QUEEN OF THE CAMPS Read How Rita Hayworth Earned That Title on Her Recent Tour

AT CAMP BOWIE Rita learned about nicking the Nips from Lieutenant Arthur D. Lord, in charge of training bayonet fighters, earned the title of "Honorary Sergeant," was proclaimed "Sweetheart of the 156th Infantry"

GOOD TROUPER right up to the last appearance, Rita proved herself an A-I girl with the men. To christen tank named after her at Camp Bowie, she used a beribboned bottle of pop, hopes tank is now in active combat

Keep your smile bright...but

DON'T WASTE PEPSODENT

An overwhelming number of boys in uniform have made Pepsodent their first choice . . . they are taking nearly one-fourth of all the Pepsodent we make.

Civilian demand, too, is the greatest ever.

But, wartime restrictions keep us from making more.

And so . . . we urge you: Don't hoard Pepsodent. Use it sparingly. If you help save enough for others . . . there will be enough for you.

DON'T LET Pepsodent run down the drain. Always wet brush before applying paste. Then DON'T RUB — Dab moist brush in powder. This way all the powder is picked up by the brush. Measure out powder for small children.

DON'T USE more tooth paste than you need. About three-quarters inch is enough. Pepsodent multiplies itself many times in rich lather.

DON'T USE a worn or wilted brush. Keep new ones efficient by hanging them up to dry. Bristles stay firmer, last longer this way.

DON'T SQUEEZE tube carelessly. Roll it evenly from bottom. Replace cap. Save empty tube to exchange when you buy paste again.

DON'T BLAME your druggist if he has to disappoint you the first time you ask for Pepsodent. He will have it for you in a few days.

DON'T POUR Pepsodent powder on your brush. Pour it into the cupped palm of your hand. Enough to cover a 5-cent piece is plenty.

only a little Pepsodent is needed to make your teeth bright, your smile sparkle, because Pepsodent's exclusive formula contains patented ingredients recognized among the safest and most efficient known to dental science. So . . . keep your teeth bright . . . but don't waste Pepsodent. Help save enough for others . . . and there will be enough for you.

We wish you a Merry Christmas and A Happy 1943.

And add a particular wish to all those in the armed forces.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer films are flown to our warriors in Iceland, Ireland, Great Britain, Australia, Hawaii and New Caledonia.

"Tarzan's New York Adventure", for instance, had its world premiere in Iceland whither it was flown by army plane.

At the moment, as Santa shouts "On, Donder and Blitzen", there are two films of opposite type tucked in his bag. There's the melodious music box of hits "For Me And My Gal".

Judy Garland, the all-talent girl, (the boys with Judy are George Murphy and Gene Kelly) fulfills every promise of her precocious entertaining art.

Two of the pictures now in production at MGM dealing with the one burning topic of today are recommended espe-

One is the talked-about "Journey for Margaret". The other is the will-be-talked-about "Cargo Of Innocents".

Both are from novels and both were condensed for the Reader's Digest.

'Journey For Margaret' is a William L. White story of a refugee child who found a refuge at last.

It presents little "Margaret" O'Brien in one of the greatest of all performances. Robert Young and Laraine Day admirably foster the child.

Three strong men star in "Cargo Of Innocents".

They are Robert Taylor, Charles Laughton and Brian Donlevy. But more about this anon.

It is a lionhearted picture.

Naturally.

Meet Marcy McGuire

HICAGO night-clubs went wild when seventeen-year-old Marcy McGuire strutted her stuff in husky-voiced tornado fashion. Hollywood, to her, was just a place she read about in movie magazines. That is until one night when director-producer Tim Whelan heard her sing and told her she ought to be in pictures. Result of that interview was a screen-test aboard a California-bound train and a fast taxi ride back from the first stop for Marcy's next show at the Rhumba Casino. Upshot of the test was a part in RKO's "Seven Days Leave," and next a term contract with the same studio!

Log of Radio Stations By Frequencies!

Now! A Log of All Stations in the U. S., Canada and Mexico

OF THE more than nine hundred radio stations in the United States, the average receiving set-whether it be in New York, Seattle or New Orleans—is capable of bringing in only a small percentage. Why, then, some may ask, when a listener can hear only a small fraction of the total number of stations in operation, does he want a complete log of all stations? Maybe it's the native curiosity of Americans. But the fact does remain that many readers have requested that we publish such a log. In recognition of this desire expressed by so many, Movie-Radio Guide presents on pages 18-19 of this issue a complete frequency log of all broadcasting stations in the United States, Canada and Mexico. Yours for better listening!

Irene Rich, Star of "Dear John" Series, Works to Aid War Effort by Raising Foodstuffs on Her 300-Acre Ranch

FARMERETTE Irene Rich shows off a little ham-to-be. Her shepherd dog, Nicki, looks on. Miss Rich's ranch is a real business

FOOD for victory is a living slogan to Irene Rich. The glamorous star of the "Dear John" series is a lady farmer who makes her California ranch a serious and profitable business. Foodstuffs, feed, poultry and livestock from the ranch find their way to markets throughout the state.

Irene went into the ranching business shortly before the war began, bringing to reality long-cherished dreams. The war demand for farm products gave her venture a doubly important place in her life.

Miss Rich is no kid-gloves farmerette. She runs the three-hundred-acre ranch with the help of one solitary hired man. She pitches in on milking and harvesting, tending pigs and feeding stock.

The actress and her daughter Frances planned their ranch home and furnished it with antiques and art objects they had collected. It's done in early American style with gay chintzes and hand-woven rugs.

THE MOON MURDERS

An "Inner Sanctum Mystery"

A Nice Guy Who Didn't Have Courage to Murder Faces the Death Penalty for Four Killings He Didn't Commit

NEVER knew Lois Neville, never even saw her. But because she was murdered on July 16—the night I was driving up to Aunt Carrie's place—they said I did it. Me, Johnny Kidd, who couldn't murder anybody.

And tomorrow, when the sun comes up, I'm going to die. I'm scared. So scared I need every drop of willpower I've got to keep from laughing and screaming like a howling idiot. I've got to write this. I'm no murderer and I'm writing this to prove it.

I'm no angel, I admit. But I'm no worse than anybody else. I got into a little trouble in town, but it wasn't my fault. No matter what they said at the trial. The guy owed me the money, and he had it but wouldn't pay. That's why I signed his name on the check. Anyway, I wanted to get out of town for a while, so I decided to go to Aunt Carrie's. I hadn't seen her in ten years and she was always writing to me to come for a visit. Besides, she had some money. I knew, and why shouldn't I be nice to her?

There was only one dim light in the window when I drove up. It was raining cats and dogs and the thunder rolled over the hills around Aunt Carrie's little place. When I walked up to the door, I heard someone playing the piano. It was two o'clock in the morning and the music kind of made me feel queer. Then I heard a high-pitched voice inside. It was a man's voice, and at first I couldn't make out what he was shouting. I came closer.

"Play louder, Carrie!" the voice screamed. "Louder! Play it louder than the thunder!"

