HILAND FLOWERS.

Hiland Flowers died at his home in the Bronx, New York, on August 12, 1912, aged fifty-six years. Mr. Flowers was a graduate of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, class of 1876. A few years after graduating he went to New Orleans where he was superintendent of the Laboratory for the wholesale drug firm of E. J. Hart & Co. While there he assisted in organizing the Louisiana State Pharmaceutical Association, and was its first Recording Secretary. After being proprietor of a drug store on St. Charles Avenue, New Orleans, for several years, he removed to New York City. Finding indoor employment injurious to his health he became a traveling salesman, and at the time of his death was connected with the firm of Henry K. Wampole & Co., Manufacturing Pharmacists, of Baltimore, Md.

Mr. Flowers was a member of the New York branch of the American Pharmaceutical Association, and deeply interested in everything pertaining to pharmacy and chemistry.

He had unusual mechanical and literary talent. A pressure percolator bearing his name is illustrated and described in the Proceedings of the American Pharmaceutical Association for 1910. He contributed also a table to Martindale and Westcott's Extra Pharmacopoeia, showing the relative powers of various antiseptics and disinfectants.

<> HENRY WEIMAR.

Henry Weimar, of Hot Springs, Ark., died of valvular heart disease at Appleton, Wis., on Sunday, July 28, 1912, the home of his boyhood. Mr. Weimar was born on a farm near Milwaukee, in 1867, and went to Appleton as a small boy. He attended the public schools and was a graduate of the University of Wisconsin. After attending a college of pharmacy in Chicago, from which he was graduated, he located in Hot Springs, Ark., about twenty years ago, and became one of the most prominent citizens of that health resort. He was a charter member of the Hot Springs Lodge of Elks, vice president of the Arkansas State Board of Pharmacy, a former alderman of his city, and for years identified with pharmaceutical organization work. He became a member of the American Pharmaceutical Association in 1907. The members of the American Pharmaceutical Association who attended the Hot Springs meeting of the American Pharmaceutical Association in 1908 will ever remember his genial personality and cordial hospitality. The funeral was held at Appleton, where interment was made.

JACOB BAUR.

Jacob Baur, President and Treasurer of the Liquid Carbonic Company, died at Michael Reese Hospital, Chicago, on the night of July 19th following an operation for malignant intestinal trouble.

Mr. Baur was born at Louisville, Ky., October 12, 1856. After a public school education he began, at the age of 14, as a clerk in his father's drug store at Terre Haute, Ind. He graduated at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy in 1881, and for some years afterwards was the manager of the Baur Pharmacy at Terre Haute. At an early date he saw the possibilities of soda water as a side line for druggists, and directed especial attention to the development of processes for the liquefying and transportation of carbon dicxide for soda fountain use. This lead to the formation of the "Liquid Carbonic Company" and the establishment of laboratories, in 1888.

The Company grew rapidly from the start, added the manufacture of soda water syrups and flavors, soda fountains and soda apparatus generally, until the firm became one of the largest and most prosperous in the soda fountain industry.

Mr. Baur became a member of the A. Ph. A. in 1879, and to the last maintained a keen interest in the welfare of the Association and was a diligent student of the Proceedings and Bulletin, utilizing many of the suggestions there found in the development of his business.

He leaves a widow and infant daughter. Interment was made at Terre Haute, Ind., July 22d.
