[701]

when, after the great Shock upon the 24th of March, there were some Shocks every Day for a Month; so that few or none went into Houses before the latter End of April: When I had time enough to observe their Motion, which was regularly periodic, or about the same Hour every Day. But I must differ from this unknown Gentleman's Opinion so far as to say, that every one of those Shocks was lateral, moving from the South to the North; and, as near as I could judge, the Motions formed acute Angles, somewhat resembling the Motion of Lightning.

Mordach Mackenzie.

XLVII.

Part of a Letter from William Folkes, Esq; F. R. S. to his Brother the President, concerning a Shock of an Earthquake felt at Newton in Northamptonshire, on Sunday, September 30. 1750.

Dear Brother,

N Sunday last, rather before One, whilst we were at Church, we had an Easthquake here. The Noise, to the best of my Judgment, continued near a Minute; but was not so loud as either of those I heard at London. Several of the Congregation perceived the Ground tremble; but I cannot say I did. It is said to have been more violent in several Places in the Neighbourhood than here; but this I much question, Also the Day Iwent

[702]

I went thro' Stamford to Grantham, in my Way to Torkshire, an Earthquake was felt in both those Places: So that I have been within the Knowlege of no less than Four of these Shocks of Nature in Eight Months time; but, thank God, none of them attended with any ill Consequences, any farther than furnishing Room for melancholy Resections upon such a disagreeable Alteration in our Climate, which had been generally thought before tolerably free from this Calamity.

Believe me to be, with most fincere Love and

Esteem,

Dear Brother,

Your most faithful,

and obedient humble Servant,

W. Folkes.

XLVIII.

Part of a Letter from James Burrow, Esq; F. R. S. to the President, concerning an Earthquake felt near Bury St. Edmund's in Sussolk, and another at Narborough in Leicestershire, on the 30th of September, 1750.

Bury St. Edmund's, 2d October, 1750. Dear Sir,

HIS Morning I have been making a Visit at Lord Cornwallis's at Culford; which, I suppose, I need not tell you, is about four Miles from Bury in Suffolk. Lady Cornwallis (whose