CHOOSING RADIO SONG HITS OF THE WEEK

WHITEMAN'S REQUIEM FOR JAZZ

By Paul Whiteman

THE demise of the melange of cacophony which was heralded as jazz has been prefaced for many years now by the rumblings of a nation writhing under discordant noises falsely labelled "melody." Jazz is rhythm, but it is rhythm in its wildest form, more suitable to savage dancing than to the sophisticated stepping of today. It was because of my belief in the future of American music that ten years ago I gave my first concert in Carnegie Hall.

I was looking for something new in syncopation; something that might be termed representative of this nation in music. I found it, I believe, in "Rhapsody in Blue," which I introduced then, and which has been regarded since as the basis of the still embryonic pattern known as American music.

Just as America itself is not a nation, but all nations; just as its people represent a potpourri of all people of the entire globe, so will its music be a medley of a thousand foreign ideas, made coherent by envisionment and the influences of today.

Since the introduction of "Rhapsody in Blue," each composition in the modern or ultra-modern idiom which has come to my attention has possessed that harmonic conglomeration significant of no one nation, but reminiscent of all.

Melody and harmony took their places as prime requisites of music in the last few years. Instead of weird solo passages done with shrieking clarinets or high pitched trumpets, there is now a well rounded blending of instrumental passages; syncopated arrangements that supplement and do not supplant the melody, and thrill the finer senses, rather than awaken the baser ones. Gradually this evolution in popular music has taken form in the past decade.

For the future, I believe there will be a consistent improvement in presenting dance music. Now a composition that is danceable is only light entertainment to the ears. Aural pleasure will be catered to, I think, every hit as much as pedal inspiration.

When the two can be combined, then will we have the ultimate in popular music, and it is toward that combination that we are gradually yet unmistakably heading.

The trend has been definitely toward songs that tell a complete story rather than those that just carry a thought or describe a setting. Novelty, though, has its place in the lineup for tomorrow, as novelty always has had and always will have by the very nature of itself.

Thus, along with "story songs" like "Annie Doesn't Live Here Anymore," "The Last Roundup," "Lazy Bones," "Stormy Weather," and "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking," there will always be room for a "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf."

Shinning Family Trees for Stars

YOU can't climb a family tree, you know. You have to shin down from the top to the bottom and even dig around a little to find the roots and identify them. Radio Guide performs this little service for you here, so far as the family trees of a number of your favorite radio stars are concerned. Not a Mayflower passenger is to be found in the list of ancestors but some of these progenitors of kilocycle favorites were quite important in their day.

Albert Spalding, the violin virtuoso, is a direct descendant of General Simon Spalding, an officer in the Revolutionary War. William Lyon Phelps' Revolutionary War ancestor was Colonel William Lyon. General Robert E. Lee was one of Mildred Bailey's ancestors.

Colonel Stoopnagle's family tree includes Salmon P. Chase, Secretary of War in Lincoln's cabinet and George Washington's mother is listed among the ancestors of Budd.

Don Ross is a descendant of Betsy Ross, who designed the American flag and also of Rob Roy, the great Scottish chieftain. Smiling Ed McConnell traces his ancestry to Captain John Smith. Edwin C. Hill is a descendant of Sir John Russell, speaker of the English House of Commons in 1424. H. V. Kaltenborn is a nephew of von Kaltenborn-Stachan, former German Minister of War. Boake Carter is a grand-nephew of Sir George Kelner, financial adviser to Queen Victoria.

George Jessel admits being a nephew of Sir George Jessel, Chief Justice of Great Britain during the reign of Queen Victoria. Milton Watson's grandfather was the first sheriff of Monterey County, Calif.

LANNY ROSS and his shovel

Lanny as an 'Orphan of the Storm'

LANNY ROSS, the "Show Boat" tenor who is now in Hollywood to make a picture for Paramount, turned snow shoveler for nearly an hour during that ten-inch snowfall that tied New York traffic in a knot a few weeks ago. While he was at work, Radio Guide's enterprising cameraman happened along and that is why you have the privilege of seeing on this page the only picture ever taken of radio's romantic tenor in the guise of a shovel wielder.

Lanny was late for rehearsal when he drove up on the Forty-Ninth Street side of Rockefeller Center and parked his car that day. A traffic cop promptly notified him that he couldn't park there. When he tried to move the car in accordance with this edict, the fun began. He discovered that he was stuck in a snowdrift so tightly that all the horsepower at his command was not enough to budge the car an inch.

While the cop looked on, he borrowed a shovel from the foreman of a gang of C.W.A. street cleaners and went to work. Friends and back slappers going to and from the studios waved at him and laughed but nobody volunteered to help him with his snow shoveling. After about forty-five minutes of intensive labor, he succeeded in clearing away enough snow so that he could move the car.

"ALL THINGS TO ALL MEN" IS HI BROWN

MEESTER BROWN," pleaded the Italian janitor of Himan Brown's apartment house, "how you happen to get Enrico Sotti on your program last night?"

"And who," asked Mr. Brown in genuine bewilderment, "is Enrico Sotti?"

"Why, Meester Sotti my brother's factory foreman," replied Himan's puzzled janitor. "I know heem years. For last two weeks I hear heem on 'Leetle Italy' program as Papa Marino."

And that according to Himan Brown, is the sincerest compliment he ever received. Mr. Sotti, as you may have guessed, was not on the program—but Mr. Brown, as Papa Marino, was and he had studied his neighbors' Italian dialect so faithfully that, ever since he launched "Little Italy" on the airwaves, Himan's neighbors have been trying to identify the members of the Marino family as actual neighborhood celebrities.

At twenty-six years of age "Hi" Brown is radio's youngest actor-author-producer-director-salesman and one of the most versatile young men in this weird wonderland of strident studios and shifting stars. Here is a young man, trained for the law, who writes his own scripts, plans their exploitations, sells them (the biggest job of all, he'll tell you), picks his cast, directs the show, often portrays the leading character, and carries on simultaneously the planning, writing, rehearsing and selling of several other shows.

At the age of twenty, "Hi" Brown was one of the first youngsters in radio to recognize the possibilities of the dialect program. Acting on a hunch he sought an introduction to Milt Gross, and a little later found himself acting opposite Fannie Brice in Columbia's presentation of "Cross" (Continued on Page 17)

PICKING THE WEEK'S MOST POPULAR SONGS ON THE AIR

NOTHING engages the attention of radio fans more firmly than the fluctuations of popularity of current song hits. At times, a song will be at the end of the popularity list one week and then dropped out of the top ten the following week. At other times, a real hit comes along that holds its position at the head of the list for weeks and weeks.

There are certain yardsticks by which the standing of the current hits may be measured and Radio Guide has arranged to publish each week two tabulations which will cover this field thoroughly.

One of these indices to popularity—perhaps the most dependable—is the tabulation showing the number of times each of the ten most popular songs is played over the two networks during the week. The other is a table based on the top five choices of the leading orchestra leaders each week.

In the tabulation covering the choices of the orchiestra leaders, a first choice counts for five points, a second for four, a third for three, a fourth for two and a fifth for one.

Following the table below are the tabulations of the individual orchestra leaders' selections:

TEN SONGS PLAYED MOST OFTEN ON THE NETWORKS DURING THE WEEK

Song	Times Played
"Everything I Have Is Yours"	23
"Alice in Wonderland"	15
"One Minute to One"	15
"Old Spinning Wheel"	13
"Did You Ever See a Dream Walking"	11
"Sweet Madness"	11
"You've Taken My Heart"	11
"Don't You Remember"	11

BEHIND THE SCENES WITH THE GOLDBERGS

the morning to the time they brush their teeth at night. I know if they've slept well or badly, and what they dreamed about. I know the kind of huttons Mollie likes on her coat, and what size collar Jake wears; where Sammy parts his hair, and what kind of candy gives Rosie a thrill.

I know them so well because I've met them everywhere and they've told me their worries, their sorrows and their joys.

Sometimes it's the worried look on the faces of the Italian fruit-dealer's wife; sometimes it's the extra dab of rouge a little waitress puts on her cheeks when her time's up and she can hurry away; or it's the eager glow in a mother's eyes as her child hurries to her, full of happy news from school.

Ideas! The very air is full of them. Wherever there are families, fathers, mothers, daughters, sons, cousins, friends, relatives,—there's life and action and stories to tell.

Sometimes it's the story of people I've known long and intimately; mostly it's just—anyone, anywhere—who gives me my inspiration.

AFTER all, is there so much difference between one life and another? Don't we all, each in our own way, love and struggle and suffer—try to do more than we can, get in a jam, need help and comfort from those who—at the time—are stronger and happier? And don't those stronger and happier ones have their times of struggle and failure, and have to turn to us for comfort and help?

Life isn't so different, in the main, for the woman in mink and diamonds and the woman in plain cloth coat and thirty-nine-cent costume jewelry. Each of them must make good as a wife and mother, or as a helpful member of the family, if she wants to feel the joy of knowing herself loved and needed.

The same thing goes for the man in the limousine and the man who crates radios at the factory; they've got to make good with their families or they'll never find real happiness anywhere.

I've never heard of a life that was happy all the time, in every way; have you? There's sorrow for everyone on earth. And there's just one way to meet sorrow: with philosophy. That's what the dictionary calls it, but to me it's just plain trying to understand and to see the best in everyone and everything, and then not being ashamed to say out loud what I feel.

The best way to meet everything in life—good luck or bad, friendship or betrayal, kindness or ill-will, is in the spirit of philosophy—never getting so excited that we forget to give the other fellow a chance, and never getting inflated ideas about our own smartness. There's always somebody else who is just as smart. If that's philosophy, you can all help yourselves to some!

I've told you where I find the Goldbergs. I haven't yet told you who they are. They're you—just you—mother and father and sister and brother, wherever you live and whatever you've got or haven't got. They're like a mirror in which I see all of you, and in which you see your own joys and worries reflected.

Just human people—you, and I, and the people next door.

GERTRUDE BERG . . . she finds the "Goldbergs" in all the people she meets . . .

By Gertrude Berg

Creator of the "Goldbergs" and the "Molly" of the Sketch

Where do I get my ideas for their adventures? From the same place where I get the Goldbergs themselves,—that is, from the people I see all around me.

WHO ARE THE GOLDBERGS?

You won't find them listed in the phone-book,—not my family of Goldbergs!

But if the street-fronTS of a thousand apartment-houses suddenly became transparent, you could look in and see thousands of Jakes putting their keys in the hall-door at six o'clock every night; you'd hear thousands of Mollies planning and plotting and "mixing themselves in"—usually with good results to everybody!—you'd hear countless Sammies and Rosies squabbling with each other, though they really love each other very much. Their names might be Weinberg or Kelly or Pasquale or Lundenheimer, but how alike they all are in their hearts!

The Goldbergs really exist!

I've met them at the movies, in the stores, on the subway, at country boarding-houses, skating in the park, shooting the chutes at Coney; I've seen them burning the breakfast toast, rinsing the supper dishes, repainting the furniture, changing the dining-room curtains. And I've seen them—Mollie or Jake or Sammy or Rosie—pale on hospital beds, or worn and weary with disappointment, or shaken with anguish over the loss of someone they loved.

People say to me:

"You seem as if you really know the Goldberg family!"

I do know them,—as well as I know the inside of my own heart!

