotion manager of Miles Labs., the Lum 'n' Abner series on the 162 local stations serviced by KBS [BROADCASTING, March 2], has "increased the sales of Alka-Seltzer in Keystone counties to a year-end level 28% better than the corresponding level in comparable counties beyond the range of its stations, and similarly increased sales by 8% in counties immediately adjacent to those where KBS stations are located."

Recent additions to the transcription network include KFXJ WGRM WMIS WGCM WJBC KTWM KHMO KPQ WJRD WBLJ KWOS.

Lewis Tells Agencies of Plan To Control Federal Air Time

Advertisers Next to Be Given Details of Proposed Method of Coordinating Government Radio

THE PLAN to establish a coordinated routine for the broadcasting of all Governmental announcements, to avoid unnecessary repetition and to insure an even distribution, was outlined by William B. Lewis, assistant director of the Office of Facts & Figures, to about 40 advertising agency radio executives attending a closed meeting held last Thursday morning in the New York office of the Advertising Council.

Enthusiastic reception of the plan, which Mr. Lewis explained had been evolved by the radio committee of the Advertising Council with whom he and his associates at the OFF have been holding weekly meetings, led to a decision by the agency men present to hold a similar meeting with the agency clients—the advertisers who sponsor the commercial programs on the air—Thursday of this week when Mr. Lewis will submit the plan for their approval.

Once this industry backing of the proposed method of operation is secured, the OFF will then present the plan to Government agencies involved—the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Treasury etc.—for their approval, after which it will be put into effect as soon as possible.

Suggestions Pondered

No details were divulged following the meeting, when it was explained that suggestions for minor changes are still being advanced by agency men and it is probable that similar suggestions will be made by the advertisers and by officials of the Government agencies, so that any detailed announcement at this time would be premature. It is understood, however, that when complete the proposed schedule will cover announcements broadcast locally by individual stations as well as on the four nationwide networks.

It was emphasized this idea is not one which OFF has cooked up independently and is now trying to force on the advertising fraternity, but it is really the industry's own idea to create a system under which the Government in stimulating the public to buy Defense Bonds, conserve rubber and tin, volunteer for needed war work and otherwise aid in the war effort.

At this time, it was stated, the OFF is merely cooperating with the advertising industry in the formulation of this plan and only after the plan has won the full approval of the industry will the OFF submit it to the Government officials and urge that they, too, approve it.

Mr. Lewis outlined for the agency executives the aims and procedures of the OFF and especially of his radio division in coordinating the requests of the Government for time on the air. Every agency was requested to appoint one individual to handle all questions arising between the agency and its clients which concern the Government, this man to act as liaison with the OFF on all such matters.

Douglas Meservey, assistant to Mr. Lewis, accompanied him to New York for the session, which was also attended by Dr. Miller McClintock, director of the Advertising Council; Paul West, president of the Assn. of National Advertisers; Fred Gamble, managing director American Assn. of Advertising Agencies; W. A. Fricke, AAAA counsel, and the following executives:

John Hymes, Carl M. Stanton, Lord & Thomas; Frederic W. Wile Jr., Joseph A. Moran, Ben Larson, Carol Irwin, Young & Rubicam; Gerald Glicksman, David Glicksman, Glicksman Advertis-ing; A. K. Swansdown Discs

IGLEHEART BROS., subsidiary of General Foods Corp., New York, on April 5 will start a campaign for Swansdown Family Flour, using recorded versions of the quarter-hour program on NBC featuring songs by The Moylan Sisters. The transcriptions will be placed on a group of stations on the West Coast and in the Midwest and South areas, according to Young & Rubicam, New York, agency in charge, but no further details are available.

Studebaker Series

STUDEBAKER Corp., South Bend (service), is sponsoring Eric Seva-reid, four-weekly news program on two CBS stations (WABC, New York; WJSV, Washington) Mondav. Wednesday and Friday, 6:10-6:15 p.m. and Saturday, 12-12:15 p.m. Account is handled by Roche, Williams & Cunnyngham, Chicago.

John Baker to OFF

JOHN C. BAKER, who formerly handled the Dinnerbell and Schooltime programs on WLS, Chicago, has been appointed assistant to William B. Lewis, assistant director of the Office of Facts & Figures, assuming the post March 16. Under Mr. Lewis, former CBS program vice-president, Mr. Baker will work with the radio, graphic arts, motion picture, advertising and program coordination divisions of OFF, all of which come within Mr. Lewis' jurisdiction as assistant OFF director under Archibald MacLeish. Until last week Mr. Baker was on the information staff of the Dept. of Agriculture under Morse Salisbury, having formerly served in its radio section.

WILSON TO DIRECT SCRIPTS FOR OFF

FRANK WILSON, talent chief and script editor of Lord & Thomas, New York, on March 17 will join the radio division of the Office of Facts & Figures in Washington as script editor, working under William B. Lewis, radio director, and Douglas Meservey, his assistant. On March 16 Alvin Josephy Jr., assistant to Dave Driscoll as special events director of WOR, New York, also joins the OFF radio staff as time clearance officer.

The appointments are the latest in a series not yet completed, which will also include a station relations director. Last week Seymour Morris, account executive of Compton Adv., New York, reported for duty as advertising agency and network liaison [BROADCASTING, March of the complete o

The OFF radio chiefs have now completed their series of conferences with agency and radio committees and Government radio ininformation chiefs, and are now working on their proposed "priority" lists covering Government announcements, transcriptions and programs, which will be made available to all stations in early April.

Army Spokesman Slated On Hookup of Stations

NEXT of the "closed circuit" and off-the-record talks to broadcasters, carried on combined network lines but not for broadcast, will be the 1:45-2 p.m. (EWT) period on Saturday, March 28, when a highranking Army officer will speak. Last Saturday the third of the series brought Capt. Leland P. Lovette, assistant director of public relations of the Navy, before the microphone in Washington to address gatherings of broadcasters in the studios, giving them background information to assist them in handling the Government's war news.

He was the third high Government official to appear, the others having been Byron Price, Director of Censorship, and Archibald MacLeish, chief of the Office of Facts & Figures. Station managers are asked to bring their staffs into the studios to hear the talks, and also to invite executives of local and nearby independent stations who are not linked into the network circuits.

War News Center Hinted For U. S.

Supreme Office May Govern All Wartime Information

A SORT of superstructure over the various information divisions of the Government's war agencies, with the probability that it will be headed by Archibald MacLeish, Librarian of Congress and director of the Office of Facts & Figures, last week was reported to be under consideration by the Administra-

It may be called the War Information Administration, and it may absorb the present information services of the Army and Navy, the Office for Emergency Management, the Maritime Commission, the OFF and perhaps others. It would be fashioned after the British Ministry of Information, according to the reports, and there is a possibility its chief will be given cabinet status.

No Censorship Change

While the name of Byron Price, Director of Censorship, has been mentioned in connection with the new service, it was said that the Office of Censorship would not be involved in the shifts. Nor is any change contemplated in the present method of voluntary self-censorship by the radio and press.

Also mentioned as a possible choice to head the new agency is Lowell Mellett, now director of the Office of Government Reports.

Whether the War Information Administration would absorb the present press-radio staffs of the various wartime agencies, was a subject of conjecture. Just how the OFF, already designated as the clearing house for Government information, would fit into the new setup was also uncertain. Mr. Mac-Leish has been given more and more duties in recent weeks, particularly the task of scrutinizing speeches by cabinet officers and other war bureau chiefs before their delivery.

EVERGREEN HOOKUP FORMED ON COAST

ing Assn. on a non-profit basis.
Postal Telegraph Lines have been leased from 6 p.m. to 8 a.m., daily. An exchange program arrangement with the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. also has been entered. Permission to feed programs to Canada is being sought from the FCC.

"Make it in talk of PEOPLE," said Nesmith

IN THE SMOKING compartment of a New Haven train recently we struck up a conversation with an agencyman named Nesmith* who's a sort of friend of ours. That is, he's bought WOR once or twice and told us afterward that it did a job.

"Look here," he said, as the train glided out of Darien, "I kind of go for this new way you're dishing out audience stuff. You know, the 'Whatchamacallit' thing . . ."

"You mean the 'WOR Continuing Study of Radio Listening'?"

"Yeah. You see, it's eased up my job a bit. Take the case of that WOR show I bought called 'Here's Morgan'. I'm a real Morgan fan. Listen to the guy every night. Maybe I let my enthusiasm run away with me, but I think he's funny . . ."

"You certainly convinced the 'Barry Beer' people, all right!"

"Not at first, I didn't. Old man Barry gave me a cold stare when I recommended the show. Said, in fact, 'That Morgan's a smart aleck. Just a zany. Doesn't get the beer drinkers.' Well, you know the rest. You gave me that 'WOR Continuing Study' proof which was based on personal interviews with all kinds of listeners in all kinds of homes. You showed he's not just a smarty's entertainer by a long shot."

"It kind of surprised a lot of people."

"Well, it surprised the old man, I tell you! First off, he wouldn't even listen to me. Said, 'Keep away from me, Charlie, with that number stuff.' I said, 'This isn't just arithmetic, Mr. Barry. This is what people in the homes you want think.'"

"Yes, WOR thinks it's kicked the blue sky out of audience checking," we said to Nesmith.

"Well, you just make it in talk of PEOPLE—isn't that all?" pointed out Nesmith. "All kinds of people, I mean?"

Yes, that's all the "WOR Continuing Study of Radio Listening" is—but, on a continuing month-to-month basis. The first personal interview radio circulation study of its kind, we believe, ever conducted in such a manner by any station anywhere.

These findings are not for the exclusive use of WOR and its sponsors. They are—with certain confidential restrictions—available to all advertisers and agencies. Their purpose, obviously, is to give our present and prospective sponsors a greater profit for their radio dollar.

* Actually, his name begins with "F".

First Census Reports on Radio Homes Made Available

TWO MORE Bureau of Census reports tabulating radio homes, among other data, by States and counties were released last week, covering New Hampshire and Vermont, and appearing under the title Housing, Second Series, General Characteristics. They disclosed 90% of the homes in New Hampshire with radios, 92% of those in Vermont.

Because the reports also show the number of occupied dwelling units from which answers to the radio inquiry, made as part of the 1940 decennial census of population, were not obtained, the NAB Statistical Dept., under Paul F. Peter, has projected forward the total figures by counties for use as official industry estimates. It is understood Mr. Peter's method of projection has been approved by the Census Bureau, which recognizes that the radio figures are incomplete due to the failure of some replies.

The total units and percentage columns (first two) in the tabulations herewith give the figures as reported in the Census bulletins; the remaining figures are the NAB projections, and may be used as official BROADCASTING published the first figures to be released in its issue of Feb. 23, covering Nevada (Continued on page 48)

BLUE NETWORK station managers and officials on whose stations the Ontario government starts its Ontario Show March 20, were guests at a promotion luncheon and dinner at Toronto March 5. Promotion plans were outlined by Don Henshaw, timebuyer of Walsh Adv. Co., which placed the account on 50 Blue stations, and Doug Oliver, director of the Ontario Travel & Publicity Bureau. Large promotion books were inscribed to each station manager present.

At the formal dinner, presided over by Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn, the Lieutenant-Governor was present as the King's personal representative, as well as the American Consul in Toronto, members of the Ontario cabinet, Madeleine Carroll, guest star on the program, and Col. Lemuel Q. Stoopnagle, m.c. At the reception prior to the banquet American station men were introduced to the Ontario Premier and the guest stars. Carremier and the guest stars. Canadian Broadcasting Corp. was represented by a number of top ranking executives headed by Gladstone Murray, CBC general manager.

American broadcasters also met other Canadian broadcasters, including Henry Gooderham, CKCL, Toronto; Lloyd Moore, CFRB, Toronto; H. G. Walker, CBL, Toronto; Glen Bannerman, president of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters. A reception was held later by the Blue Network for the station managers and Ontario Government officials.

Blue Heads Feted Shafto Elected Member of NAB Board At Ontario Session As Fourth District Meets at Roanoke

G. RICHARD SHAFTO, president and general manager of WIS, Columbia, S. C., was elected NAB director for the 4th district at a meeting of twoscore broadcasters in that area March 7 at Roanoke, Va. He succeeds, for a twoyear term, John A. Kennedy, president of WCHS, Charleston, and the West Virginia Network, who is serving as chairman of War Production Board activities in West Virginia, and who was not a candidate for another term.

Highlighting the all-day session was the adoption of a resolution asking the NAB Board of Directors to appoint a committee to study the management structure and finances of the NAB, looking toward "greater unity, economy and efficiency". This was the first step in the direction of long-rumored NAB reorganization [see article on page 9]. Mr. Shafto, an engineer who turned to station management, has been identified with WIS since 1932. He also is vice-president of WCSC, Charleston. He was elected president of WIS in 1938, in addition to his duties as general man-

Censorship to Continue

The 4th district session, comprising NAB members in North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia, also adopted resolutions expressing appreciation to Mr. Kennedy for his service as NAB director and one wholeheartedly supporting Broadcast Music Inc.

