MOTORCYCLE JACKET

Fend off the rain and wind on your next ride in the Barbour International Motorcycle Jacket ($400). Building on Barbour's 70+ years of cycling apparel experience, the jacket features an 8-oz. waxed cotton outer with cotton tartan lining, four flap-over exterior pockets, one of which is angled for easy access, a solid brass front zip, and more. It's a nice alternative to the traditional leather motorcycle attire. $400

VINTAGE CHRONO WATCH

With a great mix of sophistication and rugged utility, the Victorinox Swiss Army Infantry Vintage Chrono Watch ($470) will look good with nearly any attire. It features a stainless steel case and bracelet with gunmetal PVD coating, a chronograph feature, date display, luminous hand and hour markers, Swiss analog movement, and water resistance up to 330 feet. $470

PUMA AMQRIBCAGE

Part of the Alexander McQueen Puma collection, the Puma AMQ Ribcage ($300) features styling borrowed from both McQueen's fashion line and human anatomy. The sneakers feature a mesh upper inspired by tendons and veins, a molded leather ribcage for added structure, a "My Left Foot" 3D insert in the sole, and shiny black and bronze colorways for just the right amount of flair. $300

CUFFLINKS

Sure, having DJ turntables or pin-up girls on your cufflinks is cool, but if you want something a little more functional, check these out. The fully-working thermometer cufflinks by Tateossian London ($165) let you know the temperature at a glance without consulting the Weather Channel. They've got a black face and sport a shiny silver finish, with one cufflink in Celsius and the other in Fahrenheit. $165

BISON MONEY BELT

Handsome men's money belt for easy access Everything about this money belt puts it a notch above the rest. The hidden zipper conceals currency better than other belts. The leather is long-wearing but supple American bison. The buckle sports handsome antiqued brass with a leather keeper. In brown. 1¼" wide. USA. Even sizes: 30-44. $69

DZ-NUTS

If you've ever been the victim of endurance sports, you're no doubt acquainted with the supreme chaffing that often accompanies feats of extreme athletic prowess. DZ-NUTS ($22) is a high viscosity chamois cream that features green tea, evodia and masterwort designed to prevent friction in unfortunate places. Someone send a tube to Andy Bernard. $22. www.dz-nuts.com

OMRON SCALE

Omron Body Fat Monitor and Scale. This stylish silver scales provides accurate weight, body fat percentage, and BMI measurements, and support up to four profiles so your entire household can track their push towards a beach-ready body. The HBF-500 also adds a pull-up device that checks visceral fat level, skeletal muscle percentage, and resting metabolism. $87

BALLA POWDER

The name says it all. Balla Powder keeps your "soldiers" dry during the battle and smelling great when it's time for war. The high-quality talcum powder does double duty on other areas of the body too, and now comes in three unique formulas, including "Tingle." Just shake the powder into your hand and rub onto desired area. Just don't rub too hard. Unless you're into that kinda thing. $15

POCKETGO P-70 SHAVER

Get a smooth shave no matter where you are with the Braun PocketGo P-70 Shaver ($12). This ultra-portable razor is powered by two AA batteries, and features a washable design, a wide floating foil for added smoothness, a long-hair trimmer, and a twisting design that locks and protects the foil when it's in your pocket or bag. $12

ACCESS HEALTH TESTS

No doctor. No needles. Bringing lab testing to your doorstep, the finger-stick test kits need just a few drops of your blood. Current offerings include the Home Access HIV-1 Test ($44-$60), Home Access Hepatitis C Test ($60), Home Access Instant Cholesterol Test ($15), CheckUp America FDA Cleared Cholesterol Panel ($43), as well as various other cholesterol and diabetes tests. $15-$60

BAXTER BRAVADO

The original Baxter Bravado was a woody cologne launched by the company's founder, Baster Finley, in the 1970's. It was available for several years, but was, like all good things, eventually put out to pasture. Enter Baxter Bravado 2 and Bravado 3 ($80 each). Both fragrances will go on sale in mid-April at Barneys New York locations around the country. $80

FIRST AID KIT

Unless you're a self-healing mutant, a well-stocked aid kit is pretty much a must-have — and you'd be hard pressed to find a better looking set than the First Aid Kit ($30) from Design Within Reach. This military-themed kit includes all the essentials, leaving you ready to deal with any medical situation that might arise. $30

FRIENDS WITH BENEFITS? WHEN “BENEFICIAL FRIENDS” GET ATTACHED

It all starts off as, “We’re just having fun.” The next thing you know, someone’s feelings get involved, usually the girl’s feelings. In my previous relationships, the tables have turned and I found myself having fun without any attachments to the guy or the ever so dreaded jealousy issues.

