RADIO'S WILL HAYS!

THE long-awaited Czar of radio has arrived. RADIO GUIDE is able to announce this week that Oswald F. Schuette has been vested with the scepter of dictator. He holds the same position in the radio industry as Will Hays holds in the film world, and as Judge Landis grasps in baseball. He is the Big Boss.

Radio has been waiting for this move for years. The necessity of a dictator has long been recognized. When Schuette settled the threatened strike of the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers his name became paramount among the names of those who might have been mentioned for this Czar job. He was immediately appointed dictator of the copyright activities of the broadcasting industry, and now he has been vested with the right of complete censorship of all programs.

Among other important things, the appointment of liberal-minded, public-spirited Schuette means a new deal for the listener. He will have the right to censor long-winded advertising blurbs, the bane of many an otherwise interesting hour.

Meet Oswald Schuette: He is fifty-years-old and doesn't look it. He is Oswald Schuette, who Radio Guide now discloses as Radio's Will Hays, is shown at top, surrounded by a galaxy of stars, a few of the hundreds he will control. At lower right you see Will Hays. They don't look much alike, but their jobs are just about the same.

Broadcast First Football Series

Christy Walsh, sports writer and football authority, will bring the first of a series of football broadcasts to the air on Friday, September 23rd at 8 p. m. (CDST) over the Columbia network. The series is titled "All-American Football Show."

The series opens with re-enactments of thrilling plays from last year's season, and a preview of this season's games. Harry von Zell, announcer, will be at the mike for this feature.

An eighteen-piece band, under the baton of Freddie Rich, and a large male chorus, coached by Andre Kostalanetz will present a concert of college and fraternity songs each week; and Walsh will also bring prominent football coaches and sports writers from all over the country for forecasts, sidelights and chats on strategy and training.

Among the coaches who have already contracted to appear on the series are Glenn S. "Pop" Warner of Leland Stanford; "Tad" Jones of Yale; Jesse C. Harper of Notre Dame; W. A. Alexander of Georgia Tech., and Eddie Casey of Harvard.

Walsh's pronouncements on the season's games as they are played will be indicative of the official ratings to be made at the close of the season by the All-American Board of Football, of which he is a charter member.

Thirty-five Columbia outlets will carry the programs which have been built by Walsh in cooperation with Charles Spear, Columbia continuity writer.

Local outlet WGN.

Big Politicians Speak Saturday

An all-star production, featuring satellites of the American political arena, will be staged over NBC networks when William D. Mitchell, Attorney General of the United States; Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, and Mrs. William O. Pouch, vice-president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, address national audiences on Saturday, September 17. This news was not released in time for publication in last week's GUIDE.

The occasion will be the celebration of Constitution Day. Attorney General Mitchell will speak over an NBC-WMAQ network at 8:30 p. m. (CDST). Newton D. Baker will face the microphone in Cleveland at 1:15 p. m. (CDST) over WMAQ and listeners will hear Mrs. Pouch speaking from New York at 5:30 p. m. (CDST) over an NBC-WENR network. Her subject is "Constitution Day and the D. A. R."

Wile, Kaltenborn Give News on Air

H. V. Kaltenborn and Frederic William Wile, two of radio's most colorful veteran commentators are back on the air. This winter they will deliver their terse, salty political low-down over the Columbia channels.

Wile has begun his tenth successive year of weekly analyses of current happenings in the nation's capitol with his "Political Situation in Washington Tonight," every Saturday. Kaltenborn, who has been vacationing since the close of the national conventions, concentrates on world affairs, and is heard every Tuesday and Thursday from 5 to 5:15 p. m. (CDST) over WBBM.

Wile is recognized as one of the best qualified men in his field. He first began broadcasting national and international politics in 1923, a few weeks after Calvin Coolidge succeeded Harding in the presidency. Ever since then he has continued his weekly political reviews.

In 1930, Wile blazed a new trail by becoming the world's first radio foreign news correspondent. CBS sent him to London to report on the air the Five-Power Naval Conference.

H. V. Kaltenborn, author, lecturer and former editor of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle has had a career similar to that of his friend and associate, Wile. He has seen a decade of service as a radio political commentator for American newspapers. Kaltenborn has just returned from an extensive trip to the capitol of Europe where he met and interviewed such world figures as Hitler, Von Papen, Herriot and Mis Holiness, Pope Pius. His radio talks will be built around his European impressions.

Beebe Broadcast Delayed by Gale

Terrific winds roaring out of the West Indies and tossing their little craft like a peanut shell on the surface of the Caribbean halted William Beebe's thrilling broadcast scheduled for Sunday, September 11th, at Nonsuch Island.

If Beebe had gone through the scheduled plans for broadcast, it would have meant instant death a half mile beneath the surface of the ocean. The broadcast will be held this Sunday, September 18th.

Ford Bond, NBC announcer, will describe Beebe's descent into the depths as he leaves the tug Freedom at 10 a. m. (CDST). At 1 p. m. (CDST), when Beebe has reached the point a half mile beneath the surface of the sea—further down the ocean than any man has ever descended before—he will speak over an NBC network and describe what happens in the darkest depths of the ocean.

National Broadcasting engineers battled a 75-mile gale ten miles off Bermuda as they tried to make arrangements for the broadcast last week.

Kate Smith Ill, Will Continue Programs

Kate Smith, stricken with influenza, this week had been ordered to Lake Placid for a two week's rest. During her stay there she will continue her broadcasts.

The La Palina Orchestra will accompany her to Lake Placid, or some other quiet health resort, and special wires will be rigged from the site to enable her to continue her broadcasts, it was announced.

Kate became ill late last week and was forced to cancel a vaudeville engagement. She filled a weekend engagement at Atlantic City, despite the protests of doctors, in order to keep faith with the public after it had been announced that she would sing there.

Doctors ordered her to Lake Placid and were dubious about her broadcasting, but Kate Smith determined that she would continue her programs.

Bar Heads Hit Radio Censorship

Freedom of speech on the air, no restrictions on radio advertising, and a demand for the repeal of the Davis equalization amendment will be given consideration by the American Bar Association at its Annual Convention, October 12th, in Washington.

These recommendations, together with an attack on the Federal Radio Commission, were highlights of a 65-page report submitted to the association by the committee on communications.

The Federal Radio Commission came in for a severe rap from the report because, it was claimed, the Commission's decisions were inconsistent. In some cases, it was said, the Commission strictly adhered to its regulations in coming to a decision, and in other similar cases, completely disregarded those regulations.

Broadcasters are, as a consequence, not able to predetermine the commission's action from the basis of previous decisions as precedents, according to the committee's report.

In discussing freedom of speech on the air, the report stated, "Freedom of speech by radio in the sense and to the degree upheld by the United States Supreme Court in the case of the press becomes a delusion as a practical matter . . . if the privilege is given to, or the responsibility is placed on, the broadcaster to censor a political speech."

Regarding radio advertising, the report opposes legislative proposals to limit sales talk in radio programs.

"At times and with respect to many broadcast stations, the advertising talk has been annoying to listeners, both because of its character and its amount . . . Yet there is every reason to believe that with the return of normal conditions (financial), the self interest of the broadcaste, and of the advertiser, combined with the listeners' power of censorship by turning away from an offending program, will automatically eliminate excesses."

The committee called "impossible of enforcement" the Davis equalization amendment directing that radio wave lengths, powers, etc., be divided equally between five radio zones and then among the states within those zones according to their population.

The report was submitted by Louis G. Caldwell, Washington attorney in charge of the committee; John W. Guider, of Washington; John C. Kendall, Portland, Ore., and Robert Stone, Seattle.

Mrs. Yost Launches Talks on Politics

Mrs. Ellis A. Yost, New York Republican, is going to launch a new series of non-partisan address over the Columbia network, Tuesday, September 20th.