I know what they're thinking and doing, every minute of the day, from the time the alarm-clock rings in

LORETTA LEE'S LUCKY MINUTE

LORETTA LEE, pretty little blues singer with George Hall's orchestra, owes her start on the CBS network to an accidental audition. She didn't know that she was being given an audition and was on the point of returning to her native New Orleans when the incident occurred.

It had taken a lot of persuading to get her parents to agree to her visiting New York in the first place. She was only nineteen years old and mama and papa didn't care much about having their little girl exposed alone to the pitfalls and temptations of that big, wicked city. But Loretta has persuasive ways and she won their reluctant consent. Shortly after her arrival in New York, she took a job with a firm of music publishers to help pay her expenses.

George Hall and his orchestra have become practically a fixture at the Hotel Taft. George is among the best-liked of the orchestra leaders and he has almost enough personal friends to keep the Taft Grill filled nightly.

It happened that one day he made a business call on the firm of music publishers where Loretta was working. While he was chatting with an official of the company, Loretta was singing a song for a customer. George was looking for a blues singer to round out the vocal talent in his orchestra and he immediately sensed the possibilities of the little Southern girl's voice.

Then and there, he made her an offer and she accepted. A few nights later she became a regular with the orchestra and began broadcasting over the network.

Loretta has a rich, deep contralto voice with a wide range. She puts deep feeling and expression into her interpretations of her numbers and is at her best in those mournful, wailing blues songs that Southerners love.

Expert showmen who have heard her predict a brilliant future for her if she continues to develop her technique as rapidly as she has since she began her work with the Hall orchestra.

George watches over her like a father. Her popularity both with diners at the hotel and with listeners throughout the country has vindicated his judgment of her singing and he is as proud of her accomplishments as if he were really her father.

Coughlin's LAST STAND TRIUMPH

Inside story of further attempts to muzzle and intimidate fighting priest after his blast of last March against Detroit bankers. Attacked by powerful newspaper, his residence bombed sion of them, were not yet public property. In his radio address of March 26th, he opened a violent attack along the entire front, assailing the international bankers on the one hand and the Detroit banking groups on the other with equal vehemence.

"All semblance of honesty and justice had been abandoned by this group," said Father Coughlin, "a group which had dedicated itself to the manipulation of the industrialist's factory, to the confiscation of the farmer's home and to the degradation of the toiler's lot.

"Modern banking had degenerated into a crap game where the dice, too often, were loaded; a crap game played by the unscrupulous expert with other people's money. Sleek haired bandits, attired as slick as an undertaker and wearing a white carnation in their lapels, were officiating at your financial funeral as they ushered you to the wicket for the deposit of

THE epithet "fearless" as applied so frequently to Father Charles E. Coughlin was never so thoroughly earned by the fighting priest as during the turbulent closing days of March, 1933. Those dramatic moments are described by his friends as a "last stand" triumph. On March 26, he launched a violent attack upon bankers in general and upon Detroit bankers in particular, which precipitated an acrimonious controversy with a Detroit newspaper, the bombing of his home and front page publicity in most of the newspapers of the country.

To understand the background of the situation which brought forth Father Coughlin's blast against the banking interests, it is necessary to review the occurrences in Michigan before and after the Federal bank holiday declared by President Roosevelt immediately following inauguration.

The First National Bank and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce, both of Detroit, so dominated the banking situation in Michigan that their condition directly or indirectly affected virtually every banking institution in the state. These banks, official investigations later showed, had been actually insolvent as early as May, 1932, nine months before the Governor of Michigan declared a statewide banking holiday on February 11th, 1933. This action so involved the banking situation in other parts of the country that it is generally believed to have ushered in the condition that brought about President Roosevelt's proclamation of a national banking moratorium less than a month later.

FOLLOWING the proclamation, the new Federal administration went to work on a plan to form a government controlled banking institution to take over the assets of the closed Detroit banks for the purpose of releasing funds in such amounts that the wheels of business could be kept turning. This proposal was bitterly opposed by the bankers themselves, who launched violent attacks upon the plan from every angle. One of their most vigorous allies in the battle was the Detroit Free Press.

The First National Bank of Detroit was controlled by a holding company known as the Detroit Bankers' Company, while the Guardian National Bank of Commerce and a number of branch banks throughout the state were controlled by another holding company called the Guardian Detroit Union Group, Inc.

Father Coughlin, with his usual thoroughness, had ferreted out many facts and had reached many conclusions about the conditions which had brought about the collapse of these great Detroit banks. His facts, wherever and however he might have come into posses-your hard-earned wages—wages to be piled into substantial savings, only to be looted by the oily tongued bond salesman.

"Had you been gifted with prevision, when this salesman had bowed his way from your presence, your money in his wallet and his Wall Street paper in yours—commonly known as Wallpaper—you might have seen the crepe of destruction hanging on your door; you might have heard the winds of wailing poverty whistling through it as your requiem was sounded.

"Did the government of the United States come to your rescue with a warning? Not at all!"

Father Coughlin then shifted his fire to the Detroit banks.

"If the naked truth were known," he declared, "these two banks were not only rotten—they had decayed beyond repair.

TO emphasize this point, let me go on record in stating that even in November, 1932, the banking situation in Detroit had become so decadent and obnoxious, according to national banking examiners, that the great First National Bank of this city, in order to escape having its charter recalled, began to peddle out its bad paper, its bad accounts to its affiliates and trust company, which became nothing more than dumping pots and ashpiles for the refuse created by the management."

FATHER CHARLES E. COUGHLIN

He went on to attack the holding companies with great bitterness, charging that they were organized to "cheat the widow, rob the orphan and to oppress the poor," and that they were created to escape the possibility of double liability in case the banks which they controlled had failed.

It must be remembered that these two great Detroit banks were still closed, that no funds had been released, that the thousands of depositors included many who had not been left even the means of bare subsistence when their savings were tied up. There was much apprehension in some quarters at the time that these desperate people might attempt to take matters into their own hands and create a situation difficult to handle. The greatest apprehension, of course, was felt by the officials of the closed banks.

As a consequence of this broadside, immediate pressure was brought to bear upon Father Coughlin's superior, Bishop Gallagher. Attempts were made to stop the fighting priest's radio attacks, on the grounds that they were inflammatory and might result in outbreaks of violence. Bishop Gallagher, however, refused to interfere.

were among those mentioned, but the answer is Gus Arnheim. Like Hayton, Arnheim is an old friend and associate of Crosby. They worked together at the Coconut Grove, where the movie stars dance, and also on those famous records which brought Bing Crosby to the air. When CBS's President Paley heard the records en route to Europe, he cabled his New York office to sign the singer. The Mills Brothers will remain on the Crosby show until Bing comes east again, probably some time in February.

Westward, ho, again, to comment on still another much discussed question. It has been repeatedly asserted of late that Guy Lombardo's music would leave the Burns and Allen cigar broadcasts in mid-January. However, as it now stands, the Lombardos will continue to be featured on the program indefinitely.

Two more items before we turn our gaze eastward again. First, that if the news wires are not incorrect, Californians far more than paid Ted Husing's fare and expenses on his vacation trip from New York to Pasadena, where he viewed the Rose Bowl game. According to the papers, Husing is said to have won nearly $2,500, as the result of his faith in the underrated Columbia Lions, in return for some $600 wagered at considerable odds. That, we might add, is starting the New Year right. Second, that Dick Barthelmess, who was to appear on Columbia's "California Melodies" last week, was unable to do so because the west coast floods and a washout kept him from reaching Los Angeles in time for the broadcast.

For Film Fans

BACK in Manhattan again, we still find the western influence uppermost, with the news that Borden's Milk is taking to the CBS kilocycles with two new program series. One, to be heard from 8 to 8:45 p. m., EST, on Saturday nights, starting January 27, will be entitled "Forty-Five Minutes in Hollywood." It will originate in New York but will be devoted to the film colony. Episodes from new pictures, music from the new movies, interviews, and film gossip are expected to be the fare. Borden's other show, for housewives, started January 10, a fifteen-minute recipe program at 11:45 a. m. Wednesdays.

By February 13, General Motors will have six shows a week over CBS at 9:15 p. m., EST. On that date, the Oldsmobile programs, on Tuesdays and Fridays, are

THE new Ford program will vie with two outstanding NBC shows. But CBS officials evidently have no doubt of Fred Waring's ability to rally sufficient listeners to compensate for the heavy billing which the flivver manufacturer is going to have to meet for the twice-a-week presentation. The Sunday night program, at 8:30 EST, will conflict with the last half hour of the Eddie Cantor show while arrayed against the 9:30 EST period on Thursday nights will be one of NBC's ace programs, "Show Boat." The popular orchestra leader will have to carry the load single-handed as he is to be pitted as an exclusive feature against a wide variety of talent on the opposing shows. The first Ford program is set for Sunday, February 4.

"Go west, young man, go west," was Horace Greeley's advice. And so we have cocked an ear westward, and not in vain, for all of a sudden the west coast has become important in the radio scene. For instance, there's the news that Ted Fiorito has won the coveted Old Gold assignment and will succeed Fred Waring and his troupe on February 7. This will be the first nationwide commercial to originate in San Francisco. Many orchestras were auditioned for the choice spot, and names under consideration included Phil Spitalny, Buddy Rogers, and Ted Lewis. Fiorito, also a CBS sustaining feature on Saturday night dance broadcasts from the St. Francis Hotel, is said to have a talented gang much on the order of Waring's troupe, and the program will probably be modeled along the same lines as before. They say that Dick Powell and Wheeler and Woolsey auditioned with the Fiorito tribe, but as yet there's no indication that they'll be engaged.

That westward ear rings with another hot item, settling another moot question—who will succeed Lennie Hayton on the Bing Crosby airings from Los Angeles? Raymond Paige, Guy Lombardo, and Fiorito scheduled to start. Already on the air are the Buick shows Mondays and Thursdays and the Pontiac presentations Wednesdays and Saturdays. Johnny Green, the talented young CBS maestro-composer-arranger, who has just returned from Europe, where his new show is a hit, is being considered for the Oldsmobile programs.

The coming of repeal is affecting radio by stimulating hotel business. More hotels are engaging good bands and angling for the trade of the diners, winners, and dancers. For instance, the swank Ambassador on Fifth Avenue, New York, has refurnished its grill and is again on the air over CBS for the first time since boom days with the suave rhythms of Pancho, the Argentine maestro. He replaces Eddie Duchin on the CBS schedule, which recalls the fact that the last time he was on Columbia, he replaced Duchin at the Central Park Casino last summer during the latter's vacation.

After less than a year as dramatic director at CBS, young Marion Parsonnet will leave Columbia in a week or so to become a free lance radio producer. He is responsible for many of that network's innovations and pioneering in dramatic technique for the air, exemplified by the Columbia Dramatic Guild, the Theater of the Air, and the Mystery Guild, among others. As a free-lancer, he will produce "The Big Show" for Ex-Lax, the Drama Guild for CBS, and other shows. Parsonnet will be succeeded at CBS by his present assistant, Courtenay Savage, veteran theatrical writer and director.