Being young and busy, 20-somethings tend to have beneficial friends. Beneficial friends fulfill the boyfriend or girlfriend role but only in the physical aspect of the relationship. For many college students, having fun with someone who is not considered a boyfriend or girlfriend is common and “going steady” can almost be perceived as laughable.

Unfortunately, when the fun and games are over, someone usually starts to get a little clingy. Questions start being asked like, “Where are you going?” and “Who are you going with?” Almost always a question is asked, “Can I come?”

Slowly, you begin to notice that they are leaving things at your house, possibly a ploy to come back and see you, which is not necessarily a bad thing if you’re into that type of stuff and most importantly, if you enjoy their company.

My question, however: Do beneficial friends cuddle on a couch, hold hands, make out, hang out, take off from work for you, ask you to visit them at work, go to dinners, get jealous and then some? I didn’t think so. If a beneficial friend does more than one of these things, it is apparent that they want to be more than just your friend with benefits.

When hints are dropped that he or she wants to exclusively date you, it’s an obvious sign that your “buddy” is attached or slowly but surely, getting attached. I tend to listen to my mom’s advice. She said, “The one who cares the least about the relationship is in control.”

My mother once gave me advice on how not to get hurt. “You can play the game and date around, just make sure you come out the winner,” she said. At a young age, she told me to, “Collect and select.” Although the advice does not seem to be ethical for a young girl, in my personal experience, it has worked. LOL.

“Expectations give way for let down.” Emotions get involved and people’s feelings are put in vulnerable positions to get hurt and that’s where jealousy and drama come into play. “

The truth of the matter is, relationships, at times, may tend to be difficult and distinguishing whether two people are beneficial friends or exclusively dating can get twisted. Having no label is better in my opinion and would rather prefer it that way but sometimes we just give in depending on how much we actually LIKE the person. (Who am I Yoda?)

The way I see it, when a title is associated with a relationship, people start to feel entitled to certain things and expectations come into play. My saying is, “Expectations give way for let down.” Emotions get involved and people’s feelings are put in vulnerable positions to get hurt and that’s where jealousy and drama come into play.

Here’s a reality check for those with beneficial friends - sure, you can hook up with as many people as you want, and yes, it’s fun for the moment, but the reality of it is you’re left with an empty feeling. Having an emotional attachment tends to fill the void of emptiness. However, whether this is ethical behavior is left to question.

Also a reminder, according to CDC estimates, “19 million STD infections occur annually, almost half of them among youth ages 15 to 24,” according to the Trends in Reportable Sexually Transmitted Diseases in the United States, 2003 - National Data on Chlamydia, Gonorrhea and Syphilis.

People think that when they’re in a relationship, they don’t have to worry about all the single games where the question pondered is, “Does he like me?” For guys, whether they should make a phone call three days after meeting a potential interest, is pondered. *Sidenote: Boys, the saying is to wait three days before calling, so you don’t look like an obsessive psycho.

There is always something constant when you’re “in a relationship.” For example, constant phones calls, a person to hang with, a person to mess around with, a kiss on a constant basis. In all seriousness, relationships can most likely prosper if you’re willing to compromise.

Compromising doesn’t necessarily have to include letting someone walk all over you and it’s not about bending over backwards for somebody either. If efforts were met with equality and a mutual respect, perhaps more relationships would actually work. People tend to think more about themselves with disregard of their actions and whether it affects someone’s feelings.

It’s like a never-ending cycle of pleasure and disappointment. Sure, you have the happy times, which are usually in the beginning, then someone’s feelings change, someone starts to feel unhappy and you realize, it’s not fun anymore, so you end it.

Unfortunately, the awkward part is when bitterness is involved. Perhaps that’s when you can’t be friends at all. It won’t work if someone is still attached.

The way I see it, relationships can equal happiness but there’s always drama and hardships that you have to overcome. Relationships are comprised of compromises, obligations, responsibilities, trust issues, and so on.

The main difference between an exclusive dating relationship and having a beneficial friend is the amount of drama and emotion experienced (supposedly).

People have beneficial buddies to escape the hardships and D-R-A-M-A of actual relationships. Whether we should treat people as mere objects with disregard for their emotions is definitely a question of whether this behavior is acceptable or not.