J. Harold Ryan, assistant director of censorship in charge of radio, and general manager of the Fort Industry Co. stations, addressed the district on censorship activities and also participated in the sessions as a delegate. WWVA, Wheeling, and WMMN, Fairmont, two of the Fort Industry stations, are 4th district members. Mr. Ryan told the meeting that censorship of both radio and press is expected to remain on a voluntary basis for the duration, but that the day after the termination of the war he expected censorship activities to cease.

The meeting also was addressed by NAB President Neville Miller and John Shepard 3d, chairman of Broadcasters' Victory Council, the latter in an off-the-record talk. Mr. Miller reviewed current activities in Washington and steps being taken, primarily through the Office of Facts & Figures, to alleviate difficulties occasioned by widespread demands for time from various agencies. He said he expected a coordinated plan for funneling of Government programs to be developed shortly.

Forecasts War Impact

Mr. Kennedy pointed out that the impact of the war probably will be felt by radio next fall. He advised broadcasters not to "kid yourselves" about the outlook. For the last year Mr. Kennedy has been directing War Production Board activities in West Virginia, devoting practically all of his time to the Government work.

The music copyright situation was covered by representatives of performing rights societies, save ASCAP. John G. Paine, ASCAP general manager, notified Mr. Kennedy he would be unable to attend the session but had designated an alternate, who failed to arrive prior to adjournment. Speakers on copyright were Carl Haverlin, station relations director of Broadcast Music Inc., and Leonard D. Callahan, general counsel of SESAC.

In an impassioned plea for industry support, Mr. Haverlin pointed out that BMI is budgeted for about $1,100,000 during the ensuing year. While approximately 75% of the industry volume already has signified renewal of BMI contracts for the eight-year term, representing approximately $800,-000 of this budget, he pointed out that the industry-owned music pool has no "cushion" and that virtually 100% enrollment is necessary to maintain the organization to compete effectively with ASCAP.

Urges BMI Performance

The demise of BMI, through lack of industry support, would result immediate demands from ASCAP for greater tribute, he predicted. Several provisions in the new ASCAP contracts, notably the definition of what constitutes "nondramatic usage" of works, would open the way for interpretation of the contract with possible resultant demands for increased radio revenue, he predicted.

ASCAP sought $9,000,000 from radio under its first contract proffers, he said. In 1940 it received about $5,100,000. Under its present contracts, he said, it stands to receive $3,600,000. He pointed out that as against 5% of receipts paid ASCAP under former contracts, the maximum the industry can pay both to ASCAP and BMI, under existing contracts, is 3.27% for any one station.

Mr. Haverlin asked not only for station renewals but for performance of qualified BMI tunes. He cited "plugging" activities of ASCAP publishers in this regard.

Mr. Callahan, supporting the observations of Mr. Haverlin, declared that there are many provisions of the ASCAP contract through which you can "drive a wagon sideways". Interpretations of what constitute station facilities, he said, might open the way for increased demands from ASCAP.

Declaring radio is SESAC's best customer, he said his organization is regularly adding to its available works, but has not increased its fees. He warned against "unscrupulous attorneys" who now are beginning to threaten stations with purported infringement actions. After pointing to devices used to mislead public performers, Mr.

Radio Priority, Freeze Order Not Strict Enough, Says Fly

War Experience May Require More Severe Orders; Industry War Orders Exceed 2 Billion Dollars

FEAR that priority rulings on radio materials, including the "freeze" order pertaining to broadcast equipment, may not be strict enough in the light of war needs was expressed by FCC-DCB Chairman James Lawrence Fly at his press conference last Monday.

Indicating that more stringent priorities rules may be put into effect as the war progresses, Mr. Fly said, "At every turn we are reminded of the fact that we must consider how many Germans or Japs can be eliminated with a given amount of material".

This observation was made at a discussion centering around the War Production Board order of March 7 which will stop manufacture of civilian receiving sets on April 22 in preparation for the full conversion of 55 manufacturers to wartime production.

Some Production Allowed

The WPB order will permit the manufacturers to complete sets begun before April 22 if not more than $500 worth of materials are used. The order excludes the cost of wooden cabinets for sets.

Companies which employed approximately 30,000 persons and produced more than 13,000,000 sets will be affected by the order. Other statistics show these companies did a $240,000,000 business in 1941, used 2,100 tons of aluminum, 10,500 tons of copper, 280 tons of nickel and 70,000 tons of steel.

The 55 companies included in the order already have $500,000,-000 in military orders, the WPB said, and an equal amount in orders is held by companies not normally engaged in civilian production. Total orders will probably aggregate $2,000,000,000.

Smaller companies, which feared great hardships under the conversion plan, have been given a new lease on life with the assurance by the WPB that a subcontracting plan has been worked out to facilitate the conversion of smaller manufacturers. Under the plan a company which is not a "prime" contractor will be assigned to a large contract holder to form a series of "family production groups".

It was estimated by the WPB that production of home radios before the conversion order goes into effect will be about 3,000,000. This will increase the number of civilian sets in the country to about 60,000,000.

Replacements Doubtful

However, a turnabout on the March 7 freeze order, with specific reference to the exemption clause on manufacturing of replacement and repair parts, was suggested at the WPB last week.

Pointing to critical shortages of materials used in the manufacture of parts and tubes, especially to nickel, aluminum and mica, WPB officials said that it is doubtful that even a replacement parts program can be carried on if present conditions continue.

The WPB said that the rapid progress of all industries to all-out war effort may make it necessary to revoke exemptions to orders from time to time.

It was also hinted that more stringent curtailment of materials for the entire broadcasting picture may be found necessary and further freeze orders may have to be issued before the April 22 date for conversion of the industry.

It must be remembered, one official said, that "every allocation of materials to an industry not strictly engaged in a wartime operation will take away materials from tanks, planes and guns." Every effort will be made, it was said, to keep every radio in good repair, but it was added that the WPB feels a saturation point has been reached in the number of radios in the country.

The WPB, with regard to the distribution of present sets in the country, said it would not be going too far afield to say that some time in the future, while the war continues, it may be necessary to register every radio set in the United States to bring about a more equitable distribution of receivers. observation was made that some homes have more than one good set and extras could be used for homes having none.

Radio Sets Adequate

At his press conference Monday Chairman Fly said that he did not feel that the WPB order would have much effect on the standard broadcast picture, pointing out that the number of sets now in use, plus those on retailers' shelves and the number still to be manufactured, would be adequate for the country's needs. No move has been made to freeze retail stocks of sets.

Hope was expressed by Mr. Fly that the supply of replacement parts for civilian sets would be found adequate for the duration of the war but he admitted the possibility that serious problems in this regard may have to be met later.

Though no problem is foreseen in the standard broadcast picture, Mr. Fly indicated that the unstabilized condition of FM and television may bring added burdens to these fields when the WPB order goes into effect. He expressed praise for the work being done by RCA in instructing civilian defense via television and added that he felt the project would assist in stabilizing television since it is now "tapping a new audience and has already reached more than 50,000 people in the New York area by these defense courses."

Freeze Order

Text of the WPB order issued March 7 follows:

March 7 follows:

(1) "Manufacturer" means any person who puts into production any set.
(2) All the definitions contained in paragraph (a) of Limitation Order L-44 shall apply to this Order.
(b) Prohibition of Production of Sets after April 28, 1942. Effective April 23, 1942. no manufacturer shall put into production and contains and 1942, no manufacturer shall put into production any sets.

(c) Limit on Use of Materials. From the effective date of this Order, no Manufacturer shall use in any manner in the production of sets more than $500 worth of materials and parts obtained under contracts or orders executed or placed after February 11, 1942, except that nothing in this paragraph shall impose any limit or restrictions on the use of wooden cabinets restrictions on the use of wooden cabinets or materials for making such cabinets. (d) Appeal Any Manufacturer who considers that relief from the specific provisions of this Order will affirmatively facilitate his program of conversion from civilian to war work. may apply for relief by addressing a letter to the War Production Board, Washington, D. C. Ref. L-44-a, setting forth the pertinent facts and the reasons why he considers he is entitled to relief. The Director of Industry Operations may therenpon take such action as he deems appropriate.

(e) Effective Date. This Order shall take effect on the date of its issuance, and shall continue in effect until revoked.

SHARPLY cutting off and tapering down production of civilian receivers, manufacturers are more than a month ahead of the deadline set by the War Production Board for conversion to war production.

A recent survey conducted by the Wall Street Journal indicates set manufacturers will have converted their facilities to war production well before the mid-June deadline. The Journal reports that "dismantled production lines and machines are now a familiar scene to the radio industry". The report continues: "Many a production line has turned out its last civilian set and many a machine has been unbolted from the floor and placed in storage for the duration".

Big Firms Ready

Among the larger set manufacturers included in the survey, RCA, which was 80% converted in February, is expected to run its last set off the production line and be fully converted by March 23. Westinghouse is already 100% within the demands of WPB [BROADCAST-ING, Feb. 23]. In February the company moved its radio facilities to Baltimore to be near Washington and at that time was 98.6% on war production with the balance of the work going for defense pur-

General Electric, which in late February was reported to be 80% converted, is now devoting 95% of its efforts to war work. Philco Corp. is expected to stop all civilian production by April 20 and reports that its foremen and other key production men are being trained for all-out war effort.

Pilot Radio Corp., now 50% converted, expects to be in the 100% class by April 22 as does Emerson Radio & Phonograph Co., now doing 15% to 20% war work. April 30 is the date set by Farnsworth Television & Radio Corp. for its full conversion and at the latest the company expects to be out of civilian production by the end of May.

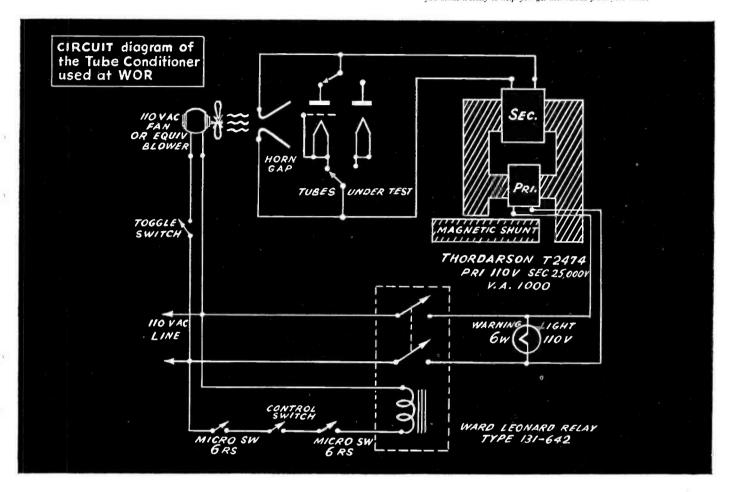

Backlog of Stromberg-Carlson in early February was 90% war material and total conversion is expected shortly.

Inventory losses will be felt by the receiver companies in the converting process as some materials and parts already purchased for civilian sets cannot be adapted to the war program. However, some relief will result from the sale of the parts for replacement and other purposes. The shut-down on automobile production also exacted a hardship on set manufacturers and

How to build an inexpensive Tube Conditioner

*Western Electric does not make this unit or any of its parts. We tell you about it solely to help you get hest results from your tubes.

Adds many hours to tube life . . . keeps spares in perfect shape

With vacuum tubes no longer easy to get, this tube conditioning unit is the answer to every engineer's prayer. Designed by Bell Labs, Western Electric and WOR, it has proved its great value in actual use.

Save that tube!

Here's an example of what it can do for used tubes. After 5,000 hours, one of WOR's 342A tubes showed a tendency to become gaseous. There occurred a series of flash-arcs that would ordinarily mean discarding the tube. Instead, the tube was hardened for service in 12 minutes—reinstated—and went gaily on giving perfect service for over 4,000 hours more!

This same unit also enables you to keep spares as good as the day Western Electric made them, no matter how long they've stood on your shelf. It's good for high and low powered tubes, air cooled or water cooled, amplifiers or rectifiers.

Too good to pass up

You can build this unit for less than $100

complete—and figure on getting your investment back in tube savings in less than six months.

Warns Against Blackout Of Advertising for Duration

USE OF RADIO in Latin America by United States advertisers, particularly the sponsorship of news broadcasts on local stations, is

Mr. Francisco

"one of the most valuable of all contributions to better understanding between the United States and the other American Republics," Don Francisco, director of the radio division, Office of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs (Rockefeller Committee), declared last Tuesday.

Mr. Rockefeller addressed a meeting sponsored jointly by the Export Managers Club of New York and the Export Advertising Assn. at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York.

U. S. Goods Active

Citing a recent survey of American advertising in Latin America, which showed that nearly half the linage in newspapers and magazines was devoted to products of United States origin, Mr. Francisco urged continuation or increase of advertising in all Latin American media as a practical means of aiding the war effort and the Good Neighbor policy.

Direct selling is not necessary, he said, but institutional copy, explaining why certain goods are no longer being shipped south from the United States because of war priorities, can in itself be of great value.

