EIGHTH ASIAN THERMOPHYSICAL PROPERTIES CONFERENCE (ATPC 2007)

Fukuoka, Japan

August 21–24, 2007

The Asian Thermophysical Properties Conference (ATPC) is established as one of the three major worldwide conferences on thermophysical properties held every three years in U.S.A., Europe, and Asia. The 8th ATPC will be held at the Centennial Hall of Kyushu University, located in Fukuoka, Japan on August 21–24, 2007. Fukuoka city has the geographical advantage of being close to the Korean Peninsula and China, and from the ancient times has been serving as a gateway to import Asian culture. Technical session topics include but are not limited to: thermodynamic properties, transport properties, optical and thermal radiative properties, interfacial properties, methods of measurement, data correlation along with the application of thermophysical properties in heat and mass transfer, materials designs, biology, space science, new energy, new agriculture, refrigeration and air-conditioning, building and environment, fuel cell, chemical engineering, and metallurgy.