The series is designed to rally women voters for the forthcoming election and urge them to use their voting power to the utmost. While numerous women prominent in Republican, Democratic and Independent politics will be represented on the series, their subject will be the same; "Woman's Responsibility to Vote."

Frances Perkins, State Commissioner of Labor of New York, and a Democrat, will give the second address on Tuesday, October 11th. Fanny Hurst, well-known writer representing the "League for Independent Political Action," will be the final speaker on Tuesday, November 1st.

REVIEWING RADIO

By Mike Porter

DURING the past week I have been digging down into the records and have found evidence that the radio audience of this country has very narrowly escaped a bombardment of outlawed broadcasts.

These were all slated to originate in Mexico, just across the border, and the gentlemen who were to sponsor them were those who had either been put off the air in America, or those who wanted to get around the lottery laws and garner hundreds of thousands of American dollars in gambling schemes, which never would have been tolerated by this government.

But we have been spared all this by a conference between American and Mexican officials, who will sit beside each other during the current International Radio Conference in Madrid, Spain, where cooperative regulations are under way by the various nations.

It should be pointed out that Mexico has not been a party to the ulterior schemes of the prospective outlaws. The truth is that because of more serious troubles, the Mexican boys hadn't got around to the radio problem with its threats of international trouble. One of the pioneers of the Mexican stunt was Dr. John Brinkley, the goat gland gent who was refused a license in Kansas and who set up a whale of a transmitter in Villa Acuna. As a result of the American-Mexican confab, the doc is now off the air again. Others who had designs on us via the Mexican route were the survivors of the Capone gang, who thought the gambling stunt would be swell. But now they're out of luck, too. There is Norman T. Baker, however, former owner of KINT, Muscatine, Iowa, the cancer cure person, who has been considering a station at Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, and who may get away with it, because the Mexican officials see no harm in his propaganda. The American courts did, however, hold that he was using the station as a personal mouthpiece, and in this they upheld the Radio Commission's decision to silence his plant in Iowa.

The current trend of the radio program builders is turning again to the drama, and mystery scripts will probably be the rage this winter. Contemplating this, I cannot suppress the hope that they will be dramatized with more finesse and a better casting than the Eno Crime Club series via the Columbia circuits. During the era when Edgar Wallace yarns were going strong, the broadcasts were interesting in spite of the affected British draws inflicted upon us by the principals in the cast. During recent weeks the rehearsals must have been hurried, or possibly it was the heat, but whatever the cause, the combination of Oxfordian accents and inexpert continuity is certainly not permitting the feature to keep the pace originally set.

There was one page in the radio plan submitted recently to Henry Ford, which dealt with radio humor—and although Mr. Ford has definitely refused to go on the air until

Tin-Pan Album

By DOROTHY DEERE

"LIFE is just a Bolognini" . . . or so they say at NBC. The Argentine lost one of its most celebrated sons when Ennio Bolognini accompanied Luis Firpo to New York . . . We gained a talented musician and a highly-colored personality when he lost all his money on the prize-fight. Saen-Saens called him his favorite cellist, Toscanini calls him godson and one of the finest performers he ever directed . . . and the ladies call him constantly. Just a Latin lover at large, he panics the fair-sex with the white streak in his hair and his broken English . . .

DOROTHY DEERE

The streak of temperament in his nature and the rules he breaks (or bends) daily, do likewise to the studio bosses. One of the recognized cellists of the country, Ennio has the kind of personality that is apt to over-shadow even the prestige of a great talent . . . friends would much rather recite "the latest Bolognini" than the list of his achievements . . . I'm going to do a little of both.

To begin, Ennio wants me to correct the rumor that labels him as a former bull-fighter . . . Take it from him, the statement "ees more bool than they have on the pampas." Born in Buenos Aires of a musical family and predestined for a musical career, his early activities were mostly athletic . . . rugby, soccer and enough prize-fighting to gain an amateur boxing title. His destiny seems to have been shaped by a strange blending of the athletic and the artistic urge . . . From the time when he abandoned an orchestra of his own and an already established reputation in his own country, to add his cheers for Firpo to those of the Bronx . . . 'till the present day when he alternates periods of "Mello Cello" with setting-up exercises on the roof of the Merchandise Mart.

S'funny thing, the interest listeners take in the imaginary characters that live and breathe on the air. Hundreds and hundreds of letters pour in to WGN weekly making suggestions about the food, clothes, careers, loves and lives of "The Moynihan Family." S'funny thing, and beyond understanding to this blonde scribbler.

Firpo's bout left Dempsey with the belt and Bolognini with his shirt . . . and not much else. Then and there, the only superstition that he owns to was born, "that it ees a bad theeng to be weethout money." Concert work and vaudeville revived the fading fortunes. He has played with some of the greatest conductors in our country . . . Erno Rapee, Toscanini and Frederick Stock . . . in the New York and American Symphonies, the Philadelphia Philharmonic . . . and was, for two years, first cellist in the Chicago Symphony.

Six-foot-sumpthin', brown eyes, wavy black hair romantically streaked with white . . . He has turned down movie contracts. Drives a Duesenberg, has a valet for his police dog . . . but there's no guarantee he won't show up for his next concert in his stocking feet. Kisses the ladies' hands, but prefers hungry newsboys for dinner companions. Once started a riot between the music-lovers and the ha-cha fans at a southside cafe by borrowing a cello and the dance-floor . . . which is probably the only time in his life that he can be accused of not giving a finished performance, the rioters finished while he was half-way through "Symphony in Something-or-other." Is ambitious again to conduct an orchestra of his own . . . but until then, you can hear him featured on most of the important programs from the Chicago NBC studios, and as soloist in the Sunday night "Mellow Cello" period.

Schuette Named Radio's Dictator

keen, sharp-eyed, alert, kinetic. Born in Chicago and graduated from a Chicago high school at fifteen. At twenty he got a job as a cub reporter on a Chicago newspaper. At twenty-three he was city editor of a Milwaukee paper. In 1907 he travelled through Europe as a political correspondent, and in the same year he returned to Chicago as a political writer for the old Chicago Inter-Ocean. He was Washington correspondent for that paper, and for Leslie's weekly, for five years.

War came, and Schuette, who speaks German fluently, was sent to Berlin as the correspondent of the Chicago Daily News. His vivid articles on the war are still remembered. When the break impended between America and Germany, Schuette, calm and unperturbed, kept right on sending his stories back home. All other American newspapermen left the country. Schuette stayed on until just before the Declaration of War, and then he hopped a train and got to Switzerland just in time. He covered the rest of the war from that country.

Returning to Washington after the Armistice, Schuette was again correspondent for Leslie's Weekly and Iron Age. Later he wrote a political column for the Hearst newspapers.

Schuette is widely known in other public activities besides journalism. He coined the widely used political phrase "the steam roller," and once wrote a handbook for the Republican National Committee. He is President of the National Press Club in Washington, and is a member of the executive committee of the Chicago Catholic Charities.

In 1919 Schuette married Mary Patricia Moran, of Washington. They have five children.

Five years ago his name first began to loom big with headquarters in Chicago, to represent the interest of the independent radio manufacturers in their struggle with the so-called "radio trust." The "trust" was the six billion dollar combination of the Radio Corporation of America, General Electric Company, Westinghouse, United Fruit Company, American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and General Motors. After three years of battle in Congress, before the Federal Trade Commission and in the courts, he succeeded in forcing the Department of Justice to bring a suit for the dissolution of the "trust."

This suit is now about to reach its climax. The hearing is scheduled for October 10th in the United States District Court at Wilmington, Delaware.

In the meantime negotiations between the "trust" and the Department of Justice have resulted in the elimination of the United Fruit Company, the Telephone Company, and General Motors from the combination.