"The unique role that radio plays as a vehicle for reaching great masses of people has riveted our attention on broadcasting as one of the most potent weapons in our psychological arsenal," Mr. Rockefeller said. "We are directing our efforts southward—but at the same time we are not overlooking the need for creating a better understanding of the other Americas here in our own country.

"In reaching out for Latin American racio audiences, we have at our disposal five channels of distribution. We seek to use all of them to the fullest extent.

"Shortwave programs are being broadcast over the nation's 11 international stations; outstanding radio attractions are being rebroadcast over local stations through the cooperation of the newly formed international networks; programs are being transmitted point-to-point for pickup by local stations; transcriptions are being made available to local stations; and American advertisers and local American organizations in the other Republics are being encouraged to use their local station facilities.

"During the past year shortwave power has been stepped up appreciably. Average station power has been increased from 21 to 52 kw. Shortwave broadcasts directed to Latin America now total 54 hours a day. Fifteen hours a day are devoted to newscasts. The number of news programs sent out to Central and South America has been increased from 39 to 63 a day during the past year.

"Since newspapers in Latin America do not carry shortwave program listings, we publish program schedules and mail them weekly to set owners. In short, everything possible is being done to improve our shortwave broadcasting facilities and to increase the size of the listening audience. The increasing importance of shortwave radio as an advertising medium is steadily being emphasized.

"It remains our firm conviction, however, that in order to tap the fullest potentialities of radio listening, emphasis must be placed on local stations. We are hitting at this objective with every means at our disposal.

Hearing the President

"The two major inter-American networks—one with 76 affiliates, the other with 122—make available for retransmission through local Latin American stations, programs that originate in the United States. Listeners in the other republics hear broadcasts by famous American personalities. Distinguished visitors address southern audiences with messages that vitalize the Good Neighbor Policy. From Hollywood the great figures of the screen lend color and glamour to the wellrounded radio fare.

"Whenever the President addresses the nation his words are carried by point-to-point facilities to the other republics for rebroadcast by local stations. The Feb. 23

Latin Shortwave Sets Await Action by WPB

NO ACTION had been taken last week by the War Production Board on the allocation of materials for the 800,000 shortwave receivers requested by Nelson Rockefeller, Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, who desires the receivers to be distributed in South American countries to receive broadcasts directed from this country.

rected from this country.

It was stated by WPB officials that the matter is being given intensive study but so far is still "up in the air." It was added that if materials are allocated for the project the receivers will be of special lightweight design.

Increased support for Rockefeler's idea has been reported from the State Department, inspired by the recent United Nation's conferences at Rio de Janeiro. The WPB, State Department, Office of Price Administration, the Rockefeller organization and other governmental agencies are reported to be in attendance at conferences on the Latin-American project.

report on the war was picked up by 211 stations, a new high for Latin American distribution of an American broadcast.

"In addition to shortwave and inter-American networks, the Coordinator's office is busily engaged in other aspects of local broadcasting. On the work schedule are 52 transcribed programs in Spanish and the same number in Portuguese. These range from human interest material, such as Robert L. Ripley's Latin American edition of Believe It or Not to American folk songs and dramatizations of the progress of the war effort. Hundreds of other programs will be put on records throughout the year, and these will be shipped southward for use by local stations.

"Local talent is also being used for programs devoted to inter-American friendship that are sponsored by local organizations in Chile, Uruguay, Peru and Mexico. For nearly a year we have been sending a daily 15-minute news program to stations in Argentina, Uruguay and Bolivia. We are bringing four prominent Brazilians here this month to start a series of daily programs of news comment. These will be sent to Rio by point-to-point facilities for rebroadcast over an extensive Brazilian network. Similar efforts will be extended elsewhere.

"I come now to what is one of the most valuable of all contributions to better understanding between the United States and the other American Republics—the sponsorship of local programs, particularly news or informative broadcasts, by American advertisers. The current roster of American sponsors includes many names which are bywords in the American home—and which have won widespread consumer acceptance throughout the Americas.

Industry Helps

"This high degree of participation in the inter-American program on the part of private industry is especially gratifying because it strikes two key objectives—first, it reflects the commercial interrelationship of the Americas; and second, it provides still another realistic approach to the "know your neighbor" doctrine.

"In surveying the role of private enterprise in this vital phase of our war effort, the broad opportunity for still more local sponsors, especially of news programs, immediately suggests itself. We have no better weapon with which to defeat our enemies' fantastic lies, than the simple, unvarnished truth.

"And this truth manifests itself most powerfully in the superb, objective news coverage furnished by our great press associations. This news enjoys the confidence of the vast majority of Latin Americans. More than 300 leading newspapers throughout the other republics depend on the services of Associated Press, United Press, International News, and Trans-Radio News. In addition, 150 local radio stations are now broadcasting either AP or UP news. The number is growing steadily.

"What better way to spread the gospel of free people than for American business to make available to our southern neighbors news that is not Goebbelized...truth... the very essence of the ideals for which we wage war?

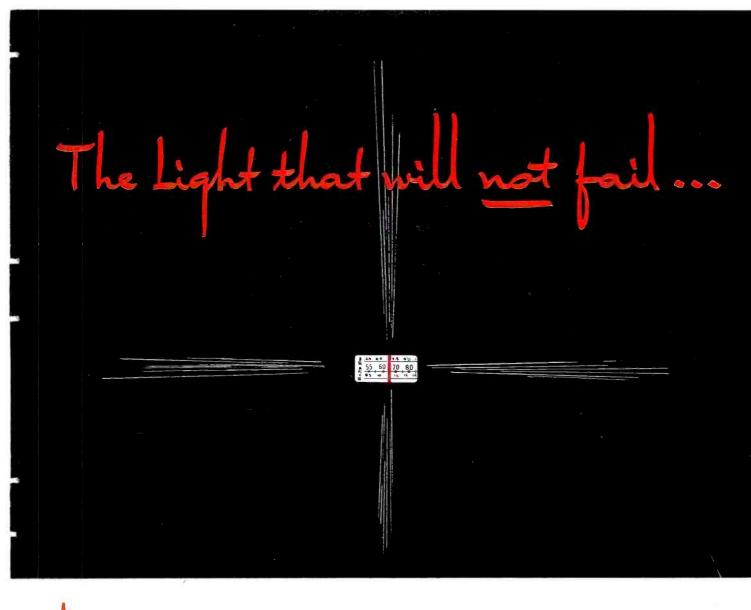

"Those of us who have not yet been summoned to the front line of battle find ourselves searching inwardly for an answer to the question: "What more can I do to help win the war?" For expert advertisers, this reply springs forward: Enlist your strength in the psychological corps. Help our neighbors of the other American republics maintain the freedom of thought, freedom of spirit, freedom to know the truth that has been blotted out by Avis chicapens, in other lands by Axis chicanery in other lands.

At every moment, through cold dawn and blackest night, in every nook and corner, the light that is Radio comes to the people of America.

It comes to the fighting men in the foxholes, to the workers in the assembly lines, to teachers and pupils in quiet classrooms, to rookies in khaki, to the women whose courage sings in sadness. It comes to farmers, riveters, storekeepers, scientists, salesmen, firemen, industrialists, shoemakers.

Wherever it falls, there is light.

In this hour, American Radio is equal to its great responsibility.

Auto Club in Detroit Advertises Despite War

DESPITE conversion to wartime work of the entire automotive industry, the Automobile Club of Michigan has signed with WWJ, Detroit, for broadcasting of all U of Michigan football games next fall, according to an announcement by Richard Harfst, ACM general manager.

The contract will also call for spot announcements following all Detroit Tiger American League games this summer. Ty Tyson, assisted by Paul Williams, will give the play-by-play of the football games.

games.

Mr. Harfst, in announcing the contract, said that the ACM schedule will not be institutional but will be conducted on the basis of "Keep" Em Going," stressing service and insurance. The ACM, with a membership of 180,000, is one of the largest organizations of its kind.

schedules . . . when they plan their radio promotion in terms of programs that promote Hemisphere good will. Consistent advertising—more sponsors—more news—more Good Neighbor commercials. These are the flesh and blood of our kind of psychological warfare.

Must Maintain Schedules

"I realize full well that the hardships imposed on American exporters make it difficult, if not impossible, for some to maintain their advertising schedules. But there are many American concerns whose plants are geared fully to war production. Their income has not been materially affected. In many cases it has increased. Such companies have an unique opportunity to contribute effectively on the psychological front.

"The figures on American advertising in Latin America, gathered by your association a few weeks ago, emphasize the need for maintaining promotional schedules. An analysis covering 64 of the must important Latin American newspapers and magazines showed that more than 43% of the linage was devoted to products of United States origin. You drew from these figures a sober conclusion—the loss of revenue represented by the cessation of U.S. advertising would mean the difference between operating at a profit and operating at a loss for many of these friendly publications. The same thing is true of radio stations.

"The implications of such a catastrophe were summed up by one of your members, Walter Bomer, of the Bristol-Myers Co., who declared:

"'The worst sufferers would be the newspapers, the magazines, the radio stations—friendly media for the distribution of information to the masses. Since the war they are more than ever dependent on us. Only from the U. S. and Canada can they today buy their supplies of printing papers, foundry metal, type, broadcasting equipment, replacement parts, and other essential supplies. Practically all other sources of these basic needs are closed to them. Here again is illustrated the vital role that U. S. advertising plays in helping to maintain these friendly media.'

"Many an advertiser, facing the realities of materials shortages and transportation difficulties, asks: 'I would like to keep on advertising. It would keep my name before my customers. But I have no merchandise to sell—what can I say in my copy?'

Building Confidence

"Domestic advertisers have met and solved the same problem. They are talking in terms of conservation. They are dramatizing their service story. They are telling their customers, in the frankest terms why business as usual is out. Thereby they are building confidence in our ability to carry through our war asignment to a successful conclusion. And they are sowing seeds of goodwill for the resumption of normal business when the war ends.

"You can bring no more valuable advertising message to your Latin American customers than to explain why shortages exist. Our neighbors must be told that here in the United States we, too, are facing the same problems. They must understand that dislocations are due not to any lessening of effort on our part, or to an inability to cope with the emergency, but to our determination to subjugate everything else to the main job of turning out the materials that will spell victory.

"These emergency copy themes can be as potent in your export advertising as in your domestic. They bring understanding. They play a vital role in bolstering civilian morale. They strengthen confidence in the future.

"In discussing the inter-American program in terms of your own advertising efforts, I speak to you not as a theorist or as one unacquainted with the elements of merchandising. I know full well the conflict that ensues when either advertising manager or agency present plans and schedules when merchandise is not available . . . when delivery schedules are shot . . . when packaging difficulties conspire to upset orderly marketing.

"And yet, if we are fighting to insure a future in which competitive enterprise will flourish, in which we can resume our places in the front line of commerce, can we afford to toss goodwill into the discard? Can we allow trademark recognition and brand preference to fall by default? Can we blackout advertising for the duration?"

WALTER McCREERY

INSISTING he is not a supersalesman, Walter K. McCreery, competent general manager and principal timebuyer of Allied Adv. Agencies, Los Angeles, operates on a reason-why basis rather than selling a "pound of air". He believes in the closest cooperation between agency and station in servicing the sponsor.

His present association was effected in late 1936, following some ten years sales experience with Southern California radio stations as well as publicity work and a brief period during which he operated his own agency.

Born in Los Angeles July 15, 1900, he attended Harvard Military Academy and Manual Arts High School, that city. In the Spring of 1918, Walter gained a year's additional training in advertising, bookkeeping, and commercial law at Los Angeles Business College, later becoming assistant advertising manager of Bledsoe Furniture Co., San Diego, Cal. Then, at his father's suggestion, he became interested in the oil industry and went to Bridgeport, Texas, in 1921, where an opportunity boom was under way. Engaged in building refineries, market research and sales, the youth returned to Los Angeles long enough to marry, on Christmas Eve, his high school sweetheart, Edna Gane. Immediately afterwards he took his bride back to Texas. They have a 16-year-old daughter, Elizabeth Ann.

Los Angeles again became his home in 1925. He worked as manager of a radio supply store. Through contacts gained there, he became associated with the sales department of KMTR, Hollywood. Shortly afterwards he went to KGFJ as manager, remaining there for 1½ years.

Then he joined KNRC. When that station's call letters were changed to KTM (now KECA), through shift in ownership, he continued as commercial manager until 1930. Walter spent the next year as commercial manager for the dual management of KMTR and

WOV 1280 Club Holds Defense Stamp Festival

TO CELEBRATE the first anniversary of the 1280 Club, popular record program on WOV, New York, Alan Courtney, the show's n.c., was host last Wednesday night at a U. S. Defense Stamp Party in Mecca Temple, New York. The estimated attendance of some 12,000 persons, including American, British, Canadian and Australian soldiers, sailors, 100 models, and well-known radio talent, listened to the regular Courtney broadcast, 6-9 p.m., while the entire evening until midnight was broadcast on WOV.

Leading orchestras and singers entertained at the party, admission to which was the purchase of defense stamps of any price.

