Harry Berst Mark, Jr., served as Regional Editor of the Journal of Solid State Electrochemistry from its beginning in July 1997. Over the years, he handled a large number of manuscripts with great care. Harry contributed considerably to the shaping of the journal. We both shared the general understanding that solid state electrochemistry is a broad field of scientific activities centered around solid electrolytes, solid electrodes and the electrochemistry of solid materials. This made it very easy for us to co-operate and to decide what is suitable for the journal. I will miss his advice and help very much, and I will always remember his noble character.