JVC EVERIO X

While it might not be fair to call the new JVC Everio X ($1,000; June 2009) just another camera, it's probably not fair to call it a camcorder, either. Yet another example of a device that mixes impressive still video capabilities with equally impressive video, the X features a 10.3 megapixel sensor that lets you shoot 9 megapixel stills, 1080p video, simultaneous five-megapixel digital stills while recording Full HD video, 600fps slow-motion videos, and more. It's versatility that fits in your pocket. $1,000 www.jvc.com

APPLE NEHALEM MAC PRO

Intel's next-generation architecture comes to the Mac in the new Mac Pro ($2,500 and up). Featuring a single-die, 64-bit architecture, the Nehalem Xeons in the Mac Pro offer a performance boost of close to 2x the previous generation, and offer other speed advantages like integrated memory controllers, 1066MHz DDR3 RAM, and Turbo Boost, which automatically boosts the processor speed based on workload. Available in stock 2.66GHz Quad and 8-Core 2.26 models, they're the fastest Macs money can buy. If speed isn't your main concern, Apple's also offering new iMacs and Mac minis to quench your all-in-one or budget-sized thirst.

LG VERSA

For those times when lots of typing is required (break ups, online pizza orders, etc.), the new LG Versa ($200) has you covered. It comes with an attachable QWERTY keyboard that combines with the Versa's built-in accelerometer to let you type efficiently in landscape mode. Other features include an animated 3-inch touch screen interface, a 2-megapixel camera, an HTML Web browser (with Flash and RSS feed support) and Verizon Wireless' V Cast Music with Rhapsody and V Cast Video services.

OPTOMA HD808 PROJECTOR

Engineered for the most demanding home theater enthusiasts and for the professionals who install it, the HD808 combines other state-of-the-art technologies and features within a sleek, elegant design. Incorporating Texas Instruments' latest, smaller version of its DLP DarkChip3 DMD chipset, the HD808 offers an improved 15,000:1 DynamicBlack™ contrast ratio to ensure true-to-life color accuracy. The HD808 is also the first DLP-based projector to employ Pixelworks' PW9800 co-processor with DNX® MotionEngine™ technology. Using proprietary MEMC (Motion Estimation and Motion Compensation) algorithms to significantly enhance the quality of the video delivered, the PW9800 compensates for motion artifacts, often referred to as "judder," in high-resolution digital video content thus ensuring smooth playback. www.optoma.com

PANASONIC UNVEILS LUMIX GH1

Just in case you didn't know, Panasonic does digital cameras as well, and their latest model to be announced is the LUMIX GH1 Micro Four Thirds digital camera that boasts something most standard digital cameras don't - HD recording capability. This will surely go a long way in blur ring the lines between a High Definition camcorder and a digital camera, and could these new breed of devices eventually see the HD camcorder being pushed out of the window? We can't really provide any answer to that, but one thing we do know - the Panasonic LUMIX DMC-GH1 is a creative HD hybrid device that is more than capable of capturing professional-level still photos as well as HD video performance without the complicated controls to scare away entry-level DSLR consumers. wrong there with compatibility issues. www.panasonic.com

SONY BDV-E300 BLU-RAY DISC HOME THEATER

Sony ups the home-theater-in-a-box ante with the BDV-E300 Blu-ray Disc Home Theater System ($600; June 2009). Featuring 5.1-channel surround sound, S-AIR wireless audio capabilities, Digital Media Port support, Sony's XMB interface, advanced 7.1-channel audio codec support, and more, it's the perfect complement to your new Bravia. www.sonystyle.com

XNSLR COLLECTION

The new XNSLR line offers sleek designs and secure construction to ensure valuable SLR camera equipment stays safe while looking stylish. Case designs vary from a rugged backpack, compact holster and convenient messenger bag. Each bag provides full-featured functionality, including molded EVA Camera Cradles and customizable interior configurations and compartments to store a variety of gear, while a stealth exterior conceals the professional-grade equipment stored inside. This collection is perfect for the photography enthusiast or professional photographer seeking stylish yet discreet cases that provide quick access and protection. www.caselogic.com

ASK HER

What kind of underwear do women really want us to wear?

Boxers or briefs. Not tightie whities, not bikini briefs. As for colors, black, white, gray, and blue are best. Red is risky, but kind of fun. Going commando is an interesting option. We'll think you're unconventional and a little nuts. Which could work in your favor.

I know it's difficult for some women to orgasm, but how can I increase the chance she'll have one the first time I'm with her?

The formula for a female orgasm is complicated and always a little different from one woman to the next. Add to that the pressures of first time sex and you have a formula for disappointment. One way to increase her odds is to take things slow from the start so she can get completely aroused before intercourse.

