"There are many unclean things to think about. There are many worthless, trivial, time-wasting things to think about. There are so many hateful, unhappy and irritating things to think about.

"Clear them all out. Brush them out. Wash them out. Go out in the morning with a clean mind ready for the reception of the day's important events."

The thoughts of some exployees are elsewhere and not concerned with the work before them and, thus engrossed, they cannot make good, nor be good examples for others. Training to serve has a greater significance in this day of larger business volume, and overhead expenses.

Sir William S. Glyn-Jones Secretary British Pharmaceutical Society, etc., honorary member of the American Pharmaceutical Association, mention of whose visit has been made in prior issues of the Journal, addressed members of the several divisions of the drug trade in New

SIR W. S. GLYN-JONES.

York and Philadelphia. The speaker outlined the progress toward price maintenance in England and its present effectiveness has government support. Reference is made in an editorial of this number of the Journal, and parts of his address, made under other auspices, are printed in the May Journal. The arrangement is somewhat along the lines of the tri-partite agreement of unpleasant memory in this country; the difference is largely that it works in England. Uniform prices will be established here within a few years, perhaps sooner. There is nothing fairer than reasonable profit for all dealers—manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers. There is nothing more unreasonable than to expect any of them to do business at a loss; profit must come from somewhere.

In Philadelphia, Sir William, Lady Glyn-Jones, daughter, and Mr. J. A. Kennington, Secretary and Treasurer of the Association of Manufacturers of British Proprietaries, and Mrs. Kennington, were guests of local pharmacists and their ladies. After dinner, Sir William addressed representatives of the drug trade at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science. Dean Charles H. LaWall introduced the speakers—first Mr. Kennington, who spoke briefly, and then Sir William, who delivered his message most interestingly and instructively, for he knows his subject and all that pertains to the plan in England and the difficulties that obtain with such legislation here, but these, in his opinion, can be overcome.

After attending the meeting of the Proprietary Association in Toronto, the visitors returned to England. The only expression of regret heard was that their stay could not be extended, and that it was impossible for Sir William to visit more of the larger cities in the United States. It should be stated that he is deeply interested in pharmacy and was highly pleased with his reception, his visit at the college, and inspection of several pharmacies, where he gained a different viewpoint from that given him by casual observance from the outside.

Prof. C. O. Lee, who has been in China for several years and will be remembered for his interest in the work of the Sections, will return to the United States in time for the Des Moines meeting.

Prof. A. B. J. Moore, of Montreal, sailed for Australia, May 27, for an extended visit. Prof. Otto P. M. Canis was the guest at Fordham senior class banquet, June 6. He is retiring from the professorship of Materia Medica and Pharmacology. The female members of the student body presented the professor with a loving cup as an expression of their esteem.

Dean Jacob Diner attended the meetings of the American Medical Association during the last week of May, in Atlantic City. Edward Sheely, chairman of N. A. R. D. exhibit committee, Memphis, and Harold Gilbert, of The Druggist, and chairman of the convention committee attended the meeting of the Arkansas Association of Pharmacists in Little Rock.

McCloskey, trustee of New York College of Pharmacy and active in New Jersey pharmaceutical affairs, expresident of the State Association, etc., and Ex-President S. L. Hilton of the American Pharmaceutical Association.

Following the dinner Dr. and Mrs. Hostmann further celebrated the event by a motor trip to Washington, Shenandoah Valley, Staunton, Monticello, Richmond (Va.) and Chapel Hill. While at Chapel Hill, Dr. Hostmann addressed the graduating class in pharmacy at the University of North Carolina.

Professor Hostmann is Chairman of New York Branch, A. Ph. A., secretary of New Jersey Pharmaceutical Association, etc.

Dr. Leo. G. Penn, of Temple University, has contributed a message of action to the Campaign Committee of the American Pharmacy Headquarters. The matter of housing, in his opinion, is secondary to the coöperative work which will be carried on there.

Herman A. Metz, of New York, has announced an offer of a prize of $100,000 to be given to the one who first produces morphine synthetically at a price lower than the natural product. The views of Dr. Metz are that morphine should be taken out of the realm of the agrarian and made a product of the laboratory where the distribution of the narcotic can be controlled.

The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy for May has as frontispiece a picture of our fellow-member Edward L. Tarkenton, of Wilson, N. C. A sketch accompanies the frontispiece; he is a member of Patterson Drug Company and was president of North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association, 1915–1916.

This fall a new building is to be occupied by North Carolina University School of Pharmacy. An interesting but brief sketch in the beforementioned publication speaks of the work of Dean E. V. Howell. Everyone of the regular attendants at the AMERICAN PHARMACEUTICAL Association meetings knows of the energy that characterizes the Dean. The growth of the institution is in a large measure due to the latter's determination to succeed wherever and whenever an advantage is to be gained for pharmacy. Many learned to know him better at the Asheville meeting and no one, perhaps, is better qualified to speak than the editor of the Carolina Journal of Pharmacy. In referring to the institution and the building, he says: "The price was an earnest man's complete giving of everything he had of body, mind and heart, to an enterprise that was begun in brains and purpose, found growth in zeal and effort, and is now full statured because Dean Howell willed with all his soul that it grow up to his ideal of what a college of pharmacy should be." The growth of North Carolina's A. PH. A. membership is referred to under Local Branches, in this number of the JOURNAL.

Caswell A. Mayo, in a recent issue of the Merrell Messenger, "snapshots" "N. A. R. D. officials off duty" and, in a succeeding number, treats some of the A. Ph. A. members in like manner; all are very good but we are somewhat puzzled by the one of President Charles W. Holton and family.

Dean C. F. Heebner, of Ontario College of Pharmacy, for more than 25 years a member of the A. Ph. A., closed his address to recent graduates by saying: "Remember that you are citizens as well as pharmacists. Take an interest in public affairs and in all movements that tend to right wrongs, and correct abuses, and share in the uplift of mankind. Have a true public spirit."

Theophilus Schmid, Chicago pharmacist, has been appointed a member of the Chicago Board of Education by Mayor Dever.

Secretary William B. Day is a grandfather, a daughter having been born to Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Carson of Chicago, May 1. The mother's condition was very serious for a time, but she is now recovering. Many members will remember Miss Charlotte, who attended a number of A. Ph. A. meetings, and extend best wishes.

- E. W. Runyon, one of the golden anniversary members of the A. Ph. A., of New York, has recently returned from California and will join the pharmaceutical tourists July 9.
