FEBS Advanced Course on Glycoconjugates. Lille, France, September 8-20, 1986.

The Laboratory of Biological Chemistry (Laboratoire Associé au C.N.R.S. no. 217) of the Université des Sciences et Techniques de Lille organizes in September 1986 a FEBS Advanced Course on the Methodology of the Structure, Metabolism and Molecular Biology of Glycoconjugates, with the participation of H. Egge, F. Hemming, C. Hughes, R.W. Jeanloz, M. Monsigny, H. Schacter, R. Schauer, N. Sharon, J.F.G. Vliegenthart and of the scientific staff of the Laboratory.

The number of participants is limited to 25. Teaching will consist of general lectures, round tables and mainly practical works on the following topics:

Preparation and fractionation of glycolipids, glycoproteins, glycopeptides and glycans.

HPLC of sugars and derivatives.

Determination of glycan-peptide linkage (β -elimination and hydrazinolysis).

Colorimetric, chromatographic and electrophoretic determination of neutral sugars, hexosamines, uronic acids, sialic acids.
Glycosidases (exo- and endoglycosidases): isolation, activity determination, application to the study of the structure of glycoconjugates.
Permetylation and identification of methylated sugars.
High resolution-NMR and mass-spectrometry of sugars and derivatives.
Biomembranes: isolation, membrane enzymes and glycoconjugates, receptors.
Membrane lectins.
Lectins.

Biosynthesis and catabolism of glycoconjugates. Lipid intermediates.

Application deadline: May 1, 1986. Course fee: FF 3 500 (including meals and accommodation). Students may apply to the FEBS Travel Fund to cover the cost of their travel and for accommodation and subsistence.