'Yes, Randy.'

I recognized my aunt's voice even if I hadn't heard it in ten years. But who was the man asking her to play the piano at two o'clock in the morning, play it so loud that it would drown out the thunder? Why did he ask that?

knocked at the door, but had a hard time making myself heard above the racket of the storm outside and the music inside. There was something screwy about both. Finally, Aunt Carrie came and unbolted the door. She recognized me right away and seemed downright tickled to see me. I kidded her about how young and pretty she looked and almost snickered when the old girl blushed. Then came the scream from the man inside and Aunt Carrie's face fell.

"Who's that?" I asked.

"I wish you had told me, Johnny, that you were coming. It's going to be difficult."

Carrie, the thunder!" the man in the living-room shrieked. I asked again who it was and Aunt Carrie told me dolph. He came back some time ago."

I'd almost forgotten Uncle Randolph. I hadn't seen him since I was a kid and I nearly had forgotten what he looked like. I remembered my mother telling me something about him going to England, but for some reason the story never seemed to be the truth. There was something strange and secret about Uncle Randolph, and here he was at Aunt Carrie's.

"Your uncle's not very well this evening," Aunt Carrie explained. "It's nerves, just nerves. He took a trip to town today and it upset him very much. He's not often this way, but when he is, I play the piano for him. It—it's the only thing I know that helps him."

I told her that I understood, but I didn't. I said it must be sort of hard for her to take care of a man like that all by herself, and she admitted it was a chore. Then she invited me to stay.

"It'll be good to have someone bright and cheery about," she said. We went in and met Uncle Randy. He was a nice-looking old man with a childish face and thinning black hair that seemed to stand on end. His clothes were neat and his spectacles had a way of falling down across the bridge of his nose. He was fidgeting in his chair.

"The thunder, Carrie!" he cried as the whole house trembled under a gigantic clap. "It's-it's coming down from the sky again! Make it stop! I can't stand it! I can't stand it!"

"I'll play for you, Randy," said my aunt, moving toward the piano.

One minute Uncle Randolph had been a mild-mannered old man and the next moment he had turned into a little child frightened of a thunderstorm. I sat and watched him quiet down while Aunt Carrie played. Finally the storm passed and we went to

The next morning Aunt Carrie fixed a breakfast for me and Uncle Ran-dolph brought it up to my room on a tray. He seemed embarrassed about the night before.

"I—I'm afraid I wasn't quite myself last night," he told me. "I want to apologize. I haven't been in good health lately and sometimes if you see me act—odd, you'll excuse me, won't you?"

I did my best to make him feel easy and said I knew how it was.

"It's just that thunder and lightning -the things connected with the heavin a low voice.

I almost jumped out of bed when I found a picture of a pretty girl who had been killed near my aunt's home the night before. I read the story

First" written on it in black ink.

I looked up from the paper. "Look, Auntie," I said, "they have a picture of the card."

But Aunt Carrie backed away. She didn't want to see the picture of either the girl or the card.

"I—I hate these murder stories they run in the paper," she said. "I never read them.

Well, things went along fine for about a month. Uncle Randolph didn't have any more of his spells and it was real cozy at Aunt Carrie's place. Then, one night when the moon was shining like day outside. I came home late and found Aunt Carrie playing

"I thought you'd be sleeping by this time," I told her. "I was certainly surprised when I heard you playing."

"I—I couldn't sleep. I'm worried about your Uncle Randolph. He—he went into town and isn't back yet."

Suddenly I remembered the news I'd heard over the radio. There had

Before he could been another murder around there-say more, Aunt just like the last one. The victim was a woman and the murderer had left a card that said "The Second." The murder had been committed only about two or three hours before I came home. I told Aunt Carrie about it and she broke off her piano playing with an abrupt discord.

Because of her nervousness, I began putting two and two together. I suddenly asked her if it was true that Uncle Randolph had been in England all those years. She tried not to answer and I knew I'd hit on the truth.

"Was he in an insane asylum all that time?" I asked.

"No, of course not." she replied, but there was no conviction in her

That night, before Uncle Randolph returned, I found some white cards in his room exactly like the cards this moon murderer had been leaving near his victims. I also found some black ink like the kind on the cards. When I showed them to Aunt Carrie, she finally admitted that Uncle Randolph had been in an institution. I told her we'd better tell the police; that we'd feel a lot safer if we found out for sure that Uncle Randolph was innocent of the crimes.

"No, Johnny," Aunt Carrie cried. "Don't you realize what this would mean? They'd question him, and he he couldn't stand it. He'd break down. Johnny, he's my brother; we've always been very close. I beg you, don't call the police. I'll do anything you want—anything, but don't call them. Randy didn't commit those crimes—he—he couldn't. If it's money you want, Johnny, I can see that you get it. There's one hundred and fifty thousand dollars I have in my name. You can have that after I die."

Fast work. When 20th Century-Fox' head man Darryl Zanuck, now a colonel in the Army, was bidding farewell to friends and co-workers on the lot, one of the boys gave him fifty dollars, asking him to give it to a mutual acquaintance in Ireland, should he happen to see him. At that time Zanuck didn't know where he was going. Yet a few weeks later the Hollywood chap got a letter from his pal thanking him for the money. That was fast work; but what really amazed him was to hear reports that Colonel Zanuck and his staff had landed safely in Africa, where the entire African campaign is being photographed with Zanuck in charge of the ground crew. Commander John Ford, Hollywood director, will supervise the naval and air battle pictures at sea. Major William Wyler (director of 'Mrs. Miniver") will assist Zanuck in filming the first complete battle ever photographed . .

First-hand information. That's what Edward G. Robinson is getting for his new picture, "Destroyer," which he will do for Columbia. Even though the picture is being rushed, Eddie took a week out to learn how to become a riveter and operate an acetylene torch out at the shipyards, and got a first-hand idea of the war effort there. Incidentally, Robinson just returned from a tour of Army camps in Scotland and England . . .

Barkground. Whenever Ida Lupino poses for pictures at her home, she has trouble with her police dog, Duchess, who insists on running into every shot. Ida apologized for the trouble the dog caused and said, "She's nothing but a ham. Always thinks she must be my 'barkground'"...

Wacky does it! Chico Marx has organized a dance band, and is going great guns in Chicago, playing at the Blackhawk restaurant there and broadcasting over Mutual regularly. Chico wired us in Hollywood that he's crazy about the band business. In answer to requests of fans for he and his brothers to make another picture, Chico said his one ambition now is to build up one of the ten most popular dance bands in America—only then will he consider making more movies. And Chico's just wacky-smart enough to do it! .

