36. THIS MONTH IN HISTORY

There is more to March than you ever knew. We reveal some of the most significant and strange occurrences that took place throughout history in Marxh.

38. BEAT A SPEEDING TICKET

Being a woman certainly helps, but you don't have to be female to get out of a speeding ticket. Here are a few tips to get on your way without having to pay up for your speeding blunders.

42. IS IT LOVE OR LUST

We want to be loved; that is our nature. We all want to be held, touched, caressed and shown sincere affection. We want to find that person who will nurse us when we are sick, feed us when we are hungry, clothe us when we are naked, and shelter us when we are homeless. God created us to love Him and to love one another. Loving God seems sweet and easy enough; it is the 'loving each other' that can seem a bit complicated.

46. FLY FOR LESS

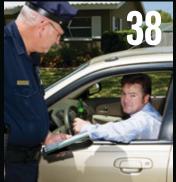

The best way to save money on travel expenses is to plan ahead. Generally, booking tickets 21 days in advance is the most common time frame where budget tickets are available, with some travel sites offering them in as little as 14. Starting to do your research ahead of time can give you options that you may not have if you wait until the last minute, and this is especially so during the holiday season.

50. CURE A HANGOVER

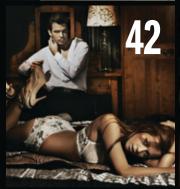

So here we are again—lying in bed, staring at a spinning ceiling, stomach in knots, head pounding. Maybe it was only one too many, but it's probably more like four and now you're regretful. Before going to bed, pull out this cheat sheet to prevent the symptoms of a hangover.

KINEKT GEAR RING

Find yourself constantly playing with your wedding band or other rings? Perhaps its time to grab a Kinekt Gear Ring ($165) to fool around with. This intriguing little accessory is made from stainless steel and features six micro-precision gears scattered around the outside which allow the outer rims to spin independently of the ring itself. Great for watchmakers, engineers and tinkerers alike.

AIR JORDAN 2011

His Airness may have made his last flight in 2003, but his iconic sneaker is far from done. The Air Jordan 2011 ($170) continues the tradition with a white-and-black design that recalls the XI model from the '90s, but with handcrafted Patina leather taking the place of the glossy patent black. The 26th edition of the Air Jordan series, each shoe is finished with a hand burnishing process that leaves no two shoes alike, and in another first, they sport interchangeable red and blue midsoles that let you customize their feel to match your game—whether it's on the court or on the

MODERNIST CUISINE

Plenty of books can tell you how to cook something—but far fewer can tell you why to do so a certain way. Modernist Cuisine ($470) belongs in the latter category. Written primarily by ex-Microsoft CTO Nathan Myhrvold and weighing in at 2,400 pages, this part cooking, part science six-volume set explains in simple, easy-to-understand terms the details behind practically every cooking method, making it just as useful for weekend grillmasters as it is for professional chefs.

TIFFANY PALOMA'S GROOVE SURFER BRACELET

We've long been fans of simple bracelets, and the new Tiffany Paloma's Groove Surfer Bracelet ($150) is one of the best we've seen. Made from rubber with a Sterling silver clasp, it combines sport and elegance in a rare manner. Plus, if you're digging the grooved cylindrical clasp, you can also pick up matching accessories like cuff links, a pen, button covers, and a keychain.

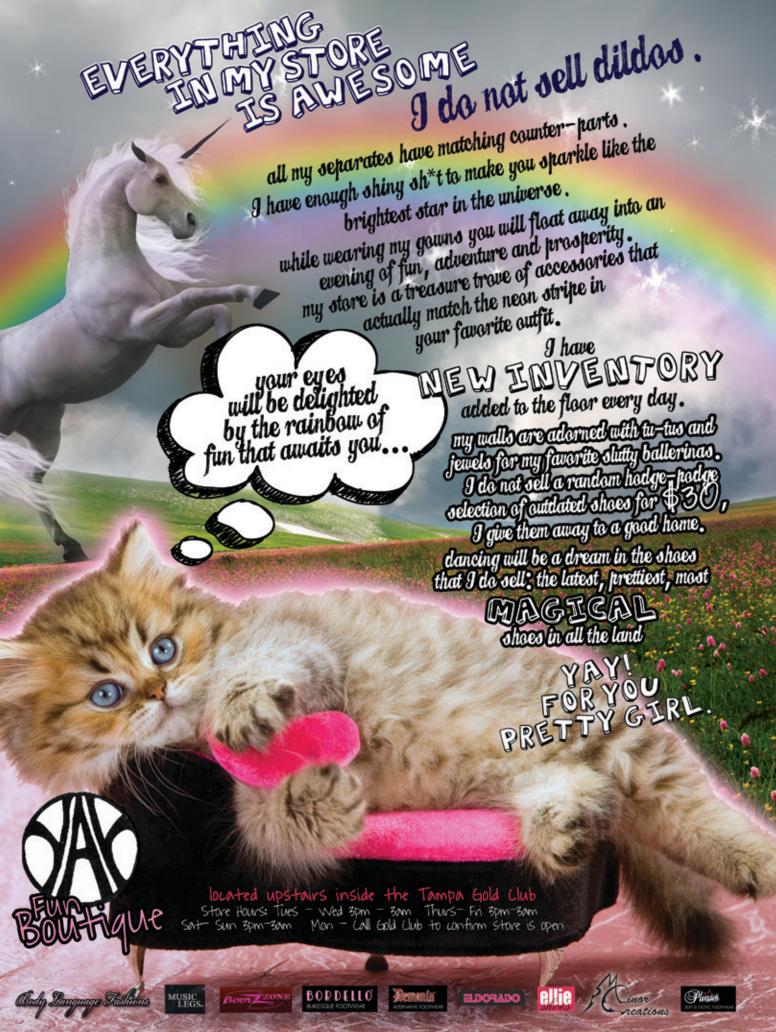

BREMONT P-51 WATCH

We've seen plenty of watches inspired by aircraft, but never one that's actually made from one. Until now. The Bremont P-51 Watch (£7,450; roughly $11,800) is a chronograph chronometer built using original parts from the 1944 Mustang WWII aircraft P-51K-10, otherwise known as "Fragile but Agile." Original aluminum from the plane's fuselage is integrated into the dial and movement of the P-51, while the dial itself is inspired by the clocks found in the plane. Other features include an internally rotating bezel, a calf-skin leather strap with stainless steel buckle, and the ability to whip flyboys into a froth thanks to its one of 251 limited edition status.