As I'm sure you know, most women need lots of steady clitoral stimulation to have an orgasm. The best strategy: During intercourse, rub her clitoris and the surrounding area with the pads of your index middle, and ring fingers held together, increasing in speed and pressure as she gets more excited. You can also encourage her to get on top—the most popular orgasm-producing position for women. Or go down on her and alternating stimulating her clitoris with your fingers and tongue. Sliding a finger into her vagina and pumping the area on the front wall of her vagina to stimulate the G-spot while you lick her clitoris can also have orgasmic results. If, in spite your efforts, she doesn't hit her high, don't worry about it. We never expect a guy to get it right away, so don't go overboard trying to get her there the first time around (if you do and she can't make it happen, she'll feel inadequate and embarrassed—or she'll fake it to satisfy you, which doesn't help either of you). Instead, show her how great you are in bed by lavishing attention on every inch of her body. Bonus tip: Saying something like "I can't wait to learn how to make you come" will assure her you haven't given up on her.

Why don't women call guys after a date? I've gone on four dates with this woman and I'm always the one who does the postdate calling.

When we don't call you, it's because we want you to call us. After every date, we wonder if you're still interested, and the phone call reassures us.

At least that applies to the first and second dates. By the third, most women will feel comfortable enough to call you. The fact that this chick is phoning she may mean she just needs more reassurance than most of us. Either that she's playing games—making you pursue her so she'll feel more desirable. Either way, the best thing is just to call her. When she finally realizes you're sincerely interested, she'll quit this not-calling crap.

*Percentage of Women who say they'll call a guy after first date instead of waiting for him to call: 71

How can you tell if a girl you've just started dating is seeing other guys at the same time?

Short of asking her point-blank, your only option is to look for subtle signs that you're not the only man in her life. Here are few: She usually has "something else to do" on one week night. She won't listen to her answering machine when you're within earshot. She hasn't slept with you yet, and doesn't seem like she will anytime soon. She excuses herself to take a cell phone call during a date with you. She doesn't recognize your voice when you call. If you are having sex, more condoms have disappeared from the box in her bedside table than you can account for. Of course, there could be other explanations for all of these things—that's why, if you really want to know, you should just ask.

What are the big differences between what younger women and older women want/need in the beginning of a relationship?

At 21, a girl hasn't had the experience (a.k.a. wrenching heart-break) that teaches her not to throw herself headlong into a relationship. So she wants/needs that level of attention (phone calls, e-mails, dates, sleep overs, compliments, up-all-night heart-to-hearts) from a guy right off the bat.

By 35, a woman has learned to be more careful with her emotions. So she tends to want less for a man she's just met. Two dates over the course of a week and maybe a couple of phone calls in between feel like enough until it's clear both people are interested in taking it further.

2009 F&M AUTO VULCA S

A perfect mix between apparently opposite worlds such as craftsmanship and modern technology, including technical partnerships at international level, F&M is proud to announce the first car entirely designed and developed in-house: Vulca.

The name, as per Faralli & Mazzanti tradition, is inspired by the Etruscan world.

Vulca da Veio is the most famous Etruscan sculptor, responsible for some of the most well known artistic expressions of this great and mysterious ancient population, including the "Apollo di Veio".

Vulca classically interprets the typical concept of "GT all'italiana": lightweight, hand beaten all aluminium bodywork, 2+2 coupè, sinuous and modern, elegant yet aggressive style. Under the hood pulsates a powerful, reliable, latest generation engine which provides in all its guises exhilarating performance.

Vulca will be produced in very limited numbers: only 10, individually numbered. This will ensure exclusivity and unbelievable attention to detail.

DESI

2009 ROLLS-ROYCE 200EX

Experimental models have always played a significant role in the history of Rolls-Royce Motor Cars, from the first - 1EX, built in 1919 - to the most recent - 101EX, built in 2006. Unlike a concept car, the experimental models developed by Rolls-Royce Motor Cars have always been fully functioning vehicles, residing in a tangible world of wood, leather and metals rather than clay and foam. EX cars offer designers and engineers the opportunity for real-world innovation and have been used to showcase new components and engineering techniques as well as exterior and interior designs. "Modern automotive engineering is a balance of creativity, innovation and application. 200EX is an opportunity to assess these new ideas," explains Helmut Riedl, Director of Engineering.

100EX was the first experimental car unveiled after Rolls-Royce Motor Cars was relaunched under BMW Group ownership in 2003. Revealed at the Geneva motor show in 2004, the two-door, four-seat convertible was built to mark 100 years of Rolls-Royce motor car design and engineering. Just two years later, 101EX was presented, which explored modern coupé design. Both of these cars inspired production models that not only closely resemble their EX progenitors but have also redefined luxury motoring in the modern age.