Presenting Jane Withers, star of Republic Pictures' "Johnny Doughboy"

MOVIE REVIEW "Johnny Doughboy"

Cast: Jane Withers, Henry Wilcoxon, Patrick Brook, William Demarest, Ruth Donnelly, Etta McDaniel, Joline Wesbrook, and members of the 20 Minus Club—Bobby Breen, Baby Sandy, "Alfalfa Switzer," "Spanky" McFarland, Butch and Buddy, Cora Sue Collins, Robert Coogan, Grace Costello—The Falkner Orchestra, Karl Kiffe. A Republic picture, produced and di-rected by John H. Auer. Screenplay by Lawrence Kimble from Frederick Kohner story

This Is the Story: Jane Withers plays a dual role most effectively. As a famous child movie star, reaching her sixteenth birthday and tired of "kid" parts she's forced to play, Jane runs away. At same time another young lady appears on the scene who has won a trip to Hollywood for being Jane's closest double. Plot is light, but kids of "Our Gang" era, now grown up, are good.

Verdict: Good music with lots of laughs. Swell entertainment!—Family.

Latest in Hollywood that has all the female radio-studio employes in a dither is the producers' class that CBS is starting to conduct in the evenings. All radio actresses as well as secretaries, switchboard-operators and typists have signed up for it. They will be taught the finer points of the trade by the producers at the studio and are being readied to take over any positions left vacant by enlistees or draftees. Word of a venture of this sort doesn't stay secret in radio circles very long, and now CBS is deluged with phone calls from outsiders wanting to know if they can take advantage of the course. As things stand now, Mrs. Wilder, who is heading this project, is consulting with Mr. Thorburgh, and a decision has not yet been reached, with the result that many good manicures are being ruined by anxious nail-biting . . .

Bill Thompson, who portrays Wallace Wimple, the timid soul so plagued by Sweety Face on the Fibber McGee program, wants it made public that he's not in the market for advice on marital problems. He's a bachelor and, from all indications, intends to remain in the state of single blessedness. "So much of my mail comes from fans who want to give me marital advice," Bill laughs. "I guess they feel so sorry for me, listening to the exploits of Sweety Face, they believe I'm actually married to such a person. Thank goodness, I'm not" . . .

The Rudy Vallee show Crossley rating has been going higher and higher each week. It is now at it's highest peak in history, and one of the reasons is the addition of comedian Gil Lamb to the show. Gil's due for gobs of credit. He does an excellent job of portraying Homer Clinker on the program, but better still it's the spirit he seems to exude that makes the show go over so big. A vaudeville vet, Gil does a half-hour "jitterbug" comedy routine before the broadcast that causes such a riot not only among the audience but among the players of the program as well that their enthusiasm carries over into the broadcast, and, somehow, the whole show has been faster—and so much funnier . . .

The wax with which recordings are made has been limited considerably. Record companies cannot turn out nearly as many disks as previously. But what is interesting to note is that the War Department has waived all limitations on "Der Fuehrer's Face." They will allow to be made as many as can be consumed.

"LA TRAVIATA" DEC. 5 . . . RUBINSTEIN WITH PHILADELPHIA ORCHESTRA DEC. 11

Stokowski Leads NBC Symphony Dec. 6; Licia Albanese, Tibbett Head "La Traviata" Cast; Bob Allen Takes Over Capt. Glenn Miller's Band

By ROBERT BAGAR

New York World-Telegram Music Critic and Associate Program Annotator for Philharmonic-Symphony Society of New York

RARELY performed work, the Karol Szymanowski "Symphonie Concertante" for piano and orchestra, opus 60, is one of the pieces programmed for the December 11 concert of the Philadelphia Orchestra. Eugene Ormandy, of course, conducts, and the rest of the list offers the Rossini "L'Italiana in Algeri" overture, the Hindemith Mathis der Maler and the Grieg A Minor Piano Concerto. The soloist in the two pianoand-orchestra pieces is Artur Rubin-

The Szymanowski piece is the Ukrainian composer's only one for piano and orchestra. It is not strictly a concerto, for the piano is less the solo instrument than is the case in a concerto. In this music, piano and orchestra take turns at being featured. It is dedicated to Mr. Rubinstein.

The spirit of the work is folkish, though its themes are not direct copies from Ukrainian folk numbers. There is a good deal of elasticity in the work's harmonic structure, which, I suppose, answers to the designation of "modern harmony." And the melodic content is itself freely roving, as you might say.

The Grieg A Minor Piano Concerto, which has been making the rounds of the dance bands-at least, the first melodic strain of the opening movement has-in fox-trot tempo, is another composition not too often heard. It was written in 1868, when the composer was a mere twenty-five, and it obtained its first performance at Copenhagen on April 3, 1869. After its world premiere, Edmund Neupart, who played the piano-solo part, wrote to the composer, "On Sat-urday your divine concerto resounded in the great hall of the Casino. The triumph I achieved was tremendous. Even as early as the cadenza in the first movement the public broke into a real storm. The three dangerous critics, Gade, Rubinstein and Hart-mann, sat in the stalls and applauded with all their might. I am to send you greetings from Rubinstein and say that he is astonished to have heard a composition of such genius. He would like to make your acquaintance."

One of the early admirers of the Piano Concerto in A Minor was Franz Liszt. In his monastery home at Rome. Liszt played the piece at sight before a company of friends, including Grieg. who had come on a visit to the great man's house. The Norwegian composer had not expected such a sterling performance of his work—and at first sight, though he did find that the first movement "was too fast and helterskelter."

It has been said by some observers that the A Minor Concerto is, in effect, autobiographical, which may or may not be so. But one could not deny it its youthful elan. The composer's love of nature, too, is said to course through it, and, of course, the music teems with references to folk-tunes.

(The Szymanowski "Symphonie Concertante" and the Grieg A Minor Piano Concerto will be played by Artur Rubinstein and the Philadelphia Orchestra under the direction of Eugene Ormandy over MBS on December 11.)

The Lady of the Camelias

Like the play known in this country as "Camille," the libretto by Fran-cesco Maria Piave of "La Traviata" is based on the Alexandre Dumas novel "La Dame aux camelias." The novel came out in 1848 and the play derived from it was first produced in 1852. Verdi, who saw the stage version in Paris, became smitten with the subject and decided then and there to employ it for an opera.
"La Traviata" was introduced at the Teatro La Fenice, Venice, on March 6, 1853. It was a fiasco. It was laughed off the stage. But a little over one year later the work was given at another Venetian theater, the San Benedetto, and it not only met with success but it soon became the rage all over

Some of the reasons for the original failure are not hard to understand. In the first place, there was a good deal of bickering between certain artists and the management of La Fenice. Second, the baritone, one Felice Varesi, cared little for his part of the elder Germont, so he gave it little effort. But the most important reason of all had to do with the unsvelte figure of the soprano. Signora Donatelli. She was said to have an excellent voice, but her proportions were a little too robust to make her a believable consumptive. That was why the audience laughed. It seems, also, that discriminating ladies and gentlemen, who comprised that first audience, would have none of operatic singers dressed in the styles of their day.

The role of Violetta, the heroine, is the opera's chief one. In fact, the opera has become known as a prima donna's opera. Adelina Patti was one of the singers thoroughly devoted to it. Others were Christina Nilsson, Lilli Lehman, Marcella Sembrich, Geraldine Farrar, Luisa Tetrazzini and Amelita Galli-Curci.

