LECTURESHIP.

PHARMACY WEEK.

Dean Ernest Little gave a radio address on "The Romance of Pharmacy" on a special Pharmacy Week Program, on coast-to-coast network of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

University of Florida broadcasted addresses by E. H. Rauch, B. L. White, E. J. Ireland, Victor Wray, Max S. Adler and C. G. Hamilton. A Pharmacy convocation was part of the week's program. Edward S. Rose, of Boerner's Prescription Pharmacy, Iowa City, displayed a Pharmacy Week window based on the Code of Ethics of AMERICAN PHARMACEUTICAL ASSOCIATION—1, The Pharmacist and the Public; 2, The Pharmacist and the Physician; 3, Relation of Pharmacists to Each Other. Certificates of membership in Associations, U. S. Phar-macopœia, National Formulary and eighty preparations of these standards were displayed.

The following is quoted from a radio talk:—"To-day more than a million dollars worth of vaccines and serums have been shipped into Africa from pharmaceutical laboratories of America and Europe, to safeguard soldiers from infection."

"The apothecary's art, bound up of old with mystery and superstition, has gone completely modern. It has none of the dusty, shabby-genteel aspect of old legends. The present trend is to make the prescription department the heart of the store, with ware and apparatus accurate, immaculate and aseptic. This same spirit is reflected in other departments, where everything from cosmetics to ice-cream sodas may be vended, all under professional supervision. To the consumer, this means simply better health protection in a variety of ways. Some day the public will demand of all retail stores that they be clean and well-equipped, adequately lighted and conveniently arranged for sanitary display of merchandise. The pharmacy, which has never lost its influence as a community gathering place, is leading the parade toward modernization."
