

April 2004 Number 432

Following hypnotic regression, Stanley Romanek was able to draw the above sketch ofentities that he says he encountered in the early morning hours of Sept. 21, 2001, at his home. A discussion by Deborah Lindemann of the hypnosis segment of this complicated, fascinating, and continuing case begins on Page 3.

The Stan Romanek Case:

The hypnosis segment

By Deborah Lindemann, C.H.T.

The Stan Romanek case is one of the most extraordinary UFO encounter cases I have worked with since I began researching UFO encounter cases in 1985.

Stan's case is complex, with a wealth of evidence on many levels. There is extensive first-hand video from several sightings events, numerous credible witnesses corroborating the events, and an ongoing series of sightings in the Denver, CO, area beginning on Dec. 27, 2000 (see March, 2004, Journal).

Stan's anomalous experiences continue to this day. There has been physical evidence on Stan's body, in his hands, as well as in his yard. In addition, during and after our hypnotic session he drew advanced mathematical equations that far surpassed his educational background.

Many of us have heard the term "high strangeness," originally coined by Dr. J. Allen Hynek. If Dr. Hynek were alive today, he would definitely say that Stan's case is full of "high strangeness."

He and his entire family have witnessed an ongoing series of eerie phenomena, which seem to be deeply associated with the sightings.

George Zeiler, former assistant to the International Director for MUFON, originally brought this case to me in the spring of 2002. George had asked me to assist with hypnotherapy and ongoing research into this astonishing case that just seemed to keep unraveling a tapestry of anomalies never seen before in a single case.

This case initially attracted media attention on a number of local news channels in the Denver area, as well as nationally on programs such as "Entertainment Tonight." Audiences were stunned by the staggering home videos taken by Stan of two different UFOs seen by him on numerous occasions.

Eyewitnesses a key element

If it weren't for the plentiful eyewitnesses during the sightings and the filming, it would be all too easy to label this case as a hoax. The ripples of this case have extended outward nationally to capture the attention of many.

Although Stan's experiences continue to this day, the initial timeline of major sightings included four events in the greater Denver area beginning Dec. 27, 2000, through Sept. 30, 2001. An earlier article on the Stan Romanek case was written by Zeiler and published in the MUFON UFO Journal in October, 2002.

The primary focus of this article is to give you my first-hand report of our regression session, and some glimpses into this most important case. Due to the enormity of information, I will focus on one portion of our session that explored a strange dream on the evening of Sept. 20, 2001. A description of this event will follow

On June 25, 2002, I conducted an extensive four-hour hypnotic regression session. What was revealed astounded not only Stan, but also everyone present, including his sister and Zeiler. The entire session was videotaped.

The day of the regression was the first time I met Stan, who had never had hypnotic regression done before. In fact, he was originally quite reticent with the idea of having hypnosis done.

One of the qualities that impressed me about Stan was the overall innocence and frankness he exuded. I found it intriguing that he exhibited many special talents, such as music and an excellence in graphics arts; yet contrasted with that was the fact that Stan had shared that he was diagnosed with Dyslexia at an early age and had learning difficulties all of his life.

Later in this article I will briefly discuss the amazing mathematical equations that he drew which would seem to defy his limited educational background.

It appeared that we were witnessing one of the strongest evidential UFO cases to date, and yet up until his sightings, Stan never gave validity to the subject matter of UFOs. He was a man who categorized the idea as pure ludicrous. He says, "I didn't believe in them."

Yet he was caught up in an amazing and complicated case that has turned his world upside down, changing his life forever

Stan is among the ten percent or less of the population who is able to go into a somnambulant state of hypnosis, which is the deepest level of hypnosis. It is in this deepest level that hypnotic subjects have been known to speak foreign languages from alleged past lives, and relive their memories with the greatest detail.

As I regressed Stan, I realized that he was not simply recounting his story, but actually reliving it, and with an authentic emotion that punctuated these events with startling poignancy.

One of the techniques I use to help validate the potential accuracy and details of hypnotic memories during the session is to begin by regressing my client back to a non-related positive or neutral childhood memory, a memory that has been partially or completely forgotten about consciously.

Stan Romanek

tives or friends who can vouch for their authenticity. In Stan's case he regressed back to an event at about age five when he was playing outside on his pedal car on the main sidewalk of their home.

He was placing pebbles on the seat, and as he recalled the memory, his words and actions regressed to that of a five-year-old. Age regression (acting the age you have regressed to) is often an accurate indicator for the depth of hypnosis.

His sister later validated this memory. Stan had not thought of the memory in years.

A safe place

Typically, as with all clients, I had Stan choose a place of relaxation, or a "safe place" he would like to go to as part of a deepening technique, as well as a place he could retreat to if he felt uncomfortable at any time.

Stan had selected a pleasant memory of a campsite he and his family had visited as a little boy on the 4th of July. Stan's sensory details were so vivid that after the session he expressed his surprise that "I could even smell the smoke of the campfire!"

For him it was a revelation that the hypnotic experience could be so real and exacting. I had begun to establish that Stan not only goes very deeply in hypnosis, but his memories can be quite accurate

In validating the accuracy of memory recall, or even the authenticity of a case, there is a list of characteristics I look for before and during a session:

- •What is the consistency of what is reported within hypnosis?
- •During hypnosis are there physiological reactions to what is being said, and is it congruent with what is being experienced?
- •Are there emotional reactions to what is being recounted? Are the emotions congruent with what is being said or recalled?
  - •Do the emotions seem genuine?
  - •How does the recalled information fit with the conscious memories?

- •Do the memories support or explain physical evidence?
- •What is the motivation to come forward at this time?
- What would be the motivation to fabricate or make up such a story?
- •Does any of the retrieved information exceed or challenge the client's educational level?

•Depth of hypnosis achieved.

There is insufficient space and time here to detail all of the above characteristics as it applies to the Stan Romanek case, but I will state that Stan's hypnotically recalled memories do fit the criteria above in terms of being consistent, congruent, genuine, fitting, and supportive to his conscious memory.

In addition, due to the multitude of witnesses during numerous sightings, it is my opinion that a hoax should be ruled out.

In regard to his motivation to come forward at this time, as mentioned earlier, Stan was quite reticent to seek hypnosis, but was deeply troubled by his experiences and simply encouraged to seek hypnosis for therapeutic purposes.

A complete analytical analysis of the Stan Romanek regression session is available by emailing Deborah@cfree.org.

We commonly hear the term "screen memory" in connection with the abduction experience. A screen memory is best defined as a conscious memory that seems to mask or replace an actual memory with something more palatable or easier to cope with.

It is hard to know which screen memories are a result of a memory perhaps implanted into the mind by the aliens involved, for the purposes of keeping the event camouflaged, or whether it is a coping mechanism created by the person's subconscious mind as protection.

Prelude to a dream

Either way, the following event will demonstrate how a screen memory played out in one of Stan's experiences. Here is a brief description of that event that led up to the strange dream.

On the evening of Sept. 20, 2001, at around 7 PM, Stan is at work when told by employees of a large reddish pulsating balloon-like craft about 500 feet above his work. Stan walks outside to see it. The size was estimated at 20 to 30 feet in diameter

While watching the craft momentarily, it quickly disappears. By this time Stan is still reeling from his first sighting nine months earlier. However, this craft is different than the craft seen on Dec. 27, 2000.

In addition to this sighting, this same craft would reappear twice again. Stan is stunned and immediately leaves work and drives home. On his way home it reappears and seems to be pacing ahead of him at some distance all the way home.

Now in the habit of carrying his video camera since his first sighting, he videotapes it while driving home, and after arriving home it disappears once again.

He, his sister, and best friend watch the video that night until late and recall having a headache and going to bed.

The next morning Stan recalls having a troubling dream about what he called "possum people" coming to his door. He realizes there was something different about this dream in that it felt very real, yet he also realizes the absurdity of seeing "possum people" and attempts to categorize it as simply a dream.

In addition he awakens with a strange pattern of deep oozing sores on his back, and hair is rubbed off his wrists and ankles in a band-like pattern. He can find no explanation for the marks or the dream.

The regression

During hypnosis I regressed him back to the time when he had his dream. I had him simply observe himself sleeping, and noticing anything important, moving him moment-by-moment forward in time. Just before he had the dream I asked him what time the clock read. He said ... "about 2 or 2:30 AM." I'd now like to share a partial transcript from our regression.

Stan Romanek (SR): Somebody's knocking at the door! They woke me up. It's the front door. Why the hell would anyone be knocking at the door?

Deborah Lindemann (DL): What do you do next?

SR: I'm getting up; maybe there's an emergency. Maybe someone is lost or drunk.

DL: What do you do to find out?

SR: I get up.

DL: And then what happens?

SR: I'm getting to the door, and my sister is opening the door. Oh my God!

DL: What happens when you open the door?

SR: There's like three people there.

[See Romanek's sketch on the Journal cover.]

DL: And who are these people?

SR: They look like they're in Halloween costumes.

DL: What makes you think they look like Halloween costumes?

The wounds on Romanek's back.

SR: Because they're so weird looking.

DL: What particularly is so weird about their costumes?

SR: They have really big heads and they look like they've got cancer; there's no hair hardly at all. It's like straggly hair.

DL: What color is their hair?

SR: It's white. It's like they have no pigment.

DL: Is that true for all three of them?

SR: Yes, yes it is.

DL: And how tall would you say these people are?

SR: They're a little bit shorter than me, about the same size as my sister.

DL: Where would they come up to on your body?

SR: Oh, maybe to my chin, or a little above my chin.

DL: So you're about six feet tall right?

SR: Yes.

DL: So maybe around 5' 2" or 5' 3", or something like that?

SR: Pretty close.

DL: And what do they seem to be wearing?

SR: Oh one of them seems to be wearing a long kind of robe type thing, with a necklace, some kind of a weird necklace. And the other two are ... well, they're wearing robes too, but one of them is more like a jumpsuit.

DL: What color is this jumpsuit?

SR: The female has big boobs and seems to be wearing a robe. Their faces are weird, ... big heads. How do they hold their heads up? Big eyes. Like distorted Japanese or Chinese eyes. Their faces where their mouth and nose is, is really long. Their jaw line is long. The nose is very tiny. Tiny little mouth. Have really tiny lips. It's just like a tiny nose...how do they breathe?

A difference

Stan also recalled that these "beings" had large blue eyes with white sclera's, quite different than most reports. This description sounds similar to what many call hybrids.

At this point in our regression Stan reported that the "beings" came in and pushed his sister aside, and that he yelled at her. "Don't let these freaks in."

He tells me, "She just stands there looking kind of stupid." All this is happening while Stan is standing in the hallway, about ten feet away from the "beings." He recalled them all looking directly at him.

Then he starts to get his headache again. He's scared. I make the suggestion that he hypnotically move outside of his body, just observing what happened next. Moving someone outside of their body helps disconnect them from any upset or trauma by simply being an observer.

During this portion of the regression he still believes what he's looking at are some strange people with masks who have come to rob or mug them.

Soon after this, Stan seems to have been taken and finds himself aboard a craft of some sort where the same three "beings" are interacting with him.

During his memory of being with the "beings" on the craft, he recalled numerous details of that encounter, including a procedure that seemed to involve taking tissue samples from his back, which accounts for the oozing marks on his back.

He remembered that as these samples were taken, they were somehow being stored in a specimen box or drawer of sorts.

I am careful not to use leading questions during my sessions, and found it interesting that without asking him about the cause of his back wounds he moved to that memory on his own, simply by my moving him forward in increments to the next important memory.

In addition, he also recalled at one point being restrained in an upright position near a wall, with some type of electrical device connected to both his wrists and his ankles. The electrical device seemed to act to control him or keep him from moving, because every time he would try to move he received an electrical current that was somewhat uncomfortable.

