H. B. Battle, president of the American Oil Chemists' Society, announced the two-day 15th annual meeting of the Society on May 5 and 6 at the Roosevelt hotel, New Orleans, La. This is the sixth meeting to be held at the Roosevelt, formerly the Grunewald hotel. He comments that "the visiting ladies, of course, will be looked after by a local Ladies' Committee, and should they not choose to attend our convention in a body, their husbands or other natural protectors will know they are in competent hands."

The May 1924 issue of the Chemists' Section of the Cotton Oil Press contained the following committee reports: Seed Committee Report, by T. L. Roettger; Refining Committee Report, by H. J. Morrison; Spent Fullers' Earth Extraction Committee Report, by P. P. Hindelang; and the Membership Committee Report, by H. J. Morrison.

An article dealing with the loss of nitrogen from compost and manure heaps, entitled "Nitrogen Losses from Composts," by F. H. Smith, Georgia Experiment Station, Experiment, Ga., appeared in the May 1924 Chemists' Section.

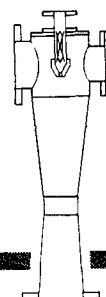

J. W. Jenkins (1952), a group leader in the Analytical Section of Colgate-Palmolive's Corporate Research Department, Jersey City, N.J., has been named to direct the Instrumentation Group and the Organic Identification Group.