▼ SAMSUNG GALAXY TAB 10.1

With sales of its original, seven-inch Galaxy Tab not exactly setting the world on fire, Samsung's ready to try again with its big brother. The Samsung Galaxy Tab 10.1 ($TBA) offers more than just screen size improvements over its little sibling, including eightmegapixel AF rear-facing and two-megapixel front-facing cameras with 1080p video recording, a 1GHz dual-core Tegra 2 processor, HSPA+ 21Mbps, Bluetooth 2.1+EDR and dual-antenna Wi-Fi, up to 32GB of internal storage, Android 3.0 Honeycomb, Flash 10.1 support, and, of course, a 1280x800 10.1-inch touch display. Here's hoping the pricing isn't nearly as celestial as the name.

AUDI AUTO UNION TYPE C E-TRON STUDY

It might be labeled as a toy, but we sure wouldn't mind kicking around town in the Audi Auto Union Type C E-Tron Study ($TBA). Inspired by Audi's classic racers and based on a limited-edition pedal car model, the rear wheel-drive Type C is powered by a small electric motor and a lithium-ion battery that propels one human—up to 5' 11"—at speeds of up to 18 mph, and as far as 15 miles. Sure, it's not a speedster by any means, but it's a much sportier way to get around the island than that golf cart you've been driving.

▼ HP TOUCHSMART 610

Been patiently waiting for a touchscreen computer that won't kill your arms? Say hello to theHP TouchSmart 610 ($900). Based around a 60-degree reclining, 23-inch, LED backlit, 1080p LCD display with advanced multitouch, the slim all-in-one 610 features a host of touch-optimized applications from Hulu, Netflix, Rhapsody and Twitter, as well as HP's exclusive RecipeBox and webcam applications, a Beats Audio stereo speaker setup, a slot-loading DVD drive, a 6-in-1 digital media card reader and Windows 7 Home Premium, which depending on your preference is likely the make-or-break aspect of what's otherwise a pretty cool product.

HTC FLYER

And the parade of new tablets continues. The HTC Flyer ($TBA) runs Android 2.4 with HTC's Sense interface, and packs a seven-inch touchscreen with 1024x600 resolution, a 1.5 GHz processor, 32 GB of internal storage with microSD expansion, 1GB of RAM, HSPA+/GSM cellular connectivity, a five megapixel rear camera with auto focus and a 1.3 megapixel front camera, Wi-Fi, Bluetooth 3.0 with A2DP, GPS and all the mystique and intrigue that comes with being someone who doesn't use an iPad.

The Mauro Lecci Lamborghini Yacht($TBA) began as a dream but has become a ridiculously rich reality. Powered by dual high-performance engines and employing Kevlar/carbon construction to keep the weight low, the design is inspired by Lamborghini's legendary rides, offering large windows that recall the air vents of the cars, a pair of rear decks, a large forward deck, a double sofa bed, bar, and entertainment center in the cockpit, a bed and bath with separate shower for the owner, and another for guests.

₩ WALDOCK

Unfortunately for owners of the sixth-generation iPod nano, most docking music systems seem to swallow the diminutive player whole, making it difficult, if not impossible, to control. Enter the Waldock ($60). This tiny speaker system is designed specifically for use with the touchscreen nano, and features a 40mm driver with a specially designed bass chamber for full sound, a top-mounted dock and built-in prongs that allow it to plug directly into the wall, like a night light. With music. And a touch screen.

HP TOUCHPAD

Nope, it's not an iPad. But it sure as hell looks like one. As it happens, the HP TouchPad($TBA) feels like one too, thanks to its nearly identical screen (9.7 inches), weight (1.6 pounds) and dimensions. Setting it apart are a dualcore 1.2 GHz Snapdragon processor, 1.3 megapixel webcam, and HP's not-so-recently acquired webOS 3.0, which sets itself apart from iOS with its card-based interface, "true" multitasking, a HP Synergy-powered communication suite, and fancy new tricks like touch-to-share data transfer and Touchstone technology for sharing info with a webOS phone... which you probably don't have.

SONY XPERIA PLAY

We've been hearing about the damn thing for years, so we're more than happy to see that theSony Xperia Play ($TBA) has finally left its cold, dark containment room. Otherwise known as the PlayStation Phone, the Play is powered by Android, and features slide-out gaming controls, a 1 GHz Snapdragon processor with Adreno GPU, a five-megapixel camera, a four-inch, 480x854 touch screen, Wi-Fi, Bluetooth and GPS, and access to PlayStation content through the PlayStation Suite store. Now all it needs are actual, you know, games.

F*akmy life

Funny, true stories, unless they happen to you.

My Dad gave me the dreaded sex talk, but he got sidetracked and started talking about how good my mom was in bed.

While sitting on the couch, my boyfriend came over, pulled his penis out of his fly, and started stabbing me in the face with it while humming the Jaws theme.

It's my birthday. I was excited because of all the wall posts I got on Facebook. Then I saw I got a "Happy Birthday" from the girl my boyfriend cheated on me with.

Someone at work put their used, bloodied tampon applicator back in its wrapper, and into the free tampon bin for some sucker to grab. That sucker was me.

I found out that the candy bracelet my sister gave me a few days ago was actually a candy cock ring she'd used on her boyfriend just a few hours prior. Apparently, she didn't like the taste. I however, did.