Following on from this success, the same group of designers and engineers has created 200EX, itself pointing the way to RR4, a new Rolls-Royce model scheduled for production in 2010. The brief for 200EX? To create a modern, lithe and dynamic Rolls-Royce that bears all the hallmarks of the great cars that have gone before it: effortless performance, unparalleled refinement, exquisite quality and confident design.

2009 SPYKER C8 AILERON

Spyker Cars, manufacturer of exclusive premium sports cars since 2000, proudly introduces the production version of its all-new second-generation sports car: the Spyker C8 Aileron, the prototype of which was shown at Geneva in 2008.

Victor R. Muller, Spyker Cars' founder and Chief Executive Officer said on the occasion of the unveiling: "When we unveiled the C8 Aileron prototype here last year, we wanted to make a clear statement to the industry that Spyker was about to take the next step in its short but intense history, by introducing its second-generation sports cars, developed from scratch. Within a year we transformed that prototype into the production-ready car we show here today. The first cars are being built now with customer production and deliveries starting in May 2009.

The C8 Aileron's design is heavily inspired by Spyker's aviation heritage, as was the case with all previous models, but with a clear emphasis on the second-generation aircraft propulsion: the turbine rather than the propeller that adorned so many elements of the first-generation cars. Similarly the "Aileron" name pays tribute to that aviation heritage.

It is the device that makes an aircraft turn and symbolizes the turning point that the Aileron is for Spyker: the car which will turn the company towards long-awaited profitability."

2009 BRABUS MERCEDES-BENZ G V12 S BITURBO

BRABUS G V12 S Biturbo: The world's most powerful off-roader comes from BRABUS. It is built by hand based on the latest Mercedes G-Class. The exclusive five-door is powered by a BRABUS SV12 S displacement engine. Like all special models of BRABUS – recognized by the German Vehicle Registration Agency as a vehicle manufacturer – the BRABUS G V12 S Biturbo comes with a comprehensive luxury package. The ultra-powerful 4x4 starts at 379,000 Euros.

The BRABUS SV12 S engine is based on the V12 Biturbo engine from the latest Mercedes S 600. Before being implanted in the engine bay of the G-Class, displacement of the three-valve engine is increased from 5.5 to 6.3 liters (336 to 384 cubic inches) using a special crankshaft with longer stroke, larger cylinders and larger bore. In addition, the cylinder heads are re-machined and fitted with special camshafts.

The engine peripherals were upgraded with larger turbochargers, an optimized intercooling system and a stainless-steel high-performance exhaust system with free-flow metal catalysts. The exhaust was custom-developed for the G-Class and features dual chrome-plated tailpipes that exit in front of the rear wheels on the left and right side. New precision mapping for the engine electronics coordinate the perfect interaction of all new components. The results are an exemplary smooth-running engine and maximum power yield while meeting the strict limits set by the EURO IV emission norm.

If the words "1957 Ferrari" aren't enough to get you excited, we can't help you. The 1957 Ferrari 250 TR ($TBA) is one of only 22 of the very rare racers built, with Speed Racer-esque pontoon fenders, black paint with white numbers and a black nose, red seats with white piping, a gated shifter, and racing heritage that includes a fourth place finish in the 1000 km Buenos Aires in January 1958. It's an absolute classic.

2009 ZENVO ST1

Zenvo ST1 is a real supercar with excessive power supplied from a V8 engine with both supercharger and turbo. Zenvo ST1 has 1.104 BHP and 1.430 NM

The car is 100% Danish design. Danish design has always been cutting edge design, but this is the first Danish designed supercar.

Zenvo Automotive was founded with one goal in mind. To produce a unique hand built supercar. The developing of the prototype started in 2004. The prototype is completed and the car is in the last testing phase. In 2009 Zenvo Automotive will start the series production of the car, Zenvo ST1. It will be a very limited edition and only 15 cars will be built and sold to special approved customers.

The idea behind the car was to hand build a high performance super car which will meet today's standards but still keep the original and unique feeling of driving a supercar. The car will have excessive power due to both supercharger and turbo, but will still be drivable for everyday use.

The car is 100% build in Denmark and the design is a result of Danish design. The developing and production are taking place in our hyper modern production hall with all the best equipment available. Since we work very tight with most of our partners we try to use local suppliers. This makes us able to communicate better and to follow the developing much closer to obtain the best possible result.

