Evan T. Ellis was noted for his thoughtfulness and kindness to his family and friends, particularly to those who were in the drug business and who had fallen by the wayside in the struggle for existence. His life, after retiring from business, was devoted to good works, he did not rest content by contributing a handshake or pleasant smile to needy unfortunates, but he would do his utmost in every case to procure situations for them or send them food, medicine or help of a practical character.

The funeral of Mr. Ellis was held on October 14, 1913, from the residence of his son, Evan Tyson Ellis, Jr., 4728 Hazel Avenue, West Philadelphia, being attended by representatives from the organizations with which the deceased had been connected, and many friends and relatives.

COUNCIL LETTER No. 4.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15, 1913.

To the Members of the Council:

Motions No. 4 (Election of Applicants Nos. 1 to 8 inclusive), No. 5 (Election of Chicago Representative to the Committee on Transportation), and No. 6 (Election of Representative to Committee on Transportation from St. Paul or Minneapolis), have each received a majority of affirmative votes.

Charles B. Whilden, of San Francisco, is no longer a member of the American Pharmaceutical Association, and it is in order to elect a representative to the Committee on Transportation from San Francisco.

Motion No. 7 (Election of Representative to Committee on Transportation from San Francisco). Moved by F. M. Apple, seconded by J. W. England, that Fred I. Lackenbach, of San Francisco, be elected a member of the Committee on Transportation to represent San Francisco.

Francis Hemm, elected a member of the Committee on Unofficial Standards at Nashville, to succeed C. E. Vanderkleed (term expires 1913) declines to serve.

Motion No. 8 (Election of Member of Committee on Unofficial Standards). Moved by J. W. England, seconded by G. M. Beringer, that John G. Roberts, of Philadelphia, be elected a member of the Committee on Unofficial Standards, succeeding Francis Hemm.

Whereas, the "Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland" has succeeded the "American Bonding Company of Baltimore," which has heretofore bonded the Treasurer of the Association,

It is moved by J. H. Beal, seconded by H. M. Whelpley, that the bond of the Treasurer be renewed with the said Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland. This motion will be regarded as Motion No. 9. (Renewal of bond of Treasurer.) Appropriation for bond was made last January, so this will not need to go to Finance Committee.

The Philadelphia Branch of the American Pharmaceutical Association, at its meeting on October 7, elected Dr. Francis E. Stewart to succeed Franklin M. Apple (term expires 1915) as a member of the Council from the Philadelphia Branch; Mr. Apple resigned by reason of his election as First Vice President of the Association.

General Secretary Beal writes:

"I enclose herewith communication from the Chamber of Commerce, U. S. A.

"While it might be desirable to lend our moral support to the project, I do not see how, being principally a professional organization, we would be justified in making the annual contribution required of members.

"If the Chamber had a list of associate members consisting of such societies as ours, and from which only a nominal fee was exacted, I would be in favor of taking out such an associate membership."

The communication reads as follows:

Mr. J. H. Beal, Secretary,

The American Pharmaceutical Association,
Scio, O.

Dear Sir: In my judgment the business interests of the country have come upon a new day. The old day of buying political favor is gone, and the old day of extensive lobbies is passing, I expect, never to be returned. The new day is a day when the business interests of the country through an organization which they support and through which they speak, shall make known to those who are charged with making and interpreting our laws, the needs of American Business, the safeguards it requires and the protection it deserves.

Every worth-while force today is an organization force, and the finer the organization, the greater its efficiency. Labor is thoroughly organized; the agricultural interests of the country are well organized, and these organizations have a National force. The commerce of the country is organized into independent units, capable of speaking for a single community or a single line of business, but there is no organization in this country, save the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, capable of expressing the business sentiment of the entire country nor competent to unify the business sentiment upon the important economic questions and to safeguard its position in legislative halls.

I frankly believe that the Chamber of Commerce of the United States is the most important business factor to the commercial interests of America that exists today.

That four hundred local commercial associations and national trade bodies, representing forty-six states of the Union, are now affiliated with, and giving to the National Chamber their hearty support, demonstrates that this belief is shared by several hundred thousand representative business men of the country who are members of these affiliated associations.

I further believe that members of your organization will recognize the value of this movement and will exhibit the same splendid, unselfish interest in its ultimate success as those who are now giving it their support, once they fully comprehend its plans and purposes. Under separate cover, literature that will enable you to present to your directors such a comprehensive view, has been sent to you. The enclosed application bears on its reverse side a schedule of dues that will easily show just what your dues will be once you are a member of the National Chamber.

Certainly the splendid success of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States since its beginning in April, 1912, is a sufficient argument for your directors to no longer delay affirmative action.

Will you, please, give us word at your early convenience of the action of the directors in this matter. I will deeply appreciate the courtesy.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) H. A. WHEELER,
President.

It may be added that organizations are divided by the Chamber of Commerce into classes according to income, the dues ranging from $10 for an income of $2000 or less, to $700 for an income of $120,000 or more.

J. W. ENGLAND,
Secretary of Council.

KEEPING UP A "FRONT."

Under all circumstances, always keep up a good front. When things are going the very worst way for you, keep your chin up and a smile in your eye! "Laugh, and the world laughs with you! Weep, and you weep alone!" You'll get a whole lot more for being bright than you will for going around like an undertaker. Any kind of a chump can grin and look pleasant when everything is going his way; but it takes a brave, strong-hearted fellow to keep up a front when everything is going wrong, and the whole world seems dead against him! As I told you before, "Grin and bear it! You don't have to grin, but it is more gentlemanly to do so, and you'll have to bear it anyway!" Most people instinctively try to avoid trouble and sorrow, especially when they see it in some one's face; but they are attracted to a cheerful fellow; and when they find out that he is being cheerful under adverse circumstances, they not only admire the fight he makes, but they help him out.—Robert Lloyd.