I was busily having fun with my girlfriend, when suddenly the bedroom door opened and a man walked in, picked me up, and threw me outside the apartment. I was naked and didn't even know she was into men, much less had a bushand

I found out that the white marks on my pillow aren't from me drooling in my sleep like I originally thought. My roommate used my pillow to help support her lower back during intercourse with her hookup from last night.

It was my birthday and my friends came to celebrate it. My parents thought it would be funny to give me a vibrator in front of everybody.

My girlfriend's parents walked in on us having sex. Not only did her dad make me walk out to my truck with no clothes on, he is my baseball coach and I will be seeing him on Monday.

My mother got me to guess who she spent the night with. I then find out it was the gas station guy. The same creep that I've been complaining about because he hits on me every time I go get gas. Good pick, Mom. I finally found out whether or not my boyfriend is cheating on me. Turns out he isn't. He is cheating on his wife, with me.

My boyfriend asked me to play dead so he could have sex with my 'corpse.'

I found out my husband is sleeping with my best friend. The best part? We all just signed a 12-month essentially non-breakable lease on a house together.

While having sex with my boyfriend, I reached climax. While I was screaming, my 4-year-old son comes in with his water gun because he thought I was in trouble.

I realized I get more pleasure from a tampon than my boyfriend that I have been having sex with for the past six months.

My ex, who I'm still in love with, is having sex with her new boyfriend. He's my neighbor and she's making a lot more noise with him than she did with me.

I noticed that after a month of using my gel, it never seems to empty. I then found out my older brother and his friends had been pumping their man-juice into it.

My 400-pound roommate brought home a 400-pound guy. Now there's 800 pounds of sex going on in the next room, and it sounds like the invasion of Normandy in there.

My boyfriend finally got me to orgasm, for the first time in my life, after trying for months. He started laughing when I climaxed. I asked why. Apparently I look like a Down's Syndrome child when I climax.

I went on a date with a guy, who decided to rudely text message his friend the whole time. When I got home, I realized he'd been texting the girl he was going to hookup with after our date; she happens to be my roommate.

I told my mom I broke up with my boyfriend because he wanted to have sex and I wasn't ready. Her reply? "Well, you can't stay a virgin forever." My boyfriend and I were having sex. Right before I was about to climax, he asks, "Do you remember when you bought the homeless guy with one leg a hot dog?"

My girlfriend finally got a Facebook account. Too bad she doesn't know the difference between a wall post and a message. She just described how much she enjoyed our sex last night, in great detail. My mom liked it.

My boyfriend told me the thing that gets him really horny. Apple sauce.

While I was waiting at a bus stop, a man stopped at the red light and smiled at me. I smiled back. He blew me a kiss and drove away, just as I realized he was masturbating behind the wheel.

I was having sex with a guy I met at my friend's party. He stopped mid-thrust, climbed off, and started talking about how nervous he is about buying his first car next week.

While at my boyfriends place, I thought I would be nice by folding his laundry and putting it away since he was working late. I opened his sock drawer and sitting on top was a photo of his mother, naked.

My boyfriend came over to have dinner with my family. Everything went well until my mom started hitting the brandy. While kicked back in her chair, she asked my boyfriend how satisfactory I was in bed, and if he enjoyed going down on me.

I went to the park and sat down on a bench to enjoy my coffee. I heard a few young girls behind me talking about how their first experience of sex was. I turned around to see how old these girls really were. One of them was my daughter.

My husband and I are celebrating our 5th wedding anniversary. It's also the 5th anniversary of the last time he made me orgasm.

St. Pete's newest forbidden sin

MY WIFE AND I WANT TO SPICE THINGS UP, BUT SHE SAYS SHE DOESN'T HAVE ANY FANTASIES SHE WANTS TO FULFILL. IS THAT POSSIBLE?

Totally. The last time a guy asked me about my fantasies, I drew an embarrassing blank. It's not that I'm frigid. I just felt too much pressure at the time to concoct the ideal scenario, and I wasn't dying to do one particular thing. Look, your wife is game for adventure—so instead of trying to create a perfect sexy situation, take a crack at 'em all. Buy handcuffs. Rent anime porn. Whatever! The fun is in the exploring, even if not everything's a hit. And hey, you might even uncover a hidden fantasy of your own.

I'M 38, A FAIRLY ATTRACTIVE GUY, GOOD SENSE OF HUMOR, A DECENT NUMBER OF FRIENDS. I'M ALWAYS FRIENDLY AND ENJOY SMILING. I'M ALSO VERY HAPPILY MARRIED, GOING ON EIGHT YEARS NOW. WHY IS IT THAT EVER SINCE I TIED THE KNOT AND PUT A RING ON MY FINGER, GIRLS IN THEIR TWENTIES TO EARLY THIRTIES WHO WOULDN'T HAVE GIVEN ME THE TIME OF DAY IN MY YOUTH NOW SEEM TO ENJOY FLIRTING WITH ME? I DON'T MIND, BUT IT'S A TAD FRUSTRATING THAT THEY WEREN'T THIS BOLD WHEN I WAS ACTIVELY LOOKING.

You're clearly a catch-that ring on your finger shows you've been pre-screened, pre-approved, specially selected. You're also older now than you were eight years ago, which, in all likelihood, means you're more successful and possibly more comfortable and confident with yourself than when you were young and single.

IF YOU'RE IN A SEXLESS MARRIAGE FOR THE SAKE OF THE CHILDREN, SHOULD YOU PURSUE AN AFFAIR?

This is a really hard one. A sexless, passionless marriage can be incredibly lonely, frustrating, and hurtful. But as painful as it is, lack of sex is almost always a symptom of underlying trouble, rather than the cause of your marital strife. See, the frequency a couple has sex is often a relationship barometer. No sex usually means that something is wrong... the problem is that once it goes on long enough, the lack of intimacy can also become a problem in itself.

The bottom line: If you care about fixing or saving your marriage, an affair is not the answer. If you think things are bad now, wait until there's no trust left at all. Your kids will pick up on that anger and hostility, if they haven't already.