The cast for the Metropolitan broadcast includes Licia Albanese as Violetta and Lawrence Tibbett as the hero's father. The conductor, Cesare Sodero, makes his broadcast debut with the Metropolitan Opera Company.

("La Traviata" will be broadcast over the Blue Network on December 5, directly from the Metropolitan Opera House in New York.)

Finishing the "Unfinished"

Philip Hale has written of the sketchy third movement of the Schubert "Unfinished" Symphony, "Let us be thankful that Schubert never finished his work. Possibly the lost arms of the Venus of Milo might disappoint if they were found and restored. The few measures of the scherzo that are in the manuscript furnish but a slight hope that here, at last, Schubert would not, as in so many of his works of long breath maintain a steady decres-

Oddly enough, theories have not been wanting as to the whys and wherefores of an uncompleted symphony. One with a bright idea suggested that Schubert had penned this composition as a "tribute to the Glory of the Incomplete." There have also been attempts to finish the Symphony. One of these by a certain August Ludwig of Berlin. He supplied the two missing movements, calling the third a "Philosophen-Scherzo," and the finale, "March of Fate." The fourmovement version, believe it or not, was performed in Berlin on December 8, 1892. This Ludwig had conjured all sorts of fantastic and significant descriptive phrases for the two missing movements. The motto of the whole piece in his arrangement went, "Brazen stalks Fate, yet she is crowned with roses and love!"

One can be thankful, in the face of such presumption that these ambitious enterprises have been throttled at birth. Two movements of Schubert may not constitute a whole symphony, but, at least, it does add up to two movements of pure Schubert.

(The "Unfinished" Symphony of Schubert will be played by Leopold Stokowski and the NBC Symphony over NBC on December 6.)

POPULAR MUSIC

Like Ennis, Bob Allen began with late Hal Kemp

BOB ALLEN, young bandleader who is making much headway these days, can thank his lucky stars that Glenn Miller joined the Army. For Allen, who used to be Miller's vocalist, thus was presented a golden opportunity to lead a band. Prior to the engagement just mentioned, Allen had been the vocalist for another name leader, the late Hal Kemp. He started out for Chicago, one fine day, armed with much enthusiasm and a round-trip ticket, all set for an audition with Kemp. He made the grade. Today he still possesses the back-home half of the ticket, which he proudly shows to anyone who is interested.

As a matter of fact, Allen is one of a trio of Kemp ex-singers who have climbed rapidly, the two others being Janet Blair and Skinnay Ennis.

This young batonist has several pet theories concerning band singing. He believes that much vocal training is bad for a pop singer. He points to Lyn Gardner, his vocalist, as being a fine, natural singer who possesses the particularly personal quality in her voice which is ideal in the popular field. Janet Blair, for instance, had had a good deal of vocal schooling. This, he feels, stood in her way, while she was with Kemp. However, he continues, her technical skill stands her in good stead in her present work, that of starring in movie musicals.

The youthful maestro is at his best in tunes of a dreamy, melodious character, pieces like "Street of Dreams" or "Sentimental Feeling." The band, The band, however, does not adhere to this type of song exclusively, for its members are a swing-minded group of musicians. In some of the faster tunes, Randy Brooks, twenty-two-year-old trumpet-player who started his career at the age of twelve with Rudy Vallee, sets the pace. Brooks, too, used to be with Hal Kemp. He makes no bones about his dislike of the triple-tongueing that used to be the Kemp band's features. Brooks likes the hot stuff.

One of the things Allen is proudest of is the fact that when he took over the Miller band he was awarded the former's unfinished contract with Bluebird records. However, one hazards the guess that nothing much will be done about fulfilling that until the present ban on recordings is rescinded.

Meanwhile, Allen is looking forward to the day when he will go to Hollywood to replace Glenn Miller in some of the offers the ex-bandman and present captain, U. S. A., had pending.

PROPAGANDA CAN WIN THE WAR AND THE PEACE, SAYS OWI OFFICIAL

Blue Network "Victory Hour" Supplements High-School Victory Corps; Psychiatrist Advocates Offensive Psychological Warfare via Radio

BROADCASTERS, it seems, can endure the perplexities of educational programs just so long. And, likewise, educators working with radio periodically reach a bursting-point. Then they must get together and talk things over.

It was my pleasure to attend two of these "get-togethers" within the last month. One was the Association for Education by Radio conference at Stephens College, Columbia, Mo.; and the other was the School Broadcast Conference that is held each year in Chicago. Though both meetings were termed "radio education conferences," each dealt with a different phase of educational broadcasting. The Stephens College meeting attacked the war-time problems of radio stations, whereas the School Broadcast Conference, as usual, was primarily concerned with the use of radio programs in the classroom.

Psychological Warfare

Dr. Louis Berg came to the Columbia meeting from New York to advocate offensive psychological warfare through radio and, in a surprise move, to throw a bouquet to the "soap operas." This latter gesture was particularly interesting in view of the fact that Dr. Berg, an eminent psychiatrist and author, has been a consistent and articulate foe of the day-time socials.

time serials.

"Entertainment programs," he asserted, "are valuable morale-builders when they help us relax from war strain. But we also need more programs which will show the American way of life, the true color of the enemy, and the things for which we are fighting. Such programs are—or can be—'soap operas.'

"Music is another of our strong morale-builders," he continued, "but until 'Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition' came along we have had no songs with which to march off to war."

Propaganda's Role

Approaching the propaganda question from a different angle. Charles A. Seipmann, one-time BBC official who is currently with the Office of War Information, maintained that propaganda can win the war and the peace to follow. Seeing a need for more of the spirit of '76, he traced man's fight for freedom from our own revolution to the present day.

to the present day.

"In the middle of the nineteenth century," he pointed out, "the stream of liberty bogged down and America fought the bloodiest war in history to release it. Now it has bogged down again—or at least so Hitler thinks. Hitler says men want security more than they cherish freedom. That is the issue of this war. There is no status quo. We can step back, or we can go forward. We cannot stand still.

"This is the truth radio must communicate to the ordinary man," he asserted, emphasizing that every man must be made to feel that he is a part of the moving tide.

Through propaganda, he pointed out, radio must (1) enable the public to know the enemy, recognize his creed, logic and ambitions, (2) must inform us about our allies, and (3) must show us our own history.

us about our allies, and (3) must show us our own history.

"Propaganda can win the war, and must," he concluded. "Armed victory alone cannot."

At the Chicago School Broadcast Conference the emphasis was placed on more widespread use of war-time radio in schools. Due to the present, and in some cases, acute shortage of teachers, increased utilization of radio in education was predicted.

Radio as Postwar Forum

Lyman Bryson, director of education for CBS and chief of OWI's Bureau of Special Operations, addressed the annual banquet session in Chicago. Mr. Bryson, familiar to listeners as the moderator of CBS' weekly "People's Platform" series, pointed out that radio has an important function to serve as a postwar forum—not to settle questions specifically, he explained, postwar radio plans, including the handling of discussions of the peace question.