When he recalled complaining to them about this, they seemed to convey it was for his own good. This accounts for the band-like missing hair on his wrists and ankles the next morning as well. He did not connect the memory to the question of how he received his back wounds or the missing wrist and ankle hair until after he came out of hypnosis.

It was also during this encounter that he recalled receiving an array of mathematical equations given to him by the female "being." I've had many abductees who report receiving symbols, and/or being given or taught strange equations and unfamiliar language—many from a young age.

These symbols and equations had been haunting him to obsession for days prior to our session. He recalls attempting to write what was filling his head, yet frustrated that he was unable to remember it clearly.

Stunning details

Our session brought out the details in stunning clarity, which I'll share in a moment. These mathematical equations were later analyzed by physicist Jack Kasher, Ph.D. (MUFON State Director for Nebraska); astrophysicist Bernie Haisch, Ph.D.; and physicist Hal Puthoff, Ph.D.

What is remarkable about Stan's equations is that he has absolutely no advanced mathematical education. Stan openly shares that he has the equivalent of a fourth grade understanding of math, and was diagnosed dyslexic as a child. His dyslexia caused learning disabilities that kept him from completing a degree in higher education.

After the medical procedures, he found himself face to face with the female "being." Stan recalls asking her numerous questions typical of those asked by many experiencers who are aware enough to ask. He recalled that whenever he would ask the female a question, she would answer him telepathically, filling his head with visions, numbers, and weird symbols.

As he relived various memories of his experiences, he realized that this face-to-face event was the source of the equations and symbols that had been haunting him. Before our session began, Stan mentioned how bothered he had been over the past 24 hours with strange symbols and equations that were filling his mind.

He had become obsessed with attempting to write them down on his own, but couldn't recall them accurately. Now it was much more clear.

At one point after coming out of hypnosis he stated he now remembered the symbols he was given quite clearly. I asked him if he could describe them. Better yet, he said he could write them down.

A page in five minutes

So I handed him a large pad of paper, and in just five minutes Stan wrote an entire page full of equations and symbols. It was amazing to watch how quickly and precisely the information poured out of him.

After writing this page of equations and drawings he explained each line as follows. Pointing to the first line of equations, he said, "When I asked them where they're from, this part is what popped in my head."

He then pointed to the seven dots on the left side of the page and stated, "I asked where they came from, this part right here; I think is where they came from, I think." Later he recognized that as the constellation of Orion.

Ten planets

You'll also notice a straight line of dots (planets) with a small arc running through it. He said that this represented where we are from, but notice he had drawn our solar system with ten planets, not nine, plus the sun. He consistently drew ten planets during several drawings in our session.

Many are familiar with the hypothesis and work of historic scholars such as Zacharia Sitchen who state that according to the ancient Sumerians our original solar system had ten planets. The arc probably represented the Asteroid Belt, though Stan was unaware of its meaning, as well as most of the rest of the equations or drawings on the page.

From an initial conference call with astrophysicist Haisch and physicist Puthoff, as well as conversations with Dr. Kasher, the top equation with 115 circled includes references to helium and element 115

It appears to be the most likely correct ground state electron configuration for element 115, which has not yet been created. It is based on the best-known extrapolation of element 114, which was first created in 1998. In the opinion of Bernie

Romanek's first equation.

Haisch, "This would have been very difficult for Stan to figure out on his own. That line cannot possibly be a random guess."

Haisch stated that the numbers themselves are seemingly correct descriptions of the outermost electron shells for element 115.

Element 115brings back memories for many ofus of a physicist named Bob Lazar who allegedly worked at Area 51 many years ago developing top secret extraterrestrial reversed engineered propulsion systems. He reported that element 115 was the element used by these advanced space craft for travel.

Describing further Stan's equations, the second line is one of Maxwell's four equations from electromagnetic theory.

This particular Maxwell equation simply represents how you generate magnetic fields from changing electric fields, which is something which happens even in the power lines in your house, but nevertheless is amazing that Stan came up with this in my office.

The Drake equation

In the middle of the page on the right hand side you'll see an equation that begins with N=R and ends with X 100. Stan had no idea of what this meant either, but accurately drew the Drake equation.

The Drake equation is intended to be a formula to help approximate the number of advanced civilizations in the galaxy. An advanced civilization is considered to be one that can be detected by its radio transmissions, or is thought to at least possess the ability to emit radio transmissions, and that is the marker of an advanced civilization. Curiously enough, Stan adds X 100 to the end of the actual formula, suggesting perhaps that whatever the number of advanced civilizations we thought there were, this should be multiplied by 100.

This case and my hypnosis sessions with him yielded several unusual sets of drawings and equations. In the end, nothing he drew seemed to represent any new discoveries or unknown information.

Highly complicated

However, many of the equations were highly complicated, requiring even seasoned physicists to run to their technically-based textbooks to validate the accuracy of what he had written.

What is remarkable to me is that I witnessed him writing these equations quickly, with little hesitation-not knowing their meaning- and with great accuracy, with the exception of a couple of symbols turned around due to dyslexia.

Although the various equations seem random and unrelated to each other, the question to be considered is whether these equations are simply parts of a larger puzzle of information still forthcoming.

Eventually, I hypnotically moved Stan forward to when he's returned from the encounter with the three "beings," and he seems quite shocked to find his sister still standing by the front door, frozen in position with a strange blank look on her face.

This seems reminiscent of reports of family members being "switched off" during an encounter. Stan then recalls that the two of them simply go back up to bed as though nothing happened.

Earlier I mentioned that this hypnotic exploration all began with the investigation into Stan's memory of the dream about the "possum people." What Stan realized after our session was that his encounter was being recalled through a screen memory dream of possum people.

It's understandable how the unconscious mind might interpret or confabulate and remember these "beings" as possum people. I asked him if he understood how he interpreted them as possum people. He replied, "Because possums have long snouts, and long faces..."

The sketch

A few months after our session, Stan consciously recalled his hypnotic memory of what the possum people looked like at his door, and he drew the sketch on the previous page. He said this is the closest he was able to draw, and admits it's not perfect. We hope to have a forensic artist help him draw them more accurately during a future hypnotic session.

An interesting note regarding the abraded oozing sores and missing hair sections on his wrists and ankles found the next morning is that they fluoresced under UV light, a common phenomenon often connected to the marks left on abductees.

There is ongoing sensitive research and analysis being done on video footage and physical evidence, including photo analysis, chemical and spectroscopy testing, and more. The findings will be made public upon completion.

Upon initial observation of Stan's case, it would appear that something quite unearthly and unexpected perforated Stan's safe and predictable world.

Seemingly, he just happened to be at the right place at the right time—a man with no history of anything alien or unworldly. Perhaps it was a cosmic wakeup call to a man who professed his disbelief in things as strange as UFOs.

On the other hand, we are left with some intriguing pieces of his early childhood that may cause one to contemplate an earlier connection.

Those pieces include a military father who held high security clearances at both Grand Forks AFB and Minot AFB in North Dakota.

This was during the wave of UFO sightings in the late sixties and mid seventies surrounding Air Force bases and missile sites across the country.

During this same UFO flap, there was a major sighting by his brothers—and add to the mix a surreal woman who mysteriously contacted Stan on at least three occasions, beginning at age six. Stan's case continues to be studied.

NASA develops system to read words before they are spoken

Maggie McKee

NewScientist.com news service

A computer program which can read words before they are spoken by analysing nerve signals in our mouths and throats, has been developed by NASA.

Preliminary results show the buttonsized sensors, which attach under the chin and on either side of the Adam's apple and pick up nerve signals from the tongue, throat, and vocal cords, can indeed be used to read minds.

"Biological signals arise when reading or speaking to oneself, with or without actual lip or facial movement," says Chuck Jorgensen, a neuroengineer at NASA's Ames Research Center in Moffett Field, California in charge of the research.

The sensors have already been used to do simple web searches, and may one day help space-walking astronauts and people who cannot talk communicate. The sensors could send commands to rovers on other planets, help injured astronauts control machines, or aid the handicapped.

In everyday life, they could even be used to communicate on the sly-people could use them on crowded buses without being overheard, say the NASA scientists.

For the first test of the sensors, scientists trained the software program to recognise six words, including "go," "left," and "right," and ten numbers. Participants hooked up to the sensors thought the words to themselves, and the software correctly picked up the signals 92 per cent of the time.

Then researchers put the letters of the alphabet into a matrix with each column and row labelled with a single-digit number. In that way, each letter was represented by a unique pair of number coordinates. These were used to silently spell "NASA" into a web search engine using the mind-reading program.

"This proved we could browse the web without touching a keyboard," says Jorgensen.

Phil Green, a computer scientist focusing on speech and hearing at the University of Sheffield, UK, called the research "interesting and novel" on hearing the news.

"If you're not actually speaking, but just thinking about speaking, then at least some of the messages still get sent from the brain to the vocal tract," he says.

But he cautions that the preliminary tests may have been successful because of the short lengths of the words, and suggests the test be repeated on many different people to see if the sensors work on everyone.

The initial success "doesn't mean it will scale up," he told New Scientist. "Small-vocabulary, isolated word recognition is a quite different problem than conversational speech, not just in scale but in kind."

The NASA team is now working on sensors that will detect signals through clothing.

Ours, alien, or both?

Triangular craft: what are they?

Rich Dolan

By Richard M. Dolan

sightings of "impossible" craft in the sky are universal. They are also universally ignored. Ignored, at least, by the official channels and sources of power in our society.

One subset of the phenomenon, however, has broken through to the mainstream. Perhaps we should say-ahem the "fringes" of the mainstream. These are the infamous triangular craft.

America's mainstream culture, ever rigid and narrow, yet acknowledges from time to time that such things exist. Frankly, it would be hard not to. The reports are simply too many and too clear.

They also come in constantly. One typical sighting occurred shortly after midnight on March 2, 2003. A security guard at a gated community in Dallas saw "a single solid black triangle, with no lights of any kind," traveling west for about 8 or 9 seconds.

The object was completely silent, and seemed to float across the sky at about 1,200 feet. The witness watched the triangle disappear behind one of the homes, contacted the Dallas Police Department, and was told that no one else had reported the object.

This report is available on the web at the National UFO Reporting Center (NUFORC). Indeed, the witness spoke with Peter Davenport, who runs the organization, and was found "to be quite sincere and credible."

Here is another recent report from NUFORC. On Jan. 24, 2003, a man saw a triangular-shaped object while driving at night down a quiet Arkansas road. He slowed down, turned off his radio, and rolled down his car window. He wondered if this was a helicopter, but he heard no sound.

Coming to a complete stop, he watched the object hover 10 feet above a telephone pole, and noticed that it had three lights (red, white, and blue), one on each corner. He saw the object for a total of four minutes, "and then it was gone."

Neither of these witnesses described the size of the craft they saw. In fact, the sizes of these triangles have ranged from small to immense. Most are slow-moving and low-flying; occasionally people describe them as boomerang-shaped instead of triangular.

The fact that they fly so low and so slowly is a problem that demands an explanation, both scientifically and politically. Complicating the matter are the many witnesses who describe exceptional speed and maneuverability relating to these triangles, such as flat pivot turns or incredible acceleration. It is a tricky problem, indeed.

The famous Illinois "cop sighting" in early 2000 of a giant triangular object is one of the best known cases of the flying triangles. In this instance, the object was substantially larger than a jumbo jet, flying at perhaps 500 feet altitude, either silent or extremely quiet, moving slowly, and edged with an array of blinding white lights.

All this is certainly extraordinary. But what really makes this case difficult to explain is the object's manner of acceleration. In the words of one officer, it was able to shoot away "in the blink of an eye" with "no sound whatsoever." One moment, it was a few hundred feet away; the next moment, several miles away.<sup>2</sup>

The problem deepens

If this were an isolated incident, one could write it off as a mistaken observation of some sort. But this is not isolated, and here the problem deepens. For an object possibly identical to this one was seen many times in the early 1980s in the Hudson Valley, just north of New York City.

