The Making of Military Bands.

By Lieut. H. E. ADKINS, Mus. Bac., A.R.C.M., L.R.A.M.

[Few people are better qualified to speak of military bands than Mr. Adkins, who is Director of Music at Kneller Hall, the Military School of Music. A programme of music at Kneller Hall will be broadcast from Daventry on Tuesday, September 8th.]

NEGROES in the band of the Coldstream Guards! It sounds ridiculous, yet up to the time of the Crimean War it was the general practice to have these coloured players in the band. They did not play syncopated music, either, but the good, old-fashioned military tunes. Regiments vied with one another to dress them in the most magnificent manner, and they appeared with feathered headgear, loose coats, and coloured sashes. They played the "clash-pans," or cymbals, as they were then called, and the old "Jingling Johnnies," which consisted of a pole supporting a number of sleigh bells, which were shaken by the player.

The beginnings of military bands go back as far as the time of Charles II., who authorized twelve "hautbois" in various companies of Foot Guards in London. It is interesting to note that these men were given a fictitious name, and were borne on the strength of other companies of the regiments then quartered in the country. By this questionable device the musicians obtained higher pay.

After a hundred years had passed, the bands of the three "Regiments of Guards" consisted of no more than eight performers—two clarinets, two oboes, two horns, and two bassoons. They did very little more than play from the Horse Guards' parade ground to St. James's Palace, whilst the King's Guard was mounted. These musicians were not soldiers, but were hired by the month; and on a certain occasion, when water sports were held on the Thames, the colonel of the regiment wanted them to play and instructed them accordingly. But the civilian musicians considered this course to be undignified and outside their proper duties. They refused to play, and as a result of this rupture, the then Duke of York, Colonel-in-Chief of the Coldstream Guards, obtained a large number of musicians from Hanover.

Military bands had already developed to a comparatively high pitch of excellence in Germany, and the new Coldstream band consisted of twenty-four musicians, the instruments including clarinets, horns, oboes, bassoons, trumpets, trombones, serpents, tambourines, and "Jingling Johnnies." These latter were shaken by three coloured performers. This innovation and its subsequent development led to the foundation of our present military band system.

Other Regiments of the Line were now allowed to form bands, but the whole of Reputations By Radio.

Impressions of Orators. By Sydney A. Moseley.

REPUTATIONS are made and marred by public speeches. "Single Speech" Hamilton may or may not have justified the history he made by a solitary effort. Or to come down to more recent times, Mr. Duff Gordon may have really earned the paeans of praise which heralded his maiden speech in Parliament. How are we to tell? In the past it was usually through the written word. Today, however, Press-made reputations give way to radio reputations which, besides being the invincible test, are the more reliable. Old time reputations, therefore, are in the melting-pot.

Revised Ideas.

How, then, have many prominent reputations fared? I confess that I myself have had to revise my ideas of many public men and women since hearing them through the microphone. Although, in the course of my profession, I have had to attend a good many public functions, I will admit that there can be no better means of weighing up our prominent publicists than in the seclusion of one's own study. Being present at the function, it is not such a good test. The lively atmosphere, a good dinner, sweet champagne and an engaging companion do not make for unbiased judgment. And certainly the delightful newspaper reports the next morning are, more often than not, too kind and sometimes too partisan!

True, a good speaker need not necessarily be good at anything else, yet the fact remains that the world judges and forms its impressions of its public servants from their public utterances. They would prefer a speaker who can be seen, sized and summed up. Failing that, to hear him by wireless, to judge from his tone, to "feel" his personality and consider his remarks undisturbed by his tricks and mannerisms.

The Premier's Notable Effort.

As for the general tone of public speeches, one cannot give a uniform judgment. Many speakers both pleased and surprised me, others pained and disillusioned me.

Take the Prime Minister, for instance. I already had an impression of Mr. Baldwin many years old. It wanted overhauling, another advantage which some of us may obtain through listening afresh to our old idols or bêtes noires. I consider that Mr. Baldwin's speech which he delivered on a non-political subject the finest public utterance I have heard for many a day. His delivery was perfect. Every word rang out vigorous and vibrant. A manly, common-sense speech spoken with a fine flow of language and beautifully chosen phraseology. Those who have been disappointed with the general standard of public speaking to-day must have derived some consolation from Mr. Baldwin's notable effort.

I liked Mr. Arthur Henderson's talk. It was clear, cultured common-sense. To a good many, Mr. Henderson's reputation as a public speaker must have risen many points after his effort at the microphone.

A Striking Example.

A delightful surprise were Dame Henrietta Barnett's talks. Here is an instance where the reputation of an illustrious man may overshadow merit due to his wife. I knew of the Janets twenty years ago; but it was of the Canon that we all spoke. Could anything be more strikingly illustrative of the new opportunity to judge for ourselves than the case of Dame Henrietta Barnett? The tens of thousands who knew of her merely as a name now know her to be possessed of a wondrous personality, humanity and insight.