In the course of this conflict, Schuette also championed the cause of a group of more than a hundred small broadcasters who were threatened with revocation of their license by the Federal Radio Commission.

Schuette's biggest diplomatic job, and the one which landed him on top of the radio world, was breaking the deadlock that existed between radio and Tin Pan Alley. Radio is now the greatest source of income for composers of popular music. Schuette's Armistice between the composers and the broadcasters provided for:

A sustaining fee of $933,000 a year, to be paid to the composers according to their popularity. In addition, a percentage fee of net receipts will be paid by the broadcasters to the composers. It will be three per cent the first year, four the second, and five the third. The composers had originally demanded a flat five per cent of the gross receipts. No formal contract has yet been signed.

Following his appointment as dictator, Mr. Schuette made this statement for RADIO GUIDE:

"The efforts of the National Association of Broadcasters to protect the industry against extortionate copyright fees have not been abandoned.

"The acceptance of the percentage contracts was forced by the threat of infringement suits on a scale that would have destroyed the industry. That is an unsound basis for any negotiations.

"The contracts which are finally made must be free from any implication of racketeering. They must represent fairly the value of the actual use of the musical compositions.

"The vital test of any final settlement between the broadcasters and the composers must be the all-important question: Is it in the public interest?"

Impartial observers rate Oswald Schuette as the brainiest of the three great amusement czars. They call him more liberal than Hays, a quicker thinker than Landis. They see in his appointment brighter days for the public, a better class of radio entertainment.

Poetry Corner

The Poetry Corner is open to all RADIO GUIDE readers. One dollar will be paid for each poem accepted. Poems must pertain to radio or radio artists.

RADIO ROMANCE

The light was low; the room was dim,
At last I was alone with him.
I shivered in sheer ecstasy
As his voice came tenderly.

"Nightfall and you, lovely you—"
Breathless I listened, then I knew
The meaning of a lover's bliss;
My face seemed lifted for his kiss.

When suddenly I was bereft,
And just Reality was left;
For father yelled from overhead,
"Shut off that thing and go to bed!"

—Dorothy Jacobus.

More Adventures in Europe

"WE are not actors. We are merely fulfilling the vow our ancestors made to God."

This was Anton Lang's answer to my inquiries concerning the possibility of studying acting in Oberammergau.

If I were asked by a friend to recommend a place in Europe to study the dramatic art, I would send him to the town of Oberammergau. For here, acting is not an art. It is not a profession. It is so natural and simple as to defy description.

Each summer Oberammergau has what it modestly calls "practise plays." The small biblical dramas last several hours and the admission is thirty-five cents. They are worth the cost of a trip to Germany. You see here the school for the participants in the Passion Plays, but you would never guess it was a school.

Neither would you guess that the friendly, simple artisans you meet in the streets or in their shops were actors. Yet they are supreme actors. They do not seem to act—they make you feel somehow the force of their convictions and the meaning of their drama, without giving you the notion of acting.

Much that I have not read must have been written about their work. I cannot describe it. I can only urge you to go to Oberammergau. It is a delightful place to rest, without any of the evils of a resort. And it is best to see it as it is in its everyday life, and not during the time of the Passion Play.

You can spend many profitable hours chatting with the villagers and hearing practical lessons in philosophy. I enjoyed, most of all, Anton Lang, the old "Christus," who attends Mass each morning, and who still tiptoes around his shop to greet every comer. He expressed great concern about the economic crisis, and recalled many pleasantries of his visit to America where, due to some journalist's error, we always think he is a wood-carver instead of the potter he really is.

He told me that it was probable that performances of the Passion Play would be given during the summer of 1934, which is the 300th anniversary of the making of the promise. The burgermeister and his committee of twenty have yet to vote, but it is likely that they will decide in the affirmative.

Whether or not there is a Passion performance, do not omit the pleasant Bavarian village from your travels. You'll enjoy the numerous footpaths through the hills and woods around the town, and the visiting with the generous, affable people. Though you come as a tourist or even a curiosity-seeker, you will leave with a warm memory in your heart and a happy feeling that there is an Oberammergau in the world.

MUNICH

The growing shortness of my time necessitated a choice between the Munich and Salzburg Festivals. I chose the latter, but I could not pass through the Bavarian capitol without a visit to the charming Residenz Theater, my favorite of the small opera-houses in Germany. There I heard a commendable performance of Figaro's Hochzeit. And I did steal an extra day from Salzburg to hear again Frida Leider's Brunhilde. In case you are not familiar with her singing, you will have a chance to hear her this winter when she joins the Metropolitan forces. She is a most capable singer, at times lacking in emotional qualities, but always a thorough musician.

Munich is a city that deserves many weeks. You could spend evening after evening in the Hofbrauhaus and never tire of Bavarian beer. But Salzburg called.

SALZBURG

In and around this city the outstanding musical and intellectual leaders of Central Europe gather during the time of the great Music Festival. Successful promotion has brought events here to the attention of every traveller. But the renown of the Festival does not rest entirely on promotion. Salzburg standards are high. The performances merit the attention they receive. It is "quality" that sells out the houses.

If names are significant, and they usually are, Max Reinhardt directs the play "Everyman," and is near at hand in Schloss Leopoldskron to give advice when it is needed. Harold Kreutzberg dances on the Cathedral Square. Bruno Walter, with whose genius you are all familiar, conducts the Vienna Philharmonic, the finest orchestra I have ever heard participate in an opera performance. Richard Strauss, by all odds the greatest living Austrian composer, and an exception to the "rule" that all composers are poor conductors, comes to direct several performances. This summer it was Fidelio and a Mozart-Beethoven concert. For some reasons probably well known to himself, he leaves his own works, Rosenkavalier and the comparatively unknown Woman Without a Shadow to other batons. Clemens Krauss and Fritz Busch complete the list of first conductors this summer.

The singers are world-renowned and uniformly capable. Sigrd Onegin, Maria Mueller, Lotte Lehmann (of whom we will hear more), Richard Mayr and Richard Tauber are among those best known in America.

Is it any wonder that music-lovers flock to Salzburg?

And there is an attraction for me that surpasses even the glories of this assemblage. It is the atmosphere and the feeling of fitness which the surroundings lend. Every detail tells that the performance is Mozart, and you are not much concerned with the names of the singers.

Best of all, I like the serenades that are played in the court of the ancient residence of the Prince-Archbishop of Salzburg. Here, with only the light of smoking candles, a quartet or sextet plays the greatest music of the last two centuries. As you listen, you can imagine Mozart crossing this very courtyard on his way home after entertaining the noble guests, and humming these tunes that are to live forever. It is a gracious setting, classic in design, and ideal for the music.

This is the delight of Salzburg. Its towers, shadowy arches, vaulted courts and princely squares combine to create an atmosphere in which the music of its hey-day should be heard.

The birth-place of Mozart is a natural-born festival city, and I am glad to be here for the great performances that soon will fill the air.

Carleton Smith treads a light fanango with Maria Mueller, of the Metropolitan Opera. They met in Salzburg, Bavaria.

SONGS ARRANGED

correctly, and to meet all requirements. If your song has commercial possibilities, my advice is to have it arranged professionally, so that it will not only seek attention, but DEMAND it. If quality and good work are more important to you than price, write me. Three of my latest song numbers, regular piano copies, sent post-paid for $1.

The Story of Mary Pickford

By Ida Bailey Allen

This is the first of a series of articles on "Today's Pioneer Women" by Ida Bailey Allen, whose interesting talks on this subject are heard each Tuesday at 10:45 a. m. (CDST) over the CBS network, sponsored by the makers of Pebecco Toothpaste. Local outlet WBBM.

IT was late afternoon at one of the funny little motion picture theaters which, back in the early 1900's, were just beginning to attract popular attention, although they had by no means attained respectability.