DESIRED CARS

LAMBORGHINI MURCIELAGO LP 670-4 SUPERVELOCE

The Lamborghini Murciélago is one of the most extraordinary super sports cars of all time. Automobili Lamborghini has now expanded its model range with a new, exceptionally purist and even more extreme top model – the Murciélago LP 670-4 SuperVeloce is even more powerful, lighter and faster than the Murciélago LP 640. With the output of the 6.5 liter V12 increased to 670 hp and a weight reduction of 100 kg (220 lbs), the Murciélago LP 670-4 SuperVeloce boasts a power-to-weight ratio of 2.3 kg (5.1 lbs) per hp. This catapults it from 0 to 100 km/h (62 mph) in a breathtaking 3.2 seconds and powers it on to a top speed of around 342 km/h (212 mph). Distinctive design refinements ensure that each of this 350-unit limited edition series conveys its full potential from the very first glance.

With its outstanding performance, razor-sharp precision and exceptional high-speed stability, the Lamborghini Murciélago LP 670-4 SuperVeloce is the ultimate performance car for advanced sports car drivers. The super sports car has been extensively redesigned with a new front and rear, an innovative engine bonnet and a choice of two aerodynamic set-ups featuring either a small or large rear spoiler. The interior in Alcantara and carbon fiber provides a purist and minimalist approach.

In order to achieve the substantial weight reduction of 100 kilograms (220 lbs), the Murciélago LP 670-4 SuperVeloce was extensively reworked and redeveloped in virtually every aspect – from chassis to engine and transmission, right through to the interior. The increase in engine output from 640 to 670 hp is the result of optimized valve timing and a reworked intake system. The significantly modified aerodynamics with substantially increased downforce brings considerable improvement to vehicle stability at very high speeds. With the small standard-fit rear spoiler, top speed stands at 342 km/h (212 mph), while the large “Aeropack Wing” and its added downforce gives a top speed of 337 km/h (209 mph).

“The new Murciélago LP 670-4 SuperVeloce is the systematic continuation of our brand philosophy. It is more extreme and uncompromising than virtually any other automobile,” says Stephan Winkelmann, President and CEO of Automobili Lamborghini. “As the new top model of the highly successful Murciélago range, the SuperVeloce displays not only outstanding driving dynamics, it is also further evidence of our company’s technological expertise. Customers can look forward to an utterly unparalleled driving experience.”

SAVE YOURSELF

Five Steps to Saving Money in the Recession

You don't need to be a financial expert to realize that the economy is in dire straits at the moment. This isn't just something that is confined to one country – economies all over the world have to deal with this global recession after years of growth. But, what does this actually mean for you? Well, the chances are you've spent years spending and no time saving which could leave you in an uncomfortable position. If you fall victim to the recession and have no savings to fall back on then you could be in for a stressful time unless you take action.

The majority of people at the moment have at least some concerns about the negative effects that the recession might have on their lives. Some worry about being laid off, some have concerns that their employer might go out of business, some worry about being able to meet their mortgage commitments and others simply worry generally that they may not be able to cope financially.

Although some people have already experienced some of these events, for most this is now a waiting game. At this stage in the recession nobody is quite sure just what might happen to them nor are they quite sure what to do. This often leads to a lack of action when a better solution would be to do something proactively to protect themselves in the event that something untoward does happen.

The primary thing to remember is that anything that happens to you in a recession can be weathered a lot more easily if you have some cash behind you. Experts recommend that individuals look to set up easy to access savings that will cover them for a specific period in case they do get laid off, for example. Recommendations vary here from expert to expert but you should be looking at a minimum of three months salary to be on the safe side.

Great as this sounds in principle, it's a lot harder to put into practice. Over the years where we only experienced economic growth, we learned that spending was good and credit was all too easy to arrange. For a long time we had the mind-set that the future will take care of itself. The problem is the future is now here and it needs help! For many people, all over the world, this means reduced incomes, tightened budgets and no real savings to fall back on.

But, the good news is that this is not a situation without hope. Virtually anybody can learn how to start saving again. Take a look at five simple steps that could ease the pressure:

1 Assess your financial situation: Your first job is to work out exactly how much money you have to spend each month. For most people this will simply be their salary. If you do have any other regular income then include that too.

2 Assess your current essential expenses: We all have certain things that we have to pay for. This might include your mortgage or rent, utility bills, food costs, vehicle running costs and so on. Add all of these expenses together.

3 Assess how much you have to spare: If you subtract the amount that you worked out in Step Two from that of Step One then you will be left with your 'spending money'. This figure is the one you will be concentrating on to try and save money.

4 Assess where your money goes: Think hard about how you spend your money and where. The majority of people can make quite significant savings here simply because they do not realize how much money they waste. For example, buying a coffee on your way to the office every morning may not seem like much more than small change. Try adding it up on a weekly and monthly basis! If you even make a few small savings here then your cash will soon mount up.

