

Mammary Branching Morphogenesis Requires Reciprocal Signaling by Heparanase and MMP-14

Angélica Maciel Gomes, Ramray Bhat, Ana Luísa Correia, Joni D. Mott, Neta Ilan, Israel Vlodavsky, Mauro S.G. Pavão, and Mina Bissell

1668

ACCEPTED MANUSCRIPT ONLINE 3 MARCH 2015

Gomes et al. report a reciprocal association between levels of heparanase and MMP-14, a membrane-bound MMP, shedding light on how branching occurs within developing mammary glands.