Chemical Society, Burlington House, London. W.

May 21st 1892.

To Prof. Dr. A. Pinner,

Secretary of the German Chemical Society.

Dear Sir,

I am instructed by the Chemical Society of London to transmit to you for communication to your Society the following resolution passed at the meeting held on Thursday, May 19th:

"The President and Council of the Chemical Society, at their first meeting since the death of their illustrious colleague, August Wilhelm von Hofmann, desire to record their sense of his eminence and of the great scientific work he achieved both in England and in Germany.

"Invited to London in 1845 to organise and superintend the Royal College of Chemistry, he spent nearly twenty years in this country and during that time made many brilliant discoveries and trained a body of investigators who have followed his example in extending the bounds of the science and in applying chemical principles to the industrial arts. Many of the Fellows of the Chemical Society were introduced by him to the Science and look back with gratitude to his inspiring teaching.

"Hofmann's influence on Science in this country still remains, though the country of his birth has, since 1865, received the immediate benefit of his personal labours as an investigator, teacher, and organiser.

"The President and Council of the Chemical Society of London desire to express to their colleagues of the German Chemical Society their profound sorrow at the death of the great Chemist so closely connected with both Societies and their sympathy with their sister Society in the loss of their distinguished President."

I am, dear Sir,

yours obediently,

Raphael Meldola,
Foreign Secretary.