On Dec. 31, 1982, people from several different locations reported such an ob-

About the Author

Richard Dolan studied at Oxford University, and did graduate work at the University of Rochester. While working as a self-employed business writer he became interested in "the UFO problem."

Throughout 1995, 1996, and 1997, he spent most of his spare time conducting "a fairly systematic bibliographic search," hunting down the many out-of-print books and UFO documents released over the years through the Freedom of Information Act

"Once I began to delve," he says, "I found the amount of information nearly overwhelming. I was methodical, however, and eventually prepared a detailed chronology of relevant events, and realized it was more than enough for a useful text on the subject. So I set out to write it." The result was his book, UFOs and the National Security State.

Among Dolan's many speaking engagements was an appearance at the 2002 MUFON International Symposium.

ject. This was no mere New Year's Eve partying, either; the object was filmed with a movie camera. The object was huge, triangular, flew at less than 500 feet, had bright lights, made tight circles in the air, and at one point shone a beam of white light onto a highway.

In July, 1984, the same or a similar object invaded the air space of the Indian Point Nuclear Facility, disabling the electronic and communication systems while it hovered over a reactor. During the early 1980s, the number of witnesses to such events in the Hudson Valley numbered in the thousands.

Indeed, on one occasion, video was shot of a sufficient quality that it was sent to the Jet Propulsion Lab in Pasadena. Conclusion: something real, all right, but not a conventional aircraft.<sup>3</sup>

Then we have the Belgian cases, which seem to have been part of a series of sightings stretching from Britain to Russia from late 1989 to early 1990.

On Nov. 29, 1989, a dark triangular object, making a humming noise, hovered over a Belgian police car and shone a brilliant beam of light on it. Many people reported this object; it was seen throughout the winter, then most spectacularly on the night of March 30, 1990.

That night, thousands of witnesses saw a low-flying triangular UFO (or UFOs) with bright lights flashing in the center. This object could fly as slow as 30 mph, but it accelerated to incredible speeds. Witnesses were adamant that no plane belonging to any air force could have caught this object.

Indeed, that night the Belgian Air Force sent two F-16s to do exactly that. The triangles were captured on several NATO radar stations; the jet pilots could also track the objects on radar, and even see them at times.

But the F-16s-the top interceptors in the world-were completely outclassed by the triangular craft. Not only could it accelerate at incredible speeds, and not only could it stop on a dime, but it could change its altitude almost instantly. At one point, for example, radar installations and amazed witnesses observed the triangle to drop about 4,000 feet in one second. That's nearly a mile.

Moreover, this object moved intelligently, at least in the opinion of the Belgian Air Force Chief of Operations, Col. Wilfried De Brouwer, who stated, "There was a logic in the movements of the Photograph of the triangular object over Belgium, April 1, 1990.

UFO." Nick Pope, who soon after this manned the "UFO Desk" in Britain's Ministry of Defense, had contacts within the Belgian government who "elicited the conclusion that a structured craft had flown over Belgium that night." They had no idea, they said, what that object was.<sup>4</sup>

Like the other triangles people have seen, the Belgian object was real enough. The real question is, to whom did it belong?

Ours? Or theirs?

Many people have suspected this to be a secret American project. Officially, however, there is no type of aircraft with a perfectly triangular planform.

The B-2 stealth bomber is an angular and odd looking beast, but it's not a triangle. Nor can it do what the triangles do.

There is good reason to believe that the U.S. has developed a triangle. In August, 1989, a former Royal Observer Corps member, Chris Gibson, was working on a North Sea gas rig about 60 miles off the Norfolk coast.

He has been described as one of the world's experts in aircraft recognition, and competed in international recognition tournaments where a long distance shot of an aircraft would be flashed on a screen for a fraction of a second. At the time of the sighting, he was writing an aircraft recognition manual.

What he saw that day was a matte black aircraft shaped in a perfect isosceles triangle, with the nose angle at 30 degrees, in a refueling operation with a KC-135. Two F-111 fighters accompanied the craft.

The triangular craft was slightly bigger than an F-111. Aviation writer Bill Sweetman noted that "no aircraft other than a supersonic vehicle, or a test aircraft for such a vehicle, has ever been built or studied with such a planform."

Generally, people have attributed this sighting to the fabled Aurora, the alleged successor to the world's fastest "official" plane, the SR-71 Blackbird. Ofcourse, the Aurora doesn't officially exist, but the rumor mill gives it dimensions that seem to be compatible with what Gibson saw.

But given that the Aurora (or the same aircraft under a different name) exists, it is unlikely that this is the craft that buzzed Belgium in 1989-1990, much less is responsible for the Hudson Valley sightings. The Aurora is said to be hypersonic, meaning that it is faster than Mach 5, and is rumored to move as fast as Mach 8.

But, hovering? Changing altitude instantly? There are no accounts of Aurora-none by aviation writers, anyway—that indicate it can do anything like that.

The Black Manta

There is an aircraft in the land of legends that comes closer to fitting the description of some of these triangle sightings. It is the Black Manta, TR-3, another aircraft that "doesn't exist." All we have, apparently, is the rumor mill, which gives this object the ability to hover silently.

There are said to be two very different versions, the TR-3A and the TR-3B. The first is supposed to be about 45 feet long and 15 feet high, with a 65-foot wingspan. The second is said to be a massive 600 feet across.

Bearing in mind that none of this can be confirmed, the most detailed information I could find on this elusive creature of the sky is that, among those who believe it exists, it is said to be a tactical reconnaissance aircraft, first operational in the early 1990s.

Funding and tasking come from the NRO, NSA, and CIA. The outer coating of the TR-3B is allegedly reactive to electrical radar stimulation and can change reflectiveness, radar absorptiveness, and color. It is therefore exceptionally stealthy. More than this, however, it is said to have indefinite loiter time at high altitudes (as high as 125,000 feet), and the ability to travel as fast as-strap yourself in-Mach 9.

By no means am I an expert on the technology involved here. Those who say they are tell us that the TR-3B has something called a Magnetic Field Disruptor, which is a circular, highly pressurized, mercury-based plasma-filled ring surrounding a rotatable crew compartment.

The plasma is accelerated to extreme speeds, which is said to result in "gravity disruption," and can neutralize the effect of gravity on mass by as much as 89 percent.

This is not exactly antigravity, which provides a repulsive force, but for all intents and purposes makes the vehicle extremely light, with obvious correlations in performance, including acceleration in all directions.

This, at least, is the claim from the website of Edgar Fouche. One scientist has told me that the technical details, such as the speed of rotation of plasma, are "not credible."

While Fouche's site provides an excellent overview of the Black Manta, much of the information derives from anonymous sources, and it is always possible that details can be wrong even while the big picture remains fundamentally sound.<sup>6</sup>

While recognizing that any discussion of the Black Manta is highly speculative, some of the claims regarding it at least come close to the performance characteristics of the triangular UFOs. Is the craft real? I have no idea.

While a few aviation writers acknowledge the possibility that it's real, no one can confirm it, and most appear doubtful. Indeed, there those who even doubt that there is such a plane as the Aurora.

For my part, I find it difficult to deny that the U.S. military has a flying triangle. Knowing the credentials of Chris Gibson, if he saw a matte black isosceles triangle being refueled by aKC-135, I am prepared to believe him. I am also prepared to accept that there are probably other deepblack aircraft out there.

The U.S. government has a history of declassifying military technologies at its convenience. By the time the U-2 was public, its successor, the SR-71 Blackbird, was not long in following.

We learned of the F-117A stealth fighter in 1988, for instance, only when it was decided to increase production substantially and that it would therefore be impossible to hide any longer.

Chronology problems

But even the aforementioned candidates don't explain the triangle phenomenon. Even if something as exotic as the Black Manta is real, it is clear that this would only explain sightings since the 1990s.

Or would it? How far back could we push the technology and this aircraft? Could the Black Manta have been responsible for the Belgian sightings of 1989 and 1990?

And even if that is so, what does one make of the Hudson Valley sightings, which are earlier still? At what point do we move from the improbable, to the implausible, to the ridiculous?

I wonder whether the TR-3A or TR-3B explain the following sighting:

On this occasion, a clear fall night in Hastings, MN, multiple witnesses saw a triangular craft approach from the east at a high rate of speed. When it was nearly overhead at about 5,000 feet, it "stopped dead in its tracks." The object had a reddish orange light at each of its corners; these lights sometimes turned greenish.

It sat motionless and silent for half a minute, then made a slow 180-degreeturn, "leaving a vapor trail." It then sat motionless for a few seconds before taking off at an amazing speed.

It stopped dead at a point about 15 miles away from them. It then lifted straight up "at incredible speed" and was gone. The object in question certainly seems to have had much in common with the Belgian triangle, except it was seen in mid-October of 1968.

As far as I know, this report has not been investigated, but at the National UFO Reporting Center (NUFORC) you can read 25 reasonably detailed reports of triangular UFOs that were seen from 1967 through 1973–and there are several that are even earlier.

Center for Physical Trace Research

By Ted Phillips

As stated in 1998, the Center has no desire to infringe on or take away information from any investigator in the field or in his armchair. The purpose of this project remains the same: gathering data on possible UFO landings and resulting physical traces.

I have no idea why these events take place, where the objects might originate, or the purpose of said objects.

I am currently involved with three projects: the Slovakian Cave Project, the Missouri Project, and a multiple witness, long duration project involving orbs seen and photographed in daylight and at night with daylight landing events. More information on these projects will be included in the next update.

Latest reports

02/10/04–UK, Meanwood–Eight witnesses observed an object some 50 feet in diameter and 20 feet thick. It approached and landed in a quarry with no sound.

An hour later a check of the area revealed three triangular depressions and damaged trees. The depressions were 25 feet apart, and each was pushed 8 inches into the ground.

01/00/03-Australia, Wullagi, Northern Territories-A four-year-old child tells her mother that late one night three "frogmen"-like figures came in through the bedroom window encased in a mist. She tried to wake her mother, who sleeps in the bed with her, but is unable to.

The dog in the room does not react. The mother heard noises in the bushes outside the window, but she was unable to get up from the bed. A scorched area and burnt foliage was found on the ground in the yard.

01/01/03-Puerto Rico, Carolina-Matmari and Martin Rodriguez C. saw an object approaching which crashed against the leaves of a palm tree and burned about one meter of grass in their yard.

Officials for the Arecibo Observatory and the Environmental Quality Board found radiation at the site.

01/26/03—Argentina, San Andres de Giles—Locals found a circle some 23 feet in diameter with burned grass and a white ash-like substance at its center. Around the perfect circle, soybean plants were green and two feet high.

02/00/03–England, Horsham, West Sussex-Witness reported seeing a silver suited 7-foot-tall man, who leaped across the width of the road in one bound. There have been odd chemical odors, apparent lack of oxygen, and rapid changes in temperature in the area. A bright blue light, when approached, was found to be a 40-foot vertical flame in the middle of the woods.

02/21/03, 2200–Canada, Wellington-Five witnesses. House lights went out and the two family dogs reacted. They saw a bright light in the yard, like a camera flash in brightness. They could then see three objects hovering for five minutes. They changed shape and formation, and moved vertically making 90-degree turns.

A sixth witness tried to use her cell phone, but it wouldn't work properly. The lights climbed at high speed and the house lights came back on. The witnesses found a melted area of snow in a triangle with circles at each tip. The event lasted 25 minutes.

02/23/03, 0900-Argentina, Las Pailas, Salta-24-year-old Milagros Linquin had gone to a rocky hillside to retrieve her goats when she noticed a shiny object on the nearby hill. Close to the summit she saw a metallic object, rectangular in shape with numerous visible windows.

She counted eight windows on the object. Around the object she saw numerous shiny objects, square in shape, some larger than others. She counted 14 of these square metallic "covers." At this point, her father, 74-year-oldDon Linquin came up and also saw the shiny object.