Head-nut for Hudnut

THAT new Hudnut show with Jack Whiting, the musical comedy star, Jack Denny's Orchestra and Jeannie Lang, announced here last week, is to start February 9. It will be heard over CBS every Friday from 9:30 to 10. Whiting will be a quadruple-threat man on the program as he will sing, take dramatic parts, supply comedy in blackouts, and be master of ceremonies. And you can expect hot rhythms from a new trio on this program—"The Three Rascals," a new group from California, who have been extremely successful in vaudeville lately, appearing with Jeannie Lang. Nino Martini will travel to Philadelphia on January 16 with the Metropolitan Opera Company, which will give "Rigoletto" there on that date. This opera is the one in which he made his Metropolitan debut a short time ago and was also the vehicle in which he made his first American operatic appearance two years ago in Philadelphia. At that time, singing the role of the Duke with the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company, he received a great ovation. Although encores were forbidden, the precedent had to be broken on that occasion before the opera could proceed.

Bows Out on Boner

LOUIS DEAN, in his last broadcast as a Columbia announcer, pulled the last radio boner of 1933, announcing the coming of 1934 at Times Square. He came panting to the microphone just in time, after a long struggle with the milling Times Square crowds of celebrants. "I've just fought my way here through what seemed like 100,000,000 people," he confided to the radio audience. "I say 100,000,000 people because that's approximately the population of New York, and they all seem to be here." With all the excitement and confusion of the celebrations, such boners were easy to understand, and at least three more of them were chalked up in the first hours of the New Year during Columbia's long cross-country orchestra parade. Ken Roberts gets the credit for the first slip of 1934. When the new year was but forty-five minutes old, he announced a wrong selection. Harry Von Zell was next, a half-hour or so later, when he gave vent to the tongue-twister, "We're trying to kan-tact Kansas City." And then there was Carlyle Stevens announcing Enoch Light's music, around 3 a. m., who admitted that "The New Year is now nearly three years old," when of course he meant three hours.

Eight o'clock Sunday night found me in the second row of the aisle at Radio City as Jimmy Wallington was getting the Cantor Show on its way ... Did you notice too, the absence of (Continued on Page 25)

"The Private Life of Joe Corntassel"

By Allan Baruck

ALLAN BARUCK
... as Joe Corntassel, he whistles and fishes ...

LITTLE did I think that twelve years ago, when my father built one of the first receiving sets with head phones, and radio was still in its infancy, that I would at some time be taking an active part in entertaining millions of children through the medium of this discovery. But here I am, playing Joe Corntassel, and happy to be doing it.

People are always asking me if my daily trips to the studio to play in another of our adventures eventually become monotonous and mechanical. I am glad of the chance to answer this question.

Monotonous? Mechanical? Shucks! That's about as far away from the fact as— well, as far away as it can be.

Gosh, every time I get into that studio, I forget all the material incidents of every-day life, forget that I'm Allan Baruck, and I become "Joe Corntassel," ready to embark upon another exciting and sometimes dangerous adventure.

The story of how I got the chance to be Joe Corntassel contains almost as many adventures as Annie and I are having in our trip around the world.

It all started when I entered an amateur contest in a neighborhood theater. I was eight years old then, and I was lucky enough to win first prize for singing and dancing the "Charleston."

About a year later I sang over the old station WIT with Pat Barnes as announcer and Al Carney as the organist. Martha Linn was the announcer on the children's program then. That is where they named me the "Temperamental Tenor." I also sang with Everett Mitchell at WENR.

Later, at the Senate Theater, I made my first real stage appearance, and after that I continued singing at several Balaban and Katz theaters in Chicago for about a year. I had taken tap-dancing lessons then to complete my act.

One day I was called to act as Master of Ceremonies in Ernie Young's Revue, then at the Coliseum. This was a ten-day show, and after it was over, I was given the opportunity of joining the Dudley Players at the Kedzie Theater Stock Company, with Cliff Soubier, Stanley Andrews, and Gene McGillan, who are now artists at the NBC studios.

The first play in which I acted with the Dudley players was "Is Zat So?" where I played the part of James Blackburn, Jr., and later I played the part of Gordon Evans, in "Strange Interlude."

SOON after, I had the honor of playing with the original New York cast in "Street Scene," at the Apollo Theater, where I took the part of "Willie" Murante. After a few weeks, the Child Labor Law stopped me but when the company left town, they asked me if I would travel around the United States and England with them and keep playing this role.

But I couldn't accept this offer because my mother decided it was best not to break up our home, and that there were plenty of opportunities in Chicago.

I am happy that my mother kept me home because about a month later I was called to audition the part of a country boy for a new sketch, in which I created the character of "Joe Corntassel."

Frank Dahm, our script-writer, gave me a script and told me to act like a hick with "hay sticking out of my ears and a straw in my mouth." I did this and evidently my portrayal met with the approval of both (Continued on Page 27)

in seven years

Hunting "LOST CORD" With LENS AND KNIFE

THERE is a likelihood that a new voice will be introduced shortly over the national networks—that of Con Conrad. What makes this interesting news is the fact that until now Conrad's only claim to radio fame was his success in directing the careers and discovering such famous artists as Russ Columbo, Helen Morgan, John Boles, Bing Crosby and his latest, Dell Campo.

Until now he has had to be satisfied with the role of the man behind the scenes. But a throat operation which was performed upon him recently by Dr. Charles M. Hickey, eminent surgeon, at the Midtown Hospital, in New York, has restored to Conrad the voice which he lost seven years ago while singing on the stage of the Palladium Theater in London.

When forced to discontinue his singing, he began to interest himself in the careers of others. Three years ago he introduced Russ Columbo to the airwaves and built him into one of the greatest of radio personalities. Recently he arrived with Dell Campo, a young South American singer, and performed miracles in the latter's behalf, disposing of the usual tedious round of auditions and interviews in three days.

Preeminently a song writer, Conrad has had to whistle many of the melodies that he has composed during the period of his enforced silence. It was in that fashion that he wrote "You Call It Madness," "Goodbye Love," "Bend Down Sister" and many others of his later hits. Earlier in his career he composed "Margie," "Memory Lane" and other hits.

One night not so long ago in his suite at the Warwick Hotel, Conrad found that he was unable to speak. A hurried examination by his physician resulted in his removal to the hospital.

A WEEK later, after surgeons had used their lenses and their scalpels and their skill on him, he came home. He has his voice back but, on his doctor's orders, he has yet made no strenuous attempts to sing. The few notes he has carolled since his departure from the hospital have been enough to convince him and those who have heard him that he has recovered his singing voice.

Conrad, however, is not particularly enthusiastic about this. He is one of that peculiar specie who apparently have been born with a queer mental quirk that makes it impossible for them to be anything but artist's managers. "There'll be no fun in managing myself," he says. "What kind of kick can I get by telling myself that I'm lousy. Or that I'm flating the top notes?"

"It's going to be a good thing for Dell anyway," he continued. "When I first managed Columbo I could hardly talk to him, let alone show him tricks in singing. Most of my instructions to him were just one whistle after another. That's what makes a singer, you know. Of course, a good voice is necessary but it's the distinctiveness of the artist's delivery of a song that really makes him a success or a failure."

LEON'S SECRET ART of SOCK

SUAVE, soft spoken Leon Belasco, leader of the orchestra at the St. Moritz Hotel in New York, is known as radio's most romantic hacheinr. Those who know Leon, even his intimates, would never, in the wildest stretches of their imagination, picture him crossing a fast right to an opponent's chin, and rocking said opponent back on his heels against the ropes of a squared circle.

Yet, that is exactly what Belasco gets a big kick out of doing and experts have pronounced him as workmanlike an amateur welterweight as they have seen around in some time.

That is Leon Belasco's secret vice, the thrill he gets from shooting a straight left, and crossing a lightning right, to the physical and mental discomfort of a panting foe.

Leon, already a proficient marksman, an expert horseman, and a flash with the foils, decided suddenly a couple of months ago to take up the manly art of self defense.

He took no one into his confidence, hut proceeded to the gymnasium of that master teacher, the veteran Philadelphia Jack O'Brien.

Even Jack did not know at first that his new pupil was a radio celebrity, but he did know after Leon's first appearance in the ring, that he had excellent material at hand.

So the former heavyweight devoted his personal attention to the hand leader, with the result that already, after a few short weeks, it is no uncommon occurrence for Belasco to catch the old master O'Brien napping, and with a darting jab, rock his head back with a left while he hocks cleverly with his right.

Now that word has leaked out of the band leader's secret, his radio friends often gather in a little group at the ringside in the O'Brien gym in the afternoons and egg him on good naturedly as he slaps and hangs some hapless opponent about with the heavy gloves.

AT FIRST, there were reports about the air-ialto that Leon had contracted a grudge against someone, and was going methodically about the business of preparing to settle it in the most direct manner. When Belasco heard that one, he laughingly set it at rest.

"Nothing of the sort," he denied. "I am not taking up boxing even as a means of self-defense. But I have always believed that the quickest way to grow stale as a musician is to allow yourself to be a musician, and nothing else. There must constantly be new interests, albeit music is always the primary factor.

"Boxing is strictly an American institution, for although it is known the world over it is America that is the leader in the sport.

It is the sport that, to me typifies the American people to the most marked extent."

Belasco, who can speak and sing in seven languages, and who has travelled all over the world, has always perfected himself in the art dearest to the hearts of those in the country in which he happened to find himself.

In Spain, he learned the tango; in China he became adept in the use of chop-sticks. He took up the native customs in Russia, Italy, France, England, and Japan, and now, in the United States, he is studying the art of sock.

Five times a week he reports faithfully to Philadelphia Jack, and the other afternoon, after three fast rounds, the former world's light heavyweight champion pronounced him so proficient that he will soon have reached the stage where instruction is no longer necessary.

Belasco's natural litheness gives him a speed and footwork which would be the envy of many a professional pugilist, and, what is even more important, you have the word of no less a personage than Philadelphia Jack himself that Leon "can take it."

To see the slim figure in immaculate evening garb, waving the baton at the St. Moritz, you would never for a moment believe that beneath that smooth black broadcloth there lurks a deadly right and a rapier-like left.

WOW! IF THIS GOES OVER!

By Tony Wons

| KNOW we've got too many weeks in the year—apple week, cheese week, fire prevention week and all the rest—but with the advent of a New Year I'd like to crowd in still another week. Let's call it National Fan Mail Letter Week—and I'm serious about it.

In the radio world, agencies, clients and artists are continually taking inventories of their stocks in trade. Why not an organized informal attempt to corral a cross section of the public's radio reaction to national programs? I honestly believe that a National Radio Fan Letter week in which a large number of radio listeners might be inspired to write letters of sensible criticism, approval or condemnation to the radio artists, stations, and sponsors that have provided entertainment throughout the year would be a fine inventory with which to start the New Year.

After all, most of us spend many hours listening to the radio. It is certainly to our advantage that these hours be filled with the kind of programs that we enjoy as entertainment or that give us instruction or information. And one of the best barometers of a program is the amount of intelligent fan mail it attracts. Intelligent fan mail is one of the soundest means by which a radio sponsor, station, or artist can tell of the success or failure of his program.

Every artist with any experience in radio has received many letters from listeners who say "I have been listening to radio programs for years, but this is my first letter."

To my mind this statement is a bit unfair to both the radio fan and the artist. If the fan has been listening to radio programs for years it must be because he likes radio—and it is to his interest to endeavor to keep the programs on the air which appeal to him.

By all means a National Radio Fan Letter Week. Not too much ballyhoo or too much seriousness about it—but a sincere effort to collect hrickhats and bouquets. It should be a pleasant duty for radio listeners to cooperate with radio broadcasters in the building of programs. And the most direct way they can do this is by voicing their opinions, moderate or violent, with praise or blame, pro or con. So, men and women of the radio world, on to National Radio Fan Letter Week. And God help or bless us—everyone.