1942 "Award of Merit"

One thing that was done at the Chicago meeting which seemed to meet with unanimous approval was the presentation of the SBC's 1942 "Award of Merit" to quiet, unassuming Robert B. Hudson of Denver. Definitely not a glory-grabber, Bob Hudson through hard and good work has made the Rocky Mountain Radio Council one of the outstanding radio education projects in the country. Though the work of this council reaches listeners only in the region of Colorado and Wyoming, what it has accomplished has a national significance as an example of how a tough regional radio situation can be handled efficiently and with remarkable results.

"High School Victory Hour"

If you have a boy or girl in high school, you're probably well acquainted with the High School Victory Corps. That's the project through which high-school students in all communities are aiding in the war effort in a great number of practical ways. Some have volunteered for air-raid-warden service, fire-warden service, emergency ambulance driving and the like. Others are aiding employed mothers with the care of their children, are assisting in Red Cross and community-health services and in book and salvage-collection campaigns.

Radio, through the "High School Victory Hour," is playing an important role in this project. In addition to serving as a medium for the promotion of these various activities in high schools, the "Victory Hour" attempts to explain the reasons and objectives of the war, the necessity for various phases of the civilian war effort and the significance of events taking place.

The format of the program follows a popular "variety" pattern that includes music by military bands, interviews with students and with men in service, pick-ups from Army camps and naval bases, appearances by "name" personalities. Every program includes a short analysis of the military situation of the week by a prominent radio commentator. George V. Denny, Jr., moderator of "America's Town Meeting," acts as narrator.

The "High School Victory Hour" is

The "High School Victory Hour" is broadcast Tuesday afternoons on the Blue Network, and is planned and presented in cooperation with a number of Government agencies, such as the War and Navy Departments and the Office of Education. More than one hundred and twenty stations carry the program—probably a higher percentage than are carrying any other Blue Network sustaining feature.

BBC Inaugurates New Service for Troops in Africa and Middle East; RAF Pilot Describes His Reactions During a Night Raid on Genoa

Service to Troops in Africa

BOUT a month ago the BBC in London inaugurated a new and very special Overseas Service. Its sole object is to cheer and interest Allied troops in North Africa and the Middle East. There are seven hours of continuous broadcasting entertainment every day for the armed services. The programs are broadcast as follows: 11:45 a.m. to 1:45 p.m. over GSF (15.14); 1:15 to 5:00 p.m. over GSB (9.51); 4:00 to 5:00 p.m. over GSD (11.75) and 5:00 to 6:45 p.m. EWT over GRY (9.60).

Programs of this special service to troops in Africa are entirely different from the regular African Service of the BBC, for the needs of this listening audience is entirely different from a civilian one. These are men and women away from their families, often in considerable danger and nearly always in considerable discomfort. Therefore, especially in the canteen with noise and talk going on, they will not be in the mood for "strenuous listening." Their main need is good light music and variety. The BBC, therefore, aims at providing entertainment broken occasionally with short flashes of "attentive" listening, such as news headlines, two- or three-minute talks by popular speakers, sports news and greetings from home folks or friends. But most of all the fighting man wants to turn on a "tap" of good, light entertainment to cheer and refresh him; lively music to pep him up. The best of Britain's entertainment world, the choice of Britain's bands appear on the program for fighting forces in Africa and the Middle East.

Night Raid on Genoa

What are a pilot's feelings on these long night-raiding trips? A young British R. A. F. pilot, speaking from London, described his own reactions to these long flights as follows: "Last night I was sent on my favorite trip— to Genoa. The route itself is very im-pressive. The beauty of the trip is fantastic. The double crossing of the Alps, with the snowy peaks glittering below in the cold, frosty light of a full moon is something one will never forget. There is no monotony on this detail, for it is hazardous enough to be thrilling, and at the same time we can get a real punch at the enemy in the place it hurts most. Approaching our target, we crossed the black hills that almost surround Genoa. Below lay the sleeping city, looking small and unreal. We dropped our flares in a line across the city. Soon after, we saw the first bomb flashes. Then we saw fires starting here, there and everywhere. At first looking like pin-points of light, they gradually spread, while the sky became illuminated with the dull red glare of spreading conflagrations. We saw one four-ton bomb hit a building; saw it disintegrate and the walls of surrounding structures crumble and fall in. Having dropped our eggs. we started back for home. The natural beauty of the return trip was further enhanced by a great white meteor that lit up the whole sky as we crossed France."

Stars Over Hollywood: WABC WCAU WJSV WCAO WHP

Frankie Carle, pianist on Horace Heidt's "Treasure Chest" over NBC Tuesday nights, amazed the studio audience and his co-workers recently by playing the piano with his hands behind his back. Recovering from his astonishment, Heidt quipped, "I guess Frankie is afraid to face the music."

From Notes to Boats!

Francine Gale, formerly a musician in Phil Spitalny's "Hour of Charm" all-girl orchestra, has left the music business to take a job in one of Henry Kaiser's California shipyards. In addition to her regular work, Francine joins with some five hundred other ex-showbusiness people now employed by Kaiser in lunch-hour shows for the entertainment of other workers.

Good Turn Dept.!

Although he can't see, Fred Lowery, the blind whistler featured on Horace Heidt's NBC "Treasure Chest," is an avid football fan. Because he has so many friends among the players of both the National and American Leagues he always gets a batch of tickets which he gives to the youngsters in the neighborhood who go to the games with him and give him a play-by-play description.

A Cinch, Huh?

Authoring radio drama is no cinch, according to NBC scripter Jack Mitchell. Here's why: For each thirty minutes of script on "Road to Danger," Mitchell has to spend more than thirty hours of research. Since the locale is China, research conditions are even worse, and to help offset some of the difficulties presented by maps lettered in Chinese, Mitchell has started to learn the language.

If you want an exposition on the virtues of the Red Cross, call Joseph Gorner, concertmaster of the Carnation Contented orchestra. The other morning someone in that organization phoned Joe to say, "Thought you'd like to know your family is well, safe and happy." Gorner's family is in Moscow and he hasn't had word from them for more than a year.

Cantor Submits "War Slogan"

Eddie Cantor, who has coined slogans for the President's "March of Dimes" campaign and a host of other philanthropic organiza-tions, has submitted a "war slogan" to the Treasury Department for the sale of bonds and stamps. The slogan considered "most dramatic and effective" is being kept a secret for the time being.

Treasury Plugs Payroll Song

The payroll savings song, "Everybody, Every Pay Day," first performed on the "Treasury Star Parade," is in line for a big plug by the Treasury Department, which intends to push sheet-music sales, supply dance bands, school bands and vocal groups with arrangements, distribute electrical transcriptions and to radio stations, and arrange for special union permission for commercial recordings.

Curley Was Right T'Hum

An actor's job is to impersonate the character whom he is portraying. Recently that proved a cinch for Curley Bradley, who plays Stumpy in "Road to Danger." In an episode of the weekly drama, Stumpy, a truck-driver, was called up to extinguish a burning oil well by blowing it up with nitroglycerin. The action came naturally for Curley, who used to work around oil fields in his home state of Oklahoma. He was even able to aid author Jack Mitchell with technical details.