A small, golden-haired girl stepped up to the ticket seller and offered him a nickel—or was it a dime? He looked her over critically, and barked, "How old are you?"

"Fifteen," she fibbed. She was only fourteen.

"Well, then," snapped the ticket seller, "I can't let you in. Children under sixteen can't come without their parents."

"But," blurted the determined little girl with the soft dark eyes, "I'm from the Biograph Company. I'm the star of the picture you are showing tonight."

"So you are," agreed the man, looking her up and down, "but I can't let you in anyhow. Suppose you go home and get your mother."

Already this mature little person of less than fifteen years had found her way into the pioneer industry, and with it she was to ride to fame. She wasn't a novice, however, for her career as an actress was already ten years old when she entered Biograph.

Gladys Smith, who later adopted her grandmother's name and became Mary Pickford, was born of Irish-Canadian parents in Toronto, Canada, in 1893. When she was four years old her father died, leaving the mother with three small children, and a not-very-profitable candy shop. Luckily, the charm of the five-year-old Mary won her an engagement with the Valentine Stock Company, and before long she was playing children's parts in a way to draw tears from the hardest hearted theater-goer.

Even during her early girlhood Mary Pickford was fired with ambition. She longed to get a job with Belasco, at that time a theatrical name to conjure with. She dreamed of waiting outside his office door, and of falling in a faint when he should come out. Then, in this day dream, as she conceived it, the great man would take her in his arms, and go back into his office. At the crucial moment she would revive and tell him it was just acting. Thereupon, he would promptly offer her five hundred a week. A nice day dream, but it didn't happen that way. Belasco did see her and when she had scarcely entered her teens, engaged her for a Broadway play.

Then came the adventure in Biograph. In those days, moving picture companies had no intention of creating stars, so Mary was called "The Biograph Girl" and the "Girl with the Curls." She played everything, even Indian parts, although it is hard to imagine her child-like face with its charming pout, done up as a wild Indian.

As time passed, the movie industry quickly grew out of its swaddling clothes. It discovered California. Under the hands of its magicians, Zukor and Griffiths and others, the pictures lost their old crudities and became polished and sophisticated. Respectable people, who had scorned the moving picture palaces, turned their backs on the legitimate theater and crowded to see their new favorites. "Little Mary" became not only the Queen of Hollywood, but of America and the world.

Mary Pickford married America's hero, Douglas Fairbanks, and went with him to live in the fairy-book palace, Pickfair. There they have entertained not only their friends of the moving picture world, but the great ones of the earth. The King and Queen of Siam were guests in Mary's home. Lord and Lady Mountbatten, the Duke and Duchess of Alba, and many others, have found her hospitality charming, and the little princess as delightful off the screen as she is on it. Mary Pickford is the perfect hostess, simple, friendly, unpretentious.

Then one day came the minor revolution which threatened Mary's throne. The women of America decided to cut their hair! Their husbands raged; their employers fired them right and left; but they went straight ahead in their desire to express their new freedom.

Mary Pickford, the patron saint of feminine charm and innocence, stood bravely against the storm. In 1927 she wrote, "In the epidemic of hair cutting which has swept the country, I am one of the few who have escaped. It has been a hard-fought battle."

Then, in 1929, when all the world was sleek and shorn, Mary suddenly capitulated. She decided to grow up and to cut the famous Pickford curls. She chose, not a brutal boyish cut, but a softly feminine one that transformed in a moment the roguish gamin of "The Poor Little Rich Girl" into a charmingly mature woman.

And just about that time, women everywhere discovered that they were tired of boyishness and skirts that did not cover their knees, and followed Mary's lead back to femininity—except that Mary had never deserted femininity. She had always been the Girl-with-the-Curls.

And she still is. She is a little older, a little more mature. But America's sweetheart has proved that a beautiful woman is always beautiful, and that it isn't necessary to be sixteen to win applause.

RADIO GUIDE readers are invited to ask questions concerning your radio favorites and broadcasts. If the information is interesting, we will print it in this column. No personal replies will be made.

Mary Ellen Mulhall—Howard Clancy was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., thirty-four years ago.

A. W. Jensen—The Sisters of the Skillet, Eddie East and Ralph Dumke, have not, as yet, completed arrangements for their fall broadcasting schedule. They will, no doubt, be back on the air after their present vaudeville tour is completed. Watch RADIO GUIDE for news of them.

Leo Wolvos, of 1025 Esther St., South Bend, Ind., announces the formation of a Bill Baar Fan Club. All listeners interested in joining the club in honor of the WAAF, Chicago, actor, may write for further particulars to Mr. Wolvos.

E. J. O'Brien—We have no possible way of answering your question. Artists are universally reticent about their contracts.

J Goldstein—Write NBC at 711 Fifth Ave., New York City, and CBS at 485 Madison Ave., New York City, for the information you desire.

Justus Carrel—The vocalist with Jack Denny's Orchestra is none other than Jack Denny.

B. Rigues—The Boswell Sisters are aged twenty-five (Martha); twenty-three (Connie), and twenty-one (Vet).

BOYS --- GIRLS

Money--Money

Our Star Salesmen are boys and girls whose pictures you see every week in Radio Guide. They are earning their vacation spending money by selling this popular radio magazine.

It's easy.

Why don't YOU become a Star Salesman of Radio Guide?

When you become a Star Salesman we will publish your picture in Radio Guide. In addition we will give you (FREE) 200 letterheads carrying your picture, your name and identification as a representative of Radio Guide. We will also send you a fine copper engraving of your photograph which you can use to print pictures of yourself.

So boys and girls, get busy and let's have your pictures and the number of copies you sell each week.

You can write to your friends on your own stationery and thereby increase your sale.

HENRY KLOS

Radio Guide's Star Salesman For This Week

Henry Klos, who lives at 2247 So. Kolin Ave., Chicago, Illinois says that it's easy for him to sell over forty copies of Radio Guide each week. "Not only that," says Henry, "it's profitable, and it's fun too!"

NEW FIND HEADED FOR FAME

All dressed up—with somewhere to go! Mary Steele is the young and pretty singer who was discovered this season by the NBC. If you can believe radio critics, the little girl is due for a great big radio career and is really going places on the road to fame. Tune her in any day except Sunday at 10 p. m. (CDST) over an NBC network.

Ben Bernie Returns to Inn Sept. 29th

Despite the depression and the consequent falling off of entertainment attractions in the past few years, Music Corporation of America announces that this year it will have more orchestras playing to Chicago pleasure seekers than in any other year in the history of its organization.

Vincent Lopez and his Hotel St. Regis Orchestra, now playing a three week engagement at the Hotel Schroeder in Milwaukee, will bring his suave personality and his suave music to the Congress Hotel on October 1st.

Then wise crackin' Ben Bernie, gentleman clown and ace maestro, is coming back to the College Inn on September 29th for another season of "Theatrical Nights" in which he attracts luminaries of the stage and screen to the Inn.

The Blackhawk Cafe will feature Hal Kemp during fall and winter months.

Other ace orchestra attractions include Bernie Cummins at the Trianon; Wayne King at the Aragon; the Hotel Bismarck maestro, Art Kassel; Jack Miles and his orchestra now playing at Al Quodbach's Granada Cafe; Jimmy Garrigan at the Oriental Gardens and Gus Arnheim with his Ace Band of Movieland, who will continue at The Dells until October.

'Dutch Garden' Theme of Guide-WLS Program

The Three Contraltos will present "A Little Dutch Garden" on their RADIO GUIDE "Garden of Melody" program at 2 p. m. (CDST) Thursday, September 22nd, over station WLS.

Among the numbers to be presented will be: "Jeannette and Her Little Wooden Shoe," "Dance of the Little Dutch Doll," "A Little Dutch Garden," and "When Its Tulip Time in Holland."

