American Association of Pharmaceutical Scientists

October 2006

2nd Joint AAPS/AAVPT/CRS Workshop on Collaboration in the Research and Development of Veterinary Pharmaceuticals

Co-sponsored with AAVPT, CRS and USP

October 27–29, 2006
 Henry B. Gonzalez Convention
 Center San Antonio, Texas

The number of people employed in the animal health industry, regulatory agencies and the related scientific researchers are relatively small, and few meetings dedicated to animal medicinal product development occur. This meeting brings together pharmaceutical and veterinary scientists to share development issues and bridge the gap between these two fields. The meeting provides educational opportunities for scientists to broaden their understanding of animal health product development, and as a forum for open discussion. The final session of this workshop will focus on the new field of in-vitro in-vivo correlation for veterinary species; this will be a springboard for future meetings and debates on this topic.

Goals and Objectives

This workshop will:

- ▶ bring together pharmaceutical scientists and veterinary pharmacologists to discuss areas of mutual interest;
- ▶ provide a forum in which research, current issues and future objectives and directions in veterinary medicine can be presented and discussed; and
- ▶ disseminate information to promote and further enhance the interdisciplinary approach to animal health product research and development.

AAPS Workshop on Applications of Ion Chromatography in Pharmaceutical Drug Analysis

Co-sponsored with ALA

October 27–29, 2006
 Henry B. Gonzalez Convention Center
 San Antonio, Texas

Although there is already a strong interest in the biotechnology industry for IC, the interest in this pharmaceutical area is still growing and is expected to grow steadily over the next few years. Several factors, including the potential of being complementary to the conventional forms of HPLC such as RP or NP, orthogonal to techniques of metal ion analysis such as ICP and AA, a safer and low cost operation for not having to use organic solvents, and expiration of certain key patents held by the innovator company a few years ago has opened the potential of rapidly increasing applications of IC in pharmaceutical drug analysis. The number of USP monographs that include IC-based procedures is low but is increasing steadily. USP plans to have a new general information chapter on Ion Chromatography and at least one more general chapter on an IC-based procedure. Given all these key factors, the timing of this meeting will be ideal for pharmaceutical industry to discuss the technology and explore its potential for application in drug analysis.

Attend the 2006 AAPS Annual Meeting and Exposition

Plan to join over 8,500 pharmaceutical scientists from every corner of the globe who will be promoting breakthrough research and technologies, networking with colleagues, and improving their professional edge at the 2006 AAPS Annual Meeting and Exposition, October 29 – November 2, 2006 at the Henry B. Gonzalez Convention Center, San Antonio, Texas. More than 550 companies are expected to showcase the latest equipment, technical developments, publications, and other services for the pharmaceutical scientist. Find both new and current suppliers of the equipment, services, and techniques you need for your most pressing needs. An Exhibit Guide will be available on site for all attendees and will feature detailed descriptions of exhibiting company's contact information, products and services, plus an index of the companies by product category. This guide to the Exposition will also serve as a valuable reference after the meeting.