On WOV for just a year, the 1280 Club has ten sponsors, including Aronson-Caplin Co. (underwear); Chas. Gulden Inc. (Mustard); Bridges' Apparel Shop; National Schools, Fels-Naphtha; Paramount Pictures; Bulova Watch; National Shoe Stores; Barney's Clothes; Dioxygen Face Cream.

it is reported that companies are holding substantial inventories of automobile radios on their shelves.

Also adding to the expense of conversion is the addition of new equipment and inventory, war radio equipment being of different construction than civilian sets.

In the labor picture, WPB previously has pointed out that since most of the larger manufacturers are already converted to war production there will be no serious labor problem. However, it was admitted difficulties may arise with change-over by small manufacturers since it is more difficult for them to make a quick conversion with the result that they cannot immediately obtain war work. Careful consideration of these problems was promised by the WPB who stated that everything possible would be done to avoid extreme hardships being placed on the smaller manufacturers [BROAD-CASTING, Feb. 23].

15-&-2% Stew

WITH UNRELENTING vigor, the American Assn. of Advertising Agencies is pressing its crusade for recognition of the 2% cash discount by the broadcasting industry. Admitting there may be justification from the agency end for the cash discount, it nevertheless is apparent that the pressure couldn't be more untimely.

If applied horizontally, how much would that cast discount cost? As we figure it, in the neighborhood of $3,500,000! That's about 2% of the industry's net time sales in 1941, which aggregated $176,280,000. But it's even worse than that because the rebate would come off the top, cutting into station net. It might amount to as much as 15 or 20% when figured in ratio to net return.

All this in the face of rapidly increasing costs for both networks and stations, and with corresponding diminishing returns, even assuming that business remains at its present level. Then there's increased taxation and less time to sell because of essential Government war programs.

Radio's overall rate structure wasn't established to absorb the 2% cash discount. According to recent industry surveys, fewer than 20% of the stations now allow it. At this writing, none of the nationwide networks recognize it. There are signs of capitulation, however. Once one network yields, the others may be expected to follow. Then it will spread like wildfire through the stations for obvious competitive reasons.

The cash discount is one of radio's perennials. True, the bulk of newspapers and magazines recognize it, but radio, on an industrywide basis, never has. The reason for it, according to the AAAA, is to enable the agency to collect from the advertiser and, secondarily, to enable the medium to collect from the agency. No one has suggested that the agency be penalized by, say, 2% (out of its 15% commission) if it doesn't pay for facilities by the 10th of the month. When one sells a commodity or service, he obviously expects to be paid, and shouldn't be given a bonus because he has met that obligation. If the rate structure is out of kilter, then adjustments should be made, upward or downward, in rates and frequency discounts-not in commissions or rehates.

Consider this analogy. The industry fought the ASCAP-copyright battle for a dozen years on principle as well as dollars. It finally licked the flat 5%-of-receipts tribute, and as a result of the campaign the industry, for all of its music requirements, will pay in the neighborhood of 3% of receipts. Hence a 2% saving. ASCAP will get only about $3,600,000 in 1942, as against some $5,100,000 in 1940. All that gain, after more than a decade of bitter battle, would be tossed overboard by yielding to the cash discount demand.

There are many other arguments pro and con over this irrepressible issue. With conditions so uncertain, and with all costs on the upgrade, it should be obvious to client, agency and medium that this is no time to resurrect the controversy. Reopening of rate structures on an industry-wide basis might well result in horizontal rate increases, to absorb increased costs, and commensurate with radio's tremendously accelerated circulation by virtue of warlistening and expanded coverage.

At the moment, the pressure is on the networks to pay the 2%. Affiliates, it seems to us, should let their network headquarters know their pleasure in this matter.

Self-Censorship

PRAISE from the censors is praise indeed, for censorship is one of the most delicate problems of the war. So far not one word of criticism has yet been voiced by the Office of Censorship against the wartime broadcasters; on the contrary, Byron Price, Director of Censorship, had nothing but good words for both the radio and publishing industries during his appearance on the MBS American Forum of the Air the other night.

Mistakes have been made, of course, but they were relatively slight and they were regarded as so unimportant that they could be corrected by direct contact and without any attendant publicity.

The radio audience's few self-appointed Gmen have raised some squawks, particularly with respect to some foreign-language programs—but these, when traced down, as FCC Chairman Fly reported, were found baseless.

Some commentators, airing opinions as distinguished from news, have aroused a certain amount of public and official ire; but there is no disposition to clamp down on opinion and criticism unless it plays fast_and loose with information which may give aid and comfort to the enemy.

Exactly two months have passed since the Wartime Code of Practices for Broadcasters

LISTING in condensed form the rates, circulation, closing and issuance dates for general, farm, mail order, direct selling, and trade magazines, also newspaper display and rotogravure sections, the 1942 Advertisers Rate & Data Guide—17th annual edition—has been published by the E. H. Brown Adv. Agency, Chicago. Also included are radio time rates and wattage of larger stations and principal networks plus complete classified ad information on all leading newspapers. The 52-page guide is available to advertisers without charge.

DISCUSSING the questions: Who is Interested in Children's Radio Programs?, What Makes the Problem So Complicated?, What Basic Purposes Should Children's Programs Serve?, By What Criteria Should Children's Programs Be Judged? and How Were These Criteria Developed?, a 24-page booklet, Criteria for Children's Radio Programs, written by Howard Rowland, I. Keith Tyler and Norman Woelfel, has been issued by the Federal Radio Education Committee with the cooperation of the U. S. Office of Education.

TWO MORE BOOKLETS in the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. series have been released. One, The CBC War Effort, explains wartime policy, various network services, censorship and information and other wartime programs. The second, Special Events, reviews radio scripts, reports of ceremonies, goodwill events, outstanding broadcasts over a five-year period, international goodwill events and work of CBC mobile units.

THE SYSTEM of American radio is dissected and what makes it tick analyzed in Who, What, Why Is Radio? by Robert J. Landry, radio editor of Variety [George W. Stewart Co., New York, $1.50]. He discusses the broadcasters, regulators, sponsors and pressure groups; critically surveys what is broadcast and how; and discourses on many of the vagaries of the industry.

was promulgated as a voluntary measure by the Office of Censorship, without a single instance of subversive activity through the nation's broadcasting stations and with nary a bit of "evidence of a deliberate attempt to sabotage this experiment in self-discipline", to use the words of Mr. Price.

It's a fine record so far and one that does credit to the broadcasting fraternity. But one major slip can cloud that record and the burden is upon the broadcasters, particularly the commentators and newscasters, to maintain the proper restraints. So far they have found the Office of Censorship, while sometimes slow because of the burden of work, generally sympathetic and wholly cooperative. Mr. Price, J. Harold Ryan, his radio aide, and John Sorrells, his press aide, are committed to the maintenance of free speech, free press and free radio even during these trying days. But they will-wield the big stick on instant notice if necessary.

Self-censorship is working so far. It will continue to work if the broadcasters will constantly bear the Code in mind and will always apply the test: "Is this information valuable to the enemy?" When in doubt, ask the censor—even if it means a time lag.

GEORGE LASKER

7 HEN you're talking about George Lasker, there's one thing in particular to be remembered beyond his success as a salesman, whether it be real estate or radio time, and as general manager of WORL, Boston. George is the gent who year after year kept at the job of making a kilocycle reading mean something to the general public, who with his 920 Club on WORL-using the station's 920 kc. frequency as the basis of a sales vehicle-started a programming idea that has spread to other stations all over the country.

George Lasker got his start as a showman early in life. He was born on Christmas Day, 43 years ago, in Newport, R. I. His family later moved to New York, and at the socalled "tender age" launched a moving picture career, working as a child actor at the old Crystal Film Studios. He claims he was not much of an actor, but "fooled the movie bosses for several years". appearing in some of the famed Pearl White thrillers. He carried leading roles in "Hearts and Flowers", "Hubby's Night Out" and others. Many of his old associates now are well-known Hollywood personali-

After completing his education in local New York high schools, George embarked on a real estate career as a broker in Woodside, Jackson Heights and Flushing, L. I., in New York. Many a New York radio man has a home in these areas right now. But when George first put out his real estate shingle in this Long Island region, he claims, the section was new and lifeless as a prairie compared with today-"You could shoot a cannon out there without hitting a single house", he says.

However, in a few years he developed the section into a very profitable undertaking, using newspapers as his means of advertising promotion. An enterprising radio salesman in those days once contacted George and broached the idea of using air time for real estate advertising. He got turned down flat, with Mr. Lasker terming radio "just a passing fancy".

The Black Thursday of 1929 caught George and his ambitious real estate development in a most disconcerting manner. For several years business went steadily downhill. So one day in 1931 Mr. Lasker was pounding the sidewalks of New York with 30 cents in his pants pocket, thinking of his wife and three children at home.

Leafing through a newspaper, he came across an advertisment for a radio salesman at WRNY, now WHN, New York. He answered the ad and entered radio. Two months later he transferred to WFAB, owned by Joe Lang and Paul Harron, who then also owned WPEN, Philadelphia. Messrs. Lang and Harron now are partners in WHOM, New York, and WIBG, Philadelphia.

Prodded by necessity, and consumed with genuine interest in this new business, George made an enviable sales record for the two stations during the next seven years.

In 1939 he transferred to WORL, Boston. Here he immediately put his 920 Club ideas to work, building local sales up the music way, employing the name band recording theme on a 10-hour basis-qualifying the feature as chief claimant for the title of America's longest daytime program.

Dignified old Boston took to these big doses of music the hard way. Many a week George thought his 920 Club might just pass away quietly. But intensive selling effort, backed by the good fortune of working for an owner who believed in his convictions, finally made the program catch on in a steady rise. Since it has enjoyed phenomenal success, both on the balance sheet and the listener's log. It is no secret

Meet the LADIES

RUTH MERRIAM WELLS

WHEN Ruth Merriam Wells came to WGAR, Cleveland, to take charge of home economics she brought with her an impressive background and flexibility of mind that makes her a stand-out personality in her field. Lending a light touch to her programs as froth to authoritative comment, Ruth has made herself a friendly neighbor and able counsellor to Northern Ohio women.

Ruth's preparation for her post will stand by itself. Graduating from Battle Creek Sanitarium School of Home Economics in 1917 she did graduate work at Wisconsin for two years and spent the next seven years as hospital dietitian. After receiving a B.S. degree at Columbia U she went to Chicago as the first Ann Page for the A & P midwest division. Then came an association with the Chicago Evening American for six months, Food Editor and Home Institute Director of the Cleveland News for five years and then to WGAR where she is the ladies' final word on food and home-making.

Keeping house for husband, Art Spaeth, drama critic of the Cleveland News and herding two dachshunds does not keep her from attending a lecture daily. There must be a fault somewhere but this was all that could be found: She collects antique ear-rings of which she has 63 pair.

-Advertisers by WIS-

BEATING checking services to the punch, WIS, Columbia, is now working a system of checking errors on commercial copy made by announcers and control operators. Immediately after an error is made an air mail letter is sent to the company affected.

G. Richard Shafto, WIS, manager, started the system and at the same time offered a prize schedule to announcers and operators making the fewest mistakes in a given month. "The desire of agencies and advertisers to promptly learn of operattisers to promptly learn of operating errors, as evidenced by their engagement of checking services, can be wholly and adequately fulfilled by the station," Mr. Shafto said. "Errors cannot be eliminated entirely", he added, "but they can be reported by the stations".

Mistakes included in the contest

Mistakes included in the contest rules are mispronunciations, un-due delay between introductions and selections, failure to go on or off on time, use of wrong announcement, incorrect scheduling or any other obvious faults.

Purely PROGRAMS

O PROVIDE a verbal map and eyewitness account of the war, WGN, Chicago, has lined up a "We Were There" brigade—persons who have first hand knowledge of the areas in the news, and who have consented to appear on short notice on any of the station's regularly scheduled newscasts. A reference file of these authorities on all points of the world has been compiled by WGN, which summons them when a special news story breaks. The experts, ex-residents of such places as Smolensk, Chunking, Bombay, Sydney, Rangoon, have been recruited from Chicago consulates, export companies, universities, etc.

Blind Dates

ENTERTAINMENT appealing exclusively to men in uniform is highlighted on the weekly half-hour all-girl show, Your Blind Date, recently launched on Blue Network Pacific Coast stations. With Frances Scully as m.c., series, emanating from Hollywood, features feminine guest film stars and vocalist, with musical accompaniment provided by an all-girl orchestra directed by Eunice Shapiro. Theme song, bearing same title as the show, was written by Lew Pollack. Studio audience is comprised solely of servicemen. Myron Dutton is producer, with Hank Weaver as announcer.

Fins For Flashes

TIEING news flashes with a cash giveaway characterizes a new nightly series of WIP, Philadelphia. Called Money In the News, items are restricted solely to good news with John Facenda, indicating which items are "bell-ringers" by ringing a gong. A telephone number is selected at random from the city directory and if the listener is able to identify the bell-ringer news item, $5 is given. Program was devised by Harry Feigenbaum Agency, Philadelphia, for Sun-Ray Drug Co., local drug chain.