Yoo Hoo, Frisky! Nuts!

Franklyn MacCormack, NBC's famous poetry-reader, found truth in the axiom, "It's not the initial cost, but the upkeep, that's expensive." Frank found a bargain in walnuts not long ago, and stocked up on them. He began feeding a neighborly squirrel on the nuts, and the squirrel told his friends. Now there are eight daily customers who bang on the MacCormacks' back window for their nutty handout, and Frank has had to buy a new supply each week.

In the December 19-25 issue, Movie-Radio Guide will publish a log of all broadcasting stations in the United States, Canada and Mexico arranged alphabetically by station call letters. Reserve a copy at your nearest newsstand today!

Make Mine Vanilla

Rudy Vallee is no longer calling his quartet the Sportsmen but the Four Fountainairs, a more fitting title since the program's locale is set in a village country store housing an icecream fountain. In addition to warbling, the Four Fountainairs are called upon to double as actors, do goon laughs and imitate barn-

Radio-Made Recluse

There's only one way William L. Shirer, the Sunday CBS news analyst, can get his script done each week. Shirer shoos out of his office people who constantly drop in to discuss world affairs, locks his office door and refuses to answer telephones.

Stoopnagle Plans to Return

Col. Lemuel Q. Stoopnagle is coming back to the networks with a vengeance. He's reviving his "Quixie Doodle" programs soon and has been signed by M-G-M for a five-minute Monday through Friday series on the Blue Network.

Canteen Like Home

Actress Judy Blake really makes the British servicemen feel at home when they talk to her at the Stage Door Canteen Saturday nights. Judy, who plays Penny in "Mary Marlin," went to school in England for six years. She has met several boys whose sisters she studied

Question Service

Mary V. Fisher, Easton, Pa.-No, "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" is not scheduled to be sent over the airlanes this winter.

Mrs. Albert Davidson, Traverse City, Mich.—Your favorite, Charles Star-RETT, was born in Athol, Massachu-setts, on March 28. He now stands six feet two inches, tips the scales at 185, has brown hair and eyes. He's the youngest of nine children, and was given his choice of the career he wished to follow. At the age of thirteen he ran away from home, but was soon brought back to finish school. He attended military school at Billerica in Massachusetts. Worcester Academy and Dartmouth College. For three years at Dartmouth he was on the varsity football team, but he never forgot his desire to act. After graduation from Charles Starrett college he spent prefers comedies several months at the American Academy of Dramatic Art in New York. His first professional experience was in writing and producing one-act plays for the benefit of tired shoppers at Wanamaker's department store in New York City. After that Starrett spent some years in stock, traveling over New England. Back in 1926 Starrett began his screen career when he and others of the Dartmouth football squad supported Richard Dix in "The Quarterback." Charles prefers breezy and flippant comedy roles, but he's a hero to western fans. Charlie likes to go to the movies, likes to read a lot, looks forward to his hunting- and fishing-trips. He's married to MacKinnon, home-town sweetheart,

Mary Osusky, Chicago, Ill.—Thanks for your nice words, ma'am . . . Don Norman's in New York right now, so far as I know . . . EDNA O'DELL, the WGN songstress, is not married. She was born in Marion, Indiana, on August 8, 1904, spent her childhood in Fort Wayne, sang in the church choir. A local station manager heard her has twin sons.

sing "Bring Back My Soldier Boy to Me" on an amateurnight program, and planned her radio debut. She started out as a soprano, but after a grave illness which she bravely survived, she became a contralto. Edna has no Hoosier songbird hobby, can't attend sport games because she's too apt to yell away her voice, loves to fish, does plenty of reading-and rehearsing. She's not superstitious, except about three on a match. Edna's a brunette, stands five feet seven inches, weighs about 140. She has a jolly disposition, enjoys cooking for friends in her own apartment.

Miss Alberta Campbell, Fort Scott, Kans .- The Bob HAWK show, "How'm I Doin'?," is no longer on the air, but Bob can now be heard on his new program, "Thanks to the Yanks," over the CBS network on Saturday evenings at 7:30 EWT.

MOTHER OF FOUR EARNS $1,000 ON HER WRITINGS

"Without jeopardizing our home life a bit, I have been able to earn $1,000 since graduating from N.I.A. If I had not the responsibility of four small children, home duties, and war work, I am sure I could have made much more. After only two lessons I sold a garden series to Baltimore American. The N.I.A. way makes writing child's play."—Gladys Carr, Annapolis, Md.

Why Can't You Write?

It's much simpler than you think!

So many people with the "germ" of writing in them simply can't get started. They suffer from inertia. Or they set up imaginary barriers to taking the first step.

Many are convinced the field is confined to persons gifted with a genius for writing.

Few realize that the great bulk of commercial writing is done by so-called "unknowns." Not only do these thousands of Not only do these thousands of men and women produce most of the fiction published, but countless articles on business affairs, social matters, domestic science, war activities, news items, etc., as well.

Such material is in constant demand. Every week thousands of checks for $25, $50, and $100 go out to writers whose latent ability was perhaps no greater than yours.

The Practical Method

Newspaper work demonstrates that the way to learn to write is by writing! Newspaper copy desk editors waste no time on theories or ancient classics. The story is the thing. Every copy "cub" goes through the course of practical criticism—a training that turns out more successful authors than any other experience.

That is why Newspaper Institute of America bases its writing instruction on the Copy Desk Method. It starts and keeps you writing in your own home, on your own time. And upon the very same kind of actual assignments given daily to metro-politan reporters. Thus you learn by doing, not by studying the individual styles of model authors.

Each week your work is analyzed conthey help to clarify your own distinctive style. Writing soon becomes easy, absorbing. Profitable, too, as you gain the "professional" touch that gets your material accepted by editors. Above all, you can see constant progress week by week as your faults are corrected and your writing ability

Have You Natural Ability?

Our Writing Aptitude Test will reveal whether or not you have natural talent for writing. It will analyze your powers of observation, your im-agination and dramatic instinct. You'll enjoy taking this test. There is no cost or obliga-tion. Simply mail the coupon below, today. Newspaper Institute of of America, One Park Avenue, New York, N. Y. (Founded 1925)

Mrs. Chas. Clark, Mattoon, Ill.-Glad you like Movie-Radio Guide so well ... The program "The Old-Fashioned Revival Hour" is an MBS presentation sponsored by the Gospel Broadcasting Association. You can hear it on Sundays at 8:00 p.m. CWT.

Mrs. Mary Saunders, Niantic, Conn. -As far as I know, the show "I Love a Mystery" is not scheduled to return to the air. Sometimes, however, lastminute plans are made. "The Mystery Man" is not scheduled to return either -and that's as much as I know right now.

Billy Ziegler, Ethel, Ont .- For nine years now Virginia Clark, petite engaging actress with the light-brown hair, brown eyes and charming smile, has been playing the title role in "The Romance of Helen Trent." Virginia was born in Peoria, Illinois, but moved to Little Rock, Arkansas, when she was three. Among her activities in Little Rock was being leading lady in class plays and singing in the town's favorite trio, the other two members being James Melton and Dick Powell.