In the meantime, Milagros had climbed a bit further and was now closer to the object. At this point both witnesses noticed several human-like figures wearing white garments and moving around the object, apparently working on the shiny covers. There were five figures in total.

After about 30 minutes, Milagros climbed higher in order to approach the object. The object disappeared, leaving a deep rectangular track in the ground.

04/18/03,1817–Russia, Kaliningrad-A large number of local residents watched as a "flying wing"-shaped object flew over at high speed and plunged into Kaliningrad Harbor.

The event was caught on video by a local RTR Russian State Television news crew, which was present on the naval base, filing a documentary segment on the Russian Baltic Fleet.

According to a Russian Naval Commander, that object had been tracked on numerous radar systems as it came in. The light colored gray device, with no visible seams or rivet patterns, was estimated to be the size of a small airliner, with no sound.

One Sovremini Class destroyer was slightly damaged by the ejected debris. Radiation was reportedly detected, and debris less than one meter in size was recovered.

05/00/03-Russia, Moscow region-The witness and her mother were sitting on the porch when they saw an unusual "cloud" form. Thinking it was just a cloud, they retired, and late that night they awoke with temble headaches and an odd vibration. A bright beam of light came through the window and moved across the room.

As soon as she was, out of the light the headache ceased. The witness went to the porch and saw a pear-shaped "cloud" just like the one seen earlier. It was now much brighter, with silvery, blue beams of light and a protrusion resembling an antenna. The witness ran toward the object and suddenly her body felt weightless and she seemed to float above the ground.

She floated quickly towards the bright object, and when she was less than two meters away she fell and lost consciousness. She came to the next morning lying on the cold ground. She had been there for over three hours.

She and her mother went to the spot where the object had been and found a circular burnt patch on the potato bed. Nothing grew on the spot for three months.

08/00/03–Canada, St. Laurent, Manitoba-Four witnesses were driving south of St. Laurent towards the golf course road when they saw flashing lights over and above one of the buildings on the course. The lights were hovering in one area and very low over the sheds.

The witnesses thought, after seeing a car pulled to one side of the road with the lights flashing, that someone might be breaking into the shed. Two of the witnesses decided to sneak in to see if they could catch someone causing damage.

The younger two went back home to get their parents. As the two were half-way down to the area, they passed near a dugout and heard a loud, piercing scream. They walked another 100 feet and a three-foot tall being ran in front of them 25 feet away.

Both men ran back towards the road. Shortly after, the two youths arrived with their parents. Unusual holes were found in the ground throughout the area.

08/11/03, 0500—Poland, Szcecinek-Mr. Lech Hacinski was going home after work when he saw three figures standing under a nearby overpass. One of the figures left the others and walked to the middle of the road with one of its hands raised up. Hacinski was forced to stop his car as the figure stood in the road.

He claimed the figure asked him questions about the car and how it operated, using telepathy. After something of a conversation, the figures floated to a nearby field where a huge dark round object rested on the ground.

The bottom of the device was surrounded by fog. The beings disappeared into the object, which ascended to the west at high speed. On the field where the object had landed, there was a 50-meter-wide circular area of flattened wheat.

12/15/03—MO, Louisburg—The witness reports, "As my wife and I were pulling into our driveway after a dinner out, we noticed a bright light back in our fields. We live on a farm, and our fields extend out for a mile behind our house.

"It was raining and the air was thick as fog, but we could see this bright light in the field. The light shot straight up into the sky, disappearing into the clouds. I didn't see anything but a big ball of light.

"The next day we walked about half a mile and found a ring 10 feet in diameter. I never believed in UFOs before and had never seen anything like this."

Farmer's report of UFO hovering over buildings still believed 56 years later

By Joel Barrett

The Circleville, OH, Herald, 2/2/04

From all accounts, Bruce Stevenson, a salt-of-the-earth, hard-working farmer back in 1948, was among the first in the modern era to claim to have seen a craft from out of this world.

This week marks the 56th anniversary of what locals call America's first close encounter with an unidentified flying object.

Stevenson was on his farm off state Route 56 in Pickaway County one cold February morning in 1948 when he saw a strange, brilliant craft hovering over his outbuildings.

He kept quiet about it at the time, but told a Columbus newspaper four years later he'd never even thought about science fiction until that fateful cold February morn. "I never drank, smoked, or chewed in my life, and I never read any science stuff before I saw it, and the only science I've read since then has been about these saucers," he told the media four years after the sighting.

It was about 2 AM on Feb. 1, 1949, when he got up to check on some sows and piglets in his hog barn, a long story-and-a-half tall building. As he stepped from his farmhouse's door stoop, Stevenson was startled by what he saw.

"As he came out his back door he saw a strange glow from behind the hoghouse," the Columbus Citizen reported on Aug. 10, 1952. "He said, he thought first it was flames from a fire, but then the glow moved between the hoghouse and a 120-foot-longtool shed. ...Then he saw it."

"The object was round like a dinner plate, a gleaming silver color with amber-lighted dome," the Citizen reported. As he stood about 100 feet away near a farm pump, the craft floated about 20 feet off the ground.

He noticed what seemed to be propeller-like lights running around the concave bottom of the saucer.

"One detail in connection with the silver-bottom section I noticed very clearly. There was something whirling around the bottom section, sort of like a big propeller or a series of propellers might do. The movement was clear, the bottom part did not turn. Something kept whirling around the whole thing," he told, the Circleville Herald.

The dome-like top of the craft also caught his eye. "This part was glowing with a bright amber light-all of it glowing, not as though there were bulbs inside that would show bright spots," he said.

"There's no use saying why I didn't run and call others. Somehow I just stood spellbound, almost in a daze I guess, while I watched the saucer glide along the top edge of the tool shed roof," he told the Herald.

Four years after the encounter, Stevenson estimated the overall diameter of the craft was about 60 feet, and the John F. Schuessler height of the dome-part was about 12 or 13 feet.

"Suddenly," he said, recounting the event, "just while I was wondering if maybe the thing would hit the chimney of my tool shed, the amber light went off, and the thing traveled slowly off to my left and out of sight. The light stayed off, but I could see the silver," he said.

The farm's sheds and barns are still intact today, as is an interest in Stevenson's tale. Pete Hartinger, director of the Roundtown UFO Society, said Stevenson's close encounter is something that's getting lost in the passage of time.

"When I give talks locally, maybe one in 20 people in Circleville even know who he was," he said.

On Sunday, Hartinger visited the site and recounted what he calls one of the first classic encounters with a UFO.

While Stevenson told his family about the encounter the next morning, he kept basically quiet for more than four years out of fear of ridicule, not going public until 1952 when there was a reported UFO sighting over Washington, DC.

Historically, 1948 was a time of change. The Red Scare was beginning, the Berlin Wall had gone up, the Soviets had stolen the "bomb" from the U.S., and the clouds of war were gathering over Korea.

Hartinger said Stevenson's encounter came about six months after the infamous Roswell, NM, incident, and about a month after an Air National Guard fighter reported seeing a UFO over Kentucky and later crashed, according to Hartinger.

Others may have seen UFOs locally, but only Stevenson spoke up and stood by what he saw, Hartinger said.

"He's not the only farmer that's seen them—he's the only one who came out and said so. He never changed his story to the day he died. When there's a sighting, you look at the witness' credibility. Bruce's was outstanding, and he had an excellent view of the object."

Others, such as Stevenson's nephew, Pickaway County Commissioner John Stevenson, said his uncle wasn't prone to flights of fancy: "I can't disbelieve what he said. I knew him well, and he didn't make things up. He wasn't a publicist."

Steve Richards, Stevenson's grandson, remembers hearing the story, having his grandfather gather all the children together and show them how close he had been to the silver craft.

"That's one thing, the proximity to it," Richards said. "He was about 100 feet from it. Andhe watched it for a long time."

Original news clippings of Stevenson's story make a special point of the presence of eerie blue-tinted lights in the hog barn. The news accounts explained that the blue-tinted lights were used by farmers to aid in reducing un-wanted bacteria. According to reports, the lights may have been visible from above through ceiling ventilation grids.

"I think it was the lights that gave them some kind of signal," Richards told the Columbus Citizen on Aug. 10, 1952.

Bruce Stevenson Jr. was only about 10 at the time, but still remembers those blue lights. "I don't know if they worked, but they were bright blue lights, and you could seen them for miles," he said.

He stands by his father's word. "He was a very honest person; he didn't tell the story right away because he thought people would think he was lying," Stevenson said. "I'm a believer in them myself, because of my father's history. The universe is just so big."

Hartinger said the public's openness to the existence of UFO is growing.

"Most sightings have never been reported out of fear of ridicule," he said. "We find that attitude is slowly changing. Obviously, people who laugh at this subject have never done any research on it. Our local library has a lot of materials on UFOs, including a four-hour video. The Internet has been a great improvement for communications and research. Sometimes you can find out about a sighting the same day it occurs."

Stevenson may have been among the first humans to claim he saw an alien craft, but Hartinger said he surely wasn't the last. Sightings continue today.

"Bruce Stevenson's unusual experience has been repeated to the present time by thousands of reported UFO sightings worldwide by reputable witnesses," says Hartinger. "I do know the UFO phenomenon does exist. Knowledge is not a matter of belief or desire; knowledge is a matter of evidence. There is plenty of evidence. The Roundtown UFO Society doesn't know the origin of the UFO phenomenon; we can only speculate."

-Thanks to Pete Hartinger.

Group provides resources

Pete Hartinger. director of the Roundtown UFO Society, notes that the Pickaway County, OH, library has an extensive collection of UFO materials, most provided by the local UFO group.

The collection includes more than 20 books, the current issue plus ten years of the MUFONUFO Journal, a two-volume UFO encyclopedia, and a four-hour video.

In addition, there is an annual UFO display at the library. The Roundtown UFO Society also holds their regular monthly meetings at the library.

Puerto Rico sightings reported

By Jorge Martin

After a period of apparent calm in UFO events in Puerto Rico, sightings of anomalous flying objects have started to be reported again on the island. Among some of the reports are the following:

1.Onthursday, Feb. 25, 2003, Mrs. Elba Rivera and her husband, as well as several other people, sighted from the parking lot of Santa Maria Shopping Center located in Rip Piedras (metropolitan San Juan) a large shiny silvery isosceles triangle-shaped UFO.

The triangle seemed to be motionless in the sky, and even though it appeared to be miles away, they described its size as some three inches at arm's length. This indicates it must have been huge in size.

It seemed to be suspended over the region of the city of Bayamon. The triangle remained motionless in the sky for about a minute until a dark cloud came from the east and covered it. When the cloud moved away the triangle had disappeared.

On March 4, 2004, she, as well as several other people, observed another UFO, this time a shiny large silvery cylindershaped object. She described its size as "...almost six feet long," again seen from a distance of several miles away. The object flew from west to east, and dissapeared in a matter of seconds.

The UFO was also sighted by residents in the areas of College Park and Altamesa in Rio Piedras. On both occasions the sightings occurred around 5-6 PM

FILER'S FILES

By George A. Filer Director, MUFON Eastern Region

Unless noted, these reports have not been verified by official investigations.

Caribbean cruise UFOs

COZUMEL, MEXICO - A group of observers were on a Royal Caribbean cruise ship, the Navigator of the Seas. The witness states, "I was celebrating my 15th birthday, and we got out of the disco for teens around 3:50 AM on Feb. 14, 2004, when my friends and my chaperons saw three bright lights.

"They were white, they weren't moving, and they were positioned on a diagonal line. We thought they were planes, but they didn't move, and they didn't have lights like a plane. We were over water, so there wasn't any land nearby, and they didn't make sounds like a plane.

