Four of the original Editorial Board Members (Sargeson, Busch, Gray and King) have contributed manuscripts to this special issue of the Journal of Coordination Chemistry honoring Professor Art Martell; the first two, Alan Sargeson and Daryle Busch, have continued on the Editorial Board for the 34 years of its existence. All of the manuscripts are from Editorial Board members (past and present).

Professor Arthur Martell showed great vision in founding the Journal of Coordination Chemistry and selecting the original Editorial Board. He also showed commitment to the Journal with his tenure as Editor and continuing Editorial Board service. We are grateful to him for his contributions and dedicate this issue to his memory.
