

7th international symposium on ceramics in medicine 28-30 July 1994 Turku, Finland

It is our pleasure to invite you to the 7th International Symposium on Ceramics in Medicine to be held in Turku, Finland. The symposium will cover the various aspects of the bioceramic field: clinical applications, materials characterization, tissue-material interactions and adverse reactions. The scientific programme will include invited plenary lectures and contributed oral and poster presentations. In addition, the symposium will include a seminar on 'The Biology of Mineralized Tissues' given by invited speakers.

The participants will be provided with a versatile social programme and the accompanying persons will have their own day-time programme. We also hope that you will use this opportunity to experience Finland or its neighbouring countries more closely during the pre- and post-congress tours.

Please ask for more information as well as the registration package from:
