Collecting the respective sums of the daily heights of the instruments throughout the year, and extracting the mean altitude, I find,

The mean altitude of the barometer for each day, is 29.915 inches.

Of the thermometer, 68°.918.

The 'greatest barometrical variation, during 'four years and four months, has been 9 tenths of an inch, viz. from 29.3 to 30.2. For altho' in April 1751. the mercury stood at 29.1, I find, by a note in my diary, that some air having insinuated itself into the tube, I judg'd the mercury to stand 3 tenths of an inch lower than it ought.

The greatest thermometrical variation, during the said time, has been 20°; viz. from 60° to 80°: But it may be observ'd, I never knew it rise so high but once; occasion'd by a very strong léste or levant wind; the extreme height, without such an accident, being never more than 78°.

N. B. It may be necessary to advise, that my observations are made in the city of Funchal.

The

The quantity of rain, which has fallen in the island of Madeira.

The quantity of rain, which has fallen the last seven years, from 1747. to 1753. inclusive, amounts to 214.346 inches.

Therefore the mean quantity for each year is 30.62 +.

The mean quantity of water for each day of the said seven years 0.083 +.

The number of days it rain'd in the said seven years 462

The mean quantity of water for each of the days it rain'd 0.503 +.

An account of the number of days, on which it rained, and of the greatest quantity of water, which fell in any one day of the respective month; in inches and decimal parts.
