MAGNETIC STIRRER

MAGNETIC STIRRING APPARATUS, A.H.T. Co.

Specification. A compact, quiet-running apparatus which utilizes a rotating field of magnetic force to induce variable speed stirring action within either closed or open vessels. Now offered with enclosed rheostat, which will facilitate manipulation in some assemblies, in addition to separate rheostat.

Stirring is accomplished by means of a small magnetized bar, which is placed in the liquid to be stirred and which is rotated by magnetic force applied beneath the container. This force consists of a permanent bar magnet attached to the shaft of an electric motor and mounted in an aluminum housing with flat top $4\frac{3}{8}$ inches diameter and $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches high, on cast metal base. Can be used either on the table or on a support rod, attached by means of the clamp with swivel joint, an exclusive feature of the Thomas Stirrer.

Suitable for any stirring operation which involves 1 ml to 1 liter of liquids with viscosities up to that of a 50% glycerol solution. Particularly convenient for use in closed systems.

9235-C. Stirring Apparatus, Magnetic, with enclosed rheostat, A.H.T. Co. Specification. Rheostat, with graduated dial, is mounted in stirrer housing. Complete with two Stirring Bars, i.e., one Kel-F coated, $\frac{7}{8}$ -inch long; the other Pyrex brand glass coated, $1\frac{1}{4}$ inches long; also cord, plug, and directions for use. Power consumption 7 watts; for 115 volts, 60 cycles, a.c. only 35.25

9235-G. Ditto, but without Stirring Bars 31.00

can give Increased clarity!

This is really an odd one. It started with a bottle of distilled water in a Dicalite laboratory, tight-stoppered in a sterile container. For certain reasons we had cause to question it. So we filtered it, using the finest grade of Dicalite filteraid - and removed microscopic solids which had survived distillation!

While this was a laboratory matter, it is of real importance to every man concerned with the clarification of process liquors, or with the separation of finely divided solids from liquids. If you require filtration so "sharp" that it will trap better than 95% of bacteria and other sub-micron-sized solids, there are Dicalite filteraids that do just that. Other Dicalite filteraids give faster flow-rates, yet still yield filtrates of sparkling clarity. No matter what your standard of clarity, there is a Dicalite filteraid which will meet it, or surpass it. We will be glad to advise with you on your particular process problems. Write us!
