Beginning THE LIFE STORY OF FATHER COUGHLIN

One Push from Ben and Lo! Another Star

JOAN OLSEN
Ben Bernie found her in Kansas City and turned her into a star overnight.

THE entire Wrigley building is buzzing with the name of Joan Olsen, the latest Ben Bernie "find." The old maestro brought Miss Olsen to Chicago from Kansas City, personally conducted her audition at Columbia on a Monday afternoon, and in one short hour had her signed by WRBM. The Evans Company officials heard her and immediately signed her for their Sunday night broadcasts. She will also be featured in several sustaining programs throughout the week.

When the old maestro picks them they usually go over. Witness Pat Kennedy and Little Jackie Heller, two Bernie "finds" who are going over in a big way after the radio buildup they received from the old maestro. Joan Olsen is the first girl to capture the maestro's attention since Vivian Janis, who sang with Bernie at the College Inn and is now a star with the new Ziegfeld Follies. Miss Olsen's career is working out exactly opposite to that of Miss Janis. Joan was a showgirl in the Follies at the age of fourteen and her present venture under Bernie's management is her first experience in broadcasting. She is twenty-one years old, tall, slender, blue-eyed, golden-haired . . . a beautiful inspiration to the boys who are trying to perfect television.

Ben discovered Joan in Kansas City a few weeks ago while he was filling a theater engagement there. Ben put her in his show and gave her a spot on his Tuesday evening Blue Ribbon broadcast. Letters and telegrams convinced the maestro that he had found something terrific. So he arranged for Miss Olsen and her mother to join him in Chicago and let Columbia listen. The rest is history.

But there's another moral to this story, especially for the young ladies who answer "Number, please" when one lifts up the telephone receiver . . . the moral is: Always have that much-advertised "voice with a smile," and do your work efficiently.

The story behind the moral is that Joan for the past several years has been the telephone operator in a large hotel in Kansas City, Mo. Her "Follies" career had been cut short by two unfortunate experiences. The first might not have removed her permanently from the stage, for it was merely a broken ankle.

However, parental ideas seldom change, and when Joan returned to Kansas City, her relatives, near and far, closed in on her. No more "Follies" was the verdict. So it was that Miss Olsen turned to the "wrong number" occupation.

The stage was set for Old Maestro Ben Bernie, builder of stars and 1933's King of Jazz, to hear Joan's voice. He picked up the telephone receiver in his room in the Kansas City hotel, and then and there he sensed a radio find.

You know the rest. Joan is on the road to fame, and has a splendid start. What's more, her parents, uncles and aunts don't mind her association with a microphone.

Therefore, switchboard operators, take heed, if your present situation doesn't satisfy you and you have higher aspirations, just keep plugging along!

How Radio Love Static Yielded to Telegraph

TWO OF radio's most incurable romantics are the lovey-dovey couple, George Olsen and Ethel Shutta. Though they used to broadcast together, for the past weeks they have been appearing for separate sponsors. It seems that during this time they have formed the habit of sending each other telegrams of good luck before every broadcast. All went well until last week George's telegram was mislaid in the studios and Ethel never received it.

Feeling a little hurt but not wishing to make an issue of the matter, she said nothing to her husband. But just before the Olsen program went on the air Wednesday night, the leader received the following by Western Union from his wife: "You didn't send me any telegram last week—so just for that you're not going to get one from me tonight. Love, Ethel."

Olsen was a little puzzled, so right after the program he dispatched the following message to his wife: "I did send you a telegram last week—but since you didn't send me one tonight, this is to tell you I'm not answering it. Love, George."

They say Western Union was sitting up and rubbing hands at the prospect of more goofy correspondence—but unfortunately for them, the Olsens kissed and made up and are now billing and cooing in their best manner.

And believe you us, when the Olsens bill and coo in their best manner, they make a pair of love birds look like fighting cocks.

The Olsen Youngsters, Charles, six, and George, Jr., four inherit the wit of George and Ethel. To cite an example, a year ago the Olsens were starring on a gingerale broadcast. This year, George has been featured on a tea program while Ethel has been under contract to a chocolate maker.

Result, young George, when asked how he liked his parents' broadcasts, replied:

"Well, I didn't care for the gingerale or tea programs, but I like the chocolate one, because Mommy's always bringing home candy."

ETHEL SHUTTA and GEORGE OLSEN
... They're billing and cooing again after that missing telegram episode . . .

PASS GATE to Stardom

IT REALLY doesn't make much difference to Rudy Vallee, but the wise folk around the fringes of the radio business are whispering to each other and to anyone who will listen that this thirty-two-year-old singing, handleading showman has all the indications of being the first Flo Ziegfeld of the air lanes.

The boys on the street like to wisecrack about Rudy's living down his Yale background. But they also like to point the finger at Vallee's career—the story of a rise to fame unequalled in radio's short and spectacular history, and the story of a young man who stayed at the peak when he arrived. That's a yarn which isn't too usual in this show and radio business.

Rudy, as radio's master showman, has built up through his steady, smooth jaunt up the lane to success, a well-earned reputation for bringing outstanding stars from the films and footlights to his microphone, and he is said for Rudy that he has never suffered by comparison, although he has led to the studio the leading folk in the business.

But Rudy, perhaps with a thought to the "breaks" which he himself received while traveling along the radio road, has brought lesser lights to the microphone, and his knack of recognizing talent is shown by a partial list of Vallee "finds" who first went on the air with Rudy and who since have worked out their own air careers with conspicuous success.

Even before Vallee's Fleischmann hour over National Broadcasting Company networks had become a variety show, Rudy had in the back of his mind the idea that his program was a fine spot to star folk who had ability who hadn't been in the spotlight up to that time.

Vallee with fine generosity and far-sightedness that was probably not so apparent at that time as it is now, wanted to bring foreign stars, youngsters, and artists from various branches of the show business who didn't happen to be associated with radio to the studios to entertain the vast audience which Vallee had built up through his smart and spectacular sense of showmanship before the microphone.

To the Fleischmann microphone Rudy lured pretty Fraulein Greta Keller, dainty little singer from Vienna, just a few days after she had set foot on American soil. And was Rudy right? Her showing on the Vallee program determined for her a sensational career in America, a career that brought her a program of her own and landed for her a fat picture contract in Hollywood.

And there are many others who poured their talents into the microphone at Vallee's variety shows, and whose offerings emerged from loudspeakers throughout the country for the first time through Rudy's efforts. Their names enlist some of radio's top notchers.

Olsen and Johnson, footlight stars appeared with Vallee and emerged with a radio reputation, a reputation and a following that went a long way toward putting them where they are. Gertrude Niesen likewise brought her deep-voiced blues renditions to Rudy's

At BREAK of DAWN on THE MAGIC CARPET

SHE WAS seventeen, young and healthy, and endowed with no little charm. That night she was taking a plane for New York to make her radio debut on a nationally-known program, to be heard by millions of listeners from coast to coast and the arctic to the tropics. It was the chance she, and a few million other girls, had dreamed about. If she clicked, fame was hers. If she failed, such an opportunity might never come her way again. Lights, action, camera.

The story is true. The girl was Alice Dawn, seventeen-year-old blues singer; the place, Chicago; the time, a few days past, and the radio program the Magic Carpet, featuring Jack Pearl and Al Goodman's orchestra, and broadcast over a coast-to-coast NBC network.

Just a year out of high school, she was that night completing a two-week vaudeville engagement at the Palace Theater. Two evenings later she would be heard by millions. She was thrilled, excited. What seventeen-year-old girl wouldn't be?

She had never taken a music lesson of any sort in her life, couldn't read a note if she tried, and had faced a microphone but once in her life—during her audition two weeks before.

Anxiously she asked whether or not there would be a studio audience at her debut, and if so, whether her voice would be carried to that audience by a public address system. She feared that. The echo was bad over public address systems. It bounced back and slapped you in the face. That's how much she knew about radio.

That is Alice Dawn, a young lady who never before had been as far west as Chicago, who swims and plays tennis instead of smoking or drinking, and yet who sports gold-tinted fingernails and delights in laying in a large assortment of evening gowns; who reads Spanish novels in Spanish, though she's never been to Spain and isn't of Spanish descent, and who says she's never been in love.

Only five feet, five inches tall, she appears much taller. In the public eye only a year, she has acquired the stage presence of a veteran. Yet she's in constant fear of tripping over her gown while on the stage.

The story of this young singer of blues and ballads runs much the same as that of any other Brooklyn schoolgirl—that is, up until a year ago. She had sung all her life, but only for her own diversion. She went to school, studied Spanish more diligently than her other courses, took part in athletics, planned to go into college. Then one day a booking agent happened to hear her as she sang over a few numbers in a music store, to try them out before buying them. He offered her a vaudeville contract, doing a single. Her mother, who accompanies her on all her travels, didn't approve. Alice wheedled her into consenting. She played vaudeville houses all over the east for eight months.

A few weeks ago, Al Goodman heard her. He was impressed by the deep, full tonal quality of her voice, and by her ability to impart that necessary "something" to a song. She was auditioned, and the other day, while Alice was playing vaudeville in Chicago, came a wire to report to New York for the Magic Carpet program.

She was surprised, but not daunted; thrilled, but not afraid.

Voice Study As A Secret Vice

FRANCESCO FLORES Y DEL CAMPO, contracted for obvious reasons to plain Dell Campo, is the Columbia Broadcasting System's last minute answer to the demand for more Latin, and less latent, talent in radio.

Francesco is a native of Chile, a nephew of its former president, Pedro Montt, and the son of the one-time commander-in-chief of the army of the republic. Several years of military training went for naught when it was determined that a weak heart would hamper his activities as a soldier. A like term as a law student was also wasted when, after the death of his father, Dell determined to make music his career.

Like many artists whose destiny was a broadcasting studio, Campo had many ups and downs along the road, the emphasis being on the downs until he was discovered singing in an obscure west coast American station by a man who had already created two great vocal stars and who recognized the potentiality in the Chilean's ringing notes, Con Conrad.

One of the proudest women in the Latin republic today is Campo's one time instructor, the motherly leader of the village choir in the town of his birth. Save through the medium of this publication, she will never have a chance to know that her patient instruction was augmented by secret lessons given her protegee by Mansuetto, erstwhile basso of La Scala, at Milan, who returned to Santiago after his retirement from the operatic stage. The youth did not have the heart to inform her of his duplicity and permitted her to take full credit for his advancement under her simple tutelage.

Campo recalls with a smile the many subterfuges to which he resorted in order to accomplish the bi-weekly trips to the distant home of the maestro. His singing lessons were a secret vice—almost like the smoking of corn silk cigarettes by a small boy behind the barns.

To his socially and politically minded parents, singing was an excellent parlor accomplishment but was not in any sense to be considered as anything other than an avocation. Hence the need for stealing away to the famous star who was his mentor in matters musical. These stolen visits were simple to mask for a long period but eventually the deception became harder to carry out because of the increasing demands of his military training.

When it became time for him to follow the family tradition and assume a post of leadership in the army, physicians came to his rescue by announcing that his training had been too rigorous and that a weakened heart prohibited his undertaking military life.

But even that fortunate development did not eliminate the barriers which lay between Dell and musical accomplishment. His parents selected the law and politics as the next most promising profession for the scion of so prominent a family. The university was at Santiago and the surreptitious trips to the city to visit Mansuetto were no longer necessary. How the youth managed to win his degree and at the same time master his scales is just another of those stories in which ambition, coupled with grit, made accomplishment possible.

JUST at the time when he would have been forced into making a choice of careers, Fate once more played into his hand, removing his uncle from office and political importance and minimizing Dell's immediate prospects for success. This turn in the affairs of the family gave him the opportunity he was seeking and he took up residence with his singing teacher for more than a year, completing his studies preparatory to making his debut with the Chilean National Grand Opera company.