AWARDS IN ELEVENTH BETTER RADIO CONTEST

Report of Judges

Radio Guide's Eleventh Better Radio Program Contest, covering the Carnation Contented program, drew 1,753 entries. Of these, 1,631, or 92 per cent, approved heartily of the program as a whole.

Of special significance in this contest were the high averages of praise for the separate units comprising the program. Gene Arnold, the narrator, received 1583 boosts and only 77 had anything but praise for him. A great deal was said about his well-modulated voice. Next in percentage of approval came the Lullaby Lady, with 1,574 bouquets and only 73 brick-bats or 95 percent. Jean Paul King, who announces the program, had a higher average of boosters than either Arnold or the Lullaby Lady, with 1,375 for and 41 against him for a percentage of 97. Morgan Eastman's orchestra was favored by 1,422 and criticized by 71. The quartet was enjoyed by 1,233 and 64 did not care for it. A total of 14 per cent of those who expressed an opinion on the advertising objected to it as a jarring note. The figures show that 454 approved of the manner in which this portion of the program is handled while 70 did not.

First prize is awarded by the judges to C. H. Van Sant, of Bartlesville, Okla. He aptly summarized the program and analyzed its outstanding points of charm and entertainment. Also, he offered three intelligent suggestions for improvement. He has an idea for bettering the theme song presentation; he calls attention to a bit of carelessness that offends his sensitive ears—duck your head, Announcer King!—and he offers a constructive idea for making the orchestral unit of the "hour" more appealing.

Ivan S. Coggeshall, second prize winner, showed keen acumen in adequately summarizing all the praiseworthy features that the program offers, and also commented upon an element in the program which many readers mentioned but which few, if any, handled so adroitly. This is the fact that Gene Arnold is associated in the minds of listeners with other programs and the products of other sponsors, both of such a different nature that a certain confusion is unavoidable.

Five dollar prizes were awarded to the following: Mrs. Florence Klein, 3141 Durrell Avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio; Mrs. Elsie H. Woods, Over Burr's Hardware Store, Ogdensburg, New York; and Mrs. E. A. Legg, 33 Stephen Street, Manchester, Connecticut.

And these contestants were given honorable mention:

Vane D. Fotte, 813 Seventh Street, South, Fargo, N. D.

Winning Letters

First Prize $25.00

Shouts of "Bravo" and "Encore" for one of the best programs on the air—the Contented program.

Gene Arnold is one of my favorite radio personalities. I think his part in the program is its best-selling feature. Jean Paul King's voice and diction are very good. The orchestral and vocal arrangements are among the best on the air. Mr. Eastman shows excellent taste and musicianship in the selection and arrangements of the musical program. The Lullaby Lady—very sweet; appeals to a large number of listeners. Others don't like her but I believe the balance is largely in her favor.

Suggestions For Improvement

1. Cut out the harp on the theme song, "Contented." It comes through the speaker too strong and drowns out, to a certain extent, the beautiful tenor voice singing the melody.

2. Mr. King's pronunciation is sometimes careless, i. e., his "suggestion" on the program of December 18. He failed to make the first "g" a hard one.

3. Include more of Victor Herbert's compositions in the orchestral program. I think the average lay listener (the man who must be sold if the program is a success) appreciates and understands Herbert's work more than any other composer's.

C. H. Van Sant,
611 East 1st Street,
Bartlesville, Okla.

Second Prize $10.00

The Contented Program, most soothing of the commercials, constitutes an almost perfect example of adaptation to sponsored product. Milk! How the word connotes a chain of homely pictures; cows, meadows, farmhouse, fire-side, candle-light, cradle, lullaby. Some unseen artist has taken these elements and a capable cast and blended them into a mood of quiet reverie, to which even the advertising has been made subservient. The hymn-like "Contented" fade-out is a matchless institutional trademark—without as much as a word in it about evaporated milk.

The Lullaby Lady and the Carnation quartet sing simply and satisfy best in their folk-songs. Morgan Eastman, director of the full-toned orchestra, uses excellent judgment in favoring the classics, where jazz would be inept and folk-tunes tending towards saccharinity. However, though instructive, voluminous announcer footnotes on lives of composers should be dropped, because out of keeping with a mood of reflection; Jean Paul King, though competent, should go too.

The casting of Gene Arnold, most convincing of radio's sales provocateurs, is inspired. To this, his most artistic vehicle, he contributes sincerity and conviction. The effect of his artlessly modulated voice is marred only by its indelible association with another, more saline, broadcast. Eventually he will learn that the price of promiscuity in product-plugging by an impresario is that unwanted thoughts of soap will flavor his audience's soup.

Should We Get Married?

DEAR VOICE OF EXPERIENCE:
I am twenty-two years of age and have fallen in love with a girl of twenty who also loves me. We are both in poor circumstances although both are working. The girl is the sole support of her family, and although I work regularly, I am just a clerk at a salary of $10 a week. Her parents do not approve of our being serious and I am beginning to think that they are right. I have been thinking of backing away gently and trying to forget her, but that is hard to do because I love her devotedly. I am writing you for advice as I am sure you can point out the right path to take. Please answer through RADIO GUIDE as I cannot listen to all your broadcasts.
J. P. F.

ANSWER: Yours is just one, my friend, of many, many letters that I have received during this time of depression unfolding to me the same story. The intimate details will oftentimes vary a little, but the theme remains the same.

There is no questions about it, poverty is a real problem to take into consideration by any prospective bride and groom. Particularly is this true if either the girl's family is dependent upon her meager earnings or if the boy's family is dependent upon his. Some try to solve the problem by getting married and moving in with one of the families of in-laws. And, instead of solving the problem, as a usual thing they create other and graver problems.

Others say by their actions, "I have my own life to live. I have done for my folks for a long time. I am not going to pass up a chance for marriage for my own happiness comes first." And so the two young people unite in wedlock and leave one or both families, formerly dependent, to shift for themselves. A marriage thus based upon selfishness expressed on the part of one or both participants usually is unsuccessful for the simple reason that where selfishness is exemplified as a premise for marriage, that same selfishness characterizes the individual in his or her attitude toward the one married, with the inevitable result of disharmony.

You say that you are twenty-two and she is only twenty—if you both love each other would it not be better to allow time to determine somewhat your ultimate decision? I do not believe in long engagements where they can be avoided, but certainly I would not compromise by suggesting a marriage that would not have at least a gambling chance of success.

Here's my suggestion to you: I have just completed two questionnaires to aid young people in their decision regarding marriage. Each one of these questionnaires contains one hundred questions. One is for the girl to ask of herself about the boy friend when her boy friend is not present. The other is for the boy to do the same thing about the girl. These questionnaires are made as simple as can be and yet are very comprehensive. When both are completely filled out, they offer a mighty fine means for determining whether or not a marriage should take place. I have shown the questionnaire to judges in domestic relations courts, and to psychiatrists, and in every instance they have praised the practical character of this method of determining the advisability of marriage. These questionnaires are sold together at 25 cents for the pair, and that small investment, I will assure you, will prove one of the best that you ever made if you are really seriously desirous of determining beforehand the potential success or failure of the marriage you contemplate.

Full explanation of how to use the questionnaires is printed right into each little booklet. A questionnaire for the boy only would only tell half the story. The same is true for the questionnaire for the girl. That is the reason for putting the two together in order to give a complete picture. Again let me say that I cannot recommend the use of these double questionnaires too highly, and I suggest that any young couple contemplating marriage will find it most helpful indeed. Just insert a quarter in a piece of paper and put it in your letter and send it to me, either in care of RADIO GUIDE or to P. O. Box 400, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y., and your order will be taken care of promptly.

Not A Clairvoyant

DEAR VOICE OF EXPERIENCE:
I have read your page in RADIO GUIDE and wish you would answer a few questions for me:
Please tell me am I going to be happier than I am now? Also won't you tell me what you can about myself?
Elizabeth

ANSWER: Evidently, Elizabeth, you have not followed my column from the beginning, for I explained that I am not a fortune teller and have yet to find any fortune teller that was anything more than a guesser. Yet people waste money by the hundreds of thousands of dollars here in America every year on these fakers. I cannot guess the answer to problems and can only answer intelligently those questions that deal with actual conditions and leave nothing to guess-work.

A Girl's "No"

DEAR VOICE OF EXPERIENCE:
I am a young man twenty-one years of age, and have never gone with a girl or associated with girls very much. I am very timid and bashful. I believe it is better to be too bashful than too bold, but I realize I am too timid for my own good.

There is a girl whom I would like to meet, but I am shy about speaking to her. Should I send her a note, or should I summon courage enough to meet her on the street and ask her if she would go with me to a church or to a movie? I know she has a wonderful character. I don't smoke, drink or chew, and must say that I don't swear, even if it does sound like boasting.

You see I met her once on the street one night some time ago, and asked her point blank if she would go to a movie with me, and she said she didn't care for movies but thanked me very much. I wonder if she thought I had had intentions? I know I never harbored such intentions. Her age is seventeen. Please answer me in RADIO GUIDE. Should I go about it differently?
H. B. R.

ANSWER: My lad, there is no question but what many a man wrecks his life and that of others because he is too bold, and I believe just as many invite disaster because of the opposite extreme—bashfulness.

Between these two extremes is the happy medium where all of us belong and most of us are found. Certainly that's where you belong, too. Whereas there are a great many bashful boys, naturally there are even more bashful girls, and a great many girls have the false idea that no matter who the young man might be or how much they might desire his company, the first time that they are asked they feel that they should always decline. It may be that this girl comes in that category.

If every boy took every girl's "no" at face value, there would be lots of cobwebs on the doors of marriage license bureaus. The "clinging vine" type of girl (and of such there are many), really wants to be wooed and is very much afraid of appearing bold even in the acceptance of an invitation. Not because she discredits a boy's motives, but rather because of a false idea about modesty and decorum.

If I were you, H. B. R., I would do one of two things: either I would meet her seemingly as by chance, smile and speak and explain that you did not want to foist any attention upon her, but that you would like to accompany her to some church affair or to some other place that she would like to go; that you felt sure that her company would be interesting and that you should try to make yourself reciprocally interesting. Not what you say but how you say it will determine largely her reactions. Or, if you find it more to your liking, sit down and write her a little note and tell her how sorry you are that she didn't find it convenient to accept your invitation to the movie, but assure her that without wanting to appear importunate you should enjoy her company to some gathering which she would like to attend, and assure her that you would try to make the occasion one of enjoyment and interest to her, if granted the opportunity.

In either event, if I were you, and if her "no" is more emphatic than it was the first time, I believe I would turn my eyes in other directions. But if it is much less emphatic than on the former occasion and yet was still a "no", and if I wanted to go with the girl, I would simply say to myself "Well, Mr. Man, at least you are making progress. Keep a stiff upper lip; wait a little while, and try again." And here's wishing you success.

By the way, I have a little pamphlet on bashfulness that I would be glad to send to you if you will send a 3c stamp for it and give me your name and address. I think you will find it valuable in helping you to overcome a condition that will grow upon you if you allow it to do so.

DEAR VOICE OF EXPERIENCE:
I note the distress of Lillian as given in last week's RADIO GUIDE. Nine months ago I was very ill with tuberculosis. If Lillian will send me her name and address, I shall be glad to write her a letter of encouragement and advice. Tuberculosis need not be fatal. I have been at home all but one month which I spent in a sanatorium.
A. J. H.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter, A. J. H., and I hope that Lillian will read this. If she will get her name and address to me I will be glad to put her in touch with you. Certainly, I hope that you will be able to give her some real encouragement.