"Then we thought they were lights on an island, but there were no islands. They weren't satellites, because they were too close to the ocean. (The day before we left Cozumel, we heard of many sightings in Mexico.)

"After a while the first UFO, the lowest one, took off; colored lights turned on and it disappeared. The second lowest UFO took off the same way, and there was no sound and no trail Finally, the third one took off the same way and we were really scared!! That's when I realized that maybe those stories about UFOs could be true." Thanks to Peter Davenport, UFOcenter.

Cigar shape in the UK

CHELMSFORD - The five craft hovered in a triangle shape, and then seemed to freeze, according to the reporting witness. Then the craft sped off without a trace on Feb. 13, 2004, at 3 PM.

The objects were fully visible, and were quite low, and the bottom side of the craft each had a black circle on the bottom. They sounded like a cross between a lawn mower and a vacuum cleaner.

Inside the house all radios had a strange chatter on them which stopped when the craft went away. When the craft left, there was a light red trail which hung around for about 10 minutes. Before the craft left, little black dots (like spores) fell to earth.

Florida Encounter

ORLANDO - The witness reports, "It was about 8:45 PM, and I was catfishing at Lake Downy Park just east of downtown Orlando on Feb. 6, 2004. I had a feeling something was watching me, and for about five minutes I kept looking around me and saw nothing.

"It was very dark, but the moon made things OK to see. I heard footsteps in the woods/marsh on the side of lake near the dock I was fishing from, and I saw and heard a ripple in the water near the shore. Then I saw two stork-like legs and a head watching me.

"It looked right at me, and I was very scared and yelled, "Hey!" It stood up like a man my size or so, and stared me dead in the eyes. I went to run off the dock, but when I did so, it walked at a slow pace toward the end of dock to trap me. I phoned 911 and they told me to stay put, and the police were coming.

"What I saw was not human, and was not a native animal, but apparently, it didn't want to hurt me, because if it wanted to, it could have. Later, I called the FBI, and they said they can't help.

"Since then I can't sleep. I see that face and I'm scared to even sleep. I'm 22 years old and never have seen anything like that in my life. For proof, please call the Orange County Sheriff Department." Thanks to Peter Davenport, UFOcenter.

North Carolina flying triangle

SHILOH - A criminal justice professional was coming home from work Feb. 8, 2004, at 6:20 AM, and spotted a craft flying at treetop level.

He reports, "As I crossed a little bridge on 343 the craft flared to the left and flew south along 343, steadily increasing speed until I lost sight of the craft. The underside of the craft was unusual, with three conical-shaped depressions that glowed a bluish color that turned to white as it picked up speed. The top of the flying triangle craft was jet black." Thanks to Peter Davenport, UFOcenter.

Five discs in Arizona

SCOTTSDALE- A couple who are investors and own two companies witnessed five disc-shaped ships enter the lower atmosphere at 11 PM from the northeast and travel south on Feb. 3, 2004.

The reporting witness writes, "Two ships were seen through my night vision scope, and this is how I know the shape of the ships.

"We could hear two ships as they flew by. They sounded as though they were pushing against the air. All ships were glowing red, blue, and orange. As the objects accelerated faster, the lights would pulsate more rapidly. All the ships were of equal size and shape.

"We estimate each ship was the size of a small airliner. Her background is as an advertising executive, and my background is director of operations in my industry." Thanks to Peter Davenport, UFOcenter.

TRUXTON - The witness was standing on his front porch at 6 AM on Feb. 27, 2004, and noticed a very bright star in the clear sky, which appeared to be hovering over the top of the tree line. He states, "As I continued to look up at this star, it suddenly started moving slowly, right to left, while making a humming sound.

"It stayed above the tree line for approximately 15 minutes. I called my husband at work, and he told me to get the camera. I took three pictures of the object. I am hoping the photos got a clear shot of what I witnessed. After the pictures were taken, the object lowered itself behind the tree line." Thanks to Peter Davenport, UFOcenter.

New York memory

STATEN ISLAND - The winess writes, "I'm 37 years old, and when I was about 14 years old, in 1983, my friend and I were at a nearby pond and we looked up and saw the strangest ship. I will never forget it. It was oval to cigar-shaped, with lights around the whole ship.

"It moved very slowly back, forward, up, and down. We both froze and were shocked. For two minutes we were still looking at this ship, and then, it took off in a blink of an eye. I mean like turn your lights off and on real fast." Topthat97.

UFOs reported in Sweden

KISTA - Strong bright lights with yellow, blue, and red colors were spotted on Feb. 11, 2004, at 10 PM. The witness reports, "The shape is different from craft to craft, and some are round. They suddenly appear and just stop for two seconds, go up higher in the air, and then they just fly away.

"The speed is ten times an airplane. First there were five, then they become 18." Two girls, 17-18 year old students, had never seen a UFO before. Thanks to Peter Davenport, UFOcenter.

Australian ground traces

ALICE SPRINGS - On Feb. 10, 2004, at 10:14 PM, a 16-year-old observer and a few friends were out in the bush looking through a telescope when one asked, "Hey what are those things floating around?" They watched for awhile and managed to get one in the telescope for a clear view.

The observer says, "They were like saucers, but there were four of them that had a green color, and were hovering about 15-20 meters from the ground. I didn't see any sort of alien life forms, although there were trees in the way, so we didn't get a clear view of the ground.

"But I did hear weird noises coming from the direction of the saucers that we watched for at least two minutes or even more. There were about 6-7 that departed, so I think that some were on the ground just sitting there. In an instant they were out of sight.

"After they left, we found two patches on the ground, and some faint footprints were observed. No one was around, so we stayed there for awhile, just looking at the marks, and were totally amazed and a bit freaked out.

"My friends are older than me: one is 20, and the other 22. We all saw it well with the naked eye, and I also got the telescope on them. They looked unreal!" Thanks to Peter Davenport, UFOcenter.

Astronaut says we are not alone

The St. Petersburg Times reports that Astonaut Edgar Mitchell announced that. "the Earth is being visited by extraterrestrials." The sixth astronaut to walk on the moon told 200 people in the audience that the Presidents after Kennedy were not briefed on the situation.

New Jersey video

ALPHA - On Feb. 27, 2004, when the husband came home, his 12-year-oldson and wife were very excited and nervous, saying they had just seen UFOs and caught them on video. They said the objects were close, quiet, and moved unlike airplanes.

The husband reports, "I watched a few minutes of the tape, and being an airplane mechanic by trade, they did not have a classic light pattern of any commercial aircraft. It appears on tape to be three objects close together. Two close together, off to the sides, moving irregularly, and one in the center.

"The one in the center was discshaped and spinning—as my wife said, 'Like a top.' Intrigued, I went upstairs to try to see what I just saw on tape for myself, and I caught on video this time what appeared to be an unusually bright object over eastern Pennsylvania, very far away, maybe 8-10 miles.

"It was most certainly not in the airplane flight path, as planes taking off from Allentown appeared to be moving from the NW to the SE towards me at a steady speed. This object moved from the east due west.

"I've never really believed, but it was unidentifiable to me. It was strange. Bright at times, moving rapidly in the distance, then gone. All total, maybe 20 minutes." Thanks to Peter Davenport, UFOcenter.

Florida disc

WEST PALM BEACH - The witness was called to the balcony to see a UFO by three other witnesses around 11:50 PM on Feb. 11, 2004. The witness states, "So, I look out, and it has an orange shade/glow, and it was oval/plate-shaped.

"The other witnesses told me that before I came out it was really close to them. But it was now about four miles away. Little by little it started to fade, then when it did, I kept staring at its location, but it had disappeared.

"It moved from one location to another in a quick flash, leaving a lightning-type fade from its movement. It kept doing this for about five more minutes, then it finally disappeared. I and my house mates were amazed. We're still a little shaken." Thanks to Peter Davenport, UFOcenter.

Indiana dark triangle

BLOOMINGTON - The witness was at a friend's apartment on Feb. 15, 2004, "and I noticed that there was a large triangular object moving westward through the sky without any lights or sound at 10:50 PM. It moved slowly, and I could see its outline because it blocked out the background behind it. It also reflected a small amount of light from the city below.

"Thinking that my eyes were playing tricks on me, or my glasses had a glare, I removed my glasses and was still able to see the object and the small amount of light reflected from it. I watched it until it became hard to differentiate from the night sky. At that time I ran inside to get my friend." Thanks to UFOcenter.

Round object in Delaware

NEWCASTLE - The witness reports, "Every night you can see this round object in the sky that only moves slightly in the vicinity of Newcastle Air Force Base. Sometimes it will move real fast.

"Other times you can see military planes circling around it, usually when it is lower. You can definitely tell it is not a plane, star, or anything that is a common sight on a daily basis. On Feb. 28, 2004, at 6 PM, we saw it. You can see it best when there are clouds in the sky and, there are no stars visible to the eye. Sometimes it will vanish suddenly, but it is very suspicious." UFOcenter.

Florida lights

NOKOMIS - The witness reports, "The object appeared to be over the Gulf of Mexico on Feb. 11, 2004, at 8 PM. At first there were three lights with rays of light above and below. Then two sets of three smaller lights appeared between the three lights.

"It began vertical, and, depending on where you stood, it was horizontal or at varying degrees turned. There were up to 21 lights. I called the police, and an officer witnessed this as well. He called in a helicopter, and when it was headed in the direction of the lights they disappeared, only to return within five minutes.

"We saw them in the same location from nightfall until 8 PM or so for three other nights, and then we returned from our vacation." UFOcenter.

Oklahoma saucer/triangle

SALLISAW - The observers saw a very bright light in the southwest sky on Feb. 14, 2004, about 7:30 PM, that seemed to be hovering at a low altitude.

They state, "We began to look around and saw two more, one to the east and the other to the west. We got our binoculars out to get a better look and saw a saucer-shaped object, it was very large.

"The object seemed to have very bright lights in quarter sections around it. The lights were fire red, purple, orange, and a light green color. The other two were the same, but smaller.

"The one in the southwest was lowering itself slowly to the ground, and as it did, it:turned triangular-shaped, and all we could see was a fire red color with clear, bright light glowing around it. It went down into the side of a mountain.

"Then we started looking at the other two. They moved back and forth and up and down, then they just disappeared." Thanks to Peter Davenport, UFOcenter.

Silver object in Ohio

LYNDHURST - Driving north on Brainard road, just before May field, on Feb. 11, 2004, at 8:22 AM, the witness noticed a long, silver object about 50 degrees above the horizon. He was stopped at a traffic light, and realized the object had no wings or tail assembly.

It was 1/2 inch in length at arm's length, with high reflectivity and one dark spot midway on the body. The object kept a constant side-on view, rapidly receded away to the north in less than five seconds, and disappeared. It did not bank and rum, and there was ho vapor trail. No sound was heard.

Thanks to Peter . Davenport, UFOcenter.

Texas disc-shaped object

ALEDO - The witness spotted something outside on Feb. 27, 2004, at 5:30 PM, and asked his family about the high flying object. The second witness went outside and looked up to see a large object floating along at a leisurely pace.

The object would waiver back and forth, showing that it was a flat disc. They watched it for about 10 minutes before it floated quite high and became very hard to see. There were no lights at all on the object, there was no sound, and it had a shiny metallic skin.

One witness "thinks" there might have been a design on the flat face of the object. Thanks to Peter Davenport, UFOcenter.

Flying triangles in Poland

WARSAW - The witness reports, "I was going home with my friends, taking a shortcut by the forest on February 21, 2004, at 2 PM. Suddenly we saw three triangle-shaped aircraft moving from south to north at a terrific speed.

"We heard a little bit strange sound; it was something like an electrical transformer or high voltage converter. Two of these flying triangles had four lights, and three of them were in the corners of the triangular shape objectss with a blue color.

"One light was at the center of the plane/ship with a red/orange color and was pulsing. The third ship was bigger than those two described above and had more lights located at the edges. The objects were flying in formation and were looking marvelous." Thanks to Peter Davenport.