His career in opera was destined, however, to be short lived as he found the work distasteful and began to show a marked leaning toward the Castilian and native songs. To the dismay of his teacher and public he abandoned the roles of the great composers and struck out as a balladier in the (Continued on Page 21)

THUNDERING MAGIC OF THE AIR

S EVEN years ago—in October, 1926, to be exact—an obscure Roman Catholic priest of an equally obscure and unimpressive parish broadcast an address over radio station WJR, Detroit. Today this same priest broadcasts weekly over a chain of independent stations estimated to reach 30,000,000 listeners. Recently during a three-week period, he received a total of 8,000,000 letters from his listeners.

What manner of man is this Father Charles E. Coughlin, of the Shrine of the Little Flower? What power does this stormy petrel of the air waves possess that can sway the minds of millions to love and hate him? What is his history—his background—his training?

Public curiosity demands answers to these questions. Yet, apart from facts that are a matter of public record, the transcripts of his controversial utterances over the air and infrequent fragmentary interviews, the public has had access to little information about Father Coughlin.

Father Coughlin's great-grandfather, Patrick Coughlin, was one of the men who toiled on the construction of the Erie Canal, back in the 1820's. It was this waterway which did much to open what was then the "Far West" to settlement and development. His grandfather, Daniel Coughlin, used to recount the adventures of those pioneer days to Father Coughlin when the priest was a small boy and the hours that he spent listening to these thrilling tales left an indelible mark on the mind of the growing youngster.

Thomas Coughlin, father of the radio priest, is still living in Detroit and assists his distinguished son in his work at the Shrine of the Little Flower. He was a sailor on the Great Lakes in his younger days but an illness which forced him to remain many weeks in a Canadian port resulted in a romance that weaned him forever from a life on the water.

His meeting with Amelia Mahoney and their subsequent marriage was followed by his retirement from the wandering life of a sailor to the comparatively prosaic work of a bakery manager. In 1891, their first child, Charles, was born in Hamilton, Ont.

Thomas Coughlin enjoyed an income of $12 a week but, with this amount, he was able to maintain a comfortable home for his family. Father Coughlin recalls vividly the pleasure that he experienced as a small boy when he was allowed to go to the barn and curry the family horse until his coat glistened.

At St. Mary's school, he played football and baseball. He resented strongly the fact that he was frequently called away from these favorite games to spend hours practising on the big upright piano in the parlor of the Coughlin home. But his service as an altar boy at the Cathedral under Monsignor Mahoney was one task that he thoroughly enjoyed. The Monsignor had a forceful style of address that much impressed the youthful Coughlin. His unconscious imitation of the Monsignor's manner of speech had much to do with making him the forceful public speaker that he is today.

AT the age of twelve, young Charles was sent to St. Michael's College, Toronto, where he came under the strict discipline of the Basilian Fathers. At this institution, he won fame as an athlete both in baseball and football. On one occasion, while playing fullback on the football team, his jaw was fractured early in the game but he continued with rare grit to play through to the final whistle.

In 1907, he matriculated as a student in honor philosophy at the University College of Toronto University. He was graduated in 1911 and, after a three months' trip abroad, he returned to become a novice in the Basilian order. For an entire year, under the rules of the order, he was forced to abstain from all forms of entertainment and social activity and he was not allowed to visit home during that period. His daily routine was one long round of manual labor—scrubbing floors, plowing fields and all of the other tasks that required to be done about the grounds of the monastery.

For four years, he studied theology, not neglecting meanwhile to pursue his studies in other directions, laying the foundation for his present wide understanding of economic problems. One of the subjects which captured his imagination at this period was the industrial revolution in England. He was not satisfied to learn the superficial facts regarding this metamorphosis of society—he entered into exhaustive research work to discover the causes and effects of the mechanization of industry. This led naturally into kindred subjects such as the advantages and disadvantages of the various systems of currency and finance until he had built a sound groundwork of knowledge in the various branches of economics.

His physical make-up was not equal to the demands which his thirst for knowledge placed upon it, however. When his course was completed, his health was gone and he was unable to go through with his ordination for the priesthood. A year of rest and recuperation followed and he was finally ordained as priest in 1916.

His first appointment was at Assumption College, Sandwich, Ont., just across the river from Detroit. While on this assignment, he was given the additional duties of assisting and preaching at St. Agnes Church in Detroit and, during the two years that he continued there, his forceful manner of address won him much attention in church circles.

In May, 1926, he received an order from his Bishop to build a new parish at Royal Oak, Mich., thirteen miles outside of Detroit. The great influx of population resulting from the growth of the automotive industry was forcing the city to expand at a rapid rate in all directions at this time. New hospitals, new schools, new churches were going up all over the territory to keep pace with the growth of population.

Father Coughlin was forced to build the Shrine of the Little Flower rapidly and expensively. A tiny frame building, it still houses the activities of the parish.

FATHER CHARLES E. COUGHLIN
... Each week he talks to 30,000,000 .

but it is dwarfed by the towering new edifice now under construction which will eventually replace it.

Father Coughlin's little new parish was not prosperous. He formed the League of the Little Flower for the purpose of raising money to spread his doctrines. On August 15, 1926, while addressing a group of not more than fifteen of his parishioners, he threw a bombshell in the form of an announcement that he intended to broadcast from the Shrine.

For a long time, he had been pondering the problem of reaching a larger audience. Scant attendance at the church services had aroused him to a realization of the necessity for expanding his activities. The radio, he decided, was the answer.

But his parishioners and (Continued on Page 19)

The Yacht Club quartet changed their plans to leave New York at the conclusion of their current engagement. While waiting for a new sponsor, they will appear at the Palais Royale, which reopened recently.

When Bert Lahr started on the Royal Gelatin program, he was reported to have a sixty-five week contract and it was a surprise to Radio Row to hear that he was to be yanked off the air.

A check-up revealed that the contract carried a cancellation clause with options. A radio comic wisecracked to the effect that "options make the heart grow fonder." We are told that Lahr is pretty sick. If the mere telling of those bad gags did that to him, the people who listened must be ready for the hospital.

Now that the "Big Show" has discarded its comic, Lulu Mc-

Chrysler will sponsor a gala one-hour show on CBS with a flock of talent shepherded by "Town Crier" Alexander Woolcott. Among the stars to be introduced on the program are Lyda Roberti, Helen Morgan, William O'Neal, Hleywood Brown, Grantland Rice, Rosamund Pinchof, Neysa McMein, and a host of other distinguished people. Scheduled for the show include those orchestras of Freddie Rich, Isham Jones, Leon Belasco, Claude Hopkins, and Little Jack Little.

Crumits Renew

Crumit and Sanderson—or Mr. and Mrs. Crumit to their neighbors in Springfield, Mass., have been signed up by their bakery sponsors for fifty-two more weeks of their Sunday afternoon CBS programs, the renewal effective in January. . . This is one of Columbia's oldest commercials—nearly four years on the network.

Paramount gave a special preview of the film "Alice in Wonderland" for the directors and actors of the March of Time, so they could study the voices of the characters for the M of T's dramatic excerpts from the picture given on last Friday's program.

NOT SO many columns ago, I mentioned that I couldn't understand why Eddie Cantor had to dress up in costume (or undress in one instance) during his broadcast to get a laugh from the tiny visible audience, while the million dialing listeners wait and wonder what it's all about. I'm still chuckling at the gesture the banjo-eyed comic made last week when he made a statement declaring that he was very much against studio audiences. Please, Mr. Cantor, my chapped lips. Nobody who faces the mike plays to the visible audience more than Cantor. I have spent many Sunday nights watching Cantor broadcast and, during the one-hour show, the father of five daughters changes his costume several times. His antics include such gestures as giving someone a kick and kissing Rubinoff on the forehead. Why all this wasted energy if he isn't playing to the studio audience?

On and after January 4, Captain Henry of the Show Boat won't be able to say "play that, Don," because Voorhees has left the program. The baton-weaver, who also supplies the music for the Fire Chief, let his temperament get the better of him and decided to walk out on the program when he learned that a recent broadcast was also an audition without his knowledge. Soooooo on the above mentioned date, Gus Arnheim will replace Voorhees on the Thursday night coffee program.

Jack Benny's argument with his sponsor has been settled to the satisfaction of all concerned. A new executive in the sponsor's household believed that there should be less comedy and more music during this program. Benny won the decision, however, and the program will remain unchanged except that the romance between Frank Parker and Marv Livingstone will be dropped. Can't you take a joke, folks?

The ciggie sponsors who are about to lose Fred Waring and his gang are still seeking a substitute. I recently mentioned Phil Spitalny as one of the audition-

Connell, the program features exotic Gertrude Nicsen as the big star. She is now an actress as well as a singer and stars in comedy-drama sketches. It is just a year since young Gertrude made her radio debut on January 4, and in that short time she has become an all-around star in radio, vaudeville, and night clubs.

A Boston radio fan, who has been spreading his spare change calling the CBS studios in New Ynrk from a Boston pay-phone several times a week lately, had the CBS personell somewhat a-twitter a few days ago. He called and asked for Dave Ross, who wasn't around at the time. Then he announced that he'd call again at a specified hour and, if he couldn't speak to the announcer personally at that time, kill himself with a gun he had in his hand. Dave took the call and it turned out that the would-be suicide merely wished to tell what a swell voice he had and ask him to send the girl-friend an autographed photo.

Connie Gates, CBS's young songstress from the midwest, is probably the first radio artist inquisitive enough to explore all the behind-the-scenes activities in radio. Most of them don't look much farther than the mike into which they sing. Connie arranged a tour of the control and master-control rooms, with an engineer to explain just how everything worked. Her guide took a microphone apart to show her how it functioned.

FROM "FLAT ON HER FACE" TO THE TOP OF THE AIR

THE musical comedy stage has given radio its latest romantic singing team, Katherine Carrington and Milton Watson, starred in "An Evening in Paris," a Sunday night feature over the CBS network. Katherine's last Broadway engagement before she began her present radio series was the lead in Jerome Kern's "Music in the Air," while Milton, no newcomer to radio, sang the hit, "Let's Call It a Day," in the Broadway revue, "Strike Me Pink."

Katherine and Milton came to the stage and to radio by radically different routes. From childhood, it was Katherine's ambition to win fame behind the footlights, while Milton, although an active participant in school plays and glee club concerts, never considered the stage seriously as a career. He could not quite make up his mind whether he wanted to be an athletic coach or a music teacher.

When Katherine completed her course at dramatic school, she had an idea that she would become famous as a Shakespearian actress. She envisioned in lights over a Broadway theater marquee: "Katherine Carrington in 'Romeo and Juliet,'" and her first professional appearance in a tabloid musical at a Peoria, Ill., vaudeville theater was nothing like a satisfactory substitute. Nervous and inexperienced, she fell flat on her face during the first dance routine but, with the instinct of a born actress, she made it appear that the mishap was a part of the act.

Five years in vaudeville, stock companies and road companies of Broadway shows followed.

Her role as the French vamp in the road company of "Princess Charming" really led to her later successes. This was the part which Jeanne Aubert had played on Broadway. When the road company disbanded, Katherine returned to New York rather disgusted with her progress toward stardom. She discovered that her name was unknown in theatrical booking offices. To her announcement: "I'm Katherine Carrington," the invariable reaction of the booking agents was "So what?"

But one day, after going through the usual routine in a booking office, she said: "I've just come back from playing the Aubert part in 'Princess Charming' on the road," and the booking agent jumped out of his chair in excitement. Before Katherine could get her bearings, she had been whisked to the stage of the Imperial Theater, where Ed Wynn was indulging in some very untheatrical hysterics. Aubert, leading lady of his show, "The Laugh Parade," had been taken ill suddenly and he was trying to make up his mind whether to close the show until she recovered.

