

Editor's Note

Beginning in 1985, the frequency of publication of the International Journal of Thermophysics is increased from four to six issues a year.

On this occasion, it is a pleasure to acknowledge the valuable contributions of the authors, the enthusiastic support of the readers, and the efforts of the members of the Editorial Board during the formative period of the journal. Their trust in this new journal enabled it to grow to better serve the international thermophysics community.

We look forward to your continued support and contributions.