Thank you for your interest in another fellow-sufferer.

ALTHOUGH I HAVE STATED in several issues of this publication that I am interested in the outcome of those cases that have been submitted to me, very few have written me after receiving their reply.

In my broadcasts I am continually receiving letters from those whom I try to help, and it surprises me somewhat that I am not hearing from my petitioners whom I answer in these columns.

Here's one of the few letters that I have received from one whose problems I have dealt with. It comes from Chicago, and says:

DEAR VOICE OF EXPERIENCE:
I read my letter and reply in Radio Guide and hereby thank you for your prompt attention. Just seeing my letter added sunshine to my life, and I think if others submitting their problems followed your replies, that they could smile through their tears.

I assure you that I will carry out the advice that you gave me, and wish again to thank you and the Radio Guide and say in conclusion "God bless you."
(Signed) Mrs. A. J. S.

ANSWER: I certainly appreciate that letter and I sincerely hope that the advice you say you are going to follow will prove both sane and practical.

THE VOICE OF THE LISTENER

In Defense of C. M. B.

West Bend, Wis.

Dear VOL:

Everybody seems to pile on poor C. M. B. I think the very healthy opinion she expressed ought to be appreciated, not condemned.

I believe one could never get as sick of symphony orchestras as of "popular music" and "sick tenors." Another thing: most of the readers who rebuked C. M. B. seem to think popular music and symphonies are the only type of music written. Real lovers of music know better. As far as I am concerned, three cheers for C. M. B.

Babies should not be allowed to sing before a music loving audience. If the composers of the various pieces "squealed" into the microphone were alive, I think they would see to it that their work was appreciated and not treated as it is by these "baby stars" and wonder children.

Removing the Rappers

Philadelphia, Pa.

Dear VOL:

Please bear in mind, rappers of radio programs, that there are people listening in on programs which you don't like. You can find a program to your liking by turning the dial, so listen in and enjoy.

The radio advertising length is normal in my opinion. Letters written to the sponsors would bring about a possible change if received in sufficient volume.

I enjoy many excellent programs, too numerous to mention. A program I would like to list among the leaders is the "Grand Old Opry" on WSJL.

Borrows Plummer's Tools

Elizabeth, N. J.

Dear VOL:

May I, in imitation of Evans Plummer, give some prunes and plums?

Great big prunes to Blackstone for taking Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit off the air on Tuesday night and plums to Bond Bread for keeping them on their program for another series. I shall be there at tea-time to hear Julia's delightful voice and glee and Frank's nonsense.

Prunes to the new sponsor of Fred Allen and his troupe for putting them on at the same hour on Wednesdays as Burns and Allen. I shall continue to listen to Gracie Allen.

Plums to any sponsor who will reunite Ethel Shutta and George Olsen on a commercial program. What a grand pair they are. Ethel's grand with Walter O'Keefe on Friday nights. Plums to the new sponsor of Jack Pearl.

And plums to the sponsor who presents "Songs My Mother Taught Me" on Sunday nights. Why can't we have more of these programs. I know of so many who enjoy these old ballads. This is the happy medium between too-hot jazz and dreary symphonies.

From Sally Rand?

Cincinnati, Ohio

Dear VOL:

We think it time for someone to mention the Yeastfoamers' program. It is one of the most interesting on the air. We should hear the words of their theme song, "My Dear," sung ulteriorly by Lew Palmer. Why doesn't Fritz Heilbroog sing every Sunday? We are sure that Jan Garber's band has plenty of listeners. We wonder where Virginia Hamilton is hiding. We would like to hear her voice with Jan's orchestra again.

A Duchin Fan

Frederick, Md.

Dear VOL:

Without a doubt Eddie Duchin has the best dance orchestra on the air. What other orchestra leader can compare with this eminent young maestro pianist?

Eddie and his Central Park Casino lads certainly deserve a lot of credit. Let's have a large story about Eddie Duchin in an early issue.

Eddie graduated from the Massachusetts college of Pharmacy, and Park Avenue now thrives on his musical prescriptions.

Lots of luck to RADIO GUIDE.

A Lum 'n' Abner Rally

Commerce, Okla.

Dear VOL:

I've been a frequent reader of your column but this is the first time I have ever expressed myself for it. But this time I feel I'm doing two old friends a favor.

What I want to know, is the reason we can't

What Do You Think?

Toledo, Ohio

Dear VOL:

Tonight I sat down to relax and play my radio, and I had to shut it off because I was beginning to see red. And I'm taking it out with this letter.

Why do the people who arrange the music over the air, at great expense and with all their high salaried brains—why do they have to keep feeding radio audiences the same old chestnuts over and over again?

Take "Trees", for instance. That confounded bit of slush should be taken out and buried forever. And the boat song from "Tales of Hoffman." I like opera as much as the next man, and I've heard plenty of it in my day. But there's no reason why I should have to listen to the Sextet and Pagliacci and a few other numbers every time I want good music. And "The Last Round-up"—there's another. For the first few times it sounded good. But why kill it by overdoing it, and then cram it into our ears forever? But why rave on?

Tell those radio brains, VOL, that there are such composers as Gershwin and Ferda Grole and Vincent Youmans and Ravel and a few more so-called "moderns" who write music with some snap to it, that a long-suffering radio audience would much rather hear than all that other sentimental tripe.

Hard Boiled

hear Lum and Abner on the Ford program any more? I'm certainly going to miss the "old party line" and the socials. I feel there are others who will miss these old friends as much as I will, so I suggest that listeners write to the Ford company requesting that they be returned to the air immediately.

I like Fred Waring's orchestra but I agree with the rest of my community that they can't take Lum and Abner's place in our homes.

Challenging Martin

Covington, Ky.

Dear VOL:

I see in your issue for the week ending Jan. 6 that Martin Lewis thinks the Camel Show is not so hot. How can he say this about a program which features the Casa Loma orchestra? In my opinion this is THE band of today and any program which they were so would be good without anyone else.

Of course, they must have something besides the band but I can't see where he gets that stuff about their present show being not so hot. Of course, though, the Casa Loma Orchestra is a "musician's band" and I am a musician myself, so I suppose that's why I like them so much. Maybe Marty had better learn something about music.

Lauding A Winner

White Plains, N. Y.

Dear VOL:

We are writing to you to congratulate Mary E. Luber on winning second prize for her "Batter Radio Contest" letter.

Also wish to say how much we admired her wonderful letter to RADIO GUIDE in tribute to Allyn Joslyn, our favorite radio actor, whom we consider the best on the air.

A Hill-billet-doux

Lancaster, Pa.

Dear VOL:

I enjoy all hill billy music and think there should be more of it on the air. I agree with

Ridley Park, Pa.

Dear VOL:

Congratulations on the improvement in RADIO GUIDE. I gave away six yearly subscriptions to my friends for Christmas, to show you how the magazine stands with me.

Maybe that gives me the chance to rise in your meeting and tell you something I think should be changed, and changed soon, or here's one fan who will turn to the movies or to reading magazines in place of listening to my radio.

I get mad every time I tune in on a big hour and hear the audiences that gather in the studios laugh, when no joke is coming over the air. Eddie Cantor and Ed Wynn and Bert Lahr and I don't know how many others, put on costumes and make faces and kid before the mike. Fine for those that sit in the studios and get all that. But it's downright maddening to us who sit home waiting for the program to come over the air. Why should there be laughs that we can't share? I think it's unfair. What's more I know of certain brands of cigarettes and other things that WON'T get my business, just because I get gyped when their programs are on the air, and there are laughs that I am cut out of.

My neighbor in the house next door feels the same way I do. Maybe there are other readers who do, too.

E. F. W.

These Messing about Tex Ritter. Why doesn't RADIO GUIDE give us a picture and life story of him for our albums. What do you say, hill-billy fans?

I have never heard Pappy, Zeke and Ezra but I have heard Annie, Judy and Zeke and like them a lot. Three cheers for WLS.

Let's hear from more hillbillies and more hill-billy fans in the RADIO GUIDE.

Casey, Ill.

Dear VOL:

I am now starting my third scrap-book of pictures from RADIO GUIDE.

There are so many good programs I only wish I could listen to more than one at a time as it is hard to decide sometimes which is the preferred one. So it is amusing to read the different criticisms of artists and programs.

Don't you think our criticisms are just a reflection of our own characters? With such a variety of programs it is very easy to tune out what we do not like and find what we do. I never tire of good music but do not care much for the jazz-type. There are so many good artists and programs it is useless to enumerate my choice.

The Silver Standard

Concord, N. H.

Dear VOL:

Here's a letter to several parts, an open letter to a whole gang.

To C. M. Bair: You're narrow-minded but thanks for starting something on the VOL page. For that alone you deserve a new phonograph record of some duka singing opera.

To Mike Porter: Why bother growing up into Martin J.? We like you better as Mike. I was afraid you weren't good for anything until your bellow at Seides. I read his article and got mad and you took the words right out of my mouth.

To W. R. Petrie: Thanks for your return comment about Cartwright's and my remarks about shortening the Old Gold program advertising. I admit the advertisers give us the best radio programs in the world but I still maintain that listeners get bored with the same line over and over. I'd like you to write me personally and spout some more about this matter.

Paul Silver

Oh, Kay!

Noank, Conn.

Dear VOL:

First I want to express my appreciation for your page. It reflects the likes and dislikes of the radio audience. Of course, at times you receive letters from persons either prejudiced or terribly hard to please.

In our family the ages vary from 18 to 60 and naturally tastes differ. I, at 18, prefer dance orchestras and comedians, but I also enjoy the music of McCormack and plays such as Bar X Days and Nights and the First Nighter. Programs can be varied to suit everyone.

We find one conflict in our programs. Bing Crosby and Lawrence Tibbett are on at the same time. But by a little give and take we all manage a week filled with enjoyment. It would improve programs greatly if more constructive criticism were printed and less panning of the stars of radio.

For Harmonica Fans

Brooklyn, N. Y.

Dear VOL:

I've never written to VOL before but after reading the letters in the column I'd like to add my little bit.

How about more harmonica music on the air? And by the way what's become of Borrah Minavitch and his Harmonica Rascals? Come on you harmonica fiends, speak up.

F. Ruiso

In Waring's Defense

Columbia, Pa.

Dear VOL:

I am writing this letter in defense of the Fred Waring orchestra. Why don't other program and orchestra directors take a hint and lay off the idea of the Glee Club effects that Waring has perfected?

He has combined excellent vocalists and given radio listeners a new effect in music. Why should other orchestras act like copy-cats and spoil this excellent effect?

We must give credit where credit is due: to the ooa and only Fred Waring.

Paul H. Nagle.

Fresh Prunes for A. & P.

Chicago, Ill.

Dear VOL:

This is the first time I have sent prunes in a letter but here is a bushel of dried-up ones to the A. & P. Gypsies for taking Frank Parker away. Until today when I saw in the RADIO GUIDE that James Melton would again be with them, I was under the impression that maybe Frank Parker would.

Well, I have one consolation. There are other programs, Cities Service and Chevrolet, that are wise enough to have Frank Parker, the finest singer on the air, and those are the ones I'll listen to.