When the booking agent burst upon the stage with Katherine in tow, Wynn listened impatiently to his story and dubiously agreed to try out the substitute in the part. Two hours before curtain time and a whole role to master, including several songs—it was just about as tough an assignment as has ever been given to an actress.

Her ten days in the part opened the way to leading roles in "Face the Music" and "Music in the Air." She was a Broadway star at last.

Watson was completing his course in music at San Jose State College, where he was a star at football, basketball and track, when the break came that eventually carried him to a footlight career. Strolling down the street with a friend one day, he was introduced by his companion to Paul Ash, who was leading an orchestra in San Francisco.

Ash asked Milton's companion if he knew where a certain tenor could be located.

"I'm sure I don't know," the friend answered, "but this fellow, Watson, is a pretty fine tenor. How about using him?"

Ash gave Milton an audition and the job of featured vocalist with that maestro's orchestra was his upon his graduation. Watson stayed with Ash for five years, four of them in Chicago. When Ash took his orchestra east to the New York Paramount, Milton left to take a role with the Four Marx Brothers in their talkie, "Animal Crackers." Engagements in the Broadway musical successes, "Sons of Guns," Earl Carroll's "Vanities," and "Strike Me Pink" followed.

Three years ago, Watson made his radio debut with Helen Gilligan in Mark Warnow's CBS "Star Reveries."

FROM A BOW TO A BATON IN 2 ROUNDS

A REVOLUTION made Enric Madriguera compromise with his budding career as a world-famous concert violinist. A fist fight at Monte Carlo in defense of two American girls made him consider himself fortunate that he had already effected that compromise.

For Enric, leader of New York society's favorite dance orchestra, can still play the violin for dance numbers but he can't play Debussy, or Beethoven or Brahms. And the doctors say it will be at least two years before he can regain the use of that broken little finger on his left hand, so important to a concert violinist.

Madriguera and his orchestra, now playing nightly over an NBC network from the Empire Room of the Waldorf Astoria, were filling an engagement at Monte Carlo's famed Casino last summer when two of the American girls in the floor show became engaged in an argument with one of the waiters. Another waiter joined in the row and the girls were being treated quite roughly when Enric interfered. He succeeded rather quickly in routing the tray jugglers but that precious little finger was broken.

Enric made his debut as a concert violinist at the age of five. He was a student under the great Leopold Auer and was a protege of Enrico Caruso, who gave him the Stradivarius which he still plays. He made a number of world concert tours alone and others with Caruso, gaining a place among the really important concert violinists.

But radio had already made serious inroads on the concert stage when the fortune of the Madrigueras was wiped out by the cataclysm that sent the Bourbon dynasty into exile from Spain. Enric had to consider for the first time in his life the possibilities of making a living out of his musical training, which had cost his parents so many thousands of dollars.

He organized an orchestra and played Spanish dance music. Some of his early orchestra engagements in this country were at the Biltmore and the Commodore in New York. Later he played at the Place Pigalle, one of the ultra-smart New York night clubs of the pre-repeal era.

Madriguera "exercises" for two hours a day. He doesn't need to resort to the usual form of setting up exercises or his fencing and boxing, at both of which he is adept, to keep his figure slim or to maintain perfect physical condition. But that broken finger is the part of his body that needs exercising.

As soon as he has had his cold shower in the morning, he dons a white knitted glove, which contains a strong elastic that fastens to the end of the injured finger. During the next two hours he continues to flex that finger again and again, even while he is eating his breakfast. Under this treatment, the finger is slowly regaining its strength, but it will still be a long time before he can use it to play the classics and his favorite Spanish music. He takes all this philosophically, realizing that if he were still a concert violinist the mishap might have been ruinous to his career. As it happens, it merely keeps him from playing the music out of which he derives the most personal enjoyment.

TYING A GYPSY TO ONE POST

HARRY HORLICK, leader of the A & P Gypsies, heard Monday nights on an NBC-WEAF coast-to-coast chain, is celebrating his eleventh year of sustained broadcasting for the same sponsor. Horlick has held his place throughout the years because of his ability to play songs that are a little different from most of those heard on the air, and because he can give a different twist to the melodies that everybody else plays.

Horlick specializes in folk songs of all nations, and his musical library is replete with his type of melody. He personally obtained most of them on his various tours.

Harry Horlick is a gypsy—not an A & P Gypsy, and not a child of Romany camps, but a true nomad in background and inclination. He was born in Cheringow, a hamlet near Moscow, and studied in Tiflis, romantic city of the Caucasus. It was in the conservatory in that city that Horlick first studied music, under the tutelage of his brother, who was concert-meister of a symphony orchestra there.

A graduate of the Tiflis conservatory and a full-fledged musician, Horlick went to Moscow and played in symphony orchestras. Then the war broke out and Harry entered the Russian army. For more than two years he did not touch his violin. When the revolution overthrew the Romanoffs, Horlick was seized by the Bolsheviks.

Instead of sending him to Siberia, the revolutionists drafted Horlick into a symphony orchestra, and later he was assigned to play in an orchestra for the communized opera, visited by the Russian dictators. Harry never "played fiddle for the Czar," however, thereby differentiating himself from most of the radio maestros who hail from Russia.

Horlick tried to escape on several occasions, and one night he succeeded. He traveled only at night, hiding by day, and finally reached Tiflis where friends hid him until they could sneak him away to Constantinople. Here his famous music collection started.

Leaving Turkey, Horlick came to America, paying for his passage by giving violin solos. It wasn't long before he figuratively hoisted his violin over his shoulder and set out for new lands. In France and Italy, Germany, Austria, Hungary, China and Japan he wandered, listening for melodies which he jotted down on paper for future use. Often he spent days with bands of real gypsies, playing for them and in turn learning their distinctive folk tunes.

Africa was the next stop on Horlick's unplanned tour, and then through the Antipodes to gather still more material. A jump across the water, and he was in South America, visiting every colony and country in our southern neighbors' boundaries. By degrees he came north, traveling through most of the states.

One morning eleven years ago, a little group of five musicians gathered in New York City. They played haunting gypsy airs of their native Russia. No one had ever heard anything just like it before. A representative of radio was present, and Horlick was asked to bring his five men to the broadcasting studio the following day. He did, and the A & P Gypsies went on the air as a commercial feature.

A year went by and the Gypsies numbered fourteen. The NBC came into being, and with it the networks. Soon requests began to arrive from radio fans, asking Horlick to depart from his Gypsy music a little and present other types of compositions in their individual style. So the Gypsies added a brass section, blossomed out as a small orchestra, and put on a more varied program.

The Horlick band grew in personnel, grew until it reached its present proportions. It can now play anything from a dainty string quartet to a Beethoven symphony, from a military march to an up-to-the-minute interpretation of a sophisticated melody. Always that haunting, native music of many lands is included in the programs, however.

AWARDS IN NINTH BETTER RADIO CONTEST

Report of Judges

RADIO GUIDE's Ninth Better Radio Program Contest, covering the Chase and Sanborn Coffee Hour with Eddie Cantor, attracted the largest number of entries since the present series of competitions was launched. A total of 6,231 listeners competed and the program as a whole pleased 5,525 of these for the record popularity percentage of 95.

Cantor himself won the approval of 5,574 and was criticized adversely by 657 for a percentage of 89. Rubinfoff's orchestra won favorable comment from 3,683 and was disliked by 188 contestants, for a percentage of 95. Rubinfoff's violin solos received 3,842 favorable comments and 219 which were adverse.

James Wallington, the announcer, who also acts as straight man for Cantor, scored the highest popularity percentage with 5,340 favorable comments and only 51 against. Ninety-nine percent of those who commented on his work were favorably impressed.

In spite of the overwhelming popularity of the program as a whole, there were certain features of the presentation which drew the virtually unanimous disapproval of those who commented on them at all. A total of 614 contestants reported objections to the applause and laughter of the studio audience at costuming and grimaces which fail to register at the other side of the loudspeaker. A hundred percent of those commenting on this phase of the program objected to audience noise in the studio. The use of Rubinfoff as the butt for Cantor's gags also drew the fire of 686 contestants and not one registered approval of this device.

The method of handling the commercial credit on this program was also rather generally criticized. A total of 1,385 entrants commented favorably on the advertising and 906 found it objectionable.

First prize goes to Roscoe Gilmore Stott, of Cincinnati, O., for an intelligent critical discussion of the program and an incisive analysis of Cantor's ability to keep his listeners amused. In the face of the almost unanimous approval of the program on the part of the contestants, the fact that Dr. Stott failed to offer any constructive suggestions for changes that would improve the presentation did not militate against him in the consideration of the judges.

Mary Lauber, of Philadelphia, winner of the second prize, also commented wisely on the various aspects of the program and her criticisms of the studio noises and the character of the advertising were repre-

THE JUDGES

Winning Letters

First Prize $25.00

The new program of Cantor, King of Comics, wins!

Mr. Cantor surpasses all radio comics not in material, not in singing voice, scarcely from the view-point of variety. He is the only one who is psychologically sound in his methods. He has mastered the very difficult technique of pushing his personality through the air. He knows that great humor in a comedian lies in having us laugh at him. Like Chaplin, he knows that we humanly laugh at one in difficulties. He dramatizes himself as frail, his voice asks our sympathy even as we laugh. It is the rare gift of humor through pathos.

Again, he is ably abetted by Mr. Rubinfoff—the only leader who uses craftsmanship in his own skillful arrangements of familiar semi-classics and classics—or those of a masterful aide. And by an announcer of rare versatility and uncanny intelligence.

The result: A balanced program that makes Mr. Cantor's comic contemporaries appear shoddy, unskilled and vacuous; an hour of rather wild extremes in sentiment and comedy; a sales promotion that is not repulsive. Flawless? No. Merely intelligent entertainment.

Dr. Roscoe Gilmore Stott,
540 Howell Avenue,
Cincinnati, Ohio.

Second Prize $10.00

The Chase and Sanborn Coffee Hour, a deft blending of humor, music, and food for thought, provides excellent entertainment. Eddie Cantor's quips have direct appeal, an air of spontaneity and are touched with both humor and pathos. His comments are timely, and often there is wisdom beneath his banter. His references to Ida and his daughters, his mock "ribbing" of Rubinfoff exemplify the human spark. He's a person first, a comedian secondly.

James Wallington, announcer, whose cool voice won him the 1933 diction award, is engaging as Eddie's stooge and partner. The music is varied and expertly presented. Rubinfoff's violin solos are impressive. By artistry of arrangement and interpretation, he brings forth even a popular melody's latent melodic possibilities; its true beauty and significance.

As improvement I suggest elimination of studio capers provoking laughter. Fundamentally radio programs are created to please listeners. Until television becomes a definite part of radio reception, studio capers should be taboo. They make listeners feel slighted, resentful. Such mental attitude diminishes appreciation and interest which sponsors seek to retain.

The advertising suffers from repetition and exaggerated claims for the product, causing listeners to mimic disparagingly. The time has come to inaugurate something original and convincing.

MR. FAIRFAX KNOWS THE ANSWERS

Arthur Fairfax, a veteran of radio who knows all the stars personally, will do his utmost to answer your query in the earliest possible issue of RADIO GUIDE. The only exceptions will be those questions that are not of sufficient general interest to merit response in print; and such inquiries will be answered direct, if accompanied by a stamped envelope. Address all questions to Arthur Fairfax, RADIO GUIDE, 423 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. S. S., Mt. Carmel, Pa.—"Cecil and Sally" is an electrically recorded program. It is produced on the west coast. Details as to cast, etc., will follow.

F. A. R., Frankfort, Ind.—Happy Jack Turner is working at WHAS, Louisville, and broadcasting over the "Center of Population" chain, which includes WSM, Nashville, and WCKY, Covington, Ky. Chuck and Kay last reported at WSM, Nashville. Turner may be heard over WSM week mornings at 8:45 o'clock CST. And J. Oliver ("Duke") Riehl is now special production man at WSM. Seems as if WSM is getting them all!