Orange spheres in Missouri

ANNAPOLIS - Two brothers were driving on Champion Springs Ranch road on the evening of Feb. 10, 2004, at around 7 PM near Black River when they saw five very brightly shining orange spheres in the sky. At first the objects shot around like the balls that shoot out of Roman candles.

They then began to fly in V formation like a flock of geese. This was in a wooded area, and at times the light from the spheres would shine across the tops of the trees. After the spheres vanished, there were several blinking lights in the sky that looked like airplanes.

Then the witnesses heard very loud booms in the sky, like sonic booms. "I later spoke to the owner of the ranch, who told us she saw the spheres as well and that she had seen them on other occasions," reported the witness. Thanks to Peter Davenport, UFOcenter.

California Disneyland object

ANAHEIM - On March 1,2004, two witnesses noticed a black roundish object that was hovering above the Disneyland hotel at 10:50 AM. There were no lights or sounds from the object, and there were no surface features noticeable. It was an overcast day, and the object appeared high and not very large.

The witness says, "At first we thought in might be a Mickey Mouse balloon, because it seemed to change shape slightly as it floated. After about a minute it started floating to the south very slowly, but it didn't quite behave like a balloon.

"Its movements were a strange kind of slow bobbing, and it was moving in the opposite direction of the wind. After five minutes of this, the object changed from a round shape to strait as an arrow and shot off to the east at a very high speed. It was quickly out of sight in a couple of seconds, making no sound." Thanks to Peter Davenport.

Washington State encounter

EATONVILLE-On Dec. 26, 2003, just before midnight, D.H., age 41, was awakened in his travel trailer and clearly saw a red orb three inches in diameter floating around. The baseball-size red ball had a two inch red mist around it, so its total diameter was about five inches.

Although the red light was "hazy," it lit up the entire interior compartment of the trailer. "It was an extremely bright light hovering in the same spot," he said. He leaned up on his right elbow very slowly, and the light moved about half an inch further inside the trailer, and then bolted out the door.

D. H. was unaware until that moment that the trailer door was open. He always closes and locks that door. The door slammed behind the light. He awoke that morning with a good sized bump on the back on his head. Yet, he felt better than he had in months.

The door trim on the floor had a oneand-a-half inch outward dent in it. The next night he closed his eyes for a minute and had a flashback of someone pulling him by his ankles out of his bed.

All of the covers had been removed from his body, and he was terrified as he was being dragged feet-first by two hands from his bed and through the trailer door. The dent was probably caused by his head striking the trim.

Later he remembered a large dark gray face about two feet away with thin arms. He saw no ears, mouth, hair, or nose.

Joe Ryan (co-investigator) and William Puckett have both interviewed D.H. He does not drink or use drugs, and has no history of mental illness. He is very frightened and does not even want to discuss the case. Thanks to William Puckett, UFOs Northwest, CA.

MUFON Web Site redesigned and renewed

It is our pleasure to announce that the MUFON website at www.mufon.com has been completely redesigned and renewed. We are still adding content, but the new site is up and functional.

The MUFON organization section has been enlarged and modernized. The MUFON store has been greatly expanded offering many MUFON products. I hope you will all visit it soon and recommend it to your friends.

The site design and development work was accomplished by Pamela and Christopher Cisneros of Prologix Inc., and guided by James Carrion, representing the MUFON Business Board. We want to express our appreciation for a job well done.

In addition, we want to recognize and thank our previous webmaster. Bill Konkolesky, for his several years of dedication and hard work on the original MUFON site. This has been a super team effort.

A channeling experience

Challenges of Change by Stanley A. Fulham, 2003, ISBN 0-9687321-1-9, Amisk Enterprises Ltd, 59 Trigwell Bay, Winnipeg, Canada, R3K OH7, 5 x 8, soft cover, 190 pages, $19.95.

Reviewed by Dwight Connelly

In the Introduction of this book the author says, "Challenges of Change reveals information that some readers will find shocking, irreverent and unbelievable." While I did not find the information shocking or especially irreverent, I did find most of it unbelievable.

The subject matter includes virtually every UFO topic, current or historical, including Pleiadians, Billy Meir, the Moon, Mars, Reptilians, Nazca, Stonehenge, crop circles, abductions, animal mutilations, Chupacabras, the Mothman, the Philadelphia Experiment, the Voronezh incident, Sasquatch, the Varginha (Brazil) case, etc., etc

And, believe it or not, each one of these mysteries is solved and explainedat least so far as the author is concerned.

If this were not enough, there are explanations for the Sphinx scrolls, the Black Hole, spaceships, wars, "the day computers die," Russia's Yeltson and his challenge to the UFO "Cabal," the universe, the "Council of Eight," etc., etc.

And where do all these answers come from? According to the author, they come from a group called the Transendors through the channeling of Rick Thurston, who reportedly "acts as a medium, in a comatose state, and is not aware of the substance of the dialogue."

The author does not otherwise explain who Thurston is.

The Transendors are described as "a spiritual group of approximately 43,000 souls who exist in the Astral plane which mankind often refers to as Paradise, Heaven, Nirvana, the Happy Hunting Grounds, and so on."

I do not doubt the sincerity or good will of the author, who says he is a former officer in the North American Air Defense System. The fact that he believes what he writes is, I think, borne out in the fact that he dealt with the volatile topic of the location and future of Saddam Hussein in this book, despite the fact that Saddam's whereabouts were a mystery when the manuscript was sent to the printer last November.

Unfortunately, the Transendors failed to correctly predict what would happen to Saddam, saying, "We don't see him extending his physical reality much longer...Inall probability, he may turn up somewhere in a non-living state and no one will know what happened to him."

When Saddam did turn upvery much alive—the author inserted an addendum to the book, contending that Saddam suspected he would be assassinated while hiding in Syria, so he returned to Iraq to hide and grow a beard in anticipation of an escape to South America.

Apparently even the Transendors don't get it right every time.

Equally unimpressive are the accounts by the author of the various UFO incidents described, such as the Voronezh entity sighting in Russia, Roswell, and the Philadelphia Experiment.

The Philadelphia Experiment—which most ufologists agree was a non-event-was an unsuccessful attempt by the U.S. Navy (assisted by Einstein) to test an antigravity weapon involving repulsive magnetic field technology, according to the author.

The technology is called the Transference Induction System (T.I.S.), says the author, and would not only be the ultimate weapon, but would also protect Earth against asteroids and meteorites, ward off unfriendly alien intrusions, and power our spaceships to distant stars.

Also on the horizon, say the Transcendors, is a variation of cold fusion which will create free and inexhaustible energy. Is Dr. Greer listening?

If you have lost faith in traditional research, science, and religion, then perhaps this book will fill that void.

Various sources Indicate possibility of life on Mars

Evidence of water

"One of NASA's robotic rovers has found evidence that parts of Mars were once soaked with enough water to sustain life," scientists said on March 2, 2004.

"Opportunity has landed in an area of Mars where water once drenched the surface," according to Ed Weiler, a NASA space science administrator.

Evidence from meteorite

A NASA news release in August, 1996, said that the team of James Hartfield (Johnson Space Center) and David Salsbury (Stanford University) "found the first organic molecules thought to be of Martian origin: several mineral features characteristic of biologic activity; and possible microscopic fossils of primitive, bacteria-like organisms, inside of a Mars rock that fell to earth as a meteorite."

The journal Science reports the compounds they elicited from the meteorites, found in Antarctica, were directly associated with fossil-like structures and carbonate globules in the rocks.

Australian evidence

The Journal of Microscopy says that Australian scientists believe they have found evidence that life once existed on Mars. They have found that microscopic fossils of primitive bacteria-like organisms in a Mars meteorite match characteristics of bacteria found in mud in Queensland.

One of the scientisits, Dr. Taylor, says he has found enough evidence of life on Mars to warrant a manned mission to the red planet.

Solar system's most distant object discovered?

(CNN) - Scientists may have discovered the solar system's most distant object, more than three billion kilometers farther away from the Sun than Pluto.

The object-about 10 billion kilometers from Earth-has been given the provisional name of Sedna after the Inuit goddess of the sea.

Dr. Michael Brown of the California Institute of Technology and his team of astronomers, using the recently launched high power Spitzer Space Telescope, found Sedna during an ongoing threeyear outer solar system project.

Sedna is the largest object to be found circling the sun since Pluto was discovered in 1930.

VIEW FROM BRITAIN

By Jenny Randies

The end of an institution?

As I write these words the British media are full of tales of doom and gloom. UFOlogy, which they hardly ever took seriously (outside of a few tabloids), is being feted by some of the more respectable newspapers all of a sudden.

Why? Because they can pronounce on its demise once againjust about the one topic that is guaranteed to get the highbrow media excited.

Jenny Randies

Big stories and RIP announcements have been gushing forth. Several newspapers cited "UFOlogist and skeptic" Andy Roberts—although the calibre of one best-selling newspaper was revealed by not even getting his name right and calling him Andy Smith instead.

One might hope that they did their homework better in researching the rest of their story on the death of a popular cultural icon.

Sadly, one suspects they did not, given that this newspaper also writes off the Rendlesham Forest case as a hoax by a disgruntled airman—a story the paper carried in 2003, but which is about the one solution to this complex case that we can be reasonably sure is not a significant part of the answer.

Reasons to be fearful

What is the cause of this obituary for UFOlogy in Britain, and by inference everywhere else? It seems to be the decision in March 2004 for the 20-year-old newsstand magazine UFO to fold.

This is presented as symptomatic of the massive decline of the subject, which Roberts (aka Smith) defines as a product of the 20th century that has faded away along with it. To be fair, his argument is more specific than as trivialised by some media, and not entirely without merit.

UFOlogy is undoubtedly not what it was, and we are at best in the sort of dark ages faced once before—in the early 1960s.

Do we have legitimate reasons to be fearful for this subject that we all love? Have the naysayers won out? Has the cover-up succeeded in covering up all interest in this field after nigh on 60 years? Will, as some pundits argue, future historians be looking back from the end of the 21st century and thinking that UFOlogy was a passing fad, distracting mankind, but leading nowhere?

Frankly, I do not think so. I think this shows the media love to shoot down things it has never really taken to heart. This alleged disintegration of UFOlogy fits in with their judgement of the subject, and also has a peculiar attraction to people in the UK because we have a fondness for building folk up and then seeing them get knocked down.

UFOlogy is not about to curl up and die any more than it is possible to stifle human interest in mysteries. It is what mankind is all about. We seek answers to riddles-always have and always will. UFOlogy is a big riddle, and no pontification by hacks or skeptics will change that.

Revolution or evolution?

The disappearance of UFO magazine is sad, for it had a place in the hearts of many British UFOlogists, but it was a particularly homespun publication. Launched by the Birdsall brothers-two UFO enthusiasts who ran a local group in Leeds in the 1970s—itrapidly expanded into their personal empire, with conferences and merchandising.

It caught the X Files generation ethos, and probably made its mark in the public domain for that reason. Of course, it had its readers amongst active UFOlogists, but they were not its target audience. I respected it, but rarely read it myself, and only once wrote for it (because I was asked).

The reason is not that I regarded it as tawdry, but that it was aimed at a grass roots support which was not especially conducive to progressing serious UFO research—which is not to denigrate it.

What it did, it did supremely well, hence its undoubted success. But it did it mostly for the fringe of UFOlogy-popularizing the subject amongst a group of people with unrealistic expectations of what UFOlogy is really all about.

The X Files was great fun. But it was never real life. You should not judge the nature of UFOlogy from this science fiction. The problem is that some people did. It is that cultural element that probably kept UFO magazine afloat, and may. well have started to desert it just as they did The X Files towards the end of its long run. It is this aspect of the UFO community—not its serious element-that may be fading away. But that does not constitute the end of our entire community.