REVIEWING RADIO

By Martin J. Porter

MR. TONY WONS, that droll philosopher of the air, has proposed an annual fan mail week for radio. It was his notion that if the audience could be awakened from its normal lethargy, and urged to peit missives of applause, criticism and constructive hints, the idea might serve to reveal the faults of radio broadcasting, and remedy them, and to more firmly establish the programs that are clicking. The only means of discovering how a show stands with the public, of course, is the listener reaction, and unless the listener breaks his silence, the status of a radio series may never be learned.

Unfortunately, there were few fellow artists or sponsors, who enthused over the Wons proposal. Probably, very few listeners will rise to the occasion. The fan mail situation is one of the deplorable things in radio. Nine out of every ten letters received by artists or stations, or sponsors, have a selfish motive revealing crushes or some other individual urge, and not at all concerned with the betterment of programs.

Yet, fan mail is exceedingly interesting, and often is a symbol of the economic temperature of the country. In my own case, and where other radio commentators are concerned, the bulk of the fan mail is dedicated to the seeking of jobs, fame and fortune. Aside from the letters received from press agents and publicity departments, there are few notes from listeners who don't want auditions, or favors, in the matter of getting themselves, their children or their friends on the air.

Most everybody who writes has an axe to grind. Either they want tickets to a broadcast or an audition, a song published, advice about how to sell talent (?), some lowdown information about certain performers etc. Or else, they squawk because they didn't win a ransquawk because they didn't win a ransquawk, or because some agency official told them they were not fitted for stardom.

Would Purge Ego

I wish there was some way to eliminate the selfish motif from fan mail, and to carry out the idealistic notion of Tony Wons, of having the audience wax suddenly sincere, and write to artists, sponsors and studios along constructive lines—

THE JEAN PAUL KING FAMILY

And family are since last week when Mary King presented Announcer Jean Paul with the bouncing baby boy pictured for the first time herewith. He hasn't been named yet, so what do you suggest?

offer criticism, explain it, and propose new ideas, instead of trying to make a profit out of an investment in a three-cent stamp.

Perhaps there is a way to discourage the selfish element. Those moved by avarice, greed, or an inordinate ambition to flood the mails with appeals for "breaks" or advantages, should be shown some of the amazing statistics. Especially those who imagine they can compose music, or out-sing the Crosbys, the Morrisons and the Niesens.

Those, for instance, who imagine they can step from obscurity to the pinnacle of success via the radio route, should be told that out of 150,000 persons with similar ideas, less than fifty managed to make the grade on the kilocycles in the past twenty-four months.

The gentlemen in the major studios tell me that the average number of applicants for places in the radio sun during 1934, was a thousand a week, in New York alone. That made 52,000 for the year. That figure was just about half of what it was in the previous year, because in 1932, the depression was more acute, and conditions spurred a great many more persons to desert the lily, and instilled a desire in them to make quick and big money by the exercise of talent, which, until then, had remained "undiscovered." As a matter of fact, the degree of such new talent was nil.

48 Out of 100,000

Roughly, there were 100,000 expectant artists looking toward radio for salvage and salvation, in 1932, and during that year, only newcomers with any extraordinary ability, or talent enough to make them click, admitted to the ranks of performers. More than fifty percent of these came from professional walks—the stage, screen and vaudeville.

In 1933, a meager two dozen names with potentialities, were admitted to the roster of radio artists, and of these, approximately eleven were professionals. Only two juvenile prodigies were admitted. You'll have no difficulty in remembering them. They were Mary Small, the little girl with a big voice, and Nancy Kelly, the dramatic wonder, whom the Wizard of Oz series introduced.

Last week, a New York radio editor went to work on his annual questionnaire to ascertain the ratings for 1933 applied to artists and shows by the other radio editors of the country.

One of his questions was: "What great personality, would you say, rose from comparative obscurity to fame, on the radio, in 1933?"

Before replying to that, I went to the trouble to consult other radio conneu-

MUSIC IN THE AIR

By Carleton Smith

ARTURO TOSCANINI enjoys his radio. Arriving last week with a new son-in-law, Vladimir Horowitz, Mr. Toscanini went straight to his hotel and turned on the loud-speaker in his room. Before a few minutes had passed, he was furious. Nothing that he heard pleased him. Nevertheless, he would "keep it going," as his wife says.

Since he has lived in America, he has learned to listen to the radio and enjoy it, though in Europe he rarely tunes in. He believes reception and transmission are much more accurate though he cannot say much for the quality of our programs.

Mr. Toscanini is rested after conducting orchestral concerts in several European cities, from Stockholm to Vienna. He is ready for the rehearsals which occupy so much of his stay with us. In order not to tire his arm, three rest periods have been arranged. Hans Lange will conduct the broadcasts of February 11, March 4 and April 1 and 8. Mr. Toscanini has promised all-Beethoven programs on February 18 and March 11, and the final three broadcasts in April will be Wagner programs, with soloists.

The week-day Carnegie Hall series includes a Beethoven Cycle, similar to that we heard last season. For our pleasure Mr. Toscanini has programmed:

On January 14: The Overture to Ros-sini's "La Scala di Seta"; Brahms' Symphony No. 4 in E minor; "Romeo and Juliet," overture-fantasia by Tchaikovsky; and Ravel's "Bolero."

The Rossini opera-buffa was a failure when it was first given in Venice and is almost unknown in this country. Thrice-familiar, however, is Mr. Toscanini's interpretation of the Brahms Fourth. The melancholy compassion and emotion that lie deeper than the sensuous in this work come to the surface at his call. No detail is missed, and yet the proportions of the whole are fused in a Tenthonic breadth and ruggedness that bring forth with irresistible vigor and grandeur the beauty of the music.

The Tchaikovsky fantasies are not included in the music of the Russian master, for which Mr. Toscanini has no sympathy. He has an especial fondness for the overture built around Shakespeare's Veronese legend, however, and he has consented to give again his familiar reading of the ever-popular "Bolero." Ravel insists that this piece should be played slowly (He takes four record faces for his recording, while Mr. Koussevitzky uses only three). When the composer, sitting in a Paris audience was reproachful about Toscanini's tempo, the Italian's reply was: "If it were any slower, it would never end."

On January 21 (tentative): The Overture to Cherruhini's "Janiska"; Schumann's "Rhenish" symphony; Strauss' tone-poem "Don Juan"; and the Overture to Ros-sini's "Semiramide."

For January 28 (tentative): Bruckner's "Romantic" symphony; the prelude to "Tristan and Isolde"; Martucci's "Notturno" and "Novelletta"; and Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe."

Program Notes

Beg your pardon! When Salome was announced for January 13, I assumed incorrectly it would be an afternoon performance. It is to be revived Saturday night and "Africana" will be broadcast in the afternoon (NBC at 1:40 p. m. EST). The opera telling the adventures of Vasco da Gama contains many tuneful moments, including the famous tenor aria "O Paradiso." I thought after hearing the performance during the Met's opening week that for this opera more satisfactory voices could hardly be assembled anywhere.

Leopold Stokowski's next regular broadcast from the Academy of Music (CBS-WABC, January 12, at 2:30 p. m. EST) includes Rimsky-Korsakoff's Scheherazade and Walton's Balshazzar's Feast.

Engene Ormandy, whom New Yorkers and Philadelphians have enjoyed these past weeks, offers an interesting program with his Minneapolis Symphony (NBC-WEAF, Sunday at 11:30 p. m.).

Lily Pons, on the Hall of Fame series (NBC-WEAF, Sunday at 10:30 p. m. EST) has programmed "Caro Nome." The orchestral numbers are poorly chosen to accompany Mlle. Pons' selection. The Bach Prelude in G minor and "On the Trail" from Grofe's Grand Canyon Suite offer contrast not in the best musical taste.

Hall and Gruen (NBC-WEAF, Sunday, 11 a. m. EST) play the Gavotte from Arosky's Third Suite for two pianos; "Tears" from Rachmaninoff's "Fantasie"; and Carl Beecher's "The Jester."

Cyrena Van Gordon, who makes her Met debut as Amneris in Aida this week, sings (NBC-WJZ, Monday at 8:30 p. m. EST) "Il est Doux, Il est Bon" from Herodiade; "Comin' Thru the Rye"; a new song, "If I Forget You"; and Joseph Marx's "Nocturne."

Lawrence Tibbett (NBC-WEAF, Monday at 8:30 p. m. EST) sings "Sylvia"; "Betsy's Boy"; "Going Home"; and "Jerusalem, Jerum."

Henri Dearing (NBC-WJZ, Monday at 10:30 p. m. EST) programs "Flight of The Bumble-Bee"; Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Legend of 'Isar Saltan"; two Preludes by Rachmaninoff; and Telierepine's "Humoresque."

tators, and all of us were astonished to realize that no such person had done any such thing. The nearest we could come to the answer, was Gertrude Niesen, who had begun an entire year before.

The women newcomers in 1933 outnumbered the male neophytes almost two to one and that was due to the trend in orchestral set-ups toward female vocalists, and a desire to minimize male singers. Why should the males be relegated? you may ask. Well, as far as I can learn, both the broadcasters and the sponsors are desirous of banishing the word "crooner" from the vernacular of radio.

In all of 1933, one lone comedian was among the newcomers. He was, and is, of course, Joe Penner. There were two male opposite singers, both foreign among the influx.

Considering the ratio of the breaks as dispensed to applicants, it comes down to this: Say two out of the fifty who of the 150,000 applicants accepted within two years, were invited to radio. That left forty-eight of the 150,000 who applied, who clicked.

That makes your chances to get in on the fame and fortune, pretty slim. You are facing odds of 3,124 to one. Even if your talent is not blank, even if you can sing or play or act, you have just that single chance in 3,124, to click.

Those Parlor Comics

A great many of the would-be artists who storm the studios and agencies are suffering under the delusion that they are great, irresistible comedians. They are sure of this because their friends have told them how funny they are and that they ought to go on the radio. Still others want to become comedians because they think being a comedian is a jolly old life. I wish the lads and the gals who are cherishing such visions could only spend a day or so with some of the top comics.

They are the saddest guys you'd ever want to meet. They are the most worried people in the business. And they are the most heckled. Even their own wives grow tired of the hectic life that a comedian lives.

Take Jack Benny for instance. The minute he is through with a broadcast, he begins to frown and fret over the next one. It's got to be as funny as the last one, and even funnier if possible. Where are the gags and situations coming from? Script writers run out of material very quickly; gag men are undependable. Thus the comic must go home and read, and think, and devise; he must plot the fabric of the next show. All right. He does. He's home half an hour when a troupe of writers invade his place. They offer gags, which need to be rewritten, if used at all. When and if gags and situations are devised, the poor frau must sit there and listen, and pass judgment. Finally, Benny goes to bed and is just relaxing when the phone rings, and a Broadway lad tells the news that he has just thought of a fine joke, and will sell it for ten bucks. The joke turns out to be terrible and Benny goes back to sleep. But at 5 a. m. he wakes suddenly and has an idea. He wakes up Mary Livingstone. She is half asleep, but she must listen. She is in no mood to listen to a lot of nonsense. But she does. Then the night's rest is spoiled.