Be nice, you orchestra fans, and quit sending quarters to the Music Corporation of America for band leaders' pictures.

On a tip which appeared here, thousands of listeners have deluged MCA for pictures, and the supply is now exhausted. Maybe I should go into the business. Should I?

J. M., Philadelphia, Pa.—Joe Sanders, on a tour of one night stands through the middle west, is at present in Cincinnati. He is not broadcasting.

Mrs. M. J. J., Peoria, Ill.—It was out of respect to Irma Phillips' wishes that she was not given credit for her double role in "Today's Children." She had desired to remain unidentified. The baby in the photograph was just one borrowed for the occasion to lend naturalness. A director is required to properly time, rehearse and present a radio sketch. Arthur Jacobson was born on October 9, year unknown to us.

Mrs. C. M., Norfolk, Va.—Following is the cast of "Painted Dreams." Mother Monohan, Bess Flynn; Valerie, Mary Afflick; Joyce, Kay Chase; Alice, Alice Hill. The sketch is directed by Edward Smith from script written by Kay Chase, a member of the cast.

M. J. I., Peoria, Ill.—Not all back copies of RADIO GUIDE are available for sale. Send a list of your missing copies to the Circulation Department, and they'll do their best.

H. G., Brooklyn, N. Y.—Jack (Vin Halloworth) Arnold is not on the air on a regular schedule and is definitely written out of Myrt and Marge. The new Marge "heart" in that sketch is Gene Kretsinger, who'll actually marry Marge (Donna Damerel) Minter on Saturday, Dec. 30.

H. L. P., Bucknell, Ind.—"The Smith Family" is no longer being presented on the air. The cast is broken up and its members so widely scattered that it is impossible to learn their whereabouts.

Listener—Wallace Butterworth, now in New York, has been broadcasting the General Mills news broadcasts over the CBS network. Now that this service is to be discontinued his plans are probably not settled. Everett Mitchell broadcasts only over NBC affiliated stations. Sorry, NBC has not disclosed any further plans for the Mitchell-Glen or Mitchell-Larsen combinations. Elmer Michaux and his congregation are Negroes of the Congregationalist faith.

Mrs. I. P., Willimantic, Conn.—Asher and Little Jimmy programs are broadcast daily except Sunday and Monday at 6:15 EST over the CPG group of stations which includes WCKY, Covington, Ky.; WHAS, Louisville, Ky. and WSM, Nashville, Tenn. They may also be heard occasionally on WSM Saturday night programs.

E. L., Hamilton, Ont.—Ted Lewis and his orchestra are not broadcasting at present, but in "Martin Lewis" interesting column this week you will find a reference to a possible program still to be announced.

J. H., St. Paul, Minn.—A letter addressed to Baby Rose Marie, care of the National Broadcasting company, New York, N. Y., will be delivered to the juvenile star. No new plans for Elmer Everett Yess are announced.

YOUR PROBLEMS SOLVED

By
The Voice of Experience

The Voice of Experience's broadcast schedule is Monday to Friday daily at 12 o'clock noon eastern time; Tuesday at 8:30 P. M. eastern time, with a repeat broadcast at 11:45 P. M. for Pacific Coast and Rocky Mountain section; and Mondays at 3:15 P. M. eastern time.

Young Love

DEAR VOICE OF EXPERIENCE: I have a small problem to call to your attention. I am 16, going on 17, and am a senior in high school. I do not like to deceive my parents, but they do not think as I do. They think I should not go out yet with any special girl. I like one girl in particular quite well at the present time. But if my folks find I have been out with any girl I get a talking-to on the subject.

Will you please answer in RADIO GUIDE? I do not wish to deceive my parents and yet I think I ought to be able to have a good time. Please do not put my name in RADIO GUIDE as many of my friends read it.

ANSWER: Don't worry, L. R., about my publishing your name. Most of the thousands that write to me confide their names and addresses to me and I never have been guilty of a breach of confidence.

You know, laddie boy, I have a pretty good memory, and I was a boy once and I like the girls too, not one, but several, and I can understand your desire to be normal and to enjoy the company of the other sex, and yet I commend you upon not wanting to deceive your parents.

I have talked a number of times in my broadcasts and written in my column appealing to parents of growing boys and girls not to make deliberate deceivers out of them by trying to prohibit normal social interests. How much better it would be for you, my lad, if mother and father would encourage you in the right choice of girl friends and even allow you to entertain in your own home and be entertained in the girl's home, than to tempt both you and the girl to meet on the sly and deceive two sets of parents thereby.

I have spent a great many months studying boys and girls in detention homes and reform schools, I have the written confessions of several thousands of unwed mothers and of many boys that were involved in pre-marital relationships. If parents only knew how many of these cases are directly caused because of prohibitory methods against boys and girls being their normal selves, and how many boys and girls are driven not only to deceive but from deceit to establishing other practices due directly to parental repressions, I think that the American parents would treat very differently the normal interests exemplified by your letter.

Suppose, L. R., that you show mother and father what I have written, and if they feel inclined to do so, let them write to me and take issue with me. I think that I can prove to them that whereas they have had a few children in the teen age, I have dealt with tens of thousands and therefore believe that I am in a position to advise kindly and sincerely and sanely with them.

I am not taking sides with you, L. R., against your parents. I am simply trying to champion a cause for cleanliness and decency and normalcy among the youth of this nation, and am trying to encourage parents to help me to put such a condition into effect. I will be interested in knowing the outcome of your case.

Troubled Wife

Dear Voice of Experience:

Recently I read the letter in RADIO GUIDE from the boy whose problem was overwhelming passion. Strange as it may seem I, a young married woman, have never experienced the slightest passion. At first I nearly wrecked our home and happiness as my husband could not understand my point of view. He thought that my physical unresponsiveness was unnatural and because of this abnormal condition in me that I would be unable to understand him, but it is not true at all.

Because I really loved my husband dearly and knew that he loved me, I determined not to allow our marriage to go on the rocks, so gradually I resorted to pretense which is working splendidly. Often I feel that I am hypocritical even though I do have a high spiritual regard and a deep overwhelming devotion for my husband.

I am extremely affectionate and cannot understand why it is that spiritually and emotionally I am all that could be exacted of any wife, and yet I am utterly lacking on the physical plane. Please give me some helpful advice through the columns of RADIO GUIDE.

A Loving Wife

ANSWER: My friend, this is not only a very serious problem but is also one that is wracking the brains of many a seemingly normal individual who has entered into marriage blindfolded as a result of the prurient attitude society has taken toward pre-marital sex education.

It is a sad comment upon civilization that only among the higher types of civilized women do you find many of the female abnormalities, not least among which is that from which you suffer. In the animal kingdom and among the savages it is absolutely unknown. The reason for this is that the savage and the animal are creatures and they live by their instincts. We highly civilized creatures, because we have found ourselves equipped with the ability to choose, have taken such delight in our gift of choice that generation by generation our instincts have become dimmed until today the average American male or female is almost devoid of any instinct in the expression of his or her emotional life.

After years of study in the tenderloin to determine the cause of many of these so-called abnormal conditions, and having discovered a number of different causes, particularly for physical or psychic frigidity, I have been accorded the privilege of enlightening many thousands of women who thought themselves victims of unnatural coldness when in reality they were solely the victims of their own or their husbands' ignorance, or of a psychic condition produced by a wrong training on the part of parents.

Certainly a column in RADIO GUIDE is not a place to discuss so intimate albeit so vital a question. I am glad, however, to be able to offer you a little pamphlet which I know you will find exceptionally helpful, called "The Frigid Wife". This I will be glad to send you upon receipt of a stamped envelope or, preferably, just a 3c stamp, giving your name and address. I am sure that you will find it well worth while to send for as will also any other woman who feels herself the victim of the same condition. In my opinion in this age of enlightenment, there is no need for frigidity, and because of the fact that much of the happiness of the home depends upon physical normalcy, I am glad to be of assistance to any family that I can in righting such an abnormal condition.

Mental Taint

Dear Voice of Experience:

I have been married for a little more than four years and am approaching a rather bad time unless you can help me. My husband's people and my people came from different parts of the country and so we did not get very closely acquainted until after our marriage. Since then I have discovered that he has a brother who is foolish, that there have been at least two suicides in his mother's family, and that uncles and aunts are confirmed neurotics.

At the time of our marriage, we agreed that there would be no additions to our family for three years at least so as to give us time to buy our furniture and save a little before being burdened with a family. Now, Voice of Experience, in the light of what I have learned about his people I am in a quandary as to whether or not to chance any babies. My husband and I love children, and it breaks my heart to see him cuddle a little baby—any baby—in his arms and to think that perhaps he will never have any baby to call his own.

Experience, is there the possibility of those family taints coming out in my children? You see, we have exceeded the time agreed upon by a year, and, while he says nothing, I know by the look in his eyes when he looks at children that he longs for some of his own, and his longing is no greater than mine. However, better to long for and be denied, than to have babies who might be foolish or be cursed with a streak of insanity.

Your Friend and Adviser

I have not discussed this with anyone, not even my husband, but it would not be kind to hurt him unnecessarily. You are so continually called upon, "Please, Voice of Experience, won't you help me!" that I am constrained to add my cry too. This worry has put me in rather a bad spot, and I believe has been enough to make me

Heartsick.

ANSWER: I wonder if my readers can see between the lines of this letter the heart agony of a typical mother denied actual motherhood.

Those who know me must recognize an accentuated love for children which I have never attempted to hide, and therefore I can sympathize most deeply with a woman who is anxious for a child's prattle and the little responsibilities and care that go with motherhood, but who, by virtue of necessity, must be denied this great epic of womanhood.

I would be most foolish, however, just because of an inherent desire on the part of a man and his wife for children to say, "Why not? You both want children—life is a gamble; take a chance." I imagine this temptation has already come to this couple without my having to voice it. But on the other hand any psychiatrist will tell you that in this woman's letter are a number of danger signals, and how powerfully she has put the matter when she says, "It is better to long for and be denied than to have babies incapable of normal intelligence."

All that I can do, my friend, in this column, is to express my sympathy for you regarding the conditions over which you have had no control, and to commend you for your thoughtfulness in this matter. Were I in your position, I should sit down and quietly talk the matter over with my husband and ask him, for the sake of the peace of mind of both of you, if he does not think the wise thing to do would be for the two of you to go to a good psychiatrist, present the entire case to him, and then be guided entirely by the advice of this trained letting your husband undergo a thorough examination, expert.

It is possible that he would find nothing over which you and your husband need to worry, in which case I would be the first to congratulate you. But on the other hand he might thoroughly confirm your fears, in which case it would be most advisable, I can assure you to accept a vicarious motherhood and fatherhood by adopting a carefully selected little tot. If you decide to act upon this advice, won't you write me of the outcome, for I assure you I am interested in every case that is brought to my attention. I can always find a moment in which to check up on a case already handled either through my broadcasts or through the column in RADIO GUIDE.

THE VOICE OF THE LISTENER

Who's Afraid of Bair?

Dear VOL:

I have been a steady reader of your magazine for over a year and can certainly say that RADIO GUIDE is a great help to the radio owner.

But why publish such letters as that of C. M. Bair? Surely you could find letters in your mail which aren't so narrow-minded as to say "thumbs down on dance orchestras and sick tenors singing popular music."

I wonder how many radios would be operated if we didn't have orchestras like those of Wayne King, Fred Waring, George Hall and Guy Lombardo; also "sick tenors" like John McCormack, Frank Parker, James Shields and others.

I sometimes wonder if some of these kickers can't turn on some other stations if they don't like a certain program.

Belleville, Ont.

A. E. M.

Chicago, Ill.