Juvenile Book Reviewers

YOUNG opinions provide the theme of a new educational program, Kid Critics, heard on KOIN, Portland each Saturday morning. Through the cooperation of the Portland public school system the children discuss juvenile books. Conceived by Luke Roberts, head of the station's educational department, four children from the sixth, seventh and eighth grades appear each week.

Bond Pledge Raffle

ALLOWING listeners to wire their defense bond pledges, WCAE, Pittsburgh, has started Bond Wagon. Pledges are shuffled with one picked to receive a $25 bond prize. News-Quiz Games

MASTER Photo Finishers of America, Los Angeles, is sponsoring a combined news-and-quiz program on KNX, Hollywood. Designed to be educational as well as entertaining, and featuring Tom Breneman as quiz-master, weekly half-hour program, titled Photo Finish, is a game of skill, questioning listeners' ability to name important personalities and places in the news. Participants use a Photo Finish "racetrack" card obtained free through neighborhood drugstores. Divided into 15 sections, each "track" contains the name of a city, county or personality in the news.

ality in the news.

Player marks an X in any section that corresponds with the name of cities, counties, personalities which will be described but not named in the up-to-the-minute news given during the broadcast. Prizes are awarded contestants having the greatest number of correctly marked names. Where a tie occurs, winners are decided on basis of the best 10 words or less statement written on "Why I Trade With My Druggist". More than 106 prizes are awarded weekly. John Cohan is the producer. Smith & Bull Adv., Los Angeles, has the account.

Better Half

HOW MUCH husbands and wives know about each others' respective interests will show up on The Better Half, starting on WOR, New York, March 22 at 9 p.m. Winners of test questions on specialized masculine or feminine matters will receive cash prizes and a jackpot "kitty". Praise For CBS

REVERSING his opinion, Marcus Rosenblum of the research division, Office of Price Administration, has written a letter to Paul White, CBS director of news broadcasts, highly commending CBS' handling of news broadcasts. Mr. Rosenblum, former editor of Scholastic Magazine, weekly for high school classrooms, had severely criticized news handling by radio. His letter to Mr. White stated, "I've concluded that Columbia is doing a superlatively good job of news handling. Your men generally possess a balance, a sense of history, an air of social responsibility and other virtues that are not common jewels in the profession. They are not lacking, either, in the more familiar talents of drama and human interest".

High Court Action Seen by Summer Networks Taking First Steps In Appeal From Decision

A SUPREME court ruling on the validity of the FCC's network-monopoly regulations, now suspended by order of a lower court, may be handed down by June, it was indicated in Washington following preliminary moves by NBC and CBS in their appeals from the lower court's adverse decision.

The appeals were docketed March 9 by the highest tribunal, with oral arguments expected by the last week in April. If that time schedule is met, the court is expected to decide the question of the FCC's jurisdiction over contractual relations of networks and affiliates prior to its summer recess in June.

The appeals were taken after the statutory three-judge court in New York on March 2 granted a stay of the FCC's regulations on pleas of NBC and CBS, pending the Supreme Court appeals. The statutory three-judge court previously had ruled, in a 2-1 decision, that it had no jurisdiction to adjudicate the validity of the monopoly regulations [BROADCASTING, March 2, March 9].

Record to Be Printed

With docketing of the NBC-CBS appeals, which are being resisted by the FCC, and by MBS as intervenor, the record in the proceedings before the lower court will be printed for Supreme Court consideration. Parties have agreed to printing of the complaints and the numerous affidavits filed in the statutory three-judge court proceedings.

Following customary procedure, it is expected the Supreme Court will determine whether it has "probable jurisdiction" in the proceedings. Because of the issues, it was thought that the court at its meeting Saturday (March 14) would decide that it does have "probable jurisdiction".

While it is possible that argument can be heard by the court during the week of April 6, attorneys felt that since briefs must be filed, the hearings more than likely will be set for the week of April 27—the last week during which the court hears arguments prior to its recess. If that schedule is followed, NBC and CBS, as the appellants,

Probe Hearing

it was impossible to investigate the FCC without taking evidence on purported monopoly, trafficking in station licenses as well as related issues.

When Rep. Wigglesworth observed that the "two big networks" earned $30,000,000 last year on a $40,000,000 investment, Chairman Fly interposed that he did not believe these figures were exactly right but their profits are "extraordinarily large".

Communist Charges

Revival of charges of Communistic influences in the FCC brought pointed questioning from several committee members. Mr. Fly was asked why the FCC had ignored the command of the House that the chief analyst of its Foreign Broadcast Monitoring Service be released. In the ensuing colloquy, Mr. Fly mentioned that the matter was being considered by the Senate Appropriations subcommittee, after the House had specifically withheld salary for the official. After several direct inquiries by Rep. Cox, Mr. Fly said Dr. Watson is still on the FCC staff.

The newspaper-ownership inquiry also was opened by Rep. Cox, who asked Chairman Fly whether there was any "inhibition" against newspaper ownership in the law. He replied that the Commission was investigating the whole matter and had not yet decided on its course. He professed an open mind on the may have until April 6 to file briefs (three weeks before arguments), with the FCC and MBS to file reply briefs by April 20, or one week before arguments.

Should the court be unable to hear arguments during April, the case automatically will go over until the October term. The court does not recess over the summer until June, but it adjourns oral arguments at the end of April. Because the case has priority on the court docket, involving an appeal as a matter of right, it was expected that arguments would be heard prior to summer adjournment.

Headley-Reed Co. National Representatives whole subject and said the FCC has not foreclosed newspaper ownership, but simply is holding in abeyance pending applications until the matter of policy is decided.

Rep. Cox charged that dissension exists on the FCC and that members of the Commission previously had alleged that the Commission was "susceptible to outside pressure". The FCC, he alleged, is "setting up a complete control of all communications".

Rep. Nichols (D-Okla.), in connection with the Watson incident charged that the FCC holds Congress in utter "contempt". Rep. Fish said he viewed it as "absolute defiance of the House". At one time Rep. Cox observed that if men of Watson's leanings were excluded from the FCC, "more than half of its personnel would be affected".

Immediately following Rep. Wigglesworth's allegations of monopoly, Chairman Fly said he was in agreement with both Messrs. Wigglesworth and Cox on such matters and that the Commission's chairmonopoly rules covered that very territory. There are "no substantial points on which the views of the Committee disagree with the Commission", he said.

No Press Policy Yet

When Committee members pounded away at the newspaper-divorcement inquiry, Chairman Fly said that a "number of complaints" had been received on newspaper ownership and that the proceedings were instituted just a year ago. He said the Commission had not reached its final judgment and that it might take one of three courses:

(1) No policy action; (2) issuance of regulations; (3) recommendations to Congress that necessary legislative authority be given the Commission.

Allegations by Rep. Cox that the Commission is holding up authorizations even where "a few shares of stock" may be held by a newspaper owner, were denied by Chairman Fly. He said the Commission has in mind only majority ownership and control, but has not even reached a final determination on that. He said he had no doubt whatever about the Commission's jurisdiction in connection with the network-monoply regulations, but that on the newspaper ownership matter no final conclusion had been reached.

Hearing in Recess

When Chairman Sabath sought to recess the hearings because of the convening of the House, Rep. Cox observed that "we haven't scratched the surface yet".

The hearing was recessed subject to the call of Chairman Sabath, with Mr. Fly to return to the stand. Rep. Cox said he proposed to call other witnesses, however.

Committee members indicated surprise when Chairman Fly appeared at the hearing. The Committee clerk suggested to Chairman Fly that he retire to Mr. Sabath's office until called to testify, but he elected to remain.

Strong U.S. Protest to Mexico SCHUTTER STARTS On New Juarez Outlet Is Seen

FORMAL notice from Mexico that a new 150,000-watt station will be licensed to operate at Juarez, on the 800-kc. clear channel, is expected to bring strong protests from both the U.S. Government and stations in this country, on grounds of infraction of the North American Regional Broadcasting Agreement.

Advices received in official quarters, it was learned last Friday, stated that XELO, heretofore operating in Tiajuana, has been authorized to remove to Juarez, using the same call letters. It is assumed that W. E. Branch, an American, operator of XELO, and well-known as a border station owner, is the proposed licensee of the new Juarez outlet.

Interference Feared

The 800-kc, channel is a Class I-A frequency available for use in Mexico. Under the Havana Treaty, which became effective just a year ago, this frequency was to have been assigned to a station in Sonora, where it would serve Mexican rather than American listeners.

Juarez is just across the Rio Grande from El Paso. Several months ago the Mexican Communications Ministry had sent out notices that XESK would be licensed to operate at Juarez, using the same facilities now earmarked for XELO. The State Department, on advice of the FCC, promptly protested.

XESK, which did not begin operation because of the protests, was to have been licensed to General Abelardo Dordiguez, former president of Mexico. XELO had operated on 1190 kc. at Tiajuana, but caused ruinous interference to KEX, Portland. As a result of official protests, the station was deleted as a Lower California outlet.

A station at Juarez operating with 150,000 watts on 800 kc., it was pointed out, would cause serious interference to such stations as WFAA-WBAP, operating on 820 kc. at Dallas-Fort Worth, as well as to other stations on adjacent or neighboring frequencies. Moreover, engineers stated, it probably would blanket existing broadcast operations in the El Paso area. Aside from that, licensing of the stations at a border point, in lieu of Sonora, would clearly violate terms of the Havana Treaty.

Pepsodent Testing Collapsible Tubes

PEPSODENT Co., Chicago, sponsors of NBC Bob Hope program for Pepsodent toothpaste, has revealed repsodent tootnpaste, has revealed that it is testing a new collapsible tube made of plastic top and body of laminated paper board. The tube, invented by L. A. Bensel, Los Angeles, can be used not only for shaving and dentifrice creams, but also as a container for semi-liquid

The Pepsodent Co., as exclusive licensee, has a financial interest in the invention but has agreed to make package available to competitors for the duration, if the tests are successful. The tests will be completed in about two or three months, it was stated. If the tube is practical, it may solve the packaging problem for a number of radio advertisers whose products are packaged in collapsible tin tubes, present stocks of which are rapidly diminishing.

Call Them 'RCA', Weber Proposes Tells MBS Stations How to Refer to Red and Blue

MEMORANDUM urging all MBS affiliates to "constantly refer" to the Red and Blue networks as "the two networks owned by RCA," and so to "prevent the false impression that these are two separate networks," was sent recently to all Mutual stations by Fred Weber, MBS general manager.

Memo points out that NBC and the Blue have made "a very strenuous effort to convince the public, advertisers, government officials etc." that the two are separate organizations and states that "NBC has achieved partial success in confusing this issue."

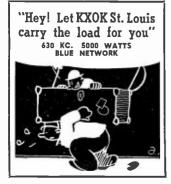

The Weber memo reads:
"As you know the National Broadcasting Co. and the Blue Network have made a very strenuous effort to convince the public, advertisers, Government officials, etc. that the Blue Network has been separated from the National Broadcasting Co.

"It might be said that NBC has achieved partial success in confusing this issue. To prevent the crystallization of this erroneous opinion of separation, it is essential that everyone connected with Mutual do his utmost to make certain everyone has a clear understanding of the true situation. Therefore, it is recommended that we spread by conversation and other means, the fact that today the Radio Corp. of America owns all of the stock and controls all of the operations of two networks: The NBC Red Network and the RCA Blue Network.

"If you will constantly refer to the two networks owned by the RCA, we will prevent the false impression that these are two separate networks."

Farm Co-Op Advertising

INDICATIVE of a move by agricultural cooperatives to use more time on the air was the announcement this week that Roy H. Park, of Raleigh, advertising consultant for more than a score of farm co-operatives in seven States along the Eastern seaboard, had purchased controlling interest in the 20-year-old Agricultural Advertising & Research Service, Ithaca, N. Y.

A pioneer in agricultural cooperative publicity and advertising, Park has long advocated that the nation's 10,900 farm cooperatives -generally considered weak advertisers—use more space and more time on the air.

Park has resigned an 11-year connection as editor and manager of the Carolina Cooperator Publishing Co. and a vice-president and manager of the Mutual Press. On April 1 he will go to Ithaca to take over active management.

Included in the list of accounts of Agricultural Advertising and Research Service is the Cooperative GLF Exchange of Ithaca, N. Y., the nation's largest farm supply cooperative with an annual volume of more than $75,000,000. It is a heavy user of radio, sponsoring Bert Hughes, the GLF Farm Reporter, over a network of stations in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

New Listening Peaks

AS A RESULT of all-out war production, which has radically affected the living habits of radio listeners, time periods which have never previously reached their total potential audience, are now scoring heavy listnership rating, according to the "The WOR Continuing Study of Radio Listening in Greater New York." A typical new peak period for listening is the 8-8:15 a.m. newscast Sunday mornings, which was found to have an audience larger than those attracted by many of the top daytime and evening news spots.

DEFERMENT AT CAA MAY BE PRECEDENT

DRAFT BOARDS were recently advised by Selective Service Headquarters in Washington of the need for deferment of key employes of Civil Aeronautics Authority, including radio and communica-tions personnel, it was learned by BROADCASTING last week. The number of radio and communications employes in the CAA is approximately 700.