Looking the suave sophisticate that he is in real life, Jack Doty nevertheless takes the part of the hardboiled city editor in RADIO GUIDE's "Night Extra." But then, Doty is an old hand at radio and stage acting and has, for years, been a favorite with the fans. You hear him and "Night Extra" each Friday at 8:45 p. m. (CDST) from WIBO, Chicago, "the Top o' the Dial."

McConnell Signed at $2,500 Weekly

Everything comes to him who waits! "Smiling Ed" McConnell waited twelve years for a break in radio. He was one of the most popular artists in Cincinnati, he made a good salary, and he was known to fans throughout the country. But he wasn't a star.

"Smiling Ed" McConnell has just signed contracts with the Acme Paint Company, of Detroit, for a long series of broadcasts over a nation-wide hookup of CBS, beginning September 20th.

His salary will be $2,500 a week. That's worth waiting twelve years for!

Audition New Talent

Universal Radio Productions, with studios in the Baldwin Building, is giving new and inexperienced radio talent a real break. Under the guidance of Milton Blink, former advertising agency radio head, microphone auditions are being given to all, and program assignments to many.

By Evans E. Plummer

GETTING AHEAD IN RADIO—

Six finalists remaining from two thousand Chicago girls and youths enrolled in the RKO-NBC radio quest enter their final auditions as this edition goes to press, and the winner will receive a very short engagement at fifty dollars a week.

Aside from the fact that practically all the aspirants coveting the munificent salary selected the same song, "A Shanty In Old Shanty Town," to demonstrate their ambitious vocal chords, about the only other lesson to be learned from the public audition is that you have one heck of a chance of becoming famous on the air unless you really have the stuff to deliver. As one unofficial observer remarked to this writer:

"Out of the whole perspiring mob, there really wasn't much talent in evidence, except one colored baritone who had a pretty good voice."

HEIGHT OF POLITENESS—

Despised, cringing music publishers who have a tough enough time getting "plugs" for their latest song releases from the leaders of bands, haven't quite recovered from the shock that Ace Brigode gave them on his return here this past week. He actually invited them to be his guests at his opening and served a buffet supper in their honor!

PROSPERITY BULLETIN—

And this week, Tish Kluck, our Walla snooper, comes to bat with the news that, "Everything these days is coming down except Morton Downey's voice."

HEAVY DOUGH—

One of the most pathetic features about network salaries is that the unstarred clerical help receive so very little for their work. If they are extremely careful, eat enough cheese and crackers between their ridiculously small pay checks, they can get by, unless the stork happens to visit them. Meantime, the bigshot microphone blasters and "execs" get heavy money—so heavy that there isn't enough to pay the white collar men.

This is all prologue to the case of a network employee which recently came to my attention. For his work, the gentleman, whom we shall call Smith, receives about $80 a month. But, as it happens, Smith fell in love with a gorgeous midwestern girl some months ago and was secretly married to her. Owing to his small salary, it was deemed advisable for her to return to her family, who lived in another city. One day, in writing her husband, Mrs. Smith inadvertently left an unfinished letter, headed "Dear Hubby:", exposed to her family's eyes when she was called away unexpectedly. The family rared and sent her to Chicago with her "Dear Hubby."

Now the two poor dears are struggling to get along on his eighty dollars a month. All is not gold in them thar radio bills.

DON'T THROW THAT SHOE—

One of the real characters in radio is Pat Barnes, multi-voiced radactor of the "Jimmy and Grandad" sketches. It is to be regretted, therefore, that one of his cast has become catty. At any rate, the one in question has shown a distinct aversion to cats, with the net result that the radio audience has risen felinely to defend the alley prowling sleep disturbers. Propaganda of all kinds for cats, including photographs and cutout pictures, have been sent to Barnes to persuade him that cats are okay.

One of the funniest sights that has greeted this scribbler's eyes for some time was Lawrence Salerno, composer of "Under a Mexican Moon," reading his own lyric from a typewritten sheet. Maybe he was wrong?

OFF A LIVE MIKE—

The Frank Westphal's will be announcing a new announcer before many more archestrations. And the stork visit is supposed to be a deep secret . . . NBC had Husk O'Hare trouble recently. Although CBS had its pickup of O'Hare all set, NBC put in wires, released stories and even to the last minute thought they would be picking up the Husk. But were they embarrassed?

Billy White will shortly receive a big Columbia chain build-up . . . Frankie Trumbauer, the sax king who is keeping them packed in at the Lincoln Tavern, is full of American Indian blood.

Virginia Clarke is NOT the "blonde contralto" who has been panned in this column of late with no name mentioned. Virginia is a sweet kid and deserves a break . . . Chuck, Ray and Frank (Haynes, Ferris and Moore), of WLS, in recent rounds of institution entertaining, sat in the electric chair at Joliet "pen," but not being crooners, the warden didn't turn on the juice.

Al Beilin laying plans to enter radio in a big way . . . My favorite (and here ballyhooed) beer speak on N. Ashland was held up by a couple of shotgun bandits, causing one WBBM musician to part with five dollars, and showing that it doesn't pay to advertise good beer speaks.

Smart, that buy out of the radio facilities last Monday by the Democrats. They might beat old man Hoover, who used to be Big Boss of Radio, at his own game, and I hope they do . . . Harriet Cruise, Pennzoil songbird, cruises her way to fame on a path made smooth by oil. Last time it was the lubricating Barnsdall that gave her the magic network.

The Kretsingers, Gene and Charlie, going to the fore. Will they take the WBBM spotlight from Brooks and Ross? . . . Reason Pierre Andre has his 'phone disconnected is that too many callers disturb before 11 a. m. Oh, to be a mikeman!

Judy and Jane postponed till October 10th on account of the World Series which we trust Pat Flanagan will have the opportunity of announcing for CBS and Hal Totten for NBC . . . Reggie Knorr, Lone Wolf and character actor in Brownstone Front, is the mister of Eleanor ("Billy") Rella of Myrt and Marge.

PRUNES AND PLUMS—

A good old-fashioned boarding house prune to KYW's "Sunshine Hour" without Paul McCluer. For instead of a sunshine program, this Sunday morning bit sounds like a rainy day with other than Paul at the helm . . . But we'll award a plum to good old Danny Russo, daddy of many of the best batoneers, who has returned to the Canton Tea Gardens and KYW.

Another plum to Joe Ainlee, the WBBM announcer, who hides his violin talents beneath a bushel basket while he makes the most of his lirate announcing . . . And while we're on WBBM, another plum to Val Sherman, one of that station's daytime mikemen, whose grand bass voice is considerable relief from the monotonous tenor tintillations.

Another plum to the Norsemen quartet of CBS which is as outstanding as anything that has ever come out of the East.

A bushel of prunes to the press agent who is leaning on his family's "connections and influence" (which are not so much) in order to whip radio artists into the tribute line . . . Another—let's make it a barrel—to the NBC gent who waited until 1:30 p. m. last Sunday to tell us that Bill Beebe couldn't go down in the briny depths on account of rough seas.

And a final bunch of plums, plenty of them, to the many local stars who helped to make happy the vets at the Edward Hines Memorial Hospital last Sunday with a show that the good past master Ziegfeld would have been proud to produce.

Dell Coon, tall, blond and handsome maestro heard over NBC networks from the Beach View Gardens in Chicago. Dell has been leading bands ever since his graduation from the United States Naval Training Academy at Annapolis, and is well known on the west coast for his own special style of music, and his slogan "any type of music for any type of occasion."

Beauty—and How By V. E. Meadows

This is the first of a series of articles on beauty by V. E. Meadows, internationally famous beautician of Hollywood, who talks on beauty every Thursday at 11:45 a. m. over the Columbia network on the Gerardine program.

