

Publisher's Note

With this issue of Carbohydrate Research Professor Johannis Kamerling joins the team of Editors, and all of those involved with the journal, Publisher, Co-Editors, and Members of the Editorial Board would like to offer him warmest of welcomes to this new role.

Professor Kamerling will already be well known to readers and authors of Carbohydrate Research, both through his own work, which we have often been privileged to publish here, and as a member of the Editorial Board, where he has played a very useful role for a number of years, helping to maintain the journal's reputation and contributing to Editorial discussions. We now wish him every success as a member of the team of Editors.