It is the opinion of Selective Service officials that the memorandum applying to the CAA will have definite bearing on station tech-nical personnel. Official quarters stated that "despite the fact that the Civil Aeronautics Authority is a Government agency, we do not feel that discrimination will be made between employes of the CAA and civilians engaged in a similar capacity".

Selective Service Headquarters reported last week that no further action has been taken on the matter of deferring key radio and newspaper employes pending conferences between representatives of radio, press and Selective Service. As previously reported in BROAD-CASTING, deferment of radiomen will be contingent upon two factors—availability of replacement and value of the particular employe to the station affected, with discretion left to local boards.

According to reports reaching BROADCASTING, last week, however, local boards have already taken into consideration recent observations made by Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, head of Selective Service, on the public value of "key" radio and newspaper employes and have granted deferments to station personnel on that basis.

Arbitration Sought

AMERICAN Arbitration Assn. has been asked to settle a wage increase dispute between the American Feddispute between the American Federation of Radio Artists and the management of WBZ-WBZA, Boston-Springfield, following failure of union and stations to agree when, as the contract provides, AFRA asked that it be reopened for an increase in wages for staff talent. George W. Coleman, head of Boston's Ford Hall Forum, was named as the AFRA representative on the three-man AAA panel to judge the dispute. Negotiations between AFRA and NBC and the Blue Network have begun for a renewal of contracts for network sound effects men in New York. Present contract, drawn when the Blue was a part of NBC, expires April 30.

Tube Conditioning Plans Available for Stations

DESIGNED to lengthen the life of transmitting tubes, a new conditioning unit worked out by Bell Labs., Western Electric and WOR, New York, has been made available as a service to the trade through Western Electric, which is distributing without cost a pamphlet titled How to Recondition Vacuum Tubes by Charles W. Singer, WOR transmitter chief.

Station engineers themselves can build the unit, WE states, for less than $100 complete, and stations can get their investment back in can get their investment back in tube savings in less than six months. Not only does the unit make possible the lengthening of tube life, but spares may be saved from "shelf age" no matter how long they are stored. WOR found that after 5,000 hours a 342A tube showed a tendency to become showed a tendency to become gaseous, yet was reconditioned for 4.000 more hours of service.

AMERICAN Communications Assn., technicians union, will hold its sixth national convention at the Hotel Ansley, Atlanta, the week of April 13. Speakers include James Lawrence Fly, chairman of the FCC and DCB.

BLACKOUT ORDERS FOR TRANSMITTERS

ACTING on written orders from the FCC, DCB and the Civil Aeronautics Authority, tower lights and marker beacons on transmission towers in the Washington area were allowed to remain illuminated during the test blackout last Fri-

All stations throughout the country have received confidential information on blackout procedure with final authority regarding ex-emptions to general rules resting with Interceptor Commands and local civilian defense officials.

Tower lights and marker beacons are allowed to be illuminated because of the hazard to friendly aircraft if darkened. This will apply, however, in only test black-outs. In the event of an actual raid the local Interceptor Command will issue orders for complete blackout.

In Washington's test blackout, Friday, all building lights, identification signs and ground lights of all stations with the exception of marker beacons and tower lights were extinguished.

Transfer of Employes FCC Difficulty Causes

DISCUSSING the possible transfer of certain FCC employes to other agencies of the Government which have been classified as strictly wartime operations, FCC Chairman James Lawrence Fly at his press conference last Monday said the FCC's problems in this respect would be greater than most other agencies affected by President Roosevelt's recent Executive transfer order.

Mr. Fly pointed out that various departments of the FCC are so closely interrelated that any transfer of employes may seriously affect the FCC's workings. It was indicated, however, that shifts will be cleared as soon as possible. The transfer will affect FCC employes whose activities are of a routine regulatory nature, bringing them under Class 5, the classification farthest removed from wartime functions under the President's order [BROADCASTING, March 9].

Cosman at Navy Dept.

JAMES V. COSMAN, president of WPAT, Paterson, N. J., and radio sales manager of Federal Telegraph Co., on March 9 reported to the Bureau of Ships, Navy Dept., Washington, as a temporary contract engineer, pending action on his application for a commission. He is on leave of absence for the duration from Federal Telegraph.

Lorillard Officers

HERBERT A. KENT, formerly vice-president in charge of sales of P. Lorillard Co., New York, maker of Old Gold cigarettes, has been elected president. Other newly-elected officers are: George H. Hummel, chairman of the board; J. Strother Freeman, vice-president in charge of manufacturing.

KMOX, St. Louis, and KYW, Phila-delphia, have recently signed new contracts with the American Federation of Musicians locals in those cities. In St. Louis, the local union is also negotiating with KSD and KNOK, according to AFM national headquarters in New York.

Store to Sponsor Entire News Slate Chain Unit in Springfield Buys All WCBS Newscasts

EFFECTIVENESS of radio as a major medium for department stores was recognized this month by the W. H. Roland Store, Springfield, Ill., when it signed a contract to sponsor the entire schedule of newscasts on WCBS for a year. The store is a branch of the Lane Bryant Stores, New York, one of the country's largest chains selling women's and children's apparel.

Commenting on the entrance into radio, L. A. Wollan, manager of the store, said, "In sponsoring all the news programs on WCBS, Roland's believes that they are adopting, in radio, a medium best suited to create and build goodwill for this stores."

Must Be Consistent

"We recognize first of all that radio advertising, to be productive, must be consistent. Therefore, we have signed a contract for 52 weeks. The most significant thing about our entrance into the field of radio for advertising women's and children's apparel and accessories is our approach to it from the angle that it cannot prove itself good or bad in less than one year of consistent use. Its value to us of course will depend upon how adept we are in putting our message across in the commercial tieins with these newscasts. We shall watch with considerable interest the results achieved in the coming year, both directly and indirectly from our radio advertising.

Entrance of Roland's into largescale radio follows by a week the announcement by Mandel Bros., one of Chicago's leading department stores, that it would sponsor on WIND, Gary, on a 52-week basis 24 five-minute newscasts daily, at every hour around the clock. Schwimmer & Scott, Chicago, placed the business; the former was placed direct.

Mexican Station Changes

TWO new stations in Celaya, Guanajuato, Mexico, are scheduled to begin operation shortly, both 100 watters, one on 1600 kc. and the other on 1190 kc. Other recent changes in the Mexican log are the shifting of XEGT from Cuidad Guzman to Guadalajara, probably effective April 18, and the changing in frequency of XERW, Leon, Guanajuato, from 1600 kc. to 1390 kc. with 100 watts.

Bakery to Expand

INTERSTATE BAKERIES Corp., Kansas City, will expand rather than curtail its 1942 advertising, according to Roy L. Nafziger. president. Firm has set the largest advertising budget in its history with a major portion being spent in Southern California. Growth of that area's population and purchasing power warrants this move, Mr. Nafziger explained.

'Escape' Programs On Station Bring Relief From War

Light Shows Are Substituted For Censored Programs

By WALTER HAASE Program Manager WDRC, Hartford

THE current gloomy war picture is causing a definite change-over in the program approach at WDRC, and our shift to the brighter and lighter features has already produced amazing results.

As interested as the public is in news of today, whether good or bad, it wants programs, too, of an "escape" nature. It wants to forget the bad news for a while and hear something which has nothing to do with the war.

So, proceeding on this theory, we have undertaken a quiet changeover in programming methods, and the mail response has been everincreasing and gratifying.

Topics of the Day

Here's what we've done:

1. A brand-new program idea has been developed designed to replace the censored Main Street, Hartford man-on-the-street interview program. We're calling this new feature, Man-Behind-the-Mike.

Four staff members, usually announcers, group around a microphone for a 10-minute period, three times a week, and discuss extemporaneously such topics as "Should women wear slacks in public?" or "Should we live for today only?" or other issues of general appeal. It's light and informal, and frankly experimental, but letters have been pouring in after each program and, very soon, we're going to schedule this feature regularly.

2. We have developed a new program called The Inside Page, written and given by Chief Announcer Ray Barrett, for a 10-minute period each weekday and sponsored during four of the five periods. This feature, based on oddities in the news, stories with twists, keeps away from war topics, and definitely has built up a midday audience.

3. We have taken a highly-valuable period in the early evening

PARTIES FOR DEFENSE WORKERS

Admission by Cigarettes Helps Soldiers and Provides

Fun for Defense Workers

By RALPH SUMNER SILVER Jr. WPAT, Paterson, N. J.

RADIO'S wartime role will long be remembered for its invaluable services, the recounting of which could fill volumes, but the most important of which are the maintenance and perpetuation of civilian and military morale.

An inspiring example of the new programs born each day in which this spirit has been engendered is the unique defense industry workers' parties sponsored each Sunday afternoon by WPAT, Paterson, N. J. Paterson is ranked as one of the country's busiest defense areas.

Workers' Morale

Bumping into scores of these transplanted defense workers wandering through the streets of Paterson looking for amusement, Steve Ellis, WPAT special events an schedule, from 6:20 to 6:30 p.m. (EWT) on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and given it to a new program, Heard & Overheard, with Jack Zaiman, newspaperman, as commentator. The program discusses anything from Saroyan to politics, book reviews to gentle kidding of everything in general. Openings and closings are full of joshing for the commentator, and the light approach is emphasized.

4. Wherever possible, we are using musical features. The routine items have been eliminated from the schedule. People want to be entertained now as never before, and radio must do the job.

Announcers have been urged to be as informal as possible in their station break announcements, and on their recorded feature programs at all times. The emphasis is now entirely away from the routine, and on a new enlivened atmosphere.

We feel we're on the right track because the new policy is producing dividends, besides making for a great deal more pep and enthusiasm among the staff. nouncer, reasoned that the morale of these men was vitally important to Uncle Sam and someone ought to give this problem a little thought. Which is exactly what Ellis himself did.

First a number of the country's foremost band leaders were contacted and asked to donate their services gratis for parties to be given for defense workers in Paterson. From the start the orchestras, with the sanction of the American Federation of Musicians, the USO and help of countless entertainers eagerly plunged into the spirit of the move. Ellis with the consent of Army officials, obtained the huge 113th Infantry Armory in Paterson for the mammoth series.

All was in readiness, but Ellis had more ideas. Why not simultaneously do something for the men in the service as well as defense workers? The answer was simple—as 'admission price to the parties each worker was to donate one package of cigarettes. The smokes were then turned over to the Army for distribution to the soldiers. Plans are to charge razor blades, soap and other soldier necessities at future parties.

Record Attendances

The idea was a success. Defense workers, showing proper worker identifications, flocked to the inaugural celebration Sunday afternoon Jan. 25, bringing not only one package of cigarettes but in many cases, cartons. Entertainment was furnished by Ina Ray Hutton's Orchestra, the Four King Sisters, Lou Costello, Tony Galento and a number of other celebrities.

Since then attendance to the regular Sunday feature has exceeded 8,000 each week. Such popular entertainers as Benay Venuta, Wee Bonnie Baker, Blackstone the Magician, Willie Howard and orchestras of Vincent Lopez, Shep Fields, Vaughn Monroe and Dolly Dawn have been featured already with plans set for scores of others.

The parties are from 2 to 5 p.m. with WPAT broadcasting its pickup from the Armory between 3 and 4. The station reports sensational audience reaction to the parties. Pleased with the success of its undertaking, WPAT feels that the idea could be employed in many other defense areas. George Felt, of Wright Aeronautical Corp., recently cited the importance of the WPAT parties, stating, "We're all working mighty hard to win this war right now, and it's a pretty important matter to see that our workers are provided with the right sort of recreation."

SPARE PARTS of an old WBNX. Brooklyn, transmitter have been donated to defense training schools. WBNX installed a new transmitter last May SMOKES FOR YANKS as Marilyn Duke sits in the middle of several thousand packages of cigarettes at one of the defense parties of WPAT, Paterson, N. J. Behind Miss Duke are Mary Szorda and Jean Koppenol, Wright Aeronautical Corp.

Labor Shortwave Series Sent to United Nations

TO FORGE a closer link between the workers of America and labor in the countries of the United Nations, Sidney Hillman, labor director of the War Production Board, inaugurated March 11 a series of shortwave labor broadcasts to Great Britain and Australia, which will be continued Wednesdays at 4:15 p.m. (EWT).

He spoke over WRUL, Boston, and was followed on the first program by three shipyard workers of the Federal Shipbuilding Co., Kearney, N. J. The programs are continuation of the Friendship Bridge series started by WRUL and WMCA, New York, more than a year ago, built around the plan of having child evacuees talk to their parents in Britain. The labor programs will continue under the same name but will bring to the microphone working men and women from essential American war production plants who will speak to workers overseas. The programs originate at WMCA and will also be carried on other stations in this country. Dwight Cook, production consultant to World Wide Broadcasting Foundation, produces and directs the series.

DUE TO the paper shortage and the necessity for curtailing distribution of releases, the FCC has deleted from Section 1.196 (b) of its rules and regulations the provision covering notice of filing of all applications under Part 1 of Title III of the Act that "such lists shall be mailed to all persons who, in writing, request this service."

