

Who's Who in Fluorescence 2004

Scientists and workers in academia, industry, or government employing fluorescence in their everyday working lives are invited to apply for entry in the Who's Who in Fluorescence 2004 volume.

The annual volume, edited by Chris D. Geddes and Joseph R. Lakowicz, publishes the names, addresses, contact details, and a brief paragraph describing fluorescence workers specialties.

To apply for entry in the Who's Who in Fluorescence 2004 volume, complete the personal template (Word 2000 format) found at <http://cfs.umbi.umd.edu/jf/> and e-mail to: wwif@cfs.umbi.umd.edu no later than August 31, 2003. Unsuccessful entries will be notified within 1 month of submission.

Personal half-page entries in the Who's Who in Fluorescence 2004 are free of charge. Further instructions may be found in the "Instructions for Authors" found in both last year's volume and at <http://cfs.umbi.umd.edu/jf/>.

Companies in Fluorescence 2004

Companies may submit a full-page company profile in the Who's Who in Fluorescence 2004 volume for a fee of $500 (black and white) or $2000 (4-color); prices subject to change. Full-page templates may be found at <http://cfs.umbi.umd.edu/jf/>.

Institutions and Research Groups in Fluorescence 2004

Institutions, academic research groups, and centers of scientific excellence are invited to submit full-page profiles in the Who's Who in Fluorescence 2004 volume for a fee of $250 (black and white) or $2000 (4-color), also using the company template found at <http://cfs.umbi.umd.edu/jf/>. Both company and institutional entries are to be submitted by August 31, 2003.