There are also crucial reasons why UFO magazine was strongly dependent upon its editor, Graham Birdsall, and could not survive his tragic death last year. I doubt that you can pass sentence on UFOlogy because of the demise of one magazine that was never reflective of that UFO community in the first place.

That said, there is an undoubted shift in the nature of UFOlogy which is being reflected by this magazine's closure. UFOlogy has altered in its essence very significantly because of the development of the internet.

The internet could almost have been devised with UFOlogy in mind, since it provides most of what UFO groups, magazines, and newstand journals used to offer—withmore flexibility and less cost.

Discussion forums are more fun than some of the UFO group meetings that I have attended. You have no need to wait months to read about the latest big case, as it will be on the net within hours.

These things have changed our subject profoundly, but change need not be regarded in a negative sense.

The UFO community has become more focused and smaller, but it has done so by removing a lot of the people who were really only interested in perpetuating the mystery for mysteries sake—not in finding answers.

The trick will be to mobilize our resources better and to tailor our methods to the new world in which we live.

UFO groups such as MUFON and journals of record, such as this one, will always have a place because they exist for the people who are seeking the truth rather than seeking just to be titilated by UFOs. Indeed they may become stronger in the absence of a newsstand alternative presence.

Nothing has died that we cannot live without. UFOlogy is alive and well, but it has evolved.

Similar name, different individual associated with Bigfoot ''expose''

By Robert R. Hieronimus, Ph.D.

http://www.21stCenturyRadio.com
21st Century Radio News

Recently, a new attempt has been made to debunk one of the most famous images of Bigfoot in the world.

The Roger Patterson-Bob Gimlin film taken on Oct. 20, 1967, in Bluff Creek, CA, has been carefully analyzed for over 30 years, and this is just one of many attacks on its credibility by debunkers.

Ironically, however, this latest attempt to call this film a hoax has earned little five-foot-five me a footnote in Bigfoot history!!! Believe it or not, the man who has so-called "gone public" to say it was really him dressed up in a gorilla suit in this famous film is named none other than "Bob Heironimus"!

He spells it a little differently, but it's obviously causing a good deal of confusion out there, so here's my official statement on this case: That was NOT me!!!

That's right; the "Bob Heironimus" claiming to be the man in the Bigfoot suit is NOT the same "Bob Hieronimus" who has interviewed countless Bigfoot researchers about this very film and other cases on his 21st Century Radio(r) program!

Ironic coincidence??? You decide. As unusual as my name is, I have been confused with at least three other Bob Hieronimi in this world, so this is not the first time I've been accused of doing something I had no knowledge of!

While it is too soon to make any conclusions about these latest hoax allegations, let me simply tell you now about the track record of two of the proponents of this story: Bob Kiviat and Kal Korff.

Bob Kiviat you may recognize as the name behind the infamous "Alien Autopsy" footage of 1996. He has worked with Korff and FOX TV since then on several debunking films, including previous attacks on the Patterson-Gimlin footage that turned out to be baseless.

First they pointed to an alleged zipper which they had erroneously confused with a crease down the center of the creature's back. All gorillas have this feature which follows the direct alignment of their spinal cord into the crease of their buttocks.

In 1998there were claims to have identified the "man in the suit" as someone named Jerry Romney-claims which soon fizzled out. In 1999, USA Today claimed to have spotted an object hanging from Patterson's Bigfoot, resembling a metal fastener. This later turned out to be "noise" in a printed photo from the film.

So the track record so far has been based more on hype than on fact.

And in typical debunking style, they are going after the biggest, best known case by trying to expose the Patterson film as a hoax.

Remember this: even if their claims were to be proved true, this does not affect in the slightest any of the thousands of other cases of Bigfoot sightings by reliable witnesses worldwide, the forensic evidence collected from encounter sites, and the lab tests done on them (including dermal ridges on footprints and DNA tests of hair samples that are shown to be from an unknown primate).

In fact, on the Patterson film alone, a $75,000 study by the North American Science Institute was done, and their computer enhancement analysis suggested "that the creature's skin and musculature are what one would expect to find in a living animal; not in a hairy suit, however innovatively it was constructed."

The amount of physical evidence and reliable witness testimony from around the world is enough for any thinking person to believe in the possibility of Bigfoot.

Even famed primatologist Dr. Jane Goodall has stated that she thinks it is likely that the Sasquatch is real, considering that large groups of intelligent primates have eluded discovery in the past.

To learn more about why these and other attempts have been made to discredit Patterson's film, I recommend Loren Coleman's Bigfoot: The True Story of Apes in America, published by Paraview/ Pocket Books.

The London Times calls this book, "Objective, painstaking and exhaustive." Loren Coleman's website it http://www.LorenColeman.com.

PERCEPTIONS

By Stanton T. Friedman

Technology and research

Several months ago I took note of the fact that we need new blood in MUFON because so many of us oldtimers are indeed getting older. In recent days, however, I have had a couple of experiences that indicate that we oldsters still have some useful background that counts.

A number of conference and program sponsors have urged me to "get with it" and start using Power Point in my lectures instead of 35 mm slides.

I offered several objections, including the fact that I don't have a laptop computer, that I often deal with students assigned to operate the projector, that I can teach anybody to operate a Kodak Carousel in 30 seconds, and that all sponsors seem to have one.

Moreover, the Power Point projectors are much more expensive and take more skill to operate; I have loads of slides which I often change from lecture to lecture; it costs, locally, $2.50 each to get slides put on a CD; I have never had a bulb blow in over 700 lectures; and at every conference where I have seen Power Point used there has been a problem-sometimes several.

I found a new advantage of slides when I finally viewed the videotape of my formal debate with James McGaha at Middle Tenn. State Univ. on Jan. 28. (The 2 hr. video is only $15, including shipping from me at POB 958, Houlton, ME 04730-0958)

My slides showed up very well, whereas the Power Point items with text on them showed up poorly. I have consulted experts, who were not surprised.

It has to do with the brightness of the projector, the compatibility of the software, and, of course, slides have very much higher resolution than most digital images. Just because it is new high tech doesn't mean it is better.

Not compuerized

The second discovery came when I responded to an email request from AB wanting some comments from me about how important Information Technology has been for my UFO research. I noted that it helped to have e-mail for rapid communication, that it was great to use the internet to dig out a piece of trivia (Nobel Prize winner in Physics in 1958?) without leaving my desk, and that word processing was great for me because I am a lousy typist.

He asked how about all my research on Roswell and MJ-12, and was shocked when I pointed out that, generally speaking, Information Technology was not important because the 20 document archives I have visited aren't computerized.

One has to go there, look at a finders aid, select boxes to be brought, check the folders noted, copy what one wants, and request mandatory classification review for a document one wants declassified in the hope that it may be useful.

There is no way to search electronically, because those archives are not computerized. Furthermore, digging out newspaper stories from July, 1947, for example, required one to go to a library that has those newspapers in hard copy or on microfilm.

Sometimes one can get help from a librarian who will look up somebody in a city directory, find the year when his name last appeared, get names and numbers for people living near by, and then see if any of the same people are still listed in the latest version.

AB shocked me by saying he just hadn't realized how important libraries can be when doing research, and had not been in one for years!

I guess he was even more shocked when I pointed out that while I like using the white and yellow pages on the internet, it used to be that when one called telephone Information one spoke with an operator who was in the area in which one sought information and could answer such questions as "Is that address in a good part of town."

Now the operator is nowhere near the area of interest and, of course, knows nothing about it. Until recently the accuracy was often poor, with wrong numbers given in several instances.

The point is that not everything new is better. What I would really like to do is to get readers to help me in a research project requiring some leg work using libraries, especially ones with a large number of periodicals from the 1940s on.

Press reports

Specifically, I believe it would be very useful to review press coverage of certain ufological events in order to have ammunition in hand for approaching the media with what a poor job they have often done. Here are some specific time frames of interest:

- 1. Coverage of the Roswell Incident in the period July 8-12, 1947, paying particular attention to the difference in coverage between the evening papers from Chicago west, which had the story, and the morning papers which didn't (all of them) on July 8.
- 2. USAF Gen. Samford's Washington, DC, press conference on July 29, 1952, after the many radar and visual sightings in the DC area.
- 3. The Flatwoods Monster UFO sighting and landing in Flatwoods, WV, on Sept. 12, 1952. This is a very important case researched in detail by Frank Feschino and to be reported in his new book due out before the summer. Some of the meteor explanations were really quite funny, along with the 6' owl as an explanation for the "monster."
- 4. The publication of a very widely quoted USAF press release after the completion of a huge study by Battelle Memorial Institute entitled "Project Blue Book Special Report Number 14." The press release, dated Oct. 25, 1955, did NOT give the title of the report, did not mention BMI or the authors, and had this totally misleading comment by USAF Secretary Donald Quarles:

"On the basis of this study we believe that no objects such as those popularly described as flying saucers have overflown the United States. I feel certain that even the unknown 3% could have been explained as conventional phenomena or illusions if more complete observational data had been available."

The facts are that the UNKNOWNS were actually 21.5% of the 3,201 cases investigated, and that they were completely separate from the 9.3% which were labeled INSUFICIENT INFORMATION.

Furthermore, the undistributed report showed that the better the quality of the case, the more likely to be listed as an UNKNOWN. The official lies have been repeated over and over again by UFO debunkers. I believe there were editorials as well as the press release, and that no newspaper noted the absence of a title, author, organization, or the actual data. I have the press release, but not much of the newspaper coverage.

- 5. In late March, 1966, (NY Times, March 23) Dr. J. Allen Hynek, professor of astronomy at Northwestern University and Air Force consultant on UFOs, noted at a huge Detroit press conference that some of the many UFO sightings in Michigan that week might have been due to swamp gas. Here again there were some editorials and a number of cartoons, many of them not accepting the swamp gas explanation.
- 6. The University of Colorado Study of UFOs, the Condon Report, was released in early January, 1969, to wide press coverage. To date I have seen none that noted, as the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics UFO Committee found, that 30% of the 117 cases studied in detail could NOT be identified.
- 7. Project Blue Book was officially closed on about Dec. 19, 1969, with, again, a totally misleading press release. I noted the many problems with it in TOP SE-CRET/MAJIC, but cannot recall any newspaper pointing out the false claims.
- 8. The ridiculous MOGUL Balloon explanation for Roswell was released about Sept. 16, 1994. There was a huge front page story in the New York Times, Sunday Sept. 18, accepting it without question. Maybe some newspapers questioned it, but I haven't seen them.
- 9. The Crash Test Dummies explanation for the bodies seen at Roswell was touted in late June, 1997, and widely covered even in the UK, where I was when I heard about it. Hopefully, some reporters noted that none of the dummies were dropped until 1953 and that they were 6' tall and weighed 175 pounds.
- 10. There were over 320 journalists from all over the world in Roswell for the 50th Anniversary in early July, 1997, of that crash retrieval. I am sure the press coverage varied all over the place, judging by the many interviews I did there during that week.

I would be most grateful for copies of any clippings, and would be happy to pay copying and postage costs for any sent to me at POB 958, Houlton, Maine, 04730-0958. Be sure to make note of the newspaper's full name, location, and date.

Sometimes university libraries (periodicals) have more old newspapers than do the local public libraries.

May

Bright Planets (Evening Sky):

Venus achieves greatest brilliancy in the evening sky on May 2. Shining then at magnitude -4.5, our dazzling planet neighbor begins the month low in the WNW, gradually sinking lower in the sky.

Venus sets about 11:30PM on the 1st, but about 9 PM on the 31st.

During the latter part of May, even binoculars will show the planet's relatively large thin crescent phase (nearly 1 arcminute in diameter). The lunar crescent itself is near Venus on May 20 and 21.

Mars (1.7), in Gemini, is low in the WNW at dusk, setting in the NW soon after 11 PM. Mars and Saturn are about 2 degrees apart on the 24th.

