

The Season's Message

Christmas has been for centuries, and ever will be, the commemoration of the spirit of a little Child who came to earth a long time ago, and received homage and gifts from wise men of that day.

During this season of the year worries and perplexities of life should be forgotten and dropped off like an old coat of old years, and all of us stand forth, shining and glad, young in our strength and hopeful in the presence and promise of the New Year.

Let us therefore join - if we are wise - in the spirit of the children, setting aside the thought of material gain, sharing with them the simple joys, thankful for the gifts of the year just passing, and giving them the homage due to their young purity.