Before going into the various methods of caring for the hair it is necessary to understand the basic construction of hair. Presuming, of course, that you are in a healthy condition all of the trouble that happens to hair is caused by abuse. This is true of both sexes. The hair grows into a bulb in the scalp which is called the follicle. The follicle grows in the root. When the hair is pulled out the follicle goes with the hair and is that translucent bulb on the end of the hair that comes out of the scalp. In the root of the hair is the color gland and nature supplies oil through the color gland and then into the hair. There is a channel on the inside of the hair through which oil and color should flow.

The outside surface of the hair is made up of many scales, one upon the other. These scales, when smoothed down in the proper way, leave the hair shiny and glossy. These scales or prongs can be "roughed up" in many ways, such as "frizzing" with a comb or a brush which simply means stroking the wrong way. Here are the common abuses which harm hair:

- 1—Too much water on the hair, the man to make it lay down and the woman to set the wave.
- 2—The use of hard water.
- 3—Too frequent shampooing.
- 4—The use of a cake of soap for shampooing instead of liquid soap.
- 5—Never brushing the hair.
- 6—Men use some sort of dressing to make the hair stay in place.
- 7—Women use some sort of a gluey substance to set a wave in their hair.
- 8—Improper permanent waves.

Water put on the hair at frequent intervals and allowed to dry, even if the water is soft, leaves a coating or film on the hair which eventually causes it to become brittle or dry and gradually lose its color becoming streaked, faded and gray.

Reviewing Radio By Mike Porter

some new technique by which the blatant ballyhoos of the aerial advertisers may be eliminated, he was interested. The page concerned the type of humor that, of necessity must assail us, because, alas, a portion of the radio audience, is admittedly stupid. It was explained to Mr. Ford by Meyer Davis, who had been sent to intrigue the magnate with the mike. And it gives us an interesting insight on the question. We were wont, as you recall, to pan Eddie Cantor and Harry Richman and similar comics for their open-faced and almost moronic gags. After studying the radio situation as affecting humor, however, we'll have to absolve them. They were driven to it. Subtle humor on the air, Mr. Davis pointed out, is out of the question. Only the sort of fur that can be digested by remote and bucolic audiences is okayed by wise sponsors. And sophisticated, and smart listeners will have to bear up under it or tune it out.

Several incidents have recently happened to confirm this slant on humor, and they are far from flattering to us as an audience. Several weeks ago, for instance, Jack Benny, another comic, announced, with tongue in cheek, that he would send on an ocean voyage anyone who submitted to him the words of the Star-Spangled Banner, written on a soda straw. Benny received several thousand straws the following week.

Leo Reisman is one of the ablest orchestra leaders of my acquaintance. During my vacation, he wrote several articles for me, and they were published. And back came a hundred or more letters from the fans who expressed puzzlement. "Why," they asked, "does a man like Reisman, who displayed unquestionable and extraordinary intelligence in his writing, persist in being so silly on his Pond Vanishing Cream program? Why does he spoil his good music with such silly and vapid comments as "How's your tempo?" etc.

Mr. Reisman is indeed intelligent, and an excellent musician—but like the fans, I cannot understand why his program is so badly spoiled by continuity. Another thing, too. Mr. Reisman is not a singer, by any means, yet he sings, or tries to, on the same broadcast.

I asked him why all this, and he smiled, and said feebly that the audience liked it. But I could see that he did not even expect me to believe him. The only inference left me was that his sponsors think the idea good. Well, many sponsors have thought many ideas good—but sponsors are not showmen, as everybody knows. If the Reisman interpolations on the Pond bill are good, then the editor of this magazine can play piano for me while I recite the Shooting of Dan McGrew. I have made quite a survey among listeners with regard to this program, because I could not understand its motif—and I have yet to hear anybody but Mr. Reisman's press agent say a word in favor of its vapid aspects.

And that, dear customers, makes Howard Lanin's question pertinent. Maybe you'd like to answer it. Mr. Lanin writes me, "Maybe you or some of your readers can set me right. I want to know what constitutes a successful radio artist? Is he one who entertains the best as far as the general public is concerned, or one who sells the most merchandise for his sponsor?"

There you are, folks. And here's my answer:

The answer depends on who's giving it. If a lay member of the audience is asked to judge, then I'd say that only the quality of the performance counts toward success. On the other hand, a commercial judge won't recognize artistic success unless it has a sales value. The most satisfactory way of proving up an artist's success is to put him on sustaining for a few weeks and watch the response.

You can't measure success with a yardstick. The counter question is, does Mr. Lanin mean artistic success, or financial achievement?

The Low-Down on Myrt

Cranford, New Jersey

Dear Sir:

Inasmuch as "Myrt" has given information about "Marge," here is a little peek-in at the character of the parent—Myrtle Vail, as taken from her signature as published in RADIO GUIDE.

"Myrt" is fond of activity and travel; fond of meeting people and "going places, doing things." A keen sense of humor, shown in the odd "i" dot, tells that she would be popular with people and has probably had many laughs over the oddities of human nature. She has that rare ability to throw off sorrow; make the best of a bad deal, and being versatile, attempt something new.

She is probably a perfect hostess—the kind who makes you feel right at home, who is glad to see you come, and sorry when you go. Liking beauty and pleasant things, she will shun discord and pettiness. It is the bigger things in life that count with Myrt! And you can be sure of a square deal when you have business contacts with her. Now, isn't she a rare woman?

The War Rageth!

Philadelphia, Pa.

Dear V. of L.:

Some time ago, I remember reading an article in the GUIDE regarding Russ Columbo and Rudy Vallee. It seemed this person was very much in favor of Vallee and not Columbo. I disagree.

Last Saturday my husband and I went to see Rudy Vallee. We spoke to him about five minutes and we admit we liked him better for his unaffected personality than ever before.

The following evening we saw Russ Columbo at a rendezvous at a popular sea shore resort. We have seen both of these celebrities before on the stage, and can truthfully say both have changed for the better, Rudy becoming more peppy and Russ acquiring a personality never before existing. He has lost his shyness, and acquired showmanship.

He is also unaffected, speaking to anyone who wished to speak with him, and actually standing for hours at a time autographing his name for admirers. The men liked him as much as the women.

We take our hat off to the "New Russ Columbo," what a voice, what a man!

Dragonette, the Exquisite

Corning, New York

Dear Sir:

I was very happy to see that lovely letter about my favorite soprano, Jessica Dragonette. I agree that hers is the most exquisite voice heard on the air. There are others who have lovely voices, for instance, Countess Albani, Ruth Lyon and Gladys Rice. But that of Miss Dragonette surpasses them all. She can truly be called the "Queen of the Air."

Since we have had suggested a "Queen of the Air," surely we must have a "King" also. My vote goes for James Melton. I would like to hear these two sing together sometime. They most certainly would be a duet that could not be equalled.

Sez You!

Dear Sir:

Youse guys are all wet! What's the big idea of printing all the dope on the "big shots" of radio and leaving the so-called amateurs forgotten? It's not fair. We see so much about these big shots and stars that we're getting sick of it. Give us pictures and stories of artists performing over smaller stations.

There's a wonderful quartet called the "Synchronizers," broadcasting over WKBB, but do we ever see their pictures or read about them? I'll say we don't.

Among the best of the newcomers in radio are the "Spooks," a vocal duet that presents programs weekly over WJKS. Those boys sure can harmonize. We never get tired of listening to them. Even the little kids want us to tune in. Please put their pictures in the RADIO GUIDE so we can actually see what they look like.

There are countless other stars over smaller radio stations that we would enjoy seeing and reading about.

"Not Satisfied"

An Insult, Suh!

Quincy, Illinois

Dear Sir:

"Painted Dreams" is a swell skit; that is, it has been up until now. Beginning with the appearance of Emma Lou, there ought to be a law against it. She doesn't stop at being rotten—she's preposterous!

