Papers on organophosphorus compounds

For several years the Journal of Organometallic Chemistry has not accepted for publication papers dealing with organophosphorus chemistry. On the other hand, papers on the organic chemistry of the other Group V elements, arsenic, antimony and bismuth, have always been taken as being within the scope of the Journal of Organometallic Chemistry, insofar as the compounds involved contained Group V element-carbon bonds.

It has now been decided that papers on organophosphorus compounds can be accepted if in the opinion of the Editors the material is of obvious interest to organometallic chemists.