Dear VOL:

C. M. Bair's letter interests me because, on the whole, I agree perfectly as to the type of musical programs I enjoy. But I feel the lady is cutting off her nose to spite her face. There are many lovely and excellent day-time programs, which, in her spite, she is missing. Examples of these, are, in part, the WAAF Symphonic Hour every week day from 12 to 1 and Sunday from 9 to 10; the U. S. Navy Band, Army Band, Singing Strings, and the Palmer House ensemble, all of which broadcast many times during the week; or the Roodoliers, Howard Harlow's New World Symphony orchestra, Three Strings, the WGN Concert Ensemble, Rochester Civic orchestra, On Wings of Song, the Music Waavers, Eastman School symphony orchestra and the Curtis School of Music. All these are regularly scheduled between the hours of 10 a. m. and 5 p. m.

RADIO GUIDE is as important to me as my daily bread and all of these and many more excellent programs are regularly listed therein.

If C. M. B. will give herself half a chance for enjoyment by purchasing the RADIO GUIDE and STUDY IT, she will never again be regaled because she can find nothing to please her taste.

Furthermore I suggest that she consider she is only one of thousands of listeners, many of whom would twist away from classical music programs as quickly as the devil would run away from holy water. And they, too, have money to buy radios and purchase merchandise. There are many preferences beside the cultured tastes. But I agree everyone thinks the advertising is topheavy in most broadcasts. This will be remedied as soon as sponsors realize it. Just because "we" enjoy the better music is not reason that those who prefer crooners and torch songs should not have some consideration.

Mary Adams

Oskosh, Wis.

Dear VOL:

While reading your column in the RADIO GUIDE I came upon the letter of C. M. Bair.

It seems to me that such people should buy a Victrola and play it on Sundays. And as for the lives of Beethoven, Gaudin, etc., that's what we have public libraries for. I like symphony music as well as anyone else but if we had the same amount of it as we do of modern music, we'd be so tired of it that anything would be welcome, even one of the "sick tenors" C. M. B. talks about.

Dear VOL:

May I write a few words in the interest of fair play. Why should lovers of symphonic music be so bitter in condemning those who like the lighter music or the so-called popular music? Take for instance the letter of C. M. Bair in the Dec. 16 RADIO GUIDE which says, in part, "We are disgusted with the programs of popular music." Also the insulting letter of Ren Fletcher in Sept. 30 RADIO GUIDE, and the meanest letter of all, that of A. J. Blencoe, Geneva, Ill. In a recent issue, about the 14-year-old mind. They may be cultured to the Nth degree but any person who would write in such criticisms of another's letter, just because that person expressed an honest liking for any type of music other than the classics, must have had his training in manners and unselfishness sadly neglected.

At the risk of having my mind classed with the 14-year-olds (and I would rather have it there than with the selfish snobs) I am saying that I greatly enjoy the popular songs when sung by people like Little Jack Little, Landt Trio and White, Eddie Cantor, the Breakfast Club soloist, etc. I do not like the oh-wah-de-o-trios but if there are those who do, why I never thought I owned all of the air.

I do not enjoy the little sketches such as Lum and Abner, Mrs. Frasier's Boarding House, The True (?) Life Story of Betty and Bob, etc. The dialect in the first two and in many others depicting country characters is not true to life as I know country people and in addition, is hard to understand. When I cannot get any others than these I find I can give up some of the time until programs I enjoy can be tuned in.

Mrs. J. H. Taft

Manitowoc, Wis.

Dear VOL:

Just a few lines of rebuke to answer C. M. Bair's letter.

It might be possible for her to tune in Zion City, Ill., if she wants that class of programs.

Sponsors such as Pepsodent, etc., who pay large sums to the radio systems and to their entertainers, must have some advertising to repay them.

Best wishes for the present standard of radio programs, performers and sponsors.

J. F. Regan

Galesburg, Ill.

Dear VOL:

The radio isn't an invention for people with one-track minds so I would advise C. M. Bair to dispense with its services altogether or by some hook or crook, to develop writer's cramp before again sending such a letter as appeared over her signature in RADIO GUIDE.

I do not say thumbs down on any type of radio entertainment which is pleasing to others but not to me. They're all artists or they wouldn't be on the air. Being intelligent people of course we enjoy classical and symphonic music but when some one "pans" modern dance music and our golden tenors it rankles, and how. I would advise Mrs. Baie to tune in on Wayne King's Orchestra every night at 10:30 and if there's any finer music to produce it. Or Bing Crosby at 7:30 on Mondays or Tom, Dick and Harry at 6:45 p. m. They're all simply grand.

Bring on most any kind of radio entertainment. We can take it and I rather hope you will print this letter so that C. M. Bair can get the full benefit of the raspberries I'd like to send her personally.

Z. Miller

Houlton, Me.

Dear VOL:

I enjoy RADIO GUIDE very much and after reading the interesting articles on radio personalities am in a position to be more appreciative of the programs.

I feel deep sympathy for the writer of the article "requested" in a recent issue and would like to make a few suggestions which might help in correct the attitude taken.

Most of our greatest problems are sponsored by commercial firms to promote the sale of their goods, consequently they try to sponsor programs which the listening public has shown interest in and which the greatest number of people will listen to in the future. It has been proved that the symphonic music has not brought the best results to the commercial advertiser.

When you stop to consider that the concern sponsoring a program is spending thousands of dollars each week for our entertainment and only asking us to buy his product, shouldn't we feel grateful to the advertisers for the minimum amount of advertising which you now hear on a number of the best programs on the air?

L. A. Briggs.

A Stitch In Time

Altoona, Penn.

Dear VOL:

Just this minute received my copy of RADIO GUIDE and the first thing that attracted my attention was the fact that you have at last decided to stitch your magazine pages together.

In my opinion this is a great improvement and I wish to offer my congratulations. This means I will no longer have to start a story in the living room, get the second sheet in the dining room, the third in the kitchen, the fourth in the "library," etc.

I enjoy the GUIDE a lot and wish you continued success.

F. P. M.

Winona, Minn.

Dear VOL:

I am glad to see the improvements in the RADIO GUIDE. The paper stitches keep it together so that the whole family has to wait in turn. Also the period of the day makes it easier to find programs.

Let's hope that Wayne King and Jan Garber continue to broadcast all winter. I never let a day go by without hearing them.

Georgia Pesch

Macon, Ga.

Dear VOL:

Congratulations on the new Southern Atlantic edition of Radio Guide. It is a great deal better than the Dixie edition. It gives all the stations that we often listen to. The smaller size and stitching the pages also are great improvements. The "Stoopnagle Revelations" are about as funny as the programs. Keep up the good work.

Answering Mr. Fairfax's question concerning 'Old Man Sunshine' (Ford Rush), he can now be heard on the CBS network daily except Saturday and Sunday at 4:45 p. m., EST.

I, like all readers, always look forward to the new RADIO GUIDE.

Stanford Smith, Jr.

She Likes Hill Tunes

Cedar Park, Tex.

Dear VOL:

I have been a reader of RADIO GUIDE for two years and think it is a grand magazine.

I think Mrs. Lola Mathews of Tyler, Texas, ought to have two bouquets for what she had to say about Bradley Kincaid. I'd do without my breakfast any time to hear him sing. Arkie (The Arkansas Woodchopper) of WLS is another favorite artist of mine.

The "Grand Old Opry" at WSM wouldn't be complete with Asher and Little Jimmie. My favorite type of music is the Old Time songs and mountain ballads.

Mrs. E. Cluck

From Kovar to Roof

Chicago, Ill.

Dear VOL:

I have just read Charles Roof's letter and agree with all he says about Hal Kemp. When Hal's saxophone starts playing those trills which he's famous for, he can't be beaten. I can add a few more to Roof's list. They are "See You in Church," "Paper Moon," "Loves" and many more. I suggest that Kemp followers keep writing in until some sponsor takes notice.

An Advertiser Explains

Villa Park, Ill.

Dear VOL:

Thanks for the fiver awarded my comments and now may I use your V.O.L. column to take issue with Messrs. Cartwright and Silver on one criticism they offer, that commercial announcements consume too much time on a certain program?

Perhaps, being an advertising man, I am biased, but I think this oft-repeated criticism of radio programs, in general, is unwarranted. The length of an advertising plug within reason, of course, is relatively unimportant, so long as the advertiser has a message to deliver that listeners want to hear, and which is presented in a manner which does not insult the intelligence (surely above the moronic rating of 12 years). If the announcement does not possess these characteristics the advertiser may as well discontinue the role of radiu angel and as "Beetle" advises, "Get off the air."

Has it ever occurred to radio advertising critics that the industries which foot the not inconsiderable radio bill and give us the finest air entertainment enjoyed by any country in the world, are entitled to a profit on their investment? In these days especially, every advertising medium must produce tangible results or give way to one which will.

So let's quit kicking about commercial credits before some of our politicians start regulating them, perhaps killing the goose that's laying such nice golden eggs.

W. R. Petrie

As Sanders Meanders

Gary, Ind.

Dear VOL:

We enjoy RADIO GUIDE so much we just have to write and tell you so. We can't find a thing in radio to kick about and think it's great just as it is, and costs nothing. We like the orchestra programs best. Has anyone noticed what a fine band Clyde McCoy has these days? Henry Busse's theme song alone is worth sitting up for. And isn't Ace Brigode's late blues program on Saturday nights fine for home dancing?

However, our favorite of them all seems to be missing from the air. That's Joe Sanders and his fine dance orchestra. We have been looking in RADIO GUIDE for weeks for news about them. Would appreciate your printing a life story about him soon.

Two Fans

Wayne Still King

Moorhead, Minn.

Dear VOL:

I just feel like giving a few bouquets to my favorites.

Of course, Wayne King is and always will be my favorite of orchestra leaders. He is wonderful. I can't say enough about his music. Next, I think the "Breakfast Club" on the NBC network is swell. I always enjoy the music and the fun-making.

Third in line is the Palmer House Ensemble and Adolph Dumont, director of the WGN orchestra. Both programs are beautiful. I also enjoy Elsie Hitz and Nick Dawson in the story "Dangerous Paradise." Both have such charming voices.

My favorite announcers are first, John Harrington because he announces Wayne King's programs and then Jimmy Wallington and David Ross. What's become of Frank Luther? Hope I'll see a picture of Wayne King and his boys and also the boys and the other fellows who help to make the "Breakfast Club" so swell.

Helen Zervas

A Real Bronx Cheer

Bronx, N. Y.

Dear VOL:

We want to say a few words about a man who deserves more than a few words—Cliff Burwell. No, of course, you haven't heard of him. But you should have. Cliff is first pianist with Rudy Vallee's Connecticut Yankees. A few years ago he was voted the most popular individual player in orchestras in the United States.

Still we never see a word of praise in his name. He plays a "mean" piano and would probably write many a clever tune if time permitted. He has already composed a few numbers, one of them being "Sweet Lorraine."

We've watched Cliff at rehearsals and have come to a definite conclusion. Rudy Vallee would be lost without him. Cliff arranges rhythms, offers a word of help here or there, and plays the piano as you've never heard it played before.

There are probably plenty like Cliff—unknowns whose work is priceless. How about it, radio listeners? If you know any it's up to you to bring them out.

Agnes and Ann

REVIEWING RADIO

By Martin J. Porter

(And the Customers)

THE LISTENERS ALWAYS WRITE.

And it's a pity they can't be heard—and read—oftener. After all, they're the backbone of this broadcasting business, for who else would visit their dentists twice a year? Who would use toothpaste twice a day; who would clip coupons from the packages, and, for God's sake, who would write slogans?

Would anybody but a listener want to pick an All-American Orchestra, or confess murder to the Voice of Experience, or write to radio columnists—or read them?