Jupiter (-2.2), in Leo, can be seen high in the SW at dusk. From there, it moves westward.

Saturn (0.2), in Gemini, stands in the W at twilight and sets in the NW about 11:30 in midmonth. The world with rings gradually descends into the twilight glow by month's end. See Saturn.

Bright Planets (Morning Sky): Jupiter sets in the WNW about 2:30

Jupiter sets in the WNW about 2:30 AM in mid-May.

A Tale of Two Cornets:

This month two comets may become visible to the naked eye, and for a time observable in the evening sky simultaneously.

Comet NEAT (after the Near Earth Asteroid Tracking survey which discovered it) should become visible to the unaided eye in Northern Hemisphere skies beginning the 2nd week of May. Look for it in the W about 10 PM, using binoculars to aid in finding the faint object.

During the latter half of May, it should appear as a 3rd-to-4th-magnitude smudge of light sporting at least a short tail in the constellation of Cancer first, then Lynx.

More difficult will be Comet LINEAR (after the discovering Lincoln Laboratory Near Earth Asteroid Research survey), a fainter 4th-to-5th-magnitude smudge with a short tail appearing to the S of NEAT toward the end of the month.

Look for it in the WSW sky about 10 PM around the borders of the constellations Puppis and Hydra. Again binoculars are useful, if not necessary, in the hunt for the comet.

(Southern Hemisphere observers may see both comets at a brighter peak 2nd magnitude.) Keep in mind that predicting the brightness of comets is notoriously difficult. Consult skyandtelescope.com for the latest information and Sky & Telescope magazine for finder charts.

Messenger to Mercury:

A spacecraft called Messenger is scheduled for a Delta rocket launch this month. Eventually requiring three gravity-boosts from Venus, Messenger finally arrives at the planet Mercury in 2009 and then orbits it to study its surface geology and chemical composition. The mission is the first orbital survey of the Sun's innermost planet.

Moon Phases:

Full moon—May 4 Last quarter—May 11 New moon—May 19 First quarter—May 27

The Stars:

Late in the evening the spring stars are well displayed in the S. From W to E, they are Leo the Lion, Virgo the Maiden, Bootes the Herdsman, and Libra the Scales.

The summer patterns also are appearing farther E-Scorpius the Scorpion, Ophiuchus the Serpent-Bearer, and Hercules the Giant. Even the Summer Triangle (the stars Vega, Deneb, Altair) is above the eastern horizon at 11 PM midmonth.

Alpha Centauri, the Sun's nearest stellar neighbor, and the Southern Cross (Crux) are best seen now in the southern evening sky from our extreme southern states

Dr. Francis Costello passes away

MUFON field investigator trainee Dr. Francis P. Costello, of Philadelphia, PA passed away on March 11, 2004. He was 70. A professor at Philadelphia University, he is survived by his wife of 45 years, Mary Ellen, and their sons Colin (Sharla) and Kylie, as well as his two beloved grandchildren, Chloe and Maxine. Memorial donations may be made to MUFON or The American Cancer Society.

The Hill case

Mrs. Budinger is to be congratulated for conceiving of, and carrying out, a long-overdue analysis of the dress Betty Hill wore on the night of her and Barney's UFO encounter (January 2004 issue). Her tentative conclusions, speculations, and recommendations are, in my view, very reasonable.

As the original investigator of this historic incident, I can state that I would have conducted many components of my investigation quite differently had I known exactly what I was dealing with back then.

The Hill episode was my first exposure to both a UFO "occupant" report and to a UFO abduction scenario. Indeed, back then UFO abduction cases were virtually unknown (or at least unpublicized).

During my Hill probe not everything was explored that should have been. And that includes close scrutiny of the dress. So kudos to Mrs. Budinger, and to Betty for preserving the dress all these years!

An 1838 sighting?

In the process of reading the early history of my church (1830 time period), I have interpreted a diary entry to mean and describe an appearance of a UFO over a late-night campsite.

The information is found in Vol. III of the Church History of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. The information in this history is well respected and appears trustworthy.

The diary inscription occurred when a group of church members embarked on a pilgrimage to Missouri from Kirtland, and occurred at night. In the book, the group pilgrimage is known as the Kirtland Camp.

Actual Entry (in quotes): "Sometime in the night a luminous body about the size of a cannon ball came down from over the encampment near the ground then whirled round some forty or fifty times and moved off in a horizontal direction, soon passing out of sight."

The diary entry was for Sunday, July 22, 1838. The author was Judge Elias Smith, acting as camp scribe, and the location was Rush Creek, Logan County (I believe Ohio) on the farm of a Mr. Partial, inkeeper in the town of Rush Creek. The number of people who initially signed up for the Kirtland Camp: 529.

I am interested in finding out if others within this individual's camp described similar information in their diaries as well.

(Those with additional information should contact the Journal editor.)

Glassy metal may be material of future By Brad Lemley

Discover, April 2004

The wispy metal strip in my hands is 8 inches long, 1 inch wide, and as thin as aluminum foil.

"Try to tear it," says William Johnson, a materials science professor at Caltech in Pasadena.

I pull-first gently, but soon with all my might. No go.

"See if you can cut this," suggests Johnson's postgraduate assistant, Jason Kang, handing me a mirror-bright piece of the same metal. It's an inch long, a quarter inch wide, and thinner than a dime.

I bear down with a heavy-duty pair of wire cutters. The metal will not cut. I try again, squeezing with both hands until my fingers ache. Nothing.

But the most amazing act in this show is yet to come.

"Watch," says Johnson. From a height of about two feet, he drops a steel ball onto a brick-size chunk of the metal. The ball bounces so high and for so long-1 minute and 17 seconds, with a metronomic tick, tick, tick-that it looks unreal, like some kind of cinematic special effect.

"When you try that with regular steel, it goes 'clunk, clunk, clunk' and stops," says Johnson. If the metal were glued to an unyielding surface such as concrete (instead of sitting on Johnson's oak coffee table, which absorbs a lot of the energy), "the ball would bounce for more than two minutes," he says. "I've done it."

THE ALLIES OF HUMANITY: An Urgent Message About the Extraterrestrial Presence in the World Today.

"I was greatly impressed with The Allies of Humanity . . . Because the message rings true. Radar contacts, ground effects, videotape and film all prove UFOs are real. Now we must considerthereal question: the agenda of their occupants. The Allies of Humanity forcefully confronts this issue, one which may prove critical to the future of humankind." -Jim Marrs Soft cover, 6 x 9, 166 pages. $ 14.95,

2004 MUFON International UFO Symposium

Planning for the annual MUFON UFO Symposium is going very well. It is shaping up to be an exciting and enjoyable event.

It will be held at the Marriott Southeast hotel in Denver on July 16-18. A registration form is included in this issue to make it easy for you to register for the event.

Early registration is suggested ifyou want to capture the very low hotel room rates that we have advertised.

John Schuessler

Joining the list of outstanding speakers this year is John Greenewald. His Black Vault has documented more than 100,000 pages of government documents related to the UFO phenomenon.

This documentation has shown that our government is still investigating and hiding the results. John will be participating in the "Not of this World Day" at Six Flags on Thursday, July 15, and then will be a part of the Friday night symposium kick-off event.

For the rest of the weekend he will be the symposium master of ceremonies. This is an excellent opportunity to get to know John and hear about his research.

Stephen Bassett of the Paradigm Research Group will present the case for deception, denial, and disclosure. Steve was a candidate for election to the House of Representatives from his home state in the last election. He continues to be a force for change and the release of UFO information. He says that in any court of law, first-person evidence is enough to convict. Since we have thousands of documented cases of first-person evidence, we need to pursue our case in the courts as well as the court of public opinion.

John Schuessler will present a summary of the body of evidence collected by MUFON and other organizations that shows that Unconventional Flying Objects (UFOs) are real and that they are not ours.

Other symposium presenters, as noted in the March issue of the MUFON UFO Journal include Grant Cameron, Peter Davenport, Budd Hopkins, Deborah Lindemann, Nick Redfern, David Sereda, and Ryan Wood.

All speakers will be addressing the subject of "evidence," making this a unique and exciting event.

The MUFON Pandora Project

Bob & Lin Simpson report that the beta testing of the project aimed at scanning the 35 years of paper files is finished, and scanning has begun. Since this is a volunteer effort, it will be a very long time before all the files are converted to electronic form and available for researchers to study.

Recognizing the magnitude of the task, the MUFON Business Board has recommended seeking a grant that will allow the project to proceed with haste, thereby making the data available in the near term.

MUFON members can assist by contacting businesses & influential people in their area to request a grant for this project. Although the cost is fairly large, donors can be reminded that MUFON is a non-profit organization, and grants can be tax deductible. Special recognition can be given to the donor as well.

Some similar future scanning projects that we have planned include converting all 34 years of MUFON International UFO Symposium Proceedings to CD-ROM, followed by a similar project for converting the MUFON UFO Journals to CD-ROM. Grants for these projects will be considerably less costly than the Pandora Project.

Position Announcements

Jim Bouck, State Director for New York, appointed Thomas Koch of Schenectady, NY, to the position of State Section Director for Albany and Schenectady Counties.

Dr. Jack Kasher, State Director for Nebraska, appointed Tom McArdle of Lincoln, NE, to the position of State Section Director for Lancaster County.

Leslie Varnicle, State Director for Colorado, has made the following State Section Director appointments in Colorado: Allen Black, Colorado Springs, CO, for Crowley, Custer, Huerfano, Otero, and Pueblo Counties; John W. Blake, Glade Park, CO, for El Paso, Fremont, Park and Teller Counties; James Carrion, Bellevue, CO, for Boulder, Clear Creek, Eagle, Garfield, Gilpin, Grand, Jackson, Larimer, Weld, Morgan, Logan, Phillips, Yuma, and Washington Counties (James is also a member of the MUFON Business Board and architect of the Pandora Project); Ethan Rich, Englewood, CO, for Broomfield, Douglas, and Jefferson Counties (Ethan is also Director of Investigations for Colorado); and Davina Ryszka, Delta, CO, for Archuleta, Delores, Gunnison, Hinsdale, LaPlata, Mineral, Montezuma, Ouray, Pitkin, San Juan, San Miguel, Delta, Mesa. and Montrose Counties (Davina is also an Assistant State Director for Western Colorado).

New Field Investigators

Kathleen Marden, Director of Field Investigator Training, has announced that Andrew Fisher, Portland, MI: Kirk Kirkman. Grand Junction, CO; George Raymer, Freeport, IL: Dr. Melvin Redfern, Chuckey, TN: Will Sterling, St. Albans, Herfordshire, England; and Andrew Thomas, Maida Vale, London, England, have successfully passed the MUFON Field Investigator's Exam and are now MUFON Field Investigators.

MUFON Member Publications

James M. McCampbell has announced the publication of his new book, Megacraters On Earth, an Introduction to Cosmic Geology. Jim looks at a 250-million-year segment of the history of Earth and documents more than 200 impact craters.

He connects these impacts with the changes that have made mining easier, the location of oil fields, and the appearance of mammals and the development of mankind. His book is available from Digital Books, 12 Bryce Ct., Belmont, CA 94002 for $22.25 plus $6 S&H.

Ryan Wood & Dr. Robert M. Wood have announced the publication of the UFO Crash Retrieval Conference Proceedings. The conference was held in Las Vegas, NV, Nov. 14-16, 2003. The 234-page, 8 1/2 x 11 format book is available from www.majesticdocuments.comfor $35 plus $5 S&H. Audio tapes are also available.

Bill Jones has published a unique edition of the Ohio UFO Notebook covering a large collection of UFO articles from the National Enquirer. The clippings included in Issue No. 27, January, 2004, were from the files of the late Earl J. Neff.

A dozen of the articles were investigated and written by MUFON member Robert Pratt of Lake Worth, FL.