Mr. Fairfax will answer inquiries from readers who send self-addressed stamped envelopes

SUGAR-RATIONING is no longer new to you now. For many months you have been stratching you have been stretching your supply and conserving your quota right down to the last grain. Possibly you have given up many of your favorite recipes which call for quantities of this precious commodity. But don't do that. Keep your family in delicacies, desserts and cookies and still conserve your sugar. Your old recipes can be adapted to substitutes—new recipes have been perfected. These are the them a try! There isn't a family in these United States that doesn't love honey—and I'll make a bet on that! This highly concentrated sweet will zip up your days when honey, molasses and, yes, even gelatin play an all-important role in your cupboard accessories. So give cakes and cookies-so use your standard recipes and juggle the ingredients. There are two ways of accommodating this new addition. Either reduce the amount of liquid one-fifth for each cup of honey or make the flour measurements scant and reduce the liquids one-fourth. But remember, if you are adding chocolate, fruits, nuts, raisins or dates, do not reduce the liquid one drop. Cut down on the actual baking time, and your creation will be light, moist—truly delectable. Try these cookies on the family and wip their enthusiastic approval!

Chocolate Cookies

1¼ cups honey

cup shortening eggs

squares chocolate 11/2 cups rolled oats teaspoon baking-powder teaspoon salt

teaspoon cinnamon ¼ teaspoon soda

2½ cups flour

teaspoon vanilla

cup walnuts

Melt chocolate. Cream shortening and honey, add beaten eggs, oatmeal and chocolate. Add sifted dry ingredi-ents, walnuts and vanilla. Drop on greased cookie sheet and bake in moderate oven for fifteen minutes. Makes seven dozen cookies.

Excess acids, poisons and wastes in your blood are removed chiefly by your kidneys. Getting up Nights, Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes, and feeling worn out, often are caused by non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles. Usually in such cases, the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the Kidneys flush out excess acids and wastes. And this cleansing, purifying Kidney action, in just a day or so, may easily make you feel younger, stronger and better than in years. sweet. In every pioneer cabin, every colonial household, every covered wagon, housewives dipped freely from the molasses kegs. Generations of Americans have eaten molasses because they like it. But it took the scientists of this generation to find out how good it is for us. Now we know that molasses is a valuable protective food because of the iron it supplies-that New Orleans molasses is the second richest food source of the iron which the body uses, second only to liver. So, when you serve the family Molasses Sponge Chiffon Pie, you will not only appeal to their sweet tooth, but will supply valuable nutrition as well. Try this:

Molasses Sponge Chiffon Pie

- 1/3 cup molasses
- 2/3 cup milk
- 1/4 teaspoon baking-soda
- eggs, separated
- teaspoon gelatin
- tablespoons cold water 1½ tablespoons lemon juice

Bake pie shell and set aside to cool Blend molasses, milk, baking-soda and egg yolks and cook for ten minutes over hot water. Remove from fire and add gelatin which has been hydrated in the cold water. Add lemon juice. Chill. When beginning to congeal, fold into stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into pie shell and chill for serving.

And would you believe it? Unflavored gelatin can also save your sugar coupons, as the ingredients of salads and desserts will be naturally sweetened by the dried fruits or syrups from canned fruits. What's more, gelatin desserts preserve the vitamins and minerals of fresh fruits and vegetables and retain the valuable nutrition in juices of cooked ingredients. So try this Prune Oriental Cream, which is as intriguing as its name.

Prune Oriental Cream

- envelope plain unflavored gelatin
- 1/4 cup cold water
- ½ cup scalded milk (not boiled) 1/4 teaspoon salt 1'3 cup cooked prunes, chopped
- 1 3 cup seeded raisins, chopped cup cream or irradiated evaporated milk, whipped
- egg whites
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts

Soften gelatin in cold water. Add hot milk and salt and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Cool, and when mixture begins to thicken, fold in whipped cream, prunes, raisins and nuts. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into mold that has been rinsed out in cold water first and chill. When firm, un-mold and serve sprinkled with chopped nuts, with or without whipped cream. Bottom and sides of mold may be lined with halves of cooked prunes, if de-

The Moon Murders

I wasn't sure just what I would do. That was a lot of money Aunt Carrie was talking about and-

"I—I'd give it to you now," she said, "but I can't touch it. You see, it was left to me by my father in a fund so I'd always have enough to care for poor Randy! But it'll be yours, all yours, if you help me. Please, Johnny, Please

I didn't call the police. I told Aunt Carrie I'd help her, and she told me, with tears in her eyes, that I was a "good, sweet boy." Uncle Randolph came in just then and he seemed nervous and excited. He asked my aunt to play the piano for him.

He looked very tired as he watched Aunt Carrie play. I—I thought I saw the outlines of a long knife under his coat and the stain on his sleeve might have been blood. The storm that had been brewing came up fast and soon the whole countryside was roaring with thunder. But I hardly heard it. I hardly heard the din of the piano music in the small living-room.

One hundred and fifty thousand dollars for me! And I wouldn't have to wait for it, for I thought of the perfect plan! I'd only have to wait until the next full moon!

I searched Uncle Randy's room, found what I was looking for-a long, very sharp knife. At last, the twenty-third came. That night there would be a full moon. Just before dinner, I sneaked into Uncle Randy's room, got the knife and some of his ink. He had only one card left. It was easy to forge his handwriting, because I had been practising that from letters I stole. I wrote the words "The Third" on his card in his handwriting and put it in my pocket. After dinner Uncle Randy went to his room. I locked him in and came downstairs. Under my coat I had his long knife.

Aunt Carrie asked me if I was going out, but I told her that there was a full moon and I thought it was safer to stay at home. I said I'd locked Uncle Randy in his room.

"You didn't have to do that, John-y," she said. "I don't believe your she said. Uncle Randolph would harm me, or harm anyone for that matter. That card you found was just a coincidence. The only reason I didn't want the police to come here is because they would cause your uncle needless suffering.'

It was then that I showed her the knife I'd found in Uncle Randy's room and her face became white with fear. I said she had nothing to worry about, that I was there to protect her. Then I pretended that I was joking and I came toward her with the knife and grabbed her arm.

"Let go of me, Johnny!" she cried. "Don't be frightened, Auntie," "It's just a joke, you see. The papers said the killer slashed his victims' throats. He must have done it like this—"

"Johnny!" she shrieked as I held her tightly in my grip. "Please, Johnny! Don't! I've been good to you! I've taken you in, given you my money! My money! That's it! That's

I held her tighter. She couldn't get away. I brought the edge of the knife closer to the side of her throat, under the ear, where I knew a deep slash would be fatal. But suddenly, I knew I couldn't do it. Just didn't have the nerve. I dropped the knife!

"I—I can't do it, Auntie," I cried, releasing her. "I wouldn't hurt you. I—I was only joking, see?"