The answer being "nobody-else" then, I figure the listener ought to get a break, and once in a while have a column, or a page of their own, aside from the Voice of the Listener, where their thoughts are necessarily limited to a few well-chosen words. This is nearly the end of the year, and being all for the listeners myself, I think they ought to have their say, and this is what some of them say right out loud:

Less Ballyhoo

"Dear Mike:
"I am a former newspaper woman and the wife of a working newspaper man. As such, I am committing for the first time, the unpardonable crime of writing a letter to a columnist. Because our income has been reduced fifty percent, we have been obliged to turn more and more to radio for entertainment, and naturally we are paying a little more than usual attention to programs. I should like to rise up first of all and express our dislike of women ennuousers as boosters for sponsors' products.

"Why in the name of heaven, do they allow a woman to talk on a commercial program? They never sound natural, they gush, and they are distasteful to a majority of the radio audience which, like the movie audience, is largely feminine. Any woman will agree that males, whether trying to sell themselves or their products, can do more business with women than women can.

"Many fine programs are spoiled for us by the long, tiresome lines of ballyhoo which insult the intelligence of the hearer. If one accepted as gospel the blab which comes out of the air, we would be smoking six different kinds of cigarettes, drinking half a dozen kinds of coffee, going batty trying to employ a dozen cosmetics, and buying enough patent medicines to pack us off to the cemetery or the dope sanatorium.

"Yet radio is a godsend to families like mine who no longer can attend concerts, theaters and operas, and we are truly appreciative—enough so to stand for the high pressure advertising. You have noticed, of course, that Friday night is a poor night on the air. So help me, I can't find a thing on that evening which interests or entertains me.

"And won't you please help move those kid programs back an hour, from five to six instead of six to seven? And Wayne King! I used to listen to him, but the Lady Esther business is too much to take. Please root for more George Hall and Richard Himber music on the night waves.

The Benny Savours

"Dear Mr. Porter:
"I don't know when I felt so aroused as when I learned that Chevrolet wanted to minimize the Jack Benny comedy. This has given me a grievance against the stuffed shirts of radio that will linger a long time, although I have just read that Benny is O.K. with the sponsors, and will have his own way for at least sixteenth more weeks. That's one thing we have you columnists to thank for. As soon as you got a tip on the situation, you set up a howl that provided Benny with his defense. You won the case for him, and thousands of listeners are grateful for this. I don't blame Benny for quitting under the circumstances. A sense of humor is a precious possession.

"R. G. F., Bronx, N. Y."

A Little Old, But—

"Dear Sir:
"There is a story you can pass on to your readers, and so help me, it's on the level. You've heard about Aldo Ricci, conductor of the NBC

Phantom Strings. Well, there is a chap with a sense of humor. The other day, he crashed into the NBC corridors, wearing smoked glasses and a dilapidated hat. He was carrying one of those sandwich man signs, with his head struck through the apex of them. But the funny part of it was the signs did not have any reading matter on them! They were just plain blank.

"The lad Ricci created a lot of interest, and to all who were curious enough to approach him, he explained that he was a just sign carrier working ON SUSTAINING TIME.

"J. G. H. (One of the NBC stooges)"

Is This Dirty?

"Dear Porter:
"I read your column in defense of radio and was glad to note that you claimed there was no suggestiveness on the air. Well, maybe you were right then, but how about this? I listened to Stoppnagle and Budd the other night, and they staged a take-off on the Voice of Experience, calling themselves 'The Boys of Experience.' One of the burlesque letters which they read, went like this:

"Dear Boys: I am the mother of a very pretty, in fact, a beautiful girl of sixteen.

"(Signed) Anxious."

"What do you make of that, sir?"

"Angela G., Philadelphia, Pa."

(Note to Angela: My dear, don't you remember that I wrote also last week that the suggestiveness is bred in your own mind. Tsk! Tsk!)

Not Bad

"Dear Sir:
"I think one of the best gags was your dumb-belle letters in a recent issue. Well, maybe those letters were on the level and maybe not. They were amusing. But here's one that really was mailed.

"It seems a newly rich lady bought a Louis Fourteen bed with other furnishings for her new palatial home. After a week of its luxury, she wrote this letter to the antique dealer:

"Please come and get your Louis Fourteen bed, its too short for my husband, and while your about it bring me a Louis Fifteen."

"Andy B., Baltimore, Md."

Or Sadder

"Dear Porter:
"The dumb-belle letters ought to be made a broadcast feature. Wouldn't it be funnier than Ed Wynn and Jack Pearl put together, if the radio executives would allow the moronic letters to be broadcast as is?

"James Downey, North Adams, Mass."

Reviewing 1933

"Dear Mike:
"Nobody has as yet summed up the significant events of 1933 as applying to radio. It's about the lovely young coloratura soprano who joined Columbia over a year ago but who has been microphonically silent for some months, returns to the CBS-WABC network at 10:45 p. m. EST on Friday, January 5.

MARY EASTMAN

KATHARINE HEPBURN

former social light and 1933's outstanding talking picture success, will be the first theatrical titan to appear on the Hall of Fame series when she is guest on Sunday, January 7, at 10:30 p. m. EST, over an NBC-WEAF network. Her fee is reported to be $5,000.

time, don't you think, for a recapitulation of occurrences of which we may be able to base our expectations for the trends of 1934?

"For instance, I think the biggest and most significant development last year was an expedient that preserved the nation's morale in its worst crisis. I refer to the President's generous use of radio for his Family Fireside talks. I noted, too, and I guess you did, that the comedy cycle began to wane in the latter part of the year, with glit clubs supplementing the dance orchestras making the highest bid for popularity.

"I don't think much of the trend toward symphony and commercialized opera, but maybe I'm wrong. If so, I'm glad, for it shows an improvement in the public taste and a great deal of courage on the part of sponsors willing to take a chance with the opere and the Stokowski stuff.

"Another thing, though it was actually born two years ago, was the refinement during 1933 of the variety show, as exemplified by Rudy Vallee's weekly entertainment. That is real theater, and will, doubtless survive and improve in 1934. I regret to note, however, that nothing was done toward making any definite improvement to the drama. Let's hope they take that up in the New Year.

"And for heaven's sake, why doesn't somebody write something new in classic or semi-classic music. More power to Paul Whiteman for trying to encourage it.

"George Esty, Philadelphia, Pa."

Ah Me, Ah Me!

"Dear Sir:
"When I read the Radio Guide last week, I couldn't believe my eyes. I have followed your scribbles for several years in various places, and always I have had the impression that you delighted in negating everything on the air. I followed your stuff because, unfortunately, you were usually right although there were many occasions when you could have been kinder and pulled your punches. However, I like sincerity and I believe you were sincere about it all. I have heard that you got into hot water too, on occasions, which convinces me that you were really trying to help radio in an indirect way. Well, so help me, when I read your eloquent defense of radio against the sly thrusts of your journalistic confrere, Gilbert Seides, I began to wonder whether you had gone to the mission and reformed, taken the pledge, and otherwise turned over a new leaf. It was a relief to see you shouting from the positive side of the fence. I feel a lot more respect for the business now.

"Helen Crawford, Hyattsville, Md."

(Dear Helen: Who gives you all the inside information?)

Gyp Talent Bureaus

"Dear Mr. Porter:
"Why don't the radio studios, in their charity toward mankind, or why don't you, if they won't, begin a crusade of exposure of those gyp joints which advertise and claim they can put you on the radio, get you a sponsor, or teach you to speak or sing or act?

"All they do is flatter you, pretend to begin a course in training, take your money and give you the old line until you are broke or disgusted. Why don't you do everything you can to warn suckers away from these places? Tell the public that the only way to get on the air is to possess exceptional talent; prove it, and get a manager, and deal with established agencies.

"You know as well as I that you can't get into radio through the network studios, and you know, too, that you can't get anywhere working for coffee and cake on the small independent stations—they can't get anywhere themselves.

"Disappointed"

Staten Island, N. Y."

(Note to disappointed: Some of these places are gyms. Some exist for polishing up talent already established. Some are racketeers. As for getting into radio through the studios, you are right, but many radio artists have climbed to fame by way of the smaller stations, though I will admit, it is a rocky road.)

For Irene Taylor

"Dear Mike:
"I am an admirer of Irene Taylor. When she first came East the columnists and commentators raved about her. Then when she left Whiteman she was out of the picture, only for the reason that the Whiteman band was idle at the moment. She went on a WOR beer program, and not one of you fellows gave her a tumble. Then the Camel people grabbed her, and because she and the Casa Loma Band never had worked together, the program wasn't as smooth at first, as it should have been.

"Then all you guys penned it, and you nearly broke the gal's heart. You know and I know she is a swell artist. Why don't you do her the justice of listening in now, and giving her credit for overcoming the technical difficulties, and lending real glamour to the show?"

"Albert J. T., Paterson, N. J."

(You know me, Al. Irene is O. K. and I hope they keep her on the bill indefinitely.)

Here's A New Slant

"Dear Martin:
"I have read quite a lot lately about the controversy concerning studio audiences. If my memory serves me, you have consistently crusaded against them on the theory that they cause resentment among the outside listeners. I see Cantor is making the same claim, whether he is sincere about it or not. When you two fellows agree on anything, there must be a catch somewhere.

"Well, I had always held with you, but on mature thought, I am now forced to disagree, because one point against the abolition of studio audiences stands out like a sore thumb. Studio audiences have one very important virtue. They certainly do keep people off the street.

"Jerry Stone, Pittsburgh, Pa."

In Closing

Dear Customers:
I want to thank you all for your kind interest and patronage during 1933; to express my appreciation of your kind letters, and the unkind ones, too. I want also to express the sincere hope that myself and my pals on the GUIDE staff have been able to add to your enjoyment of radio.

To the execs and artists of the radio biz, I want to express my thanks for co-operation in the preparation of material and for the many, many enjoyable programs of 1933.

And finally, while sharing a happy "lister" with Marty Lewis, I want to toast the RADIO GUIDE audience, and wish you all a happy and prosperous New Year!

—MIKE PORTER.

MUSIC IN THE AIR

By Carleton Smith

LAWRENCE GILMAN, whose voice we hear on the Philharmonic-Symphony program each Sunday (CBS-WABC at 3 p. m. EST.), is perhaps the most imaginative of music commentators. In addition to his erudition, Mr. Gilman brings a sympathetic and mature reflection to the elusive art he serves. We listen to him for information and impressions that help us in hearing the compositions played.

We want verbal expressions of dignity and value comparable to the performances of our most distinguished musical organization. It is particularly fortunate that Mr. Gilman has been chosen to speak to the music-lovers of North America on these occasions. For he comments with detachment and polish, in words distinctly superior in quality and in purpose; and with an eloquence that is certain to attract even those whose musical knowledge is not large enough to appreciate the subtlest import of his finely discriminated opinion.

Only one other music writer in the English language equals Mr. Gilman in the quantity of assumptions he can take for granted about music, and no other equals him in the distance he travels in understanding music beyond the assumptions, canons, methods and traditions that he puts behind him as his starting point. Through his devotion to intellectual and aesthetic essentials, shines an originality and an elegance in stating distinctions, that give his comments their especial value.

He is a poet whose imaginative soul is reaching out for something that music can give him. He returns this to us with all the intelligence and discrimination and eloquence of which he is capable. Thus he becomes a source of inspiration to all other listeners.

Because of his gifts in expressing the message music holds for him, he is able to connect, as he believes all critics should, "the single composition, the single art, with life, intermeshing it with all life's veins and arteries." That it may be thus intermeshed is the raison d'être of art.

Prodigies

Girl prodigies are having their day at the piano. Poldi Mildner, Austrian virtuoso, not yet eighteen, plays the Liszt E flat major piano concerto with the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Sunday. Several weeks ago Ruth Slenczynski, aged eight, played Chopin's "Winterwind" Etude with Rudy Vallee, and sub-titled it "The Battle of Bunker Hill."

Poldi Mildner — Poldi, short for Leopoldine—hails from Vienna. She has given concerts all over Europe since she was eleven, and last season came to America. The immigration men, always suspicious of encroaching genius, asked her to play for them. After taking her to Ellis Island, they decided in the affirmative and the little Alaodchen was allowed to land.

