

DR. WILLIS G. GREGORY, Honorary President,
A. Ph. A., 1936-1937.

LADIES ENTERTAINED BY LOCAL COMMITTEE IN DALLAS.

Honoring the women attending the AMERICAN PHARMACEUTICAL ASSOCIATION convention held in Dallas, the wives of the Dallas members entertained with a breakfast at the Dallas Country Club following a sight-seeing tour of the city. Places were marked for 100 guests.

Mrs. R. M. Walmsley was chairman of the entertainment committee which was in charge of the arrangements for the breakfast.

Glenn L. Jenkins and Charles Bruening, of Baltimore, were awarded the Ebert Prize at the Dallas meeting of the AMERICAN PHARMACEUTICAL ASSOCIATION for their work on "The Assay of Syrups Containing Hypophosphites Official in the National Formulary."—See June JOURNAL A. Ph. A., pages 491-497.

Dr. Harmon W. Caldwell, of the University of Georgia, was the speaker at the dinner of the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy. He advocated that pharmacists should aid the physician by doing laboratory work for him.

Miss Alice Esther Garvin returned from a trip to Mediterranean ports of Europe, after a number of experiences but a safe return, to attend the Dallas meeting.

Miss Esther Barney insists on every visitor who comes within the scope of the pharmacy exhibit to carry away an idea of its purpose. Not as extensive, comparatively, it is as good as the best and attracts the attention of the visitors. In an earlier issue the value of exhibits was discussed. The pharmacy exhibit is well located and is visited daily by many, and the others engaged in medical displays show a helpful interest.

OBITUARY.

JAMES MESCHTER ANDERS.

James Meschter Anders, emeritus professor of medicine at the University of Pennsylvania Graduate School of Medicine, Philadelphia, died August 29, at his summer home in Blue Hill Falls, Maine, aged 82. Dr. Anders was chairman of the Section on Practice of Medicine of the American Medical Association from 1900 to 1901, a life member of the Clinical and Climatological Association, the Association of American Physicians and many other scientific and civic societies; past president of the American College of Physicians and the College of Physicians of Philadelphia.

WILLIAM OCHSE.

William Ochse, president of the San Antonio Drug Company, died September 10; he had been in poor health for more than a year. The deceased was connected with Meyer Bros. Drug Company, St. Louis, before joining with San Antonio Drug Company, of which he was president for a number of years. He was loyal to his adopted city and state and always ready to extend its hospitalities to visitors. He was emotional, deeply sentimental and kind.

Edwin O. Jordan, emeritus professor of bacteriology, University of Chicago, died at the Central Main General Hospital, Lewiston, Me., September 2, from cerebral thrombosis, aged 70.

Dr. Manzo Nakao, former chief of the Chinese Herbs Section of the Natural Science Laboratory, Shanghai, died July 30th. He was formerly associated with Department of Pharmacy in the Imperial University of Tokio, and thereafter studied in Germany. For a number of years he was in the service of the Central Research Laboratory of the South Manchuria Railroad. In late years he made a study of Chinese Herbs and was connected with the Natural Science Laboratory in Shanghai.
