

Second Call for Nominations, Honored Student Award

A second call for nominations for the spring and fall recipients of the AOCS Honored Student Award has been issued by S. S. Chang, Chairman of the Award Committee.

The Honored Student Award Program, established in 1963 under the direction of the AOCS Education Committee, recognizes outstanding preparation for a career in the field of fats and oils by awarding selected graduate students an opportunity to attend Spring and Fall Technical Sessions. Those selected receive all-expense-paid trips to either of the two AOCS Annual Meetings: round trip air fare, registration and activities fees, hotel and meal expenses.

Nominations are based on (a) research in the field of fats and oils, average time spent in this research, and number of years the student has been conducting research; (b) accredited courses in the field, the number of credit hours compiled, including subjects indirectly related to fats and oils; (c) publications in the field of lipids to which nominees have contributed as either senior author or co-author, and (d) actual working experience, either academic or industrial. Final selection of winners is based on a combined gross scoring of the categories above.

The Honored Student Award has been given to 30 students during the period 1963-1967. Of these, six are now working in the fats and oils industry, eight are conducting research and teaching in universities in the chemistry of lipids, and the remainder are continuing work on graduate degrees.

Any faculty member of a college or university may nominate students for the Award. Those who have attended at least one AOCS Meeting or have published at least one technical paper in JAOCS or Lipids are especially invited to submit nominations.

Requests for information and nomination forms should be addressed to Dr. Stephen S. Chang, Food Science Department, Rutgers, The State University, New Brunswick, N. J. 08903.

Linda Marie Parker to Receive Third AOAC Wiley Scholarship Award

Miss Linda Marie Parker, Clemson University, is the winner of the third 2-year Wiley scholarship award given by the Association of Official Analytical Chemists, K. L. Milstead, Chairman of the Awards Committee, has announced. Stephen L. Taylor, Oregon State University, and S. F. Viglione, Rutgers University, won the annual award in 1966 and 1967, respectively.

Miss Parker is entering her third year at the Clemson University, Clemson, South Carolina, and is majoring in Food Science. In 1966 she was valedictorian of the class of 1966, Hebron High School, Cades, South Carolina, and has maintained an outstanding scholastic record in her college studies.

The AOAC Scholarship Award is given in honor of Harvey W. Wiley, one of the founders of the AOAC. It consists of $600 with $300 to be given the winner during each of his last two years in undergraduate college study. Candidates are selected according to academic standing, financial need, and interest in a scientific career related to regulatory or research activities in commodity areas important to agriculture and public health.

Nominations for next year's award are invited and should be forwarded by May 1, 1969, to the Executive Secretary, Association of Official Analytical Chemists, Box 540, Benjamin Franklin Station, Washington, D.C. 20044. Further information on the award is available at this address.

San Francisco . . .

been set aside for the Past President's Dinner, held in one of San Francisco's outstanding restaurants selected by that distinguished group. For other members and guests in attendance at the 60th Meeting, Monday evening will be an open date for those who wish to dine in the many restaurants that have made San Francisco cuisine famous throughout the world, to enjoy the off-beat bistros and celebrated jazz cellars, and to pursue other facets of the night life for which San Francisco is renowned.

The annual Golf Tournament, long a standard feature of the spring meetings of AOCS will be played on Tuesday afternoon, April 22. Lowell Cummings, Golf Committee Chairman, has made arrangements for play at the beautiful and challenging San Geronimo Golf and Country Club across the Golden Gate Bridge in Marin County. To leaven the competitive spirit, a number of valuable prizes being collected by the Golf Committee will be awarded to the winners in the various categories of scoring. Concurrently with the Golf Tournament on Tuesday afternoon, an interesting and varied group of plant trips have been arranged by Bill Wood, Plant Trip Chairman.

The crowning social event of the San Francisco meeting will take place on Tuesday evening, April 22 with the banquet and dinner dance in the Continental Ballroom of the Hilton. This event will feature an outstanding floor show, a menu selected from the superb cuisine of the Hilton's famous chefs, and music for dining and for dancing to follow by Walt Tollefson's Orchestra.

The San Francisco 60th Annual Meeting will introduce a "first" to the spring meeting of AOCS, an extension of time for the overall meeting. Instead of ending, as in the past, on Wednesday afternoon the Meeting will be extended one full day, concluding after the Installation Luncheon and Awards Presentations at midday, Thursday, April 24. Wednesday evening, like Monday evening, will be left free for the registrants' choice of "discovering" San Francisco for themselves.

Ladies Program

Mrs. T. H. Applewhite
Ladies
Entertainment Chairman

Mrs. Harriet Applewhite and the members of her Ladies Entertainment Committee are very enthusiastic about the program they are planning for the ladies who will be accompanying their husbands to the Spring Meeting. The program will be varied and interesting and will thus afford the ladies many pleasant hours in "the City by the Golden Gate." In addition to the usual breakfasts, luncheons, entertainment and door prizes there will be many special attractions such as a cruise on the San Francisco Bay, rides on the Cable Cars, visits to Chinatown and Fisherman's Wharf, and a tour of the famous California Wine Country. Shopping sprees can be enjoyed by all on a moment's notice as the hotel is conveniently located close to a variety of stores. Mrs. Applewhite therefore recommends that all ladies begin dropping the hint to their husbands: "Take me along, if you luv-a me."

As the program and events take shape, another outstanding meeting of the Society seems assured. The San Francisco Committee extends a cordial welcome to "Baghdad-by-the-Bay" and looks forward to seeing each of the members on April 20-24.