About the time she was getting accustomed to American skyscrapers and distances, she was whisked off to Europe to give thirty recitals in the Spring. And now she's back again to the land where hotel visitors, as she says, "keep their shoes under the bed instead of putting them in the halls."

Hans Lange will conduct, on the same broadcast (CBS-WABC at 3 p. m. EST Sunday) Philip Emmanuel Bach's Third Symphonia for 4 part String Orchestra and Cembali; an English Vaughan-Williams "Pastoral" Symphony (with Margaret Olson singing the soprano part backstage); and Dohnany's "Suite for Orchestra."

Other Programs

A special symphony concert of compositions of the Tcherépnines, father and son, will be broadcast by the NBC Symphony Orchestra, Frank Black conducting, on Friday December 29 (NBC-WJAF-WJZ at 11 a. m. EST) with the son as solo pianist. The program will include "Festmusik," a suite from the young composer's opera "Die Hochzeit der Sobeide"; "Esquisse," a suite in eight movements, by the elder Tcherépnine; the son's orchestral tone poem, "Magna Mater"; and an interview by William Lundell.

Richard Crooks returns to the Firestone Hour Monday (NBC-WJAF at 8:30 p. m. EST) to sing "All Through the Night," "The Rosary," "Just to Linger in Your Arms," and the lovely tenor recitative and Romanza from the new opera the Metropolitan is reviving for him and Lily Pons—Donizetti's "Linda di Chamounix."

The Cadillac broadcast (NBC-WJZ, Sunday at 6 p. m. EST) would suit me better if the programs were arranged with more discerning taste. A potpourri is not always the most desirable diet. It would have been better, perhaps to cast Ame. Kellberg or Ame. Lebnann with Artur Bodanzky and Rosa Ponselle with Tullio Serafin, for instance. Not that Mr. Bodanzky's style and Miss Ponselle's preferences are incompatible, but it would be an arrangement to permit a display of the best efforts of all participants in an organic whole.

As with Nino Martini, radio has proved a stepping stone into grand opera for an ambitious young singer. Norman Cordon, NBC bass, who has appeared on many programs originating in the NBC studios in Chicago the past year, has appeared with the Opera Intime productions and on December 26 began an opera engagement in the role of Angelotti in the Chicago Grand Opera Company's presentation of "La Tosca."

Mr. Cordon will continue his song recitals (NBC-WJAF, 11:15 p. m. EST) on Thursday evenings.

PLUMS AND PRUNES

By Evans Plummer

HENRY BUSSE AND OOT-K-AND M
Maestro Busse has a grand piano load of lovely harmony in Dot-K-and M (boy, can these gal trios pick odd billings!) which is yours for the tuning Fridays at 12:30 a. m. EST and Sundays at 12 midnight over the CBS-WABC network.

What could be sadder than a little child passing away on Christmas Eve? Yet that is the cross the Genial First Nighter, Charles P. Hughes, had to bear when his young nephew, Stephen, son of Charles' sister Rosemary, died of a heart attack. Millions of fans will join this column, we are sure, in expressing heartfelt sympathies to the bereaved.

EDDIE CANTOR, who was crucified somewhat by this pillar during the closing months of his 1932-33 season, has returned to the air this winter a changed comedian.

The change has been for the good. Instead of making the show one continuous pan of *Rubino*ff or repetition of old gags, Eddie has shown the good taste to rebuild upon a firm foundation of situation humor. In this he has been well advised. He can't do better than emulate Fred Allen, Jack Benny and the air pioneers of this long-wearing form of wit—good old Amos 'n' Andy.

The sponsors of the coffee program, however, like many other unsmart advertisers, continue to insult the invisible and unseeing audience by studio applause—and prolonged applause at that.

We wonder how long it will be before the creative brains behind mammoth network production get hep to themselves and learn that studio applause, coaxed by announcers' signals, generated by visual antics of the performers or enticed by a sense of obligation for free passes to the studios, is not only a false measure of success but an irritant to the millions at the dials? . . . And advertisers pay high-powered advertising men big money for such bad ideas!

We have been charged with bearing down on Eddie without just cause. We never bear down without cause, and you'll note the process brought one reform, didn't it? And so far as Mr. Cantor's racial antecedents are concerned, they have not been an influential factor (as hundreds of fan letters have charged). Such an idea is preposterous.

Our feeling toward Eddie has been one of a clash of egos. His tenor voice, coupled with an ever-superior manner, annoyed us no end. The bum gags and endless *Rubino*ff raspberries completed our indictment of the much-discussed comedian.

This year, try as we have to hate Mr. Cantor's show, we find he has won us over. If Eddie's sponsors will kindly throw their applause into the alley, and if Eddie more frequently will be the butt of a joke instead of the wise guy, we are sure that Mr. Cantor will rate right along with our favorite top comedians and be in line for a trainload of plums.

While we are on the subject of comedians, did you read the Radio Guide Better Radio Contest report on Fire Chief Ed Wynn? It looked like another Amalgated bust . . . Jack Pearl should also begin thinking up some new ideas. The Baron, despite the fact that we think Mr. Pearl is one grand fellow personally, is beginning to make us yawn instead of chuckle . . . And Mr. Joe Penner, step forward and receive your plums. You can sell us a duck any old time . . . ditto Mr. Jack Benny.

A Holiday Thought

FROM COPENHAGEN, DENMARK, and Chicago, Illinois, comes this tale of international fellowship and strengthened family ties, brought about by an overseas relay from the Danish shores.

The relay was by the CBS network. The scene opened with a Wilmette, Ill., family tuning in the program from Denmark over CBS station WIND at Gary, Ind. While listening, the family's telephone rang. It was a relative in Copenhagen calling and telling the Wilmette family to listen to the Danish rebroadcast.

The midwesterner, thrilled by the radio and telephonic reunion, wrote to WIND:

"We thought you might like to know just how two families enjoyed your broadcast, and, at the same time, if others knew of this, maybe they might think and call their relatives across the Atlantic during some of the holiday rebroadcast from over there. Even though it is expensive, it is worth-while."

The telephone toll charge between Denmark and Wilmette, Ill., amounts to $36 for the first three minutes.

Inside Pickups

DON'T BE SURPRISED if the New York Stock Exchange should go on the air to advertise Wall Street. Things have not been going so well in those parts, it seems. Come on, sucker! . . . Jack Benny's sponsor trouble was over a new exec of the motor car concern who thought Chevvy's should be sold entirely by music. All right, Mr. Exec, you take Benny and Mary away, and we'll cast our vote for slivers! . . . The reason Vic and Sade lost their sponsor is pathetic. It seems that every dollar's worth of the product they sold meant a loss to their sponsor, for the firm had certain outstanding contracts which NRA came along and made unprofitable . . . The more Vic and Sade sold, the bigger their sponsor's loss. They were selling plenty, so to cut the loss, Vic and Sade were dropped! Doesn't someone need a plumbful act that can move merchandise?

HAL TOTTEN, THE BALLCASTER, is in training now to announce the spaghetti eating championship match of the century between Tony Carlo (of the Tony and Joe team) and NBC's Tony (Chester Gruber) Cabooch. Mr. Totten has a novel training routine. Each day he inhales garlic—an ounce more daily. But Tot has another worry. Cabooch insists that Carlo must permit him to suck in his Italian noodles and clip off the loose ends with scissors, while Carlo is equally insistent that Cabooch be limited to the Mussolini approved fork-twirling plan . . . Most extraordinary is the result of a survey by CBS to determine from their artists who their favorite air personalities are. Fifteen CBS stars were named; and five stars from the rival network! Now let's see how a similar NBC survey will stack up . . . Singin' Sam, whom we were told would take a rest, was working again—this time Christmas Eve on the NBC-WJZ network silk program. How come? . . . And likewise how come Lulu McCannell wasn't on the last (Dec. 18) Big Show? We want Lulu.

Business is Jake

January 7 brings you a Sun matinee performance of the Princess Pat romance dramas, NBC-WJZ and 13 more stations. Same date ushers in Hind's "Hall of Fame," concert orchestra and stars from stage, screen and opera, with Katharine Hepburn first to bow; time, 9:30 p. m. CST over NBC-WEAF and 43 more stations.

Renewals include sponsors of Leo Reisman-Pat Ducey; the Troubadours with Fronk Black's music and guests; the Harold Sanford-Muriel Wilson-John Herrick combo; the Benny-Livingstone-Parker-Black setup and Vee Lawnhurst and Johnny Seagle.

Pruner-In Report No. 2

"JUST WONDERING: Why Lady Esther gives us Wayne King's restful music and spoils it all by the kind of advertising we must jump up to tune out.

"Why none of the Chicago stations carry George M. Cohan's programs.

"How it happens that Ben Bernie hasn't played 'You're My Pabst, Present and Future'?

"If the item which appeared in the local rag's radio column is true—that the Old

THE YEAR 1933 has been a distinctive one in the orchestral world. The limelight of publicity has shifted even more than usual; 1934 will find several newcomers in the big time and many more of the old favorites already forgotten. Attendant on the return of hard liquor, even the tempo of dance music has undergone a transition. And good times, back again in spite of pessimistic views, have opened many spots dark in 1933, and paved the way for the return of real artistry in the way of floor shows.

MOST SPECTACULAR of those who rose to prominence this year was undoubtedly Carlos Molina, the South American maestro. He was completely unheard of just a year ago, made his bow to Chicago and the midwest at the Dells roadhouse last June, and jumped to prominence from the Joseph Urban room of the Congress hotel. Frequent NBC chains have helped spread the renown of his tango-rumba music throughout the country.

SEYMOUR SIMONS, the wise-cracking Detroitier is another who is at the top of a spectacular climb. Simons' commercial program was only a two-time shot over Columbia, but he has made his mark as a composer, arranger, and leader. Glen Gray, known because of personal appearances only, joined the ranks of radio greats with many Columbia sustainings and a sponsored program over the same network. Reggie Childs and Dick Humber have shown Manhattan that years of obscurity are not essential to success in the same field.

RETURNING AGAIN to the orchestral field, Buddy Rogers has established himself definitely in this work. Phil Harris

CLYDE LUCAS whose syncopation is on the ascendancy, returns to the Chicago Terrace Gardens with KYW and NBC network wires bringing you his music.

invaded the east, and, after apparent defeat in New York, is going back with undiminished vigor. Old-timers Paul Ash and Ace Brigode rose again to the top, with new bands, new rhythms, and new fans. From Denver, agents promise that we will hear even more of Carol Lajner.

PAUL WHITEMAN and his orchestra a long string of entertainers move into the Hotel Biltmore on January 4 with an NBC wire . . . And on January 25 Buddy Rogers comes back to town and goes into the Paradise Restaurant spot. There are fifteen vocalists, a new all-time high, on that Paul Whiteman commercial, including the Rhythm Boys and Girls, Jack Fulton, Ramona, Peggy Healy, Bob Lawrence, Jack Teagarden and a male quartet.

CHIEF AMONG THE festivities to be aired New Year's Eve will be Columbia's dancing party, lasting from 11 p. m. to 4 a. m. EST. The advent of the year will be celebrated from New York to Honolulu, and the major orchestras of the network will be heard on the five-hour party.

NEW YEAR'S EVE will find Carl Moore opening the Rice hotel, Houston, Texas, for his first spot for quite a while. The myriad fans whom the hog calling Deacon has gained in the Midwest will be disappointed because of the absence of a pickup from this hostelry. Johnny Hamp, however, is aired by KPRC from his stand in Galveston, the Hollywood club. Other new maestros for the Southwest contingent of dancers include Eddie Niebauer in the Loma Linda, Houston, Don Carlos at the Skirvin hotel, Oklahoma City, and Glenn Lee.