5 Assess what you have spare: You need to start regularly saving money rather than spending it. So, set up a savings account and, once you've worked out how much you can save every month, have that amount automatically transferred into it. You can always access it in an emergency, most importantly, you can't waste it if it is not easily accessible.

The most important thing to remember here is that starting to save now, even if you feel secure, might well save you a lot of stress later. Changing from a spender into a saver could be the best move you ever made.

MISSION MOTORS UNVEILS THE WORLD'S FASTEST
PRODUCTION ALL-ELECTRIC MOTORCYCLE

On February 4, Mission Motors unveiled a revolutionary new vehicle at TED 2009. The Mission One is the world's fastest production all-electric motorcycle. Mission Motors CEO, Forrest North, along with lead designer Yves Béhar, founder of fuseproject, presented the vehicle in development onstage to the entire TED audience. Mission Motors exhibited the vehicle throughout the conference at the Kohler LivingHome at the Long Beach Performing Arts Center, and were on hand to discuss the company's vision for a radically new brand of motorcycles. The company also provided attendees the opportunity to see inside the product development process through the installation of a motorcycle design studio inside the Kohler LivingHome.

"The Great Unveiling," the TED 2009 theme, made a fitting platform for the launch of Mission Motors' first vehicle, the Mission One. It is the first production electric sportbike that features uncompromised performance and an iconic new design created by world-renowned designers Yves Béhar and fuseproject. With a top speed of 150 MPH and an estimated range of 150 miles, the Mission One rivals gasoline sportbikes while dwarfing the performance of any other electric motorcycle on the market. The electric drivetrain creates a riding experience unlike anything currently available on a production vehicle. The electric motor's linear torque curve provides peak torque at zero rpm, a feature gasoline engines cannot match. The motor delivers faster acceleration than most gasoline sportbikes without ever having to shift gears.

The announcement formally debuted Mission Motors, a San Francisco-based company geared to redefine the world of performance motorcycles. The company was founded in 2007 by entrepreneurs Forrest North (CEO), Edward West (President), and Mason Cabot (VP of Engineering).

Building on their backgrounds in engineering, a desire to develop clean vehicles, and a passion for motorcycles, the Mission Motors founders developed a proprietary high energy lithium ion battery pack that could provide both the range and acceleration needed for a high performance sportbike. The company (named Hum Cycles at the time) placed second in the transportation category of the 2007 California Cleantech Open, the largest cleantech business plan competition on the West Coast.

"As a motorcycle enthusiast and engineer I knew I could combine my passion for motorcycles with my passion for innovation and create a motorcycle that truly sets a new standard in the perception of electric vehicles," said Forrest North, Founder and CEO, Mission Motors. "With the Mission One, we're writing the next chapter in motorcycle design, delivering a new riding experience without sacrificing performance or design in a zero emissions vehicle."

With core engineering underway and an attractive business model, North and his co-founders turned to Yves Béhar's fuseproject to create Mission's unique brand and creative direction, as well as an iconic industrial design for the first product. The engineering team at Mission Motors and the design team at fuseproject worked in close collaboration to design the Mission One from the ground up, creating a machine that makes a bold statement about performance, technology, sustainability and design.

"This project was a dream come true: a statement about how design can make performance and sustainability come together without compromise," said Yves Béhar. "I believe Mission is an icon for a new era of efficient and exciting vehicles. Designed to express speed and efficiency in its overall sharp lines, the Mission bike is also highly detailed with special attention to a riders needs, bringing a high level of product design and ergonomics to a new generation of performance transportation."

CAPRICORN: DECEMBER 22- JAN 19

This is an excellent time for home improvements, particularly those which enhance the appearance and beauty of your living space. Decorating or rearranging furniture in order to create a more harmonious and pleasing arrangement is favored. Relationships with your family are very satisfying and loving, and you may also wish to invite company into your home. The role of gracious host or hostess suits you very well right now.

AQUARIUS: JAN 20- FEB 18

This period favors business travel, legal work and professional activities within your work environment. You may take on more duties at work and have meaningful contact with higher-ups and professionals in your organization. At this time, you put your faith and trust in hard work and determination to accomplish your ideals and aspirations. Utilizing your knowledge, planning ahead, and making the most of opportunities will be of most concern to you. Overall, this should be a lucky and expansive period for work, as well as a beneficial time to become involved in educational, religious or travel pursuits. In your personal relationships, you will need the devotion and support of your mate and other loved ones, provided they allow you the liberty to indulge as much as you wish in your work or other area of interest.

