The lead-off meeting of the American Oil Chemists' Society for the Seventies decade will bring the Society once again to its legal home in New Orleans. The Spring Meeting dates are April 26-30, 1970, and for the first time, the location will be the Jung Hotel, on world famous Canal Street.

Once again the New Orleans Convention Committee is headed by R. T. O'Connor as General Chairman, aided and assisted by C. L. Hoffpauir as Vice-Chairman and Adviser. H. P. Dupuy, Chairman of the Technical Program Committee, promises an informative program covering the wide ranging interests of the various members of the Society. Sixteen organized sessions involving both symposia and technical sections are now being planned. Invitations for the submission of papers for presentation during these sessions have been sent out. In order to properly schedule papers and publish informative abstracts, three copies of a 100-300 word abstract with title, authors and speakers should be sent to H. P. Dupuy, Technical Program Chairman, Southern Reg. Res. Lab, 1100 Robert E. Lee Blvd., New Orleans, La., before December 1, 1969.

An outstanding program for the entertainment of the ladies attending the meeting is being arranged by Mrs. L. E. Brown and her Ladies Committee, taking advantage of both the old-world charm and all that is new and modern in the famed city at the Crescent of the Mighty Mississippi. In a family team effort, L. E. Brown, Entertainment Chairman, is planning the social events that assure that the 61st Annual Meeting will not be all work and no play for the members involved in the technical sessions.

The golf tournament, long a feature of the Spring Meetings, is being arranged by F. C. Magne, the "old pro" of the AOCS golfers, for the traditional Tuesday afternoon before the annual banquet.

Other members of the New Orleans Committee who will be concerned in making the first meeting of the 70's the best ever are: N. B. Knoepfler, Treasurer; H. K. Gardner, Jr., Registration & Reservations; W. A. Pons, Jr., Hotel Chairman; J. P. Hughes, Publicity; Joseph Pominski, AOCS Liaison; L. A. Goldblatt and H. L. E. Vix, Advisors.

Start planning now to be in New Orleans on April 26-30, 1970. As plans for the meeting unfold, the Journal will carry additional details.