I am a Southern girl visiting in the North, and I happen to know that the only people who talk like Emma Lou are smart Yankees who have never been around any Southern people, or think it's cute to over-do things. It's an insult to Southern people and it has absolutely wrecked a good radio program.

"A Southerner"

This Leg (Limbs) Question

Elgin, Illinois

Dear Voice:

I would like to give an answer to the letter from "A Radio Artist's Wife," printed in a recent issue of RADIO GUIDE.

She seems very much offended by pictures of radio girl singers showing their legs. She is wondering what we are supposed to admire—singing or legs.

Woman is God's best product. Most naturally He is pleased if we like and admire

His products. Any living man in the whole world takes pride in seeing his works praised and admired, so why shouldn't God?

If I do not like a dish, a picture or a dress is that a reason for me to go to people who do like that dish, that picture (if proper), that dress, and tell them how wrong they are in their tastes? What would they tell me? What I mean in this letter is that I cannot understand why beautiful and shapely girl's legs should in any way get anybody's goat. I, personally, adore, like and admire anything that is God's masterpiece.

A Radio Artist's Husband

We Feel Better Already

Weston, Illinois

Gentlemen:

Yes, even down here in Weston we read your peppy little paper and enjoy its interesting articles and pictures of our favorite artists.

We have liked especially the "Meet the Artist" articles appearing lately. And that one on Capri written by Carleton Smith was so real that we had to pinch ourselves to be sure that we were still here in Illinois and not way off there with him. We hope to read more from him upon the same subject.

Here's wishing you and your little paper just the very best of luck.

"Your Country Cousin"

Thank You, Sir!

Urbana, Illinois

Voice of the Listener:

Tonight I am using my forty-fifth RADIO GUIDE, and it is affording me just as much pleasure as the preceding forty-four. May I congratulate you on your success, as you draw near the close of your first year. Naturally, through the course of forty-four numbers, especially when the magazine is so new and different, many changes occur. These changes have only improved RADIO GUIDE, until it is as indispensable to the full enjoyment of radio, as volume control or a dynamic speaker.

Last winter I found Carleton Smith's "Music in the Air," a valuable guide to the best in music and a splendid resume of musical activities. With the approach of summer and the slackening of things musical, I expected Mr. Smith to resort to those dry and uninteresting comments that pad so many musical columns. You may well imagine my surprise and delight when I read the first "Carleton Smith in Europe." Needless to say, I have followed the column through the summer with an avid interest. It is so refreshingly candid and original.

A large university community like my own is the natural place for an active interest in musical affairs. Radio plays its part and for full benefit of radio—RADIO GUIDE—and for the best in music—"Music in the Air."

Albert Chadwick Pierson

Ouch!

New York, N. Y.

Gentlemen:

If you feel you must publish such stuff as the article on "Fan Letters to Radio Stars," you certainly could write it up from a more sophisticated point of view. As it stands, it sounds like hick stuff from the earlier movie mags. No girl would write such nonsense if she knew what the man in question looked like; you'd only have to publish a picture of the announcer such as are in the daily papers to make the whole thing look the joke it really is.

I think you err in judgment in trying to make your paper too "snappy"; in re "The Battle of the Jazz Kings," which is a badly put together story, attempting to make something sensational out of the ordinary competition of a business. Articles can be interesting without being written in such a silly way.

You can be newsy enough to interest the dumbest of your subscribers without displaying such bad taste as to disgust others. Please let's have a little more dignity in the make-up.

M. R. Winston

Turn the Other Cheek, Ted!

Dear Editor:

Yesterday I heard Eddie Cavanaugh interview Ted Weems, and I think he was horrid, I mean Ted. He didn't have to give such a snippy answer to Eddie when he was asked if his hair was parted three inches from his ear. Weems is off of my favorite orchestra list now.

The same day I heard Maurie Sherman interviewed, and that's what I call a swell interview. I've heard lots of people say Maurie's voice is harsh, but I don't see how they get that way. He has just a wonderful voice. I am so sorry to hear that someone has taken his baton. He has all of my sympathy.

I hope this is printed in the GUIDE so Weems, I can't bring myself to call him Ted anymore, will see it and let it be a lesson to others not to be so snooty when they can't afford to. Me for Maurie Sherman from now on. Whoever wants Weems can have him.

"Sherman Fan"

All Right, Myrt's Friends!

Dear Editor:

I am just writing in to let you know I like the GUIDE very much. I enjoy the DX column especially. But why all the war because of Columbo and Vallee? I'll admit they're both good, but give me Art Jarrett every time.

I am starting a Myrt and Marge Club. All you admirers of Myrt and Marge, I'd like to hear from you.

HUDDLE BEFORE THE MIKE

They're the "Three Orphans" and they seem to rather like it. Dot O'Day is the lil' gal with the bow, and next to her is Mel Garry and then Larry Walker. The three excel at modern vocal tunes to which they lend a distinct individuality. NBC broadcasts the trio each Friday.

Sappho Was Just Two Other Girls

By John Erskine

SAPPHO was the greatest of woman poets. She was also several other things. She enjoyed too many reputations for one person, and a legend grew that there were two Sapphos, one the superb poet, the other the adventurous and vivid lady. But there was only one of her, and she managed both careers.

Because scandal attached to her private life, the early Christians burned her poems, and magnified and distorted the scandal, until her name now suggests vice, with poetry as a sideline. But in her own day the worst said against her was that her manners were decisive and independent, and many men loved her.

She was born in a village on the coast of Lesbos, toward the beginning of the seventh century B. C. Her father's name was Skamanandros, her mother's Kleis. She had three brothers.

When she was six or seven, a war broke out between Lesbos and Athens, and in one of the first battles her father was killed. The mother took the children for safety to Mytilene, the capitol of the island. Then Sappho passed her youth chiefly in the society of girls, since the boys and men were all away at the war, which lasted for more than ten years.

One young man, however, was sent home from the army in disgrace, and he consoled himself by falling in love with her. He was Alkaios, the poet, a happy-go-lucky genius, fond of drink, fond of the ladies, and fond of organizing insurrections, which always came to grief. He declared his passion for Sappho in a little poem which for him was strangely polite, to the effect that he had something on his heart to tell her, but through bashfulness he was dumb. She replied in what was perhaps her earliest poem, that if there was anything he was too bashful to say, it must be pretty bad. His poems about her made her famous even before she herself began to write.

Sappho and Alkaios would feel quite at home in Moscow or Leningrad today. Ancient Lesbos took its politics seriously, and accorded to women an equality with men which they have enjoyed again only since the Communists took charge of Russia. It is not surprising that Sappho joined Alkaios and a number of other young people in one of his revolutions, and when it failed, she shared a not unpleasant exile with him in a quiet part of the island—or it had been quiet before the exiles arrived.

They made so merry, what with poetry and this and that, that the government recalled them, but under certain new and severe regulations. One was that a crime committed when drunk would be punished twice as severely as a crime committed when sober. Alkaios, thinking with some reason that this law was directed against him personally, fomented another revolt, which failed more dismally than the first, and the ringleaders were exiled again, this time in earnest. Sappho was sent to Sicily, which was, you might say, the end of the world. She was about twenty when this blight fell upon her, but she converted it into an opportunity by marrying the richest merchant in Syracuse. In no time at all she was the social leader of the city, and she had written so many beautiful poems that Mytilene was proud of her and invited her to come home.

She then set up a school for girls, where she taught dancing, music and poetry. There were other such school in Mytilene, but the ancient world in general thought it indecent to educate a woman, and since Sappho not only taught her pupils but was fond of them, she has never been able to live it down.

This very human poet, who seems near to us, lived a century or more before Aeschylus was born, or Sophocles, or Euripides. While she was teaching her girls, Buddha was meditating in India, and Jeremiah and Ezekiel were imparting gloomy advice to the chosen people.

