Page 526. It is regretted that, owing to the fineness of the hatching in the original drawing, figure 6 did not reproduce as intended, in that some of the solid black areas are spurious. A modified version with bolder hatching is shown below.

FIGURE 6. Distribution of Fucus serratus, Himanthalia elongata, Laminaria saccharina, Codium, Paracentrotus graze patches, and other algae in the Castle Narrows in September 1979. No mapping has been done in areas covered by soft bottom, outside the broken line. The positions of temperature probes for the work described in §3a are also shown.
