

Call for Informative Editorials

With many of the new changes to the Journal of Fluorescence now in place I am pleased to announce a call for informative editorials.

Informative editorials are sought which:

- Describe a new and important concept or emerging topic in fluorescence, or the current state of opinion in a particular field and/or its history.
- Which discuss a controversial topic or paper, and
- Should be of wide interest to the fluorescence community.

There are no upper page limits for Editorials, but non-editorial Board Members are asked to inform the JoF editorial office of their intent, also enclosing a tentative title, beforehand. Editorials will be rapidly peer reviewed and will appear in the next available issue of the JoF so as to maintain their timeliness.

Chris D. Geddes
Editor-in-Chief, The Journal of Fluorescence