Here's my advice: Have an honest, gentle conversation with your wife about what's going on. Avoid sounding accusatory—she'll only get defensive. Instead, tell her you miss her. You miss feeling intimate with her—sexually, yes, but also emotionally. Tell her you want to fix things together, and ask if she's willing to work with you. Sounds cheesy, but couples therapy could really help.

And in the meantime, if she's receptive, see if you can help her relax more in general. Take out the trash without her asking. Compliment her at least three times a day. Send her a text that says "thinking of you." Rub her feet, ask about her day, pay the bills this month. Sometimes the small things can really add up.

I'M INTERESTED IN DATING A FRIEND. WHAT'S THE BEST WAY TO COMPLIMENT HER APPEARANCE?

Less is more. Sincere, simple compliments always floor me-so look her in the eye and say, "You look great." If she smiles like a goof, ask her out. (Or hell, just kiss her.) If she seems uncomfortable, dismissive or patronizing, she's not interested.

There are many unwanted, sick, homeless, abused and abandoned pets that could use our help.

2011 ASTON MARTIN V8 VANTAGE S

The Aston Martin Vantage range comes of age with the new V8 Vantage S characterised by a host of new driver-focussed features all designed to push the honed dynamics of the standard Vantage to a new benchmark level.

Aston Martin's own 4.7 litre V8 engine has been engineered to deliver peak power of 430 bhp (436 PS / 321 kW) at 7300 rpm and torque of 490 Nm (361 lb.ft) at 5000 rpm and is coupled with a new ground-up developed Sportshift III transmission specifically designed for the Vantage S with seven short ratio gears to deliver the most engaging and intense driver involvement.

Dynamic revisions are central to the Vantage S, with a quickened steering rack ratio of 15:1 compared to 17:1 on the standard car and a larger diameter front brake disc with new six-piston front brake calipers. New springs and dampers, and wider rear wheels also contribute to chassis revisions. A new dynamic stability control (DSC) system specifically tuned to the Vantage S along with a new brake module providing features such as Hydraulic Brake Assist (HBA) which provides assistance in emergency braking situations, and Hill Start Assist (HSA). Bespoke tyres have been developed with Bridgestone to optimise road holding enhancing dynamic feel.

At the core of the Vantage S is the new seven speed SportshiftTM II automated manual transmission, offered as standard and delivers exceedingly rapid gear changes, twenty per cent quicker than SportshiftTM. The extra gear permits shorter well-spaced ratios taking advantage of the optimum torque, which combined with a shorter final drive ratio of 4.182:1 delivers quicker acceleration and an enhanced sporting feel. The inherent benefits of a single clutch system reduces complexity and significant weight over a dual clutch solution. SportshiftTM II allows the driver to take an increased level of control, modulating the throttle pedal to achieve the desired type of gear change. In addition, the Vantage S features a 'Sport' button which quickens the gear changes and gives the driver a more aggressive throttle response while also opening the exhaust bypass valves across most of the engine speed range perfectly characterising the 'S' variant.

2011 LAMBORGHINI GALLARDO LP 560-4 BICOLORE

With its new Bicolore model, Lamborghini is now setting a further design highlight in the ten-cylinder model series. The colored exterior finish matched with the black on the upper area of the body gives the Gallardo a new, more aggressive personality that looks even wider, even more extreme and innately adhered to the road.

From the window-line upwards (including pillars, roof, engine hood and rear spoiler), the vehicle is decorated in Noctis Black - a pastel black that contrasts perfectly with the lower area of the body, available in a choice of five colors: Giallo Midas, Arancio Borealis, Grigio Telesto, Bianco Monocerus and Blu Caelum.

The exterior appearance is enhanced by Skorpius aluminum-alloy rims with 15 thin spokes that are forged to minimize unsprung weight and are finished in titanium gray enamel. And, the air intakes and front spoiler have a high-gloss black finish, as does the upper section of the rear diffuser.

The contrast between black and color is repeated in an understated, elegant manner in the interior of the Gallardo LP 560-4 Bicolore. The instrument panel, seats, door panels and other elements in the passenger compartment are upholstered in the finest "Nero Persus" leather, with a refined contrast provided by precise stitching that is colored to match the exterior paintwork: yellow, orange, blue and gray (also used on the Bianco Monocerus version).

The bezel of the e-gear transmission on the center console is in Nero Noctis, just like the upper area of the vehicle. Obviously, the interior is finished in the Lamborghini tradition using only the materials of the very highest quality, which are crafted with undisputed professionalism and fine Italian workmanship.

» 2011 Porsche Boxster S Black Edition

The Porsche Boxster model line has a new luxurious top model in addition to the sporty Boxster Spyder: The Boxster S Black Edition limited to 987 cars. With its 320 hp – ten hp more than the Boxster S – this edition offers a substantially larger range of standard equipment and exclusive special options, all at a very attractive price. The new mid-engined sports car is black all over: Black body, black hood, and black 19 inch Boxster Spyder wheels accentuate the muscular appearance of the top roadster. The Boxster S Black Edition will be launched in March 2011, and in Germany is priced at 63,404 euro including VAT and country-specific equipment.

The colour concept of the Boxster S Black Edition is consistent in every detail. The rear side air intake grilles are painted in black as is the twin tailpipe of the exhaust system. The model lettering painted in black on the rear luggage compartment lid identifies the Black Edition as much as the embossed Black Edition model designation on the side of the fabric hood. The roll-over bars are painted in black, too.

The black line of the exterior is continued in the interior. The stainless steel door entry guards feature the "Black Edition" model lettering in black. The standard Sport Design steering wheel with its double-spoke appeal has a non-slip rim of smooth-finish leather and sporty grips. The trim strips of the dashboard and of shift lever or gear selector are painted in black. The dials on the instrument cluster are black as are the partial leather seats with the Porsche emblem embossed in the headrests. Also available upon request: black leather interior. The limited edition badge on the glove compartment identifies the sports car as a model of the Black Edition.