I wiped the perspiration from my forehead. Aunt Carrie slumped down in her chair. Her voice broke with hysteria.

"Just one of your jokes!" she mumbled between laughter and tears. "Just one of your jokes."

I told her I was going out for a while and would be back later. That must have been when she called Sheriff Watkins. I hardly think it could have been later, for Uncle Randy must have crawled down the vines out of his room just about then, and I came back only a half-hour later.

As I came up to the house, I saw the lights go out. I quickly let myself in with my key. Uncle Randy was in the living-room. He said Aunt Carrie had knocked the light over.

"There's another near the piano," he said, and I went across the room and turned it on.

There on the floor, her throat and clothes smeared with blood, lay the body of my aunt!

Uncle Randy was contrite and his normal self again, but he realized what he had done. He told me he overheard Aunt Carrie calling the police and thought she was doing it to get rid of him, have him sent back to the asylum. Just as he finished explaining, we heard the siren on the police car coming up to the house. Uncle Randy told me he had to go to his room, that there was something he had to do. I felt sort of sorry for him and turned to let the police in as he walked slowly upstairs.

The sheriff came in and took a look at the body, then asked me who had killed her. I told him her brother.

"He was insane," I said. "He's the moon murderer."

"Where is he?" the sheriff asked.

"Upstairs," I said.

I went along. There was nothing else could do. Of course, we found Uncle Randy's room locked and I told the sheriff he must have gone into some other room, maybe mine. We went across the hall and opened the door.

Uncle Randy was there. Beside him on the floor lay his long, sharp knife and the floor was wet with blood. Uncle Randy was dead-he had taken his own life!

Sheriff Watkins searched me. He found the key to Uncle Randy's room in my pocket and the white card with 'The Third" written on it.

"Same handwriting. What's the matter, son? Didn't you have time to make out a card for your uncle, too?" What do you mean?" I asked.

"I mean you're under arrest for murder, son!"

They found some of my finger-prints on the knife and with the card in my pocket, I didn't have a chance. They didn't believe me when I told 'em I didn't do it. And they sentenced me to die. I'm innocent, see? Absolutely innocent. I didn't murder Aunt Carrie or Uncle Randy. But they wouldn't believe me. It's a miscarriage of justice, that's what it is. I can hear the guard's footsteps coming down the corridor, coming for me! They can't kill me! I didn't do anything. I'm Johnny Kidd, a nice guy, and I didn't do a thing!

Hats off to Kay Kyser, who spent seven consecutive Saturday nights with his band at the Hollywood Canteen playing for servicemen—turning down all other engagements for that particular evening . . .

"Hello, Frisco, Hello." If you want to be heard on the 20th Century lot where John Payne, Alice Faye and Jack Oakie are making the picture by that title, you have to shout, because Payne's and Oakie's suits are so loud they scream! In fact, the checks are so bright they would make a colorblind person blink. Even Oakie feels conspicuous! Peek at Alice Faye, who stars in the film, reveals a very shapely

Iowa's Donna Reed achieved a niche for herself in Hollywood's Hall of Fame, but it didn't affect the size of her hatband. Donna stayed on at the Studio Club, where most young movie hopefuls land when they come to Movietown, until tire shortage and gas-rationing made it necessary for her to move nearer to her work. When she gave up her twelve dollars a week room and board quarters at the club, she said, "I'm going to miss my friends and the fun we had, even if I will have a three-room apartment" . . .

Guy (Scattergood Baines) Kibbee is playing the role of Saint Peter in a Government short. Quipped Guy, "I'm not worrying about the 'gate' receipts on this one"...

Jean Arthur sets a precedent. One of the shyest girls in pictures, Jean recently invited a group of servicemen from the USO to watch her do a big love scene with Joel McCrea. Usually no visitors are allowed on her set. Bravo, Jean! You're one of the finest actresses in Hollywood, and that gesture is going to help a lot toward offsetting some of the unkind remarks which have been flung in your direction about being uncooperative.

Fabulous Jinx Falkenburg, the mostphotographed girl in America, has so impressed Columbia with her life story that the studio is going to make it into a picture, titled "Fabulous Fe-male." It will include her modeling days, her experiences entertaining servicemen in the Canal Zone and her forthcoming marriage to Tex McCrary, newspaperman. And Jinx will star in the piece . . .

Jottings from Movietown. Ann Sheridan's gardener, fifty-six-year-old Arne Lindstrom, will make his movie debut with Mistress Ann in "Edge of Darkness." Arne's never seen a picture except those in which she appeared . . . Title of Dot Lamour's new picture is an apt one—"They Got Me Covered." It's the first one in which she gets a chance to be really dressed for a part . . . Buck Jones, Monogram star, has left Hollywood chores for a tour of eastern Army camps . . . Warner Baxter returns to films after a long absence to play featured role with Ginger Rogers in "Lady in the Dark."

to Happiness." They've been dating for seven months. Radio and the Navy gold-braiders are giving the couple a ten-day leave for a honeymoon in the Smokies . . .

Rita Ascot (Fay Perkins Henderson in "Ma Perkins") is flashing a ring and a mysterious smile around the studios. She admits the engagement, but won't name the lucky feller . . .

Willard Farnum, veteran of twelve years' service with the nets, is off to Dartmouth in the blue and gold of a Navy ensign's uniform. A specialist in juvenile roles, Farnum's been heard lately in "Sweet River" and "Flying Patrol" . . .

It's a boy at Frank Dane's house, a blond seven-pounder named Bruce. Pop plays Tom Bryson in "Backstage Wife" . . .

The "typical Navy mother" will spend the week of December 5-11 at Great Lakes Training Station. She'll report via the "Meet Your Navy" show on Blue what she has learned about the way of life of our new sailors . . . Todd Hunter, CBS announcer, fills his Marine lieutenant's uniform handsomely. He will be called up soon ...

Alex Dreier, who's been spelling Robert St. John in London, is due back in these parts by mid-December. I imagine he'll be grumbling plenty. When he went overseas, he hoped he'd get a chance to visit our Russian allies and broadcast from Moscow. So far, no dice, and he'll probably have to content himself with the London story. That hasn't been exactly dull, thanks to Ike Eisenhower . .

Joe Pigand (my personal dwarf with gremlinish tendencies) got to talking about my column the other day. He contended that it was getting too dull. "What we need," he said. is a good murder. Nothing crude, like an insurance-collection stunt, but a first-class crime of passion involving a gorgeous serial queen and one of our better announcers." I agreed that such an item would make good reading, but pointed out that it would be hard on the principals. He was indignant. "Properly handled," he argued, "it would be a mercy killing. We could pick an announcer who spoils good drama with soupy commercials. The murderer would become a national hero!" I tried to explain that the announcers weren't responsible for the commercial copy, that they often groaned inwardly as they read with faked enthusiasm. "Okay, said Joe, "we'll start on an advertising man or, better yet, a sponsor. I'll arrange it." With that he disappeared—all those darned pigands do that at the drop of the hat—and I haven't seen him since. All I know is that the boys responsible for commercial plugs had better watch their step these next few weeks.