Disappearing Rapidly, Combs Tells N. Y. Club

THE "elaborate hippodroming" of radio commentators in former days has pretty much disappeared during the last few months, George H. Combs, commentator of WHN, New York, told the Radio Executives Club at its meeting last Wednesday. "The news itself is too dramatic to need any artificial dramatizing," he stated, adding that most commentators today are devoting themselves to arousing the American public to the realities of allout warfare and to rallying their listeners to do their part in the war effort.

war effort.

Mr. Combs' brief speech was the one serious note in the WHN Day program, which included talks by Herbert L. Pettey, station director; Bert Lebhar, sales manager; Clem McCarthy, racing expert; Dick Fishell, sports director; Adriance Amer. medicartics of the control of the contro enne Ames, movie critic.

John Hymes, Lord & Thomas, president of the club, announced that more than 40 members have already donated blood to the Red Cross blood bank. This week's meeting will be Awards Day, when the ing will be Awards Day, when the club presents a plaque to the outstanding program of the year.

Out-of-town visitors at the luncheon included: Clarence Cosby, KXOK; William B. Dolph, WOL; Frank Kelly, WBEN; K. K. Hackathorn, WHK-WCLE; Mike Layman, WSAZ; J. T. Van Sweringen, Harold Cassill, WGNY.

Dramatic Commentator Federal Article on British Advertising Supported by Commerce Dept. Bureau

EDITOR, BROADCASTING:

In the very generous space which you gave in your issue of March 2 to our editorial in Domestic Commerce entitled, "Advertising Puts Punch into Britain's War Effort,' you make the following statement on page 50: "It was learned upon inquiry by BROADCASTING at the Department of Commerce, that its conclusions were purely the 'personal opinion' of its author."

I do not know from whom you obtained that information, but the giver was either uninformed, misunderstood, or misquoted.

The editorial in question, like a previous one on paid government advertising in Canada, was approved by the proper authority in the Bureau of Foreign & Domestic Commerce and appeared as its official view on this subject.

It is the statutory duty of the Bureau to "foster, promote and develop the foreign and domestic commerce of the United States". The article in question was prepared in line with our statutory functions, because of our view that a better war job can be done if the established channels of communication with the American public are used on a businesslike basis.

Move to Revamp the NAB

marily responsible for organization of BVC, in the past has advocated dissolution of NAB and support of National Independent Broadcasters as an industrywide trade association. He is interim president of NIB, with L. B. Wilson, WCKY, Cincinnati, the vice-president, under a reorganization effected late last year.

Economy Move

The plea for economies in NAB operation first developed last January when John A. Kennedy, president of WCHS and the West Virginia Network, and 4th district director, proposed at an NAB board meeting that a survey be made of the budget and that it be sharply reduced. As a result of this, a finance committee, headed by J. Harold Ryan, Fort Industry Co. vice-president and assistant director of censorship in charge of radio, was designated.

Other members are Howard Lane, KFBK, Sacramento, and Frank King, WMBR, Jacksonville. Mr. Ryan has asked his committee to be in Washington Tuesday and Wednesday [March 17-18] to canvass the work of each department of the NAB, preparatory to the Thursday and Friday board meet-

The economy move was thoroughly discussed at the executive session of the 4th district meeting at Roanoke. C. T. Lucy, general manager of WRVA, Richmond, in advance of the session on Feb. 14, had circulated the membership stating that he was finding it difficult to convince himself "we are getting our money's worth from the NAB".

He disclaimed any intention of resigning or assuming the role of agitator for lower dues but said he felt more money was being spent than necessary for a trade association and that with uncertainty 'staring us in the face" it behooved stations to watch their step.

Formation of other trade associations in the industry is succeeding, he said, "because of dissatisfaction with our present setup". He added he was sure that one of the dissatisfactions was the amount of money NAB is spending and that it is "high time that our board of directors give due consideration to a reduction of our dues and a consequent retrenchment in some

Responding two days later, Mr. Kennedy said that one cannot travel around with broadcasters in these times "without coming to a real realization that there are a great many general and specific complaints about the NAB and the conduct of its business as a trade association designed to represent all of the broadcasting industry". He added there was no question in his mind that the NAB budget "can, shall and eventually will have to be cut drastically". There are many functions for which the NAB is spending large sums of money that can be done without during the war effort, he said, adding that he saw no reason why a "very drastic cut in the expenditures of the NAB should not be made".

By virtue of the newspaper affiliation of the Taylor-Howe-Snowden stations, Mr. Taylor has been in the forefront of the newspaper divorcement proceedings before the FCC. The fact that the Commission has adopted rules, not yet effective, condemning group ownership of stations, also has placed Mr. Taylor in the camp opposing this regulatory reform.

A native Texan, Mr. Taylor was born in the tiny village of Bangs, on Aug. 10, 1906. He entered newspaper work at 17 as a linotype operator, shifting from the composing room to the business office two years later. When the Amarillo Globe & News in 1934 decided to enter the radio field, he was assigned the task of operating the new KGNC in Amarillo, a consolidation of the former half-time stations WDAG and KGRS. The group subsequently expanded, acquiring the other three stations, all placed under Mr. Taylor's direction. He is a stockholder in both the newspapers and stations.

Mr. Taylor has taken up temporary residence at the Wardman Park Hotel in Washington.

AMP to Test Fee On Transcriptions Kaye Retained to Institute Action Against Publishers

CONVINCED that mechanical recording fees assessed by most music publishers are illegal, Associated Music Publishers Inc., transcription producers, last week announced retention of Sydney M. Kaye, New York attorney and executive vice-president of Broadcast Music Inc., to handle a test case involving the whole matter of mechanical recording fees.

AMP, it was learned, believes that electrical transcriptions, within the meaning of Section 1-E of the Copyright Act, are "parts of instruments" serving to reproduce mechanically musical works and therefore are subject only to a royalty payment of 2 cents per mechanical selection.

This fee has been paid for phonograph records but in the manufacture of transcriptions for broadcast use, fees ranging up to $10 per selection per year have been assessed for library recordings, while for sponsored transcriptions the additional fee is 25 cents to 50 cents per selection per performance.

Million a Year

While no precise figures are available, it is estimated that the transcription industry is paying to music publishers well in excess of $1,000,000 per year in these special recording fees. This cost, of course, is absorbed by the broadcasting industry.

To precipitate the litigation, AMP is expected to record selections proffering payment only of the 2-cent mechanical fee specified under Section 1-E. It is under contract, however, for the payment of the established scales and presumably will continue to make such payments in certain instances.

The fees are assessed through Music Publishers Protective Assn. Harry Fox is agent and trustee for certain publisher - members of MPPA. In most instances, the publisher - members of MPPA are identical with publisher-members of ASCAP.

Another phase of the litigation is expected to be the question of double assessment, since many stations hold ASCAP public performance licenses. It has been alleged that transcription companies have paid the higher fees to MPPA members because of the threat of restricting certain numbers for performance. Such restrictions are outlawed under the Dept. of Justice consent decrees entered into both last year by ASCAP and BMI.

On library selections, MPPA, publishers are paid $10 per selection per year. This fee had been $15 per year but was reduced several months ago. An additional 25 cents for a popular tune and 50 cents for a production number is assessed where the library selection is used in a sponsored program. On tailor-made transcriptions, the 25-50 cents assessment applies.

While no official word has come from other transcription producers, it is understood that NBC Thesaurus may start independent test proceedings along similar lines. Both AMP and NBC heretofore have indicated that they intended to record works under the 2-cent statutory provision for the specific purpose of raising the test issue.

Hiddleston was account executive of KOMO-KJR, Seattle, before his agency affiliation.

Albright Arrives Safely in Australian Port, However

WITH SEIZURE of Java by Japanese troops last week, CBS and Mutual have received no reports on the safety of their correspondents, stationed for the most part in Batavia, capital of the Dutch East Indies, although NBC has heard via cable that Sidney Albright, its reporter in that city, has arrived safely in Australia "after a hectic flight from Java", details of which cannot be revealed because of military censorship.

In his message to A. A. Schechter, NBC director of news and special events, Albright reported that "he was ready for assignment wherever the fighting spreads."

Dunn Unreported

No word has been received from William J. Dunn, head of the CBS Far Eastern staff, who is understood to have left Java prior to the Japanese invasion, but has not reported his arrival in Australia.

Also missing is Frank Cuhel, Mutual correspondent in Batavia, who had expected to leave the island at the same time as Bill Dunn. Elizabeth Wayne, former MBS reporter in Java, who was supposed to have sailed for this country when Mr. Cuhel took over her duties, has not been heard from either.

None of the networks has heard from its correspondents in Manila, Tokio, or Shanghai [BROADCAST-ING, Feb. 23], and John Paul Dickson, MBS correspondent in Berlin prior to the shut-down of broadcasts to this country, is still among the missing. His name appeared, however, in a list of American foreign correspondents, who remained at their posts in Berlin, Paris and Vienna until the outbreak of war last December, and who edited the Bad Nauheim Pudding, only American newspaper now being published in Continental Europe.

Copies of the paper were enroute by Clipper last week to President Roosevelt and the Library of Congress, according to report by United Press, whose Berne bureau discovered the issues.

With Australia looming as the next battlefront of the war in the Pacific, UP last week opened a new and enlarged bureau in Melbourne to serve as a center of operations for its staff in the Far East, including Brydon Taves, Harold Guard, Don Caswell and Francis McCarthy.

Fate of Newsmen Six Clear Channel Breakdowns Involved In Java Uncertain In 19 Applications Pending at the FCC

SIX of the country's Class I-A clear channels are involved in applications pending before the FCC from 19 stations seeking a breakdown of these frequencies.

Under the Commission's present rules Class I-A clear channels are occupied at night by one station with power of 50,000 watts or more with its primary service area, within the limits of the country, free from objectional interference from other stations on the same or adjacent frequencies. Class I-B stations may occupy the frequency if ample protection is provided for the signal of the dominant station.

Class I-A clear channels are distinguishable from those clear channels occupied by Class I-B stations which provide protection for one another on the same frequency.

Eight Ask for 640 kc.

Of the 19 applications, eight have asked for 640 kc., currently occupied by KFI, Los Angeles as the dominant station; five for the 660 kc. channel of WEAF, New York; three for the 770 kc. frequency of WJZ, New York; one each 830, 880 and 1160 kc. On 770 kc., one of the applicants, KOB, Albuquerque, N. M., currently holds a special service authorization to operate on that frequency with 50,000 watts daytime and 25,000 watts night.

KYW Music Pact

KYW. Philadelphia, after being dead-locked with the local musicians' union locked with the local musicians union for almost two months, has accepted a new music contract. Retroactive to early January. KYW agreed to a $5 weekly wage increase for the studio musicians, similar to that secured by the union from WCAU. According to the new contract, agreed upon on March 6, Clarence Fuhrman continues as musical director. While negotiations were being carried on, the union permitted the musicians to remain at the station, but cancelled most of the shows it had been originating for NBC.

JAMMED BY JAPS Operator Ruins CBS News -But Gives His Call-

AXIS radio stations often try to "jam" news broadcasts of other foreign countries to the U. S. but the offending station is seldom identified, according to a March 12 statement by CBS. Recently a Japanese station interfered with the news broadcast of John Raleigh, CBS correspondent at Sydney, on the network's The News of the World program.

The offending operator kept up a continuous code signal: "CQ CQ CQ," and then from time to time CQ," and then from time to time gave his station signature, JAU-2. "CQ" is the normal wireless signal to all listeners but its steady sound belied its true purpose. The operator's intent was obvious. JAU-2, a Tokio station, was attempting to interfere with the Sydney broad-

ASCAP Regional Men Taught New Sales Policy

TWO-DAY midwestern conference of 22 ASCAP district managers, regional supervisors and field men was held in Chicago March 9-10 at the Hamilton Hotel. The meeting, presided over by John G. Paine, ASCAP general manager, was one of five regional meetings held the past two weeks in San Francisco, Hollywood, New Orleans and New York [BROADCASTING, Feb. 23] to explain to the ASCAP men in the field how to cooperate more closely with stations.

The field men were told how to "sell ASCAP to new subscribers instead of threatening litigation instead of threatening litigation for infringement. Or, as Mr. Paine put it, "ASCAP is changing from a protective to a sales policy". Herman Greenberg, ASCAP counsel, and Bob Murray, public relations director, participated in the meetings

LEVER BUYS NEXT TO DODGER GAMES

LEVER BROS. Co., Cambridge, Mass., with the start of the Dodger baseball broadcasts on WHN, New York, March 14, is sponsoring two quarter-hour periods of baseball and sports news immediately preceding and following each game for Lifebuoy soap and other products.

On a 29-week contract, the programs are handled by Bert Lee and Dick Fishell of WHN, with Marty Glickman pinch-hiting from time to time. The quarter-hour preceding each day's game is titled Warm-Up Time with news of the lineups, while the period after the game, called Sports Extra, gives highlights of the game and final scores of other baseball contests. Agency is Ruthrauff & Ryan, New York.

