

EDITORIAL

A glance at the contents page of this issue gives an indication of the scope of glycoconjugate research. All four of the topics appearing on our emblem are represented. The research covers pure carbohydrate synthesis, glycoconjugate structure and metabolism, and various functional aspects including cancer, monoclonal antibodies and lectins.

An innovation is the inclusion of colour plates in two of the articles. Whilst printing in full colour is quite costly and the cost must be borne by the authors, we believe our rates are very favourable when compared to other journals.