If you ever have seen Fred Allen, the deadly, funereal expression on his face will convince you that he is perhaps the most despondent man alive. He thinks up his own gags and skits, and then he admits to himself that they are all so terrible that they had better be thrown away. Eddie Cantor who goes in for the variety type of comedy, has the worst time of all. Mrs. Cantor has confided to me that in sixteen years, the Cantor family hasn't sat down to an uninterrupted meal, except on their wedding anniversaries, when Marjorie, the eldest of the Cantor daughters, lifts the telephone receiver off the hook for the duration of dinner. All day long, the Cantor apartment is overrun with song pluggers, gag men, stooges, guys who want to make a touch, pianists, composers, movie men, theatrical booking agents and what not.

Cantor never has any time for his family, as much as he loves them. He's always on the go, or in conferences, or squinting over a script. About eight people write material for him, but like Ed Wynn, he finally gets on the job himself and does eighty-five percent of the creative stuff.

Rehearsals frequently upset the written routine, and call for almost complete revision of a script. It is day labor, and it entails worry and headache enough to take all the fun out of the private lives of comedians. They are funny to everybody but themselves and their families.

"Nize Baby" dialect versions of famous operas, such as "Romeo and Juliet" and "Samson and Delilah" All the time he was studying the public's tickle tastes in dramatic shows, acting in various radio skits, and gathering material for his own use. In 1929, he was instrumental in selling and placing "The Rise of the Goldbergs." In 1932 he launched "Marie, the Little French Princess" on Columbia's airwaves and the drawing power of this attractive program has steadily increased. Then came "Jack Dempsey's Gymnasium" and in the fall of 1933 he wrote, sold, directed, and acted as Papa Dominick in Columbia's production of "Little Italy," a dialect program presenting the human and humorous problems besetting a home-loving group—the Marinis—in "Little Italy." And the secret of the success of these programs is the interesting story of an unusual personality.

Second to few experts in dialect except Hi himself is Ruth Yorke. Have you listened lately to that "Little Italy" program? Then you must remember Mamma Filomena . . . Yes, it's Ruth. And her radio distinction doesn't end there. She's also "Marie, the Little French Princess" who you might hear any Tuesday or Thursday at one o'clock (EST) over CBS, Italian dame and chic Parisian gamin—that's Ruth!

From the moment Hiram Brown stepped out of his cradle in Brooklyn, where he was born July 21, 1907, and began to talk—and he didn't wait long—everyone advised him to become a lawyer. Hiram decided it wasn't a bad idea and he held to his vision of a career in the courts until "Uncle Tom's Cabin" came to Brooklyn for a week's engagement.

Young "Hi," then about twelve years old, with wavy dark hair and brown eyes, and with something of a reputation as a boy orator in Brooklyn, thrilled to the sad tale of Little Eva—and side by side with the legal talent in Hi was developed an instinct for drama and the study of human character. At first Hi's parents were bitterly opposed to his career in radio—but as Hi likes to remark, with a smile: "After the first pay check, all was well." Debating, dramatics, and activities as concert master and student director of the orchestra filled his time—he studied the violin eight years and took up musical theory and harmony. And all this before he was twenty-four years of age.

The real secret of Hi's success is his ability to understand and successfully portray for radio a great variety of human types, with all their individual desires and conflicts, and likes and dislikes. He's an excellent disciple and student of human nature. He is especially adept in portraying the attitudes of older people in relation to the younger generation—in catching, in a sympathetic way, human behavior in all its varying moods.

And for the future? Here is Hiram Brown's credo in his own words:

"The current most obvious today in the radio world is a decided shift for the better in public taste. Socially, the country's growing up. It's obvious in the adult plays of a crowded theater season; in the return to sentiment and sanity in a number of outstanding films and in the radio world it's revealed by manufacturers and clients signing up the country's finest symphony orchestras and the Metropolitan Opera artists to sell their wares. This welcome handwriting is on the wall everywhere. And this sound growing-up process is going to affect radio's dramatic programs very shortly. Experiments in this direction are going on in all the major broadcasting studios. For radio's dramatic programs can be inconceivably finer than they are today. They can provide telling, dramatic entertainment for adults, written by script writers who understand human beings, and whose scripts are shaped and directed by the best production men that money can buy.

"When that is done—it's being done with musical programs today—we'll have thrilling adult dramatic entertainment on the air that will make listeners sit up and really listen—that will make these adolescent days of radio's dramatic shows seem as remote as the Gay Nineties."

By Evans Plummer

RATHER interesting is the decision, which amounted to a reversal of policy, of NBC to broadcast excerpts from the Chicago Grand Opera Company's performances at the Civic Opera House. Several weeks ago, when the plans of the newly organized Chicago Grand Opera Company were announced, The National Broadcasting Company was offered exclusive weekly pickups for the shortened (five-week) and intensified season NBC's program planning board (did you know they had one?) met and snubbed the proposal.

Next, Larry Wood, in charge of the opera company's other activities, went to the Columbia System's Windy City offices. His conversations there likewise developed a blank.

Then suddenly, on a Saturday night at a performance of "Aida," we met Mr. Wood. Everything had changed. NBC was to pick up "Rigoletto" on Sunday (Dec 31) from 10:30 to 11 p. m. EST, and relay it over the WFAF chain. Tuesday (Jan. 2) at 10 p. m., "Carmen," with Coe Glade in the name role, went over the NBC-WJZ network. Next Tuesday, January 16, the Chicago Grand Opera Company will be heard again on the same hookup.

We are glad that NBC changed its mind. Not all employed persons are able to tune in the Saturday matinee Lucky Strike sponsored Metropolitan Opera performances. But we are still wondering over the wobbly NBC policy. Were the Chicago opera company's singers considerably better than NBC had expected, or what?

Correction, Mr. Fairfax: Jack (Billy Sunshine) Owens DOES play piano opposite Bones O'Brien on the NBC Sunday night silk show. He also joins in the singing ensemble. Jack, by the way, is proud of the fact that he used to ring doorbells in Wichita as salesman for that sponsor.

Inside Pickups

A GIRL HARMONY TRIO, well known to hillbilly audiences and formerly associated with a famous midwestern hillbilly station, isn't so associated any more, like "Annie." It seems that one of the girls, at a Barn Dance theatrical performance last Saturday, called one of the station gents a profane epithet which has four unprintable syllables. When the trio came to work Monday, the welcome mat had been pulled in. Maybe you too have wondered why and to whom Irene Beasley ends her programs with "Good night dearest. Take care of yourself." Well, maybe the lad from Washington who visited Irene over New Year's Day is it? And Beasley's sister Agnes, also visiting from New York, brought her itemized critical report on the Beasley programs—all of them—tagging each song and announcement "good," "had" or "so-so." After calculation Irene figured her batting average as .650, which isn't bad.

Eddie South, "The Dark Angel of the Violin," comes back with a bang Sunday, January 14, at 7 p. m. EST when his orchestra goes out over a wide CBS network for a band lotus sponsor. Welcome to the air again, Eddie. Play that gypsy fiddle plently.

SPONSORS ARE GETTING quotations on Vic and Sade again, and this pillar says they are worth it regardless of the price. . . Very funny, that tale about Bill (Grandpa Buiton) Baar's mother, who is Quaker Dutch and had never attended a theater. So Bill, being busy at benefits, asked his roommate to escort her to the opera. The roommate did. He took Mrs. Baar to see "Carmen"—and was Bill glad his mother doesn't understand Italian! . . . Which reminds that radioing opera-gers include Dolores Gillen escorted by songwriter Hoagy Carmichael, and Connie Osgood in another party. They saw Norman (NBC soloist and Merjeman) Cording sing the role of the King of Egypt in "Aida," and he did a grand job. . . Doug Hope has become his own press representative, or at least that's the role he plays nowadays in Myrt and Marge. . . Which reminds that Charles Riley, the Bernie-Heller press agent, is now glorifying the splendid new Chicago production of "Topsy and Eva."

And More Dirt

PERHAPS IT WAS COINCIDENCE, and maybe it was something else, but Al Rice, of the Maple City Four, wrote a tune called "Knute and His Flute." You've heard it broadcast? Well, a year ago, he loaned a manuscript copy of the song to band leader Harold Stokes, of NBC. And now, although Rice has never received his song back, nor did Stokes ever play it on the radio, Director Stokes has just composed a new song called "I Pick Up My Flute." Darned original, these band leaders. . . One celebrated coast-to-coast announcer showed extremely poor taste in the sketch he employed on his Christmas cards. And did it annoy the team he has worked with for years! We don't blame them. . . Maybe the College Inn comedy show isn't so funny or entertaining any more because they dropped the musical end to save pennies, and we don't suppose it helps when an actor receives only three dollars a broadcast. . . Charming NBC Hostess Ann Courtney hack in the hospital after too much Christmas. Our sympathies Ann; and take care. . . George Hogan, ex-KMOX-WJJD mickem, has replaced Announcer Milton Eichler at CBS-Chicago. . . "The Bob Sisters" is the unique title of an extremely interesting series of dramatic episodes by Margaret Morton McKay and Lucille Fisher, now ready for audition.

Taglines

PHIL REGAN, CBS tenor you've heard off and on with Guy Lombardo, is in Los Angeles taking a rest and a look at movie making. . . CBS All-Star Revue from the west coast, including Art Jarrett, Kay Thompson and the Three Rhythm Kings, is now supplemented by the "Seven Lovely Ladies," songbirds. . . Ozie Nelson received a six-month renewal for his Sunday commercial at exactly one minute to midnight, December 31, 1933. . . Alice Dancin, the philchritudinous miss "found" by Al Goodman, is being erroneously billed as the "blues warbler from the Windy City." Brooklyn demands redress.

 which had been fighting the battle of the bankers against the proposed government controlled banking institutions, immediately took up the cudgels against Father Coughlin. Calling him "a political radio haranguer" and characterizing his addresses as "flamboyant demagoguery," the newspaper, on the day following his violent attack on the bankers, shrieked in an editorial:

"How long will this ecclesiastical Huey Long be allowed to slander decent citizens of this free in the name of God?"

The Free Press followed this editorial blast with a labored effort to refute the accusations which he had made in his address, and then attempted to discredit him by disclosing transactions involving the purchase of $30,000 worth of stock with funds drawn from his three bank accounts. These accounts comprise a commercial account carried under the name of the Radio League of the Little Flower; a parish account carried in the name of St. Therese of the Child Jesus Parish; and a savings account, not a commercial or personal account, carried in the name of C. E. Coughlin.

Father Coughlin produced the ledgers of these accounts to show that the stock purchase represented an investment in the interests of the Radio League of the Little Flower, and so testified later before the grand jury investigation of Detroit banks.

In its attack upon Father Coughlin, the Free Press emphasized the statement of Leo J. Fitzpatrick, owner of Station WJR an organizer of the Coughlin independent network, that $9,000 was paid to radio stations on the chain for time and to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company for wires every Sunday. The money came through donations received from listeners. The Free Press stamped the money used for this purpose, and for the stock investment, as "charity funds," although money donated to the Radio League of the Little Flower is not solicited as a "charity fund" but for the purpose of financing the broadcasts and advancing the objects of the organization as Father Coughlin himself sees fit.

Four days after his radio blast against the bankers—on March 31, 1933—Father Coughlin was aroused from a sound sleep at three o'clock in the morning by a bomb explosion in the basement of his home. He called the police, whose investigation disclosed that the damage was slight. They could find no trace of the bomb container, but the smell of exploded powder was discernible in the basement; a long cord, by which the explosive had apparently been lowered into the basement window, also was discovered. The police advised the priest to go into hiding, but he refused to do so.