PISCES: FEBRUARY 19- MARCH 20

Teamwork and cooperation in your romantic and social life is highlighted now. Love relationships and friendships are kept on an even keel by demonstrating patience and diplomacy during this time. Your leisure activities may change for the better or will most likely be more interesting than they have previously been. This period can be a stimulus to creative work or thoughts. You may also win the support of someone who can benefit you financially or in a particular area of talent or expertise you possess. Combining your creative abilities or intellectual ideas with others can result in a moneymaking enterprise or fortunate partnership for you.

ARIES: MARCH 21-APRIL 20

At this time you may feel out of your element or out of sync with yourself or your surroundings. Interference from others requires adjustment and perhaps sacrifice on your part. What you have to offer or want to do doesn't mesh well with what seems to be necessary. While not a full blown crisis, it is a time of strain and tension, which can be somewhat debilitating to your health. A partial retreat in order not to deplete yourself and your strength is beneficial right now. You may be upstaged by other people or events which occur now.

TAURUS: APRIL 21-MAY 20

Much of your emotional fulfillment comes from work or career achievements at this time. You may have an increased awareness of your inner motivations and can commit yourself to accomplishing any personal projects or aims that you set your sights on. You put your heart and effort into all you undertake and find purpose and meaning in your assignments. Women can be very helpful to you now, and you find comfort in knowing they approve and support your intentions. In a personal relationship, you might feel more dedicated and devoted to your partner. You can easily focus on your mate's emotional needs and desires and are happily obliged to set aside time for domestic relations.

GEMINI: MAY 21- JUNE 21

This can be a rewarding time, when you are aroused with inspiration and a creative flow of energy. If you are an artist, inventor, teacher or in some other creative field, this can signify a period when your accomplishments prove advantageous for you. It is easier to receive assistance from those in authority or your superiors. There may be a male acquaintance who is especially helpful to you during this period.

CANCER: JUNE 22- JULY 22

The pace of your life and your rhythms quicken and become erratic, unstable, and restless. If you have been suppressing yourself, toeing the line, at this time you will burst out of any restrictions. Impatience, an urge to make radical departures from the status quo, and/or unexpected events in your life compel you to do many things differently. Freedom and independence beckon, but in such a way as to create some schism or at least a high degree of tension within you. If your own or your family's medical history indicates cardiac problems, be especially aware of those indicators and warning signs now. This is not to say heart problems will inevitably occur, simply that those tendencies increase with this new freedom in your life style.

LEO: JULY 23- AUGUST 23

Bonds of affection strengthen in your romantic or marital partnership. The relationship with your mate is mutually supportive and encourages you both to see each other as unique and special individuals. You share mutual trust, devotion and admiration as a couple and are secure in the understanding that your partner will be at your side through thick and thin. There is a likelihood that a deeper commitment will take place in your relationship. Or if you are without a "significant other", a brand new attraction may come into your life, and you might form an alliance based on complementary personalities and mutual interests.

VIRGO: AUGUST 23-SEPTEMBER 23

You will want to share pleasurable activities with your mate or marriage partner during this time. Entertainment plans, such as going to the theater or a special night out on the town together, would be appealing to you now. This period also promotes feelings of loyalty, love, and contentment toward your loved one. When you lavish your attention on your mate, you most likely will receive a warm and affectionate response. With a fresh, playful approach you can enliven your marriage or a significant relationship at this time.

LIBRA: SEPTEMBER 23 - OCTOBER 23

Thoughts turn to parenting, nurturing, and providing assistance to those you love and care about. You may have a great deal of contact and communication with family members, relatives, and siblings at this time, in greater part because they need guidance, advice, or help. This is a good period to make schedules or arrangements with those who live with you as to the handling of domestic or personal responsibilities. Meaningful conversations with your children or mate can open new doors to understanding their particular needs.

SCORPIO: OCTOBER 23- NOVEMBER 21

This is a favorable period for success in all your creative and imaginative pursuits. You receive cooperation through your association with others in business, relationships, and professional partnerships. This is a fertile time for artistic endeavors and inventive creations. Your innate talents rise to the surface and you feel comfortable in expressing them to the world. You can experience contentment and positive relations in your romantic life and benefit from the joint activities you share with others.

SAGITTARIUS: NOVEMBER 23- DECEMBER 21

Sharing your thoughts and ideas with your mate or marriage partner is rewarding to you now. A blending of similar interests and attitudes can help establish closer ties between you and your mate. In an ongoing relationship, pledges of love, commitment, and loyalty can be exchanged, or you can have a meaningful conversation which brings renewed vows. You or your loved one may be especially revealing with regard to affectionate feelings and open communications. Carrying out day to day routines and obligations with your companion should also prove more pleasant during this period. You may even receive an invitation or news of a wedding, birth, party, or engagement now.