RALPH BENNETT has migrated to Detroit and the Book-Cadillac hotel, with WJR broadcasts. Bennett replaces Seymour Simons, now on the road.

advisers opposed the broadcast plan bitterly. They objected to the expense. They objected to the "lack of dignity."

"Faith," replied Father Coughlin to all these objections, "cometh through hearing."

He sought out Leo Fitzpatrick, owner of station WJR, Detroit, and laid the project before him. That visit was the beginning of a friendship which has grown stronger and stronger through years and into it no note of commercialism has ever entered.

On the third Sunday in October, 1926, the first broadcast was made from the Shrine. In spite of efforts of his friends to dissuade him from continuing his broadcasts, WJR carried Father Coughlin's voice to its listeners for one hundred fifty-six successive weeks.

Father Coughlin, in his wildest dreams, could not have anticipated the response. Letters swamped the station and, before any move had been made to carry Father Coughlin's voice over the transmitters of more than one station, twenty girls had to be employed to handle the mail.

In 1927, newspapers sent photographers to take pictures of the letters received in response to one of Father Coughlin's broadcasts. The total had reached the then amazing total of 3,000. Recently, more than a million letters were received in response to a single address!

Father Coughlin's broadcasts over WJR by 1929 had attracted wide attention and stations WMAQ, Chicago, and WLW, Cincinnati, were added as outlets. Then, in 1930, the Columbia Broadcasting System coast-to-coast network began to carry the Coughlin addresses. When the CBS arrangement was terminated as the result of an incident, to be recounted later, Fitzpatrick organized the present independent network over which Father Coughlin is now heard. There have been several additions to the original net and the listening audience now reached is estimated at more than thirty millions.

The expense of broadcasts is defrayed from contributions received. Full commercial rates are paid to the stations for the time and to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company for the lines. These activities are carried on by the Radio League of the Little Flower, an expansion of the original League of the Little Flower.

(Next week's concluding installment of the Life Story of Father Coughlin recounts his tilt with Dr. Clarence True Wilson, the Prohibition leader; the incident of the suppressed broadcast and various attempts that have been made to muzzle the Fighting Priest.)

has been off the presses only about three weeks, it has already run into its third edition. A fourth edition, a deluxe autographed volume, is also selling fast.

The Poet Prince, Anthony Frome, adds to his daily spots with Sunday morning from 11:30 to 11:45 a. m., EST, on the NBC-WJZ network starting immediately. . . . The new broadcasting schedule for the Pickens Sisters is Wednesdays at 11:00 p. m. EST over the NBC-WJZ network. . . . On Thursdays and Saturday nights at 7:30 p. m., Eddie Duchin will make music from the swanky Central Park Casino for the listeners who are tuned in on the NBC-WJZ network—Amos 'n' Andy's sponsors will pay the hills.

Autograph Collector

The burglar who got into Orrell Hancock's cellar and rifled a trunk must have been a radio fan. . . . "Hank," who has been a CBS production man for several years, had built up a collection of photographs of several hundred of radio's who's who, and other who's whoers who have broadcast over CBS, personally autographed to him. . . . And the collection, which he prized, was all that the burglar took. Vacation-time travelers to the Pacific true sense of the word. He sang his way through the far reaches of his country picking up the tuneless songs of the troubadours and the folk numbers that were deep-rooted in Chilean musical lore.

Hampered by want of an outlet for his new repertoire, he determined to come to the United States. His road was none too smooth until the fortunate day when Conrad heard him in California and decided that the young Chilean was a coming star. Incidentally, Campo marked a turning point in Conrad's career.

Con's experience as a manager of male singers had been with the rival crooners, Bing Crosby and Russ Columbia, but here was a voice that was different. It had a quality so appealing that Conrad quickly decided to take its owner under his wing. He promptly carried Dell Campo off to New York and the home of the great radio chains.

Conrad's faith had an early reward as two or three auditions set up a competition which made it obvious that Campo would not have to hunger for employment. It was a matter of selling his find to the highest bidder and CBS was the winner.

coast include Ralph Wonders, CBS artist bureau head, the singing ex-cop, Phil Regan, and Ted Husing. Columbia isn't broadcasting the Rose Bowl game because too many commercial programs fill the time, but Ted waits to watch the fracas, anyway. It would hardly be a surprise if Wonders returned with some new stars to build up and Regan with a contract for the flickers.

Pat Davis, saxophone and clarinet virtuoso of the Casa Loma Orchestra, is the lad who gets the most attention from his fellow bandmen. It's not because he's such an outstanding instrumentalist that he's such a favorite with the boys, but because he happens to be the treasurer of the Casa Loma Corporation and thus controls the purse-strings.

CBS Plays Santa

The Christmas spirit was not lacking at CBS. . . . Shortly before the holiday, Columbia employees were notified that the remainder of the pay cut brought last year by the depression would be restored January 1. . . . Just after that came an announcement that Columbia had taken over for Christmas Day the restaurant in the CBS Building, with a dinner invitation for all employees who had to be on duty Christmas Day.

Who's Afraid of Cantor and Wynn? "An Evening in Paris" was the first sponsor to take a CBS niche opposite the goggle-eyed comic, and so successful has their test period been that they've just signed a long-term renewal. . . . And Ford Motors, when it takes Fred Waring and his troupe over, will occupy the following thirty minutes, also opposite Cantor. As for Wynn, he will find new opposition in Columbia's Georgie Jessel, who will fill the CBS 9:30 to 10 spot on Tuesdays starting January 2.

Here's another silly game with radio artists' names. After that Christmas dinner I felt like the Big Bad Wolf, after he had devoured the Three Little Pigs and Red Riding Hood at one fell swoop, and I'm afraid it must have been a nightmare, because I was tripping down radio row with the Mystery Chef and the Happy Bakers and I saw recipe book personalities as Buck Rogers, Les Quailie, Robert Trout, Stephen Fox, Bunny Coughlin of the Funnyboners, Admiral Byrd, Bill and Ginger, Nino Martini, Gladys Rice, Ann (March of Time) Barley, Alfred (Little Italy) Corn, Husk O'Hare, and Irvin Cobb, maestro Frank Winegar, (or Winegar for my salad), Ethel Waters, Isham Jones, Frank Crumit, and the Four Eton Boys. . . . It might have been worse—they could have served me Apple (Bob) Taplinger Pudding.

Campo is now heard twice a week over stations of the junior network.

of the showmanship business on the air waves. Joe Penner, familiar to stage audiences, went aboard the air ship with Rudy, tried to sell his ducks to the invisible audience and was ordered back for continual performances. These are the names that intrigue the radio whisperers who know that Rudy Vallee's program over NBC is one of the surest proving grounds—or surest microphones, if we must revise the language to suit the occasion and the times—for new talent, which must continually be produced for this fast growing radio business. And furthermore, the wise lads in the street are wise enough to eat their earlier words about "Vallee's streak of luck." It wasn't luck that moved Rudy along the path to success. It was Vallee's sure sense of radio showmanship, the same showmanship that is bringing the smart folk to the obvious conclusion that this thirty-two-year-old fellow is the Flo Ziegfield on the air pathways. Among the artists who were already outstanding when Rudy lured them to his microphone have been: Marie Dressler, Jimmy Durante, Helen Hayes, Schumann-Heink, Nancy Carroll, Cab Calloway, Joan Blondell, Dorothy Gish, Fred Astaire, Ethel Barrymore, Robert Montgomery, Katharine Hepburn, Adolphe Menjou, Helen Morgan and many others.

Maestro's much publicized cigars are now denicotined by doctor's order?
"Why all I could think of during the talk by the Governor of Minnesota that recent Friday night, was how disastrous yet mirthquakingly funny it would have been had Beetle mixed his cues and started haunting his honor?
"If you are terribly highhat these days? After all, it isn't every columnist who has a whole week dedicated to him—or hadn't you heard about National Cheese Week?
—THE HOOSIER PRUNER"

(Shhhh! Personal to Hoosier Pruner: That wasn't our week—that was dedicated to the Gov himself, and, oh yes, to good old Doc Lee.)

A Few Pet Peeves

FOR INSTANCE, THERE'S that food products concern in Chicago that staged auditions for seven weeks "searching" for a voice to take Little Jackie Heller's place, and then, after picking Jack Owens, a very plumpful lad, gave him but six weeks of work! . . . Peeve two is that of big Windy City ad agency that found a certain local station (must we name names to force reforms?) overcharging them some two hundred dollars weekly for talent and a nonexistent "special production man"—after said station had chiseled the talent down to coffee and cakes with promises of glowing futures, "playing along" etc. Oh NRA, where is thy stinger? . . . Peeve three: That of the client, sold on radio by an Italian baritone who was replaced without notice to client by a staff tenor with the usual "staff" drawback—that of being on every program in sight.

And finally, that peeve which wrinkles handsome Phil Harris' brow when the radiant Leah Ray refers to him as "Skippy Pants!"

And here's hoping you all deserve and are awarded plums in 1934!

ATTENTION: FAN CLUBS

Letters and requests for a presentation of facts about fan clubs continue to pour into RADIO GUIDE. These communications are so insistent that RADIO GUIDE has been prompted to organize a survey of the field with a view, first, to exposure of any improper activities that may be current and, second, to the establishment of a department for fan clubs.

Presidents of fan clubs which are being operated legitimately as an outlet for enthusiasm over a particular artist are invited to fill out the coupon-questionnaire printed herewith and mail it to Radio Fan Club Editor, RADIO GUIDE, 423 Plymouth Court, Chicago. Those clubs which qualify will be eligible to submit news and notices for inclusion in the new department if and when it is instituted.

Radio Fan Club Questionnaire

Radio Fan Club Editor, RADIO GUIDE, 423 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill.

On behalf of the _____ Fan Club, I submit the following information, for the purpose of obtaining the right to participate in the Radio Fan Club department of RADIO GUIDE:

- 1. Is your club recognized by the artist to whom its activities are dedicated?
2. How many members has your club?
3. Do you collect dues in any form?
4. Do you sell photographs, subscriptions to a club publication or solicit money from members for any purpose?
5. Give a brief summary of your club's history and activities.
6. List the names and addresses of your officers.

Will you furnish, upon request, a mailing list of your membership so that we may notify your members of this new department in RADIO GUIDE?

Your name and title _____

Name of club _____

Your address _____

Address of club headquarters if it differs from your own _____

HELP IMPROVE RADIO PROGRAMS

RADIO GUIDE wants the honest opinions of listeners everywhere about the entertainment value of important sponsored programs on the networks. Fan mail is an uncertain guide because, with few exceptions, the people who do not like a program do not write to the sponsors or the stations. The sponsors and the broadcasting companies are doing their best to give you the kind of programs that you want but, in many cases, they are shooting in the dark because they do not know what you prefer in the way of entertainment.

RADIO GUIDE is now carrying on a campaign to improve radio programs by obtaining first-hand information for sponsors about your reactions to their presentations. You have a very definite opinion about every programs to which you listen regularly. You have expressed it many times to your own family and friends. But the editors of RADIO GUIDE cannot meet you in your living room and talk it over with you. They must depend upon you to sit down and write your honest opinion about a certain sponsored network program each week — why you like or dislike it and your suggestion for improving its entertainment value.

Each week, RADIO GUIDE will select a sponsored network program upon which you will be asked to comment. In an adjoining column you will find the rules of the contest and a summary of the prizes which you can win.

Remember, literary ability will not influence the decisions of the editors, who will act as judges in the contest. Not the manner in which you express yourself but the value of your ideas is the important thing. Tell your friends to enter the contest, too.

This Week:
TELL US WHETHER YOU LIKE OR DISLIKE THIS PROGRAM AND WHY Chevrolet Program with Jack Benny, Mary Livingstone, Frank Parker, and Frank Black's Orchestra; broadcast Sundays at 10 p. m. EST, 9 p. m. CST, over NBC-WEAF network.