Father Coughlin was later called before the United States Senate committee investigating the collapse of the Detroit banks, to reiterate and substantiate his accusations. He gave the investigators all of the information at his command. Virtually every item in his indictment of the management of the banks and holding companies has since been corroborated by the testimony of banking examiners and officials of the closed institution.

It was brought out only last week at the resumption of the inquiry, that Bert K. Patterson, former national bank examiner who had resigned from the government service to become executive vice president of the Guardian Detroit Union Group, Inc., had received a letter dated December 17th, 1931, from Alfred P. Ley-burn, chief national bank examiner in Chicago, notifying him that field examiners would arrive in Detroit within a few days to conduct an examination of the bank's books.

It was further brought out that the final dividend of $150,000 declared by the Guardian National Bank of Commerce in the closing quarter of 1932 had been preceded by the report of W. A. Regan, national bank examiner, showing that the doubtful assets of the institution exceeded its entire capital funds of $17,000,000.

It was also brought out that R. L. Hopkins, national bank examiner who later entered the employment of the Guardian group, recommended "leniency" to the comptroller of the currency in dealing with these banks. Another bank examiner sent a warning to the comptroller of the currency regarding the condition of the National Bank of Commerce in May, 1932, nine months before the Michigan banking holiday was proclaimed.

It was further disclosed at last week's hearing that large amounts of holding company stock were held by the banks themselves as collateral for loans, which Ferdinand Pecora, Senate Committee counsel, characterized as a "circumvention of the law."

Father Coughlin emerged from the imbrolio with the Free Press with a much larger following and considerably enhanced reputation for fearlessness. His admirers ignored the attempts of the newspaper to discredit him and hailed him as the man who forced the Detroit banking scandal out into the open.

Cantor's ribbing of Rubinoff? I wonder if the recent Radio Guide poll had anything to do with it... you recall not one of the contestants was in favor of it... Back to the hotel to put on the soup and fish and later join the hilarious throng in welcoming the New Year... The next time I was ABLE to listen to a program was Wednesday night, so back to the NBC studios to catch the premiere of Fred Allen's new series. If you heard the program and didn't like it (although I thought it was good) don't blame Fred. It was the program he auditioned which led to the new contract and the sponsor insisted he start the new series with it, although the droll comic was not so sold on it... During the program I saw Ferde Grofe strike a woman—yes, I saw it with my own eyes, but don't be alarmed, he didn't mean it... It's just because Ferde swings a mean baton and Mary McCoy happened to be standing too close to him... anyway it's the McCoy that Mary can take it... It didn't interrupt her expert vocalizing one bit.

Here's some good news for many readers, two of the ether's outstanding stars have been renewed for another year... They are Jessica Dragonette and Lanny Ross... this will make the fifth year for Miss Dragonette on the Cities Service program and her eighth on NBC, which is something of a record for a soloist... Shirley Howard was also presented with a renewal contract for a fifty-two week stanza from her sponsor... In the issue dated November 25th, I mentioned that Alice Faye visited a fortune teller on Fifty-seventh Street, each week and that I wondered what the crystal-gazer told Vallee's hot-charmer—well, since then I've found out... the reader of the tea leaves told Alice at that time that she would be on her way to the coast in a short time and that she would be in pictures. What a prediction... Line forms on the right folks...

Downey Back on CBS

The silver tones of Morton Downey's tenor voice will soon be heard over CBS, as a sustaining feature again. Mort will sing from Columbia studios in various towns in which he'll be vaudevilleing... Tom Waring of the Fred Waring gang, has just recovered from an attack of flu which kept him off the air for one Old Gold program... Laryngitis has been bothering Kate Smith again, since she's been overworking in vaudeville, singing forty or more songs a day, in five or six daily turns. She had to cancel her Milwaukee bookings last week and heal for Lake Placid for a rest cure... Guy Lombardo has broken a precedent of long standing, and is trying out girl singers with his band. The first, whose name was unannounced, but whose voice was appealing, sang on the White Owl CBS show last week... Three thousand people a week will be out of the studio audience roster as the Fred Waring presentations have returned to the CBS studios and no more large halls will be hired for the remainder of the current series...

Raymond Paige continues in his musical novelties and pioneering on his "California Melodies" broadcasts. First it was the business of dressing good old "Dinah" up in various musical costumes. Now it's his intriguing and fascinating "tone tests," which should interest you... George Beatty, the comic, has served notice on his handlers that he is not interested in a commercial unless he is given a free hand with his own material. George refuses to put up with sponsorship kibitzing... Don't be surprised if Max Baer has signed up as a guest artist with the Ipana Troubadours. When he was first approached, his managers wanted such a huge fee that it was out of the question, but when Baer learned that Walter Huston, who had been in Baer's movie on the Coast had signed to be a guest, Baer expressed real interest in taking a "bow spot" on the same show later on... The wise guys on Broadway are telling Rubinoff that he has made a real mistake in attempting to turn hotel orchestra maestro. Rubinoff has signed to go into the Hotel Roosevelt, but the boys point out that if he flups in that spot, it is not going to do the Rubinoff rep an awful lot of good—and being a smash in a nite spot is no longer the cinch it used to be... If the Boswell Sisters leave the CBS airwaves, it will be because there has been hard feeling between Harry Leedy, their manager, and CBS artist bureau execs for some time. Leedy feels that the girls should have been offered for a lot more commercials than they had been offered recently... Even opera singers bend over backwards when it comes to attempting to be a "smash hit" when they take to radio. Lawrence Tibbett has been offering popular ballads for some time, and now Lily Pons, the Metropolitan Opera song bird, insists on doing most of her songs in English when she is guest artist with the Hinds Hall of Fame show next Sunday.

Walt's Stoogents

Roberta Wells, Leon Belasco's newly signed vocalist, will be featured with Belasco's orchestra for all of his CBS broadcasts... Walter O'Keefe inaugurated his "Night School of the Air" on his broadcast last Friday. Six "stooges" are his "pupils"... Phil Dney spent several days last week in bed suffering from laryngitis... Patient is doing well... Jack Fulton goes sustaining soon from Biltmore Hotel... In answer to many queries, the Carleton Smith on the announcing staff at NBC's studio in the nation's capital, is not the same Carleton Smith who writes for RADIO GUIDE.

Georgie Jessel is the envy of the entire staff at the Columbia Broadcasting System. He is sporting a coat of tan that is strangely incongruous with New York's frigid weather and would enable him to do a Jolson impersonation without make-up... Lulu McConnell has definitely quit radio for the next two months.

Now that holiday season is over, Radio Row is again buzzing with news about new programs and new talent on the way to the microphone.

Phil Cook, whose hagful of trick voices has long been a popular feature on NBC channels, has packed his bag and moved over to CBS, where he now appears every Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday with the Silver Dust Sereaders. Phil, although the master of many voices and dialects, has resolved to use but one voice and one character for one program on his new series.

Shirley Howard, after an analysis of her fan mail for the past year, finds that thirty-nine percent contain song requests, thirty-eight percent ask for her photograph, twenty-one percent submit broadcast review—and two percent contain proposals of marriage. Sorry, two percent, that gal already has a mate.

'PRIVATE LIFE of JOE CORNTASSEL'

Mr. Dahm and the sponsors.

It was, and still is, a lot of fun playing "Joe," but, gosh! I never thought it would last this long! I was hoping it would keep up pretty long, but I never even began to think that I'd be lucky enough to be "Joe" up to now. I am entering my fourth year on the air. It feels mighty good to know that in the past three years I haven't missed or been late for a single broadcast.

Well, I guess that's enough about how I got to play in the "Little Orphan Annie" sketch. Lots of kids ask me where I go to school, what my habits and hobbies are, and what I do when I'm not broadcasting. They seem to think that I'm different from other boys my age.

Well, I bet I can pick out about a million kids that do the same things I do, and play the same games, but I guess people will always be thinking that radio folks are different. And talking about sports, golf, baseball and horseback riding are my favorites. When the weather is all right, there's nothing I like better than to play a good round of golf with my friends, or take a nice ride out in the country on a good fast horse.

There are a few things I like to do when I'm indoors, too. One is to play ping-pong. It's great fun playing ping-pong. Whenever I have extra time, I play with some of the fellows up at the NBC studios. Another indoor hobby I have is to raise and breed tropical fish.

Gosh, I sure wish you could see all my tropical fish. There are over two hundred of them, that I raised myself. There are more than twenty different kinds, and sometimes, get the idea of training my fish to do tricks, but I guess Teddy, my wire-haired terrier, is better qualified for that kind of training.

Lots of folks seem to think that I don't go to school as regularly as other boys, or that I go to a private school.

I have always attended public school in Chicago. I was graduated from grammar school when I was twelve years old, and I am now a senior at the Austin High School.

I haven't time to do much after school, as I have to go right to the studios. Down at the studios I like to experiment with the sound effects until "Maw" Silo tells me to stop all the noise. But she really doesn't mind. It seems that all of the folks I come in contact with at the studios are the friendliest and the best people I have ever met, especially Frank Dahm. Gosh! He's a swell pal! And he knows all about kids' characters, too.

Holy smokes! Sometimes I think that he hides under my bed, or behind the door, because he knows so much about me and my appetite, which he re-enacts in my script character. And talking about appetites, you may have heard that I eat plenty. Well, believe me, that's true! I can make food on the table disappear faster than any kid you ever saw!

One of the many things that my friends keep asking me is what I want to do when I get older.

The logical thing, I guess, is to continue in radio. This may sound funny, but I was thinking that maybe I'd like to be a reporter, working on a daily newspaper. I write for our school paper, the Austin Times, and it's great fun.

I know on thing though, I'm going to try to make the best of every opportunity I get, because I feel that's one way I can repay my beloved parents for their never-tiring efforts in trying to make me a success.

HELP IMPROVE RADIO PROGRAMS

RADIO GUIDE wants the honest opinions of listeners everywhere about the entertainment value of important sponsored programs on the networks. Fan mail is an uncertain guide because, with few exceptions, the people who do not like a program do not write to the sponsors or the stations. The sponsors and the broadcasting companies are doing their best to give you the kind of programs that you want but, in many cases, they are shooting in the dark because they do not know what you prefer in the way of entertainment.

RADIO GUIDE is now carrying on a campaign to improve radio programs by obtaining first-hand information for sponsors about your reactions to their presentations. You have a very definite opinion about every program to which you listen regularly. You have expressed it many times to your own family and friends. But the editors of RADIO GUIDE cannot meet you in your living room and talk it over with you. They must depend upon you to sit down and write your honest opinion about a certain sponsored network program each week — why you like or dislike it and your suggestion for improving its entertainment value.

This Week:
 TELL US WHETHER YOU LIKE OR DISLIKE THIS PROGRAM AND WHY
Show Boat Hour
Musical drama series featuring Annette Hanshaw, Lanny Ross, Lois Bennett, Conrad Thibault, Show Boat quartet and Gus Haenschen's orchestra, broadcast Thursdays at 9 p. m. EST, 8 p. m. CST, over NBC-WEAF network.
 NOTE: Please vote your preference for "Mary Lou" role, including Miss Bennett, Katherine Newman and Muriel Wilson.

Each week, RADIO GUIDE will select a sponsored network program upon which you will be asked to comment. In an adjoining column you will find the rules of the contest and a summary of the prizes which you can win.

Remember, literary ability will not influence the decisions of the editors, who will act as judges in the contest. Not the manner in which you express yourself but the value of your ideas is the important thing. Tell your friends to enter the contest, too.