As a standard, the Boxster S Black Edition features the otherwise optional "Comfort", "Infotainment", and "Design" equipment packages, and therefore comes at a more favourable price than a series model with comparable equipment options. The wind deflector is on board right from the factory as are the anti-dazzle interior and exterior mirrors with integrated rain sensor, cruise control and a climate control system. The Porsche Communication Management (PCM) including navigation module are also standard. In addition, the universal audio interface and mobile phone preparation are available as standard. The Sound Package Plus creates an impressive interior sound experience. The standard Bi-Xenon lights with dynamic cornering lights and LED daytime running lights ensure driving pleasure and safety on dark roads. Upon request, the Boxster S Black Edition can be individualised even further with other options of the Boxster programme. For example, the Porsche Ceramic Composite Brake (PCCB) is an option as well as the Porsche Active Suspension Management (PASM) and the adaptive sports seats with memory function.

The systems optimized flow is adapted to an ecu upgrade resulting in that enormous 620 hp. Afterwards the performance package is installed the sprint from 0-100 km/h (0-60 mph) is done within 3,32 sec.

An also important component of this upgrade is represented due to the upgraded forged multipiece wheels 6Sporz². All high quality wheels are handcrafted exclusively with components Made in Germany.

2011 VOLKSWAGEN RACE TOUAREG 3 QATAR

This is a genuine Rally motorsport vehicle, like the one that was still touring South America in the Dakar Rally two weeks ago and was built to withstand the toughest rally race in the world. The vehicle now being shown in Qatar is a version of the Race Touareg 3 – an SUV that can sprint to $100 \, \text{km/h}$ in less than six seconds – that is legally approved for use on public roadways. The just over two metre wide body was slightly modified for road use. Instead of 16-inch wheels, new 18-inch wheels from BBS with a gold look are being used. The "Race Touareg" signature – also in a golden colour - stretches the entire length of the vehicle's sides. In turn, it is perfectly coordinated with the exterior paint in "Magic Morning," a white that has a slight gold shimmer to it.

The interior was completely redesigned; all that remained unmodified was the safety cage. Without compromises also means an interior that offers easy controls and is ergonomic. The interior has an extremely well-organised appearance with focus on the driving machine, and it is equipped with Recaro racing bucket seats. Designers created an interior in so-called "Stealth look" that is reminiscent of the aircraft of the same name. In tribute to the Dakar Rally, the Dakar victories are etched in the anodised aluminium of the centre console, right next to the "Race Touareg" signature.

Other trim elements are treated in Matt Carbon. Tuned to this is the roll cage in "Serpentino Grey Metallic." Interior designers have upholstered the seat side supports and the door trim panels with Nubuk leather in "Black" and "Pure Grey," while the centre seat panels are made from perforated Nappa leather in "Titan Black." Additional accents include the two-tone seams and silver piping on the seat covers and safety-related items painted in "Tornado Red." The only other ingredient that is needed is some time to explore the world on a "360 degree route" in this uncompromising car.

» 2011 McLaren MP4-12C

Following a successful public world debut at Goodwood Festival of Speed, and a series of exclusive presentations to prospective customers and media across the globe in 2010, the first McLaren MP4-12C high-performance sports car has begun production at the McLaren Technology Centre (MTC) in Woking, England.

McLaren Automotive plans to build up to 1,000 12Cs in 2011. Most will be manufactured in a bespoke new £40m McLaren Production Centre, which is due for completion in May on a site adjacent to MTC. However, 'Chassis 01' is being built in the existing MTC production facility, where outstanding quality and highly efficient production methods have been fine-tuned since the Foster + Partners-designed building opened in 2004.

The innovative 12C was first presented to the public at the famous Goodwood Festival of Speed in southern England in July 2010, prior to a North American debut at the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance in August. 12Cs were then presented at exclusive events to prospective customers and media around the world as McLaren Automotive toured many of the cities that will form a network of 35 retailer launch locations.

Milestone events in the 2010 launch year for the 12C have been captured in a new short film, which can be viewed online at McLaren Automotive's official You Tube channel: www.youtube.com/mclarenautomotivetv

This short film features appearances from Lewis Hamilton and Jenson Button, the 2008 and 2009 FIA Formula 1 Drivers' World Champions. Both have enjoyed testing prototype 12Cs and continue to feed back their thoughts on the car's development. The video also captures visitors' reactions to the 12C at its debut events. Brand new footage reveals McLaren Automotive's Chief Test Driver Chris Goodwin taking the car winter testing at Dunsfold Aerodrome – also known as the BBC Top Gear test track – as he assesses ESP calibration on Winter settings as part of the 12C's variable Proactive Chassis Control system.

Antony Sheriff, McLaren Automotive Managing Director said: "Meeting our prospective customers at launch events around the world, from Dubai to Cape Town, Paris to Los Angeles, has filled us with inspiration. There is genuine desire for McLaren to be launching our own range of sports cars, and an exciting appreciation of what McLaren stands for: innovation, technology leadership, and a winning mentality.

"In five years, the MP4-12C has evolved from a concept we developed in our own Formula 1 simulator, to a groundbreaking high-performance sports car offering unique technologies and outstanding dynamic performance. It has been an intensive development programme, but now the fun really begins as our future owners look forward to taking delivery of their 12Cs.

BEAT A SPEEDING TICKET

eing a woman certainly helps, but you don't have to be female to get out of a speeding ticket. Here are a few tips to get on your way without having to pay up for your speeding blunders.

When you've been pulled over, the way you speak to the officer can make or break the deal. Make special sure to always call the policeman or woman "Officer." Don't make the mistake of calling a female officer anything along the lines of "Miss," "Ma'am" or "Darling," as it can be misconstrued as flirting or insubordination. A lot of times, policewomen will write a disrespectful guy a ticket just to prove a point.