Sponsored by P. Lorillard Co., New York, for Old Golds, the games themselves are described by Red Barber, the sports announcer, assisted by Alan Hale, Chicago sportscaster, who handled the White Sox and Cub games last season, and previously announced the American Assn. games from Milwaukee. Hale fills the job formerly held by Al Helfer, now in the Navy. Lorillard agency is J. Walter Thompson Co., New York.

BMI Licenses Given Over 500 Outlets Blue Considering Indicating Solid Support by Industry 2% Cash Discount

PROVING once more that the broadcasting industry is solidly behind its own music organization, BMI reported that as of noon last Thursday, March 12, date the new licenses became effective, signed contracts or wires stating that the contracts were in the mail had been received from 509 stations, representing an overwhelming majority of the industry dollar volume. Furthermore, of this total, 506 stations had elected the blanket license forms, with only three signing up for the per-program arrangement.

Expressing the belief that well over 600 contracts would be in by this Monday morning, Carl Haverlin, BMI vice-president in charge of station relations, said:

"Insofar as I have been able to check, after talking with more than 600 broadcasters at the recent series of NAB district metings, I have every reason to believe that at least 99% of our previous station subscribers will sign the new licenses.

"In fact, the total list of broadcasters subscribing to BMI should soon be larger than ever before, as we are receiving licenses from stations never before licensed by BMI. These newcomers are saying, in effect, 'We didn't think you could do it, but you've convinced us and we're signing up now for the next eight years.'"

Blanket Preferred

The almost unanimous acceptance of blanket licenses, with less than 1% of the present returns calling for the per-program plan, is said to show clearly that the industry generally is counting on BMI for most of its music. As of the first of the year, an analysis of ASCAP licenses showed a 3-1 ratio between blanket and per-program licenses, and subsequent reports have revealed a mounting percentage of the latter form of contract, with indications that the final result will be about an even distribution between stations taking blanket and those taking per-program licenses from ASCAP. The average broadcaster is thought to depend on BMI for his backlog of music and will buy only what tunes he needs from the ASCAP reper-

Returns of the BMI licenses were almost equally divided between network and non-network stations, it was reported, and the returns were also distributed fairly evenly among the 20 BMI revenue categories, indicating again that the BMI support is an industry-wide phenomenon and not a matter of groups or blocks lining up for and against.

The fact that there were still some contracts outstanding on March 12 is no cause for alarm. Mr. Haverlin said, pointing out that the number if licenses signed up is far ahead of the number in at this time last year, notwithstanding that the stations are now signing up for eight years in place of the one-year term of the former BMI licenses. The non-returns are no indications of non-renewals, he said, but are signs merely of absence, illness or procrastination.

SAVED THE MOYLANS Clements Gets Sponsor for - Juvenile Singers ·

HOW the American businessman is meeting problems resulting from the war priority situation, at least in the radio field, was the high-light March 15 of the Blue Net-work program Behind the Mike, which featured Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Clements, executives of the Clements Co., Philadelphia, describing how they sold the Moylan Sisters to Hecker Products the day after Thrivo dog food announced it would cease sponsorship of the Blue program.

After explaining to Mrs. Clements that Modern Food Process Co. was forced to discontinue the show because of the canning priority on dog foods, Mr. Clements told how he and his wife wrote several advertisers who might be interested in the show because of its high Crossley rating and proved popularity through mail response to a picture offer.

The program was due to go off the Blue in 19 days, but the day after the letters were mailed, executives of Hecker phoned Mr. Clements that they were interested in the show for H-O oats. Concluding the broadcast, Mr. Clements said: "On Jan. 26, five days after we heard the bad news from Thrivo, we signed the contract with our new sponsor . . . and the Moylan Sisters kept right on the air without a break."

Auditors Figuring Its Effect On Network's Revenues

AS IT NOW stands, the new Blue Network rate card, which is expected to be ready for release in about a week, contains a provision for 2% cash discount for payment of bills within 10 days of receipt. If that provision withstands the close scrutiny it is getting from the Blue's statisticians, who are now calculating just how much it will decrease the network's net revenue, it will be the first time such a discount has been granted by a major network.

NBC and CBS last fall agreed to the discount for cash plan, long urged by the American Assn. of Advertising Agencies, accepting it "in principle," but as yet neither of these networks has worked out a method of putting this principle

Affiliates Affected

Designed primarily to encourage prompt payment by clients and to protect the media and the advertising agencies from losses by delinquent clients becoming insolvent, the cash discount has been pressed for radio by agency spokesmen who feared that otherwise it might be discarded by publishers now allowing it.

In the case of a radio network, allowance of such a discount involves, in addition to the actual loss in revenue, a decision as to whether the stations affiliated with the network shall be asked to carry their pro rata share of the discount, and if so what effect this will have on station relations. Since the discount has been set up as part of the Blue rate card in its present proof stage, the presumption is that it will be included when the card is issued, but Blue officials last week emphasized the fact that the final decision as to its retention has not yet been made.

Price Praises Radio Industry For Patriotic Self-Censorship

Warns Against Costliness of Wartime Error; Fly Endorses Foreign Tongue Programs

HIGH PRAISE for the broadcasting and publishing industries for their "voluntary and patrictic" cooperation with the Office of Censorship was expressed by Byron Price, Director of Censorship, during Theodore Granik's American Forum of the Air on MBS March 7. At the same time he warned that "if voluntary censorship fails, dark hours may be ahead for free speech in the United States."

"The Office of Censorship is attempting, at the request of the President, to administer domestic censorship of information on a basis of voluntary and patriotic cooperation," said Mr. Price. "This process does not curtail free speech in that it places no restriction whatever upon expressions of opinion. It seeks only to keep information from the enemy.

Mistakes Can Be Costly

"I should like to say to the credit of the publishing industry and the broadcasting industry that the response, by and large, has been excellent. There have been some oversights and some mistakes. We have to expect that, but I think it pertinent now to remind publishers and broadcasters that in wartime mistakes can be extremely costly.

"We have found no instance where any publisher or any broadcaster has shown evidence of a deliberate attempt to sabotage this experiment in self-discipline, and I am encouraged to believe that no such instance will develop.

"I say this with fervent hope, because I know that if voluntary censorship fails, dark hours may be ahead for free speech in the United States."

James Lawrence Fly, FCC-DCB chairman, led off the discussion and on the panel also were Roy E. Larsen, president of Time Inc.; Raymond Gram Swing, MBS commentator, and Dwight Marvin, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors and editor of the Troy (N. Y.) Record.

Mr. Fly asserted that "the task of censorship in our wartime democracy is to ban effectively, judiciously and uniformly anything which will give aid to the enemy; and beyond that to keep the channels of information open for complete and honest news reports, fair criticism and well-rounded discussion of public issues."

In the ensuing panel discussion, Mr. Fly raised the question of foreign-language broadcasts, which he said the Government does not want to stop since they reach foreign-speaking groups of citizens with Governmental messages such as the defense saving stamp and recruiting campaigns etc. He said:

"Two things should be borne in mind here. First of all, these stations are owned and operated by American citizens who assumed a great responsibility in operating them and who have shown that they are prepared honestly to discharge that responsibility. Secondly, large groups of our citizens can be reached only in their own native foreign tongue.

Foreign Phrases

"Like yourself, I receive occasional letters from listeners who have heard a broadcast in a foreign tongue, and recognized the words 'Hitler', 'Mussolini', and 'Bin deutsches seig', which means German victory. The listener assumes the program is praising Hitler and Mussolini and urging a German victory. Actually the speaker is saying, 'Hitler and Mussolini menace the freedom of every one of us. We must unite, native and foreign-born alike, to prevent a German victory.'

"I think it is as important to say that in Italian, German and Japanese as it is to say it in English."

The other speakers all expressed satisfaction with the work of the Office of Censorship so far, Mr. Swing in particular asserting that commentators welcome censorship and advice from the censors because they are often faced with "too great responsibility" if placed on their own.

"Theoretically," said Mr. Swing, "every American has a right to speak his mind. But not everyone can have the same right to the

Miami Beach Test

AS THE FIRST STEP in the campaign planned by Steve Hannigan to ease the housing shortage in defense areas by promoting the living conditions in Miami Beach [Broadcasting, Feb. 23], transcribed one-minute announcements were started last week on WBEN, Buffalo, on a test basis. Scheduled several times weekly, the announcements urge workers in the city who are non-essential to war industries to rent or sell their homes and apartments to defense workers with the assurance of comparable housing on a yearround basis in Miami Beach.

radio. It is a platform which is just so large — just as large as there are wavebands and there are suitable program hours.

"These are the peacetime restrictions. In wartime radio the restrictions are even greater. Public interest is concentrated on the war effort and the use of the radio to air unpopular opinions must be limited to those which bear on the war effort.

"As to radio's own speakers, freedom of speech in war time affects two headings, the distribution of news and the analysis of news. Here radio has accepted the definition that freedom and responsibility mean very much the same thing. Freedom without responsibility is license, and not an American right. Responsibility is something voluntarily accepted; it is the essence of freedom. And radio has set a standard of responsibility for its news and its analyses. The aim is to present news properly edited, accurate in every detail, and produced at the microphone without distortion and over-dramatization. This is the aim. No doubt it is not always achieved. But the effort is there.

"As to the news analyses, they are free and responsible expressions of the men who give them. The burden of responsibility is on them, insofar as directives of the censorship are not involved. And it is the profound desire of radio to maintain this sense of responsibility at the highest possible level. It is my impression that radio has set a high standard, and that voluntary restraint is keeping freedom of speech inviolate."

British Pattern

Mr. Larsen suggested the British censorship as a pattern for the American, observing that "there is less censorship in England after nearly three years of war than there was in England after three months of war."

He declared that happenings in pre-Vichy France contributed much to the improvement in our own censorship arrangement, stating that the censorship imposed on the French press played no small part in the fall of France. In fact, he said, "in France nothing was proved finally true until it was officially denied."

NEWSPAPER SALE SEVERS WCAX TIE

CHARLES P. HASBROOK, onetime publisher of the Richmond Times-Dispatch, who in March, 1939, purchased the Burlington (Vt.) Daily News and its then local outlet, WCAX, has sold the newspaper and is retaining the radio station, which now operates with 1,000 watts on 620 kc. as a CBS outlet.

Mr. Hasbrook purchased both the radio and newspaper properties three years ago for a reported price of $57,000, with $17,000 designated as the valuation of the radio station. Former FCC Chairman McNinch had protested against the transfer because of the local newspaper-monopoly situation, but was overriden by his colleagues.

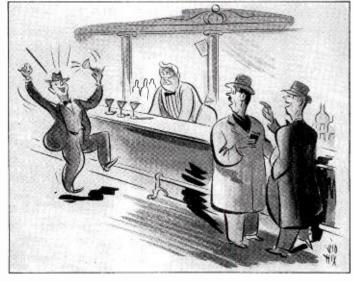

The newspaper has been sold to William Loeb, publisher of the St. Albans (Vt.) Messenger, who is a son of the former private secretary to President Theodore Roosevelt. Mr. Loeb announced he would combine the circulations of the two newspapers, but did not indicate whether the plants would be merged.

Finney Is Named Head Of Three AMP Firms

Of Three AMP Firms
C. M. FINNEY, president of Associated Music Publishers, has also been named president of AMP's affiliates — Muzak Corp., Muzak Transcriptions and Wired Radio—it was announced last week.

Mr. Finney, who formerly served these latter companies as vice-president, is now in complete charge of all operations, taking over this responsibility from Waddill Catchings, who has become chairman of the board of all companies and now is devoting his attention to special matters in the interest of further developing and expanding the business, the announcement stated.

William B. Benton, former partner in the firm of Benton & Bowles and at present associated with the U of Chicago, is a major stockholder in the AMP-Muzak organization.

Will War CREATE a NEW "FORGOTTEN MAN?"

With the whole nation geared to produce for total war, there is danger that it may create thousands of new "forgotten men"—the wholesale and retail dealers who supply the needs of America's consumers.

As plants are converted to 100% war production, as sources of raw materials are frozen by government priority, it is not surprising that the first thought of some manufacturers is to curtail advertising, conserve resources.

Thus the dealer—in difficult straits—through no fault of his own—may lose an invaluable aid to holding the structure of his business together. These thousands of honest, sincere business men who have given unstitled cooperation to countless promotions and special campaigns deserve a better fate. For, wartime or peacetime, they can—and do—make or break any campaign—at the point of sale.

Meanwhile . . . with restricted automobile travel, the American small community, suburban and rural, is due to return to its own. Hence the importance of cementing strong dealer relations is greater even than in normal times.

To all dealers, continued advertising is the strongest possible evidence of your good faith in helping to protect the investment they have made. Your consistent schedule of advertising, reduced though it may be, is a constant reminder that you're seeing them through.

And after . .

Advertisers who stick, instead of seeking distribution, will be sought out by the cream of financially stable retailers who have weathered the war . . .

And dealers, who in less strenuous times may be tempted by a longer margin, or free goods, or any one of a score of merchandising deals . . . in lieu of advertising . . . will be infinitely harder to lure from the fold of advertised brands.
