Unfortunately, it happened that some information given in the Editorial of this issue is not entirely correct: At the State University of Kazakhstan in Alma-Ata, the scientific work of Nina Fjodorovna Zakharchuk was supervised by Academician Professor Mikhail Tikhonovic Kozlovskii, a leading specialist in electrochemical analysis, and also by Professor Ol'ga Alfredovna Songina. In 1966 Professor Judelevic invited N. F. Zakharchuk to build up an electroanalytical group at the Institute of Inorganic Chemistry in Novosibirsk and N. F. Zakharchuk moved to this place in the same year and continued her work there as a senior researcher. In 1968 she submitted her scientific work as a PhD thesis (in USSR/Russia: candidate of science degree) at the State University of Kazakhstan in Alma-Ata, although she never had the official status of a PhD student there.