Talking to the officer before he says anything can help the situation. Start things off by asking for directions because you're lost and late for your niece's dance recital. Explaining yourself in a way that shows it was an honest mistake can get you on your way free and clear if you happen to catch the officer on a good day.

While you may be tempted to come up with a big, elaborate lie that is ultimately unbelievable, a simple explanation can be much more effective. Blame a stomachache and make it known that you're in need of a bathroom ASAP. He may just let you go on your way, as he probably doesn't want to deal with the repercussions of keeping you captive. Apologize if he does address your speeding, and explain that you hadn't noticed because of the awful pain in your stomach. Just blame the Mexican food you had for lunch.

Another way to get out of a speeding ticket may take some commitment, but you could pretend that you simply don't speak English. An impatient officer may just let you go with a warning if he's had a long day. Make sure that you really commit to this if you decide to go this route—don't answer your phone while in his presence and blow your cover.

Crying works. If you can, just cry your eyes out and go on about how you have no money, and you're afraid your family will go hungry, and you just don't know how you'll ever go on. Talk about the expense of putting your mother in a retirement community, and how it's sad that she's lonely after her husband died. The more specific, the more realistic.

So now you know what to say, but more importantly, you need to learn what not to say. Never ask if you were speeding, or any other violation it could have been, as the officer perceives this as an admission of guilt. Don't ask what the problem is—another one that cops hear all day, every day. This leaves yourself open to a snippy retort that will escalate the hostility on both your parts. Also, don't bother asking to see the radar gun, as he can easily adjust it before handing it over. Mentioning that you are being treated unfairly because of your race will just annoy the cop, just as telling him to "be cool."

Also, be careful to stay in your car at all times, and ask permission to go into your glove box before you make any sudden movements. Always let the officer know where you are going to reach before doing so, such as in your pockets or under your seats. Remember to always look the officer in the eye, to be respectful and never, under any circumstances, offer a cop a donut.

IS IT LOVE OR LUST?

If it's true that men are such beasts, this must account for the fact that most women are animal lovers. Doris Day

We want to be loved; that is our nature. We all want to be held, touched, caressed and shown sincere affection. We want to find that person who will nurse us when we are sick, feed us when we are hungry, clothe us when we are naked, and shelter us when we are homeless. God created us to love Him and to love one another. Loving God seems sweet and easy enough; it is the 'loving each other' that can seem a bit complicated.

How far do we go to obtain that delicious, beautiful and amazing romance that both women and men secretly dream about? When it comes to the fruit of love, people are willing to go all the way. With women, this is especially true. We meet someone who is oozing with virility and unbridled sex appeal. He takes great interest in everything we do and soy, hanging on to every word that comes out of our mouths; and he has a smile that would give sight to the blind. You like him a lot and he 'seems' to like you also, but is he just using you for sex? Here are 7 ways to determine if you are being used for sex:

1. He is the king of email and text message.

Text messages and email are great and convenient, but when a person takes the time to pick up the phone and speed dial your number, that speaks volumes. The only two things that are better are a written/greeting card or an actual physical visit.

2. You turn him on.

That is his response to why every time he sees you, he wants to have sex. This is especially true if every time he sees you or speaks with you, he mentions a favorite body part that you own. You are more than just a sex symbol; you are a creation of God.

3. He wears his sunglasses at night.

He only prefers to go out at nighttime; nighttime is always the right time for anonymous sex. His excuse is that "It's getting late; there isn't nothing else to do. We might as well head on in." Daylight avails more time to have fun and the sunlight is good for the skin; not to mention more people are out to see you during the day. Is he ashamed of you?

4. When your little 'red headed friend' (period, menstruation) shows up, he never comes around. Unless there is a kinky fetish involved, most men would prefer not to have sex with a woman while she is enduring her monthly cycle. Not surprisingly, he is no different, but if a man really likes a woman, it wouldn't make any difference what's going on in her life.

5. When you try and reach out and touch him, he doesn't return the favor.

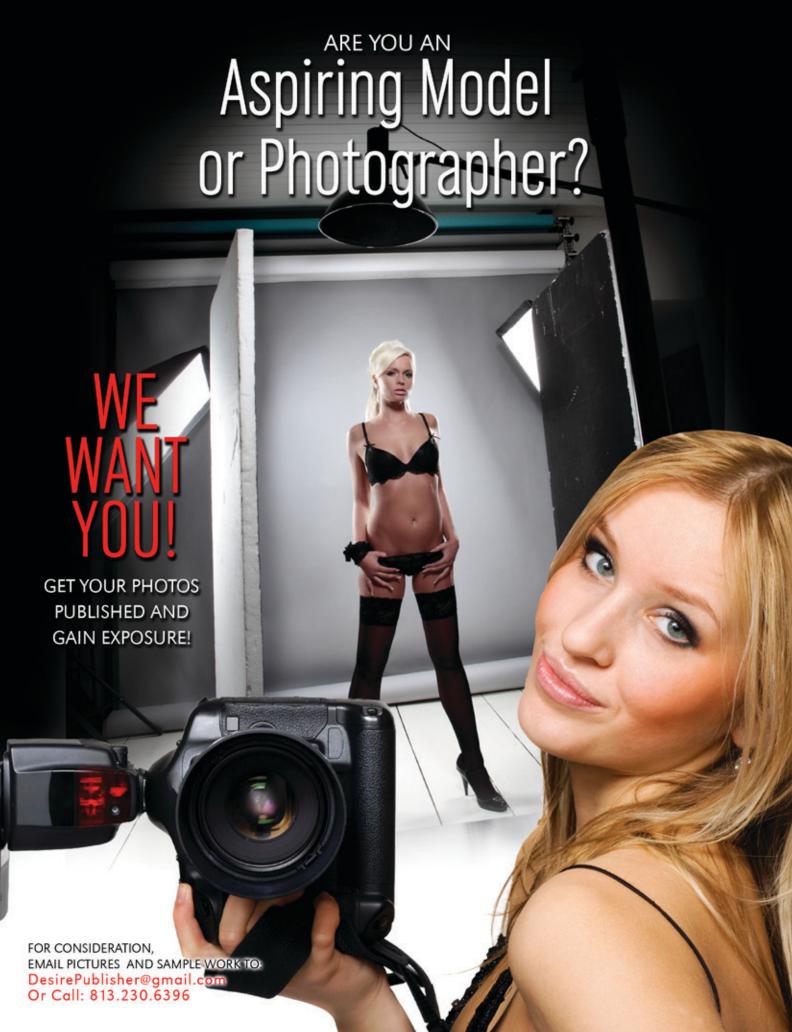

If you are trying to touch base with him about anything, going out, seeing how he is doing or if he is still alive, he should have the decency to text or email a response back. It's called being considerate.