Meet the Artist

Gus Van

BY LEE RONELL

UPON meeting Gus Van, one realizes instantly that this man carries a great loss within himself. He is polite, pleasant, interested . . . and interesting . . . but all the while, one reads in his too infrequent moments of laughter and gaiety . . . that here is one who cannot laugh long and lustily.

If you are the least bit acquainted with Gus Van's background, you recognize that the half-tragic air hovering around him, belongs to a great loss in his life. It's because of a friendship that was a pal-ship. A pal-ship that was a singing team relationship . . . and it lasted for over twenty years. No wonder Gus has never quite recovered from his great hurt.

You knew of Van and Schenck, of course. You saw them on the vaudeville circuits all over the land . . . perhaps you heard them in Europe when they were making one of their innumerable continental tours. Outstanding harmony team of the era, they played Ziegfeld's Follies and the Midnight Frolics for years. They played shows on Broadway and Orpheums on every city's Main Street. When they came to town posters and billboards built them up . . . and Van and Schenck never let the audience down. Remember how they sang those "Sally" songs?

It all started when Van, having left his Brooklyn trolley motorman's job paying $1.60 a day, joined up as singer with a series of bars, cafes and finally the famous Perry's at Coney Island, where Willie Howard discovered him. It was at Perry's that his little colored piano player upped and left him one night . . . and who should apply for the playing spot but a baby-faced lad with curly hair and a clean white shirt. "You'll never do," said Van. "But I want to do," insisted Joe Schenck. And what was Van to do? So for twenty odd years they did together . . . songs and shows, and baseball games with Van catching the speedy curves Joe could pitch . . . benefits, tours, movie shorts and talkie pictures . . . Europe . . . acclaim . . . Fame!

The first of the regular vaudeville stars to sing over radio . . . over KDKA in the Quaker City back in 1922. And the first to be stumped about the matter of salary.

Singing for Socony, they set the wage at $100 a minute . . . a standard price, now, for many teams. But they originated it.

And then Joe died, suddenly. And Gus Van still reveals, at moments when Joe's name is mentioned, that bewildered air of not being able to quite comprehend the hurt of it . . . the finality of it. Schenck was too much a part of his entire being. Five minutes after you meet Van, Joe's name slips in quietly . . . almost automatically. "Joe was funny about buying things. Couldn't resist shirts and always had hundreds around that he never wore."

And when talking of boats and things . . . Van, by the way, is crazy about navigation

—but no sitting on deck chairs to him while the engine's at work . . . he mentioned how much Schenck disliked commuting the awful distances in Chicago and when they played there for a few weeks one time, bought a speed boat to speed them the length of Lake Michigan.

Now, after two years, Gus Van is beginning to hit his stride again. As master of ceremonies on the El Toro Saturday night program, you hear him again and want to see him as you did in the old days. Offers are beginning to mean something to Gus besides painful recollections. From New York's Palace Theater, where Gus will appear in the near future, to Omaha, Kansas City, Cleveland . . . stage contracts are being held out to the Headliner who is beginning to be a headliner once more. He sings those character songs with too much humor, too much laughter, for the world's audiences to let him slip away from them. And he deplores the present state of musical affairs where comic songs and comic lyrics aren't written with the side-aching effects they once achieved.

GUS VAN

Brown eyed and brown haired, the stocky Gus spends time off Broadway and the air waves on his Long Island home, where he makes a science of making wild cherry wine . . . without benefit of bathtub, I might mention. He coaches an amateur baseball team of kids out in Jamaica . . . no one over fourteen allowed at bat and many of those same gawky kids have graduated to the big leagues, much to Van's gratification.

Baseball is still one of Gus's prime passions. He joined up with the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company . . . trolley lines to you . . . way back at the turn of the century, because the Company had a baseball team on which no man could play who did not hold a motorman's position. "If I'd have been conductor . . . well, that would have been a different story. So many of the nickels stuck to the floor, you know. Or the ceiling. Or the left hand inside coat pocket."

Gus is a Big Booster for Baseball . . . and Brooklyn. Those be his By-Times. Besides his wife, of course. The fifteenth of August brought his birthday . . . and the twenty-third year of marital bliss. "Same wife for twenty-three years is a record for Broadway," says Van. "But I wouldn't change her for the world . . . only thing I won't do for her is mow the lawn." A non-professional, Mrs. Van goes in for Gus . . . and cooking. Particularly spinach. Gus says it's the one thing that's good for him that he really likes.

Plays golf, handball, doesn't care about driving a car, likes to live peacefully and easily, is on Broadway, but not of it, and has a great determination to make "Van" as great as "Van and Schenck" after two years of sorrowing for his lost pal. The modern version of Pagliacci . . . Gus Van.

They Tell Lies About Dogs

By A. Payson Terhune

ONCE the Original Liar told the world a batch of lies about dogs. It happened on the Fool-Killer's day off. That is why those lies have been believed ever since.

They have caused the death of countless friendly and innocent dogs. That is why I want to set you right, on two or three of them; by telling you a few things you may not know about your dog. For example:

Most people seem to believe that if a dog won't drink water, it is a sure sign he has hydrophobia. That is one of the oldest and most persistent and most idiotic and most harmful, of the whole collection of canine lies.

If your dog refuses to drink, it is a sure sign of just one thing. It is a sign he isn't thirsty. That is all it means. It isn't a danger signal. Animals are wiser than we are, in that way. They won't eat and drink when they aren't hungry or thirsty.

Then there's the lie about dogs having hydrophobia if they foam at the mouth. A dog may foam at the mouth for any of a dozen harmless reasons. It has nothing to do with hydrophobia.

Then there is the cruel lie that every puppy or young dog must have at least one hard beating, to teach him you are his master. I wonder how many thousand gentle and obedient dogs have been flogged half to death because of that lie.

It would be just as sensible to say that an employer must beat up every new clerk, with an axe-handle, to teach him his duties. By using patience and common sense you can teach any dog you are his master without once beating him. Use quiet firmness.

And there's the crazy lie that all puppies open their eyes when they are precisely nine days old; and that if they don't, it is a sign they will be blind for life. Many thousands of promising baby puppies have been drowned on that account.

All puppies keep their eyes tight shut for some days after they are born. Some of them open their eyes when they are nine days old. But most of them don't open their eyes until the tenth or eleventh or twelfth day or even later. Don't worry, if the eyes open late. Nature is on the job and she knows what she is doing.

Here is a true story, to show what harm can come from believing these lies about dogs:

Back in 1821, a merchant carried a big canvas bag of gold from one town to another. The bag was tied to his saddle. He had a pistol at his belt. His fierce mastiff dog trotted alongside the horse. So he was well protected against thieves.

The mastiff, all at once, began to bark and howl; and jumped up again and again to grab at the rider's boot. Then he would gallop back along the road. He behaved so queerly that the merchant thought he had suddenly gone mad.

So the man stopped his horse at a brook, and ordered the mastiff to drink. The dog refused; and continued to bark and to leap at the rider's boot, and to run back. Because he wouldn't drink, the merchant was perfectly sure now that the dog was mad. He drew his pistol; and sent a bullet through the excited dog's body.

The poor mastiff turned and ran waveringly back, along the road, and out of sight. The merchant followed. He found his dog lying dead, in the ditch; with the canvas bag of gold between his paws.

He had seen the bag fall from the saddle, and he had tried to tell his master what had happened. Then, because he wouldn't drink when he wasn't thirsty, he was shot. With his last dying strength the mastiff had staggered back to where the bag had fallen and had lain down to guard it.

He was only a dog. So he did not know any better than to throw away his life in an effort to serve the man whom he worshipped. Peace to his gallant soul!
