

Professor Yasuo Mori on his 65th birthday

ON BEHALF of the Editors and the Editorial Advisory Board Members associated with the International Journal of Heat and Mass Transfer we wish to join our Japanese colleagues in wishing Professor Yasuo Mori a happy and healthy 65th birthday.

Professor Mori served for 13 years as the Japanese editor of our Journal, from 1973 to 1986. Under his stewardship the Journal has maintained its pre-eminent status as the leading journal in the field of heat transfer throughout Asia. The technical contributions to the Journal from Japan and the surrounding countries have continued to grow over these years and the number of journal subscriptions in Japan are second only to the United States. Professor

Mori has clearly set a high standard of performance as editor, a standard which will be difficult to match.

We thank him for his contributions to the Journal and for his contributions to Heat Transfer. We are pleased that he is remaining on the Editorial Advisory Board so that we may take advantage of his wise counsel. Again, many happy and healthy returns to Professor Mori on his 65th birthday.