6. You want to meet each other's families and he resists profusely.

When a couple begins the process of meeting each other's loved ones, that says 'commitment'. If things don't work out, and he decides to hook up with someone else, and your family sees this, it could turn ugly for both parties.

7. He is the Dr. of Love. (In his mind anyway.)

If every conversation is about sex this, sex that, and making love, then he doesn't see you as a future wife; he sees you as a present day hook-up. Men will bring up sex to see how far a lady is willing to go. If she takes the bait and follows his lead, he will pull her along until they both end up in the bed.

How to Fly For Less

he best way to save money on travel expenses is to plan ahead. Generally, booking tickets 21 days in advance is the most common time frame where budget tickets are available, with some travel sites offering them in as little as 14. Starting to do your research ahead of time can give you options that you may not have if you wait until the last minute, and this is especially so during the holiday season.

Asking about other travel options is a great way to customize your trip and possibly save you some cash. Don't just be compliant with what your travel agent or airline company offer- find what else is available to you, such as discounted hotels or savings when you add a rental car to your trip. You may be surprised with how far you can stretch your dollar if you take the time to do the research. Being flexible with your travel dates and times can help you trim your expenses. Flying on a red eye between the hours of 2am-5am can be less expensive than other times of day. Flights before 9am and after 5pm tend to be more expensive, as people traveling on business fill the seats up with no room for discounts. Also, try to fly on a Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday, as it costs less than traveling on the weekend.

Another good way to fly for less is to fly into another airport located in the same area as your ultimate destination. A lot of times there are secondary airports that lie on the outskirts of major cities that tend to be generally less busy and most often times, less expensive. A cheap cab or a bus ride into town may save you hundreds on your plane ticket.

Booking your flights through a travel site online can be very cost effective makes it easy to compare rates, times and sales. Staying informed about mergers or any news that is related to airlines can also result in reduced rates. Check your local newspaper for discounted rates, as they sometimes print last minute sales.

A really cost effective way to travel is to be an air-travel courier. Companies check their freight as luggage and pay discounted rates for their courier's ticket. The downside to this is that you have to deliver the company's freight when you get to your destination, and you can't check any of your own luggage, so you'll have to stuff everything into a duffel bag fit for the overhead bin. This can be, however, very financially beneficial if you're looking to travel overseas, as the discounted rates are significant.

CAPRICORN: DECEMBER 22-JAN 19

It's hard to be optimistic if you don't know whether you're coming or going. Your behavior will be understood by those who know you well. Seek their help to get yourself back on track. Your previous efforts may now bear fruit. A breakthrough may happen when you least expect it. New experiences appeal to your sense of adventure. You're well equipped to handle anything that comes your way. Converts to your cause will stand behind you, ready to back you up. This could be an excellent time for business if you can find anyone who feels like discussing it. Take a break from what you've been doing, and check in with your partner before going any further.

AQUARIUS: JAN 20- FEB 18

You are a very generous person, but someone's request may be going a little too far. One false word could create havoc. Your communication and intuitive skills are very strong, use them. You've got the moves to smooth and soothe even the wildest beast, boss or mate. Kids are putty in your hands and potential lovers will enjoy being around you. Just be yourself. You're so charming when you're feeling in control. You love to talk, however, do best to communicate carefully. Every syllable will be scrutinized. For that reason, it's probably better to say less than more. Prepare your answers in advance. Ad-libbing probably will not work.

PISCES: FEBRUARY 19- MARCH 20

Your words may not have come out right on the first attempt. Try again, and this time try adding a little more feeling, passion. Your mood will slow your busy pace down to one of maintenance and introspection. You may learn some bad news about someone who's close to you. Allow yourself the opportunity to vent your anger & sadness, without others present. Give yourself an imaginary deadline to help yourself to keep yourself in motion. Avoid impulsive decisions. Use some insight to resolve your differences. Use caution with alcohol or drugs, as you may be very sensitive at this time. Natural products may be a better buy than their chemically derived imitations, check the labels. Accept a gift given to you with the best of intentions

ARIES: MARCH 21-APRIL 20

Your moral standards are high enough to alienate some of your earthier associates. You know in your heart that certain acts of peer pressure must be resisted. A real promise can wait a few days before you accept it. There may be no way out of something you'd prefer to avoid. The people closest to you may have somehow turned into your biggest nemeses. Your life will not improve until you at least try to make things right. Success is within your reach, even if you don't care about succeeding. You have the power to do anything you want, and the natural grace to look good while doing it. Spend as much time as possible with loved ones & you'll start to see future prospects.

TAURUS: APRIL 21-MAY 20

Watch for ego clashes, everyone is entitled to his or her own opinion, even if you don't think it makes sense! You'll end up hearing the same old song one time too many. When your patience is running low, it's hard to keep your temper. Change the music before someone gets their feelings hurt. Your own morale soars when you surround yourself with rational people. Spirituality and money are not always mutually exclusive. Put your time to its best use by doing what is possible. You may arrive in the perfect place at the worst time. An overly ambitious reach might just get your hand slapped. Finish up your work and call it an early weekend.

GEMINI: MAY 21-JUNE 21

If wishes were horses, then people would ride ahead at full speed. You won't get anywhere by simply dreaming about where you'd like to go. Plan your ideal journey in short, manageable steps. No one has to tell you what your job is. Your intuitive performance makes you indispensable in the work place. Tune in to the human voices behind the jargon. You may be in need of a dose of positivity to raise your self-image. You need to realize the high regard in which others hold you. See your own accomplishments for what they are really worth. Don't ignore the world beyond the boundaries of your professional life. Your humanity will remain with you no matter how many career changes you make. Accept a gift given to you with the best of intentions.

CANCER: JUNE 22- JULY 22

You benefit from a new, take on an old, nagging problem. Review your behavior from a great intellectual distance. An impractical solution will only waste the time of everyone involved. Routine may be comforting, but the prospect of change is tantalizing. One part of you makes a decision while the other part is still thinking about it. A relationship might feel the strain of this week's activities. What you don't know can only confuse you. Drop your prejudice for a moment and ponder the person or the idea that you have grown to dislike. It takes a strong person to admit that he or she has been wrong. If you don't understand something, continue to listen to it. What seems useless at first could end up being crucial. Opposing ideas are not so far apart as you might have imagined. You hold your resources close, sensing an impending shortage. The problem may be one of personal dynamics rather than material properties.

LEO: JULY 23- AUGUST 23

This is not a good time to go into hiding. You may have to start over again, the alternative may be just too much to consider. Use an extreme situation to your advantage instead of letting it sweep you off your feet. You can't find concerns more basic than health, home, and family. Your mood will slow your busy pace down to one of maintenance and introspection. You're far more interested in cures than in simple band-aids. This is a good time for repaying generosity that has been shown to you in the past. The favors exchanged in a true friendship are never a burden. An action is as much fun as the results it produces.

VIRGO: AUGUST 23-SEPTEMBER 23

Pay special attention to the rules of the game & be thankful that someone bothered to teach them to you. You are able to soothe other's feathers, but lately due to your own insecurities, you have been very cold & distant. Break away from the negative aspects & dwell more on the positive. Try to avoid overindulgences. Your overly sensitive nature may tend to confuse people. If you don't explain things properly, misunderstandings are possible. For this reason, honest and precise communication are a necessity. You might understand, but you're not quite ready to publish your findings. There are still a few questions that must be answered. Do the walk that goes with your talk before your credibility starts to slip.

LIBRA: SEPTEMBER 23 - OCTOBER 23

Communicate with those who support your values. A deep conversation could change your life. A comfortable habit might be bad for business or maybe even bad for your health. There are no accidents, just consequences to your actions. Pay special attention to the things that are unseen and yet broadly obvious. This is the kind of management skill you need to use. Some activity may need to be eliminated if you are to meet all of your obligations. There is so much to deal with, both practically and personally. Use the week-end to catch up on returning phone calls or emails to family & friends.

SCORPIO: OCTOBER 23- NOVEMBER 21

Find and maintain your natural rhythm. Circumstances beyond your control may have you at your wit's end. Hang in there to discuss, argue, and make your points. Fighting is inevitable, but will only grind your energy to a halt. Work with your handicaps instead of denying or rebelling against them. Be especially careful where and how you spend your money. Keep your ears open to tips on finding real bargains. Research & store your information for future reference. Release your pent up stress with exercise or meditation and stop internalizing everything so much. Consider new ways to reduce the emotional stress you feel.

SAGITTARIUS: NOVEMBER 23 - DEC 21

The only reason why you aren't further ahead is that not enough people know about you. Your message may speak for itself, but turning on the charm certainly couldn't hurt. Your charisma puts you at the center of any social gathering. Exchange cards and make follow up calls to demonstrate your sincerity. No one can accuse you of not doing your part to build a community. Reach out to others in your time of need. You've given enough over the years, and now is the time to ask for something back. The results should be interesting. A real friend won't begrudge you anything you ask for.

HANGOVER CURES

So here we are again—lying in bed, staring at a spinning ceiling, stomach in knots, head pounding. Maybe it was only one too many, but it's probably more like four and now you're regretful. Before going to bed, pull out this cheat sheet to prevent the symptoms of a hangover.

Dehydration is the number one cause of feeling hung-over. Drinking a glass of water before going to bed is an effective way to skip feeling like you've been run over by a truck in the AM. Avoid hot or cold water, as your body accepts room temperature water most easily, and add some lemon, which can help comfort your stomach. Another solution would be to drink water in between alcoholic beverages throughout the night. If you don't feel like drinking water, go for some ginger ale, which can help soothe your stomach, or even juice or Gatorade. Both are full of vitamin C, which can help you regenerate your lack of energy.

Coffee seems like a good idea when enduring a hangover, as your tired body seemingly craves caffeine. Because coffee is also a diuretic, it will only upset your stomach, and the caffeine itself will dehydrate you. Also avoid any dairy products, as they can make you feel heavy and sluggish.

As far as food goes, try to eat while you're actually drinking the night of. If you're too distracted to bother with such things, try some toast and fruit in the morning. Keep the toast plain and replenish your body with the vitamins found in bananas, oranges and grapes.

Another way to remedy your post-drinking pangs is by ingesting a pill or two. Take aspirin or ibuprofen to help ease your headache, but look at the packaging first. Don't take acetaminophen-based pills, as they are not to be consumed while alcohol is in your system. Wait to take the pills in the AM, and if you don't have any lying around, take some vitamin C or a multivitamin.

It's no secret that sleeping is the best remedy of all for a hang over. It is recommended, however, that you get up and drink water, eat and take some vitamins or ibuprofen before hibernating for the day. These few things give your body what it needs to replenish itself as you catch some Zs.

These few tips have been known to alleviate some of the associated symptoms that follow a night of heavy alcohol consumption. Everyone's body reacts differently not only to the alcohol itself, but to the remedies used to combat its effects. Planning ahead and stocking your kitchen with these few key items may just recuperate your body just in time to get back out there Saturday night, after an over indulgent Friday of partying.