Some of the transmitted speeches appear to have been more inspiring to the vast unseen audience of wireless listeners than to the audiences who were fortunate enough to be present. I found myself moved to applause on several occasions when there was no response from those present. And vice versa. A more moving occasion than the Pilgrims' dinner given to Mr. Houghton, the American Ambassador, has not been recently had. Coming at a vital moment in European affairs, one certainly expected speeches of a very high order. The Ambassador's speech, as it proved, was epoch-making and was reproduced in the world's Press, verbatim.

Light Amid Much Shade.

Mr. Houghton, however, made no attempt, so it seemed to me, to move his audience. He indulged in no flight of rhetoric and, as I thought at the time, it read much better than it sounded. As for Mr. Austen Chamberlain, the impression he gave was that he did not trouble to prepare a speech at all. I have heard him from the public platform and have met him privately. Mr. Chamberlain has a natural, hesitant and sincere manner of delivery and, no doubt, as Foreign Secretary, he had to go very warily on what was a diplomatic as well as a social occasion. Nevertheless, his speech must have come as a disappointment to his multitude of unknown admirers.

Lord Birkenhead's light and gay speeches are amusing when heard through the ether. Indeed, his speeches are sometimes in the nature of a relief—the light amid much shade. Nevertheless, one expects loftier themes and dignified eloquence from a Lord Chancellor.

Popular Through Wireless.

For an almost perfect oration, however, one must turn to the Lord Chief Justice, Lord Hewart. I am sure that among listeners, he must rank high as a public speaker, and since very few of his listeners can have had the opportunity of judging him at first hand, one might almost say that he has achieved a popular repute through wireless.

I do not suppose that I should ever have had an opportunity of hearing Mrs. Philip Snowden speak if it had not been for wireless. From her writings, one formed an impression that she was merely a theorist—the wife of an eminent politician. Her talk on Palestine, however, completely changed my conception of her. Undoubtedly, she has a personality, a strength of mind and ability of a very high order.

Elusive "G.B.S."

What can one say of our one and only Bernard Shaw? In the course of my work, I have just missed meeting him on two occasions. Elusive Mr. Shaw! But I got him on the wireless. It was with some trepidation that I switched on. I put on, if you please, in my unseemly eager state, four valves—as if G.B.S. needed magnifying! I hesitated before switching on at all. I wondered whether it might not be better for me to retain the vivid impression of a wonderfully virile personality obtained from his great works. Well, as you know, he did not fail us. He achieved all we hoped he would achieve. And since my impressions must be shared by nearly all who heard him, I will leave him with a hope that we may hear him again.

Finally, I would say this. Religious minded people may wonder what impression the Sunday services have on those of the modern school who "never trouble" to attend services. It is, of course, difficult to offer a general suggestion. My own impression is that the quality of the singing and of the sermons themselves fluctuate widely when they should always be on a consistently high level.

The Making of Military Bands.

the expense was shared by the officers of the individual regiments. Wealthy regiments engaged highly trained musicians, and very naturally a certain rivalry grew up between various regiments. Each tried to make its band the best and unique. The 2nd Life Guards, for example, boasted in 1831 that they had "the famous Russian chromatic trombone band—the only one in England;" and the Elthorne, Middlesex, Militia spoke with pride of their band of "Pandean Reeds."

* * * *

It was evident that the instrumentation of military bands would have to be standardized and the pitch of the various bands brought to some common basis. Without this, no massed playing was possible and much inconvenience was caused. For the reconstruction of the military band system we were mainly indebted to William Wieprecht, a German who, by the way, designed the bombardon, and to whom credit is given for introducing a complete family of valved instruments. These are said to have included slide bass trombones, euphoniums, E-flat cornets, and B-flat tenor horns.

* * * *

Curiously enough, there is still practically a semi-tone difference in pitch between music in the service and the best part of music played elsewhere, both in England and abroad. This unfortunate state of affairs, which does not permit instrumental co-operation, was, perhaps, brought about by Kneller Hall fixing the pitch in 1858, as that used at the ancient Philharmonic Concerts.

Twenty-seven years later, the Philharmonic adopted the international or continental pitch, with a view of helping to standardize the pitch throughout the civilized world. As a matter of principle, the military authorities were anxious to conform with this change, but the cost involved was too great to be sanctioned in these times, when economy with public funds is a matter of national interest.

* * * *

I have heard it said that brass instruments do not "carry" very well by wireless. Their reproduction is said to be inferior to that of a good gramophone. There may be no recognizable rattle, but sometimes there is a certain harshness mixed with everything. Some think that military bands make too much noise before the microphone, and that the volume should be cut down. The trouble about this is, that by interfering with the proper volume, the real tonal relationships are lost. But the question of the transmission of wireless music is really a technical matter, rather than a musical one, of which I am not qualified to speak. I have sufficient confidence in the capable engineers of the British Broadcasting Company to feel sure that in a short time the quality of the transmissions of military band music will be equal to that of any other kind of broadcasting.

* * * *

There is something about a military band which has always called forth the enthusiasm of people, not only in war, but in peace time. Few radio enthusiasts, I imagine, can listen to the inspiring strains of a military band playing some national composition without feeling a thrill. There is, something, too, about the swagger of a military band, which tickles the interest. Even the German poet Klopstock confessed that the "Marseillaise" cost Germany 30,000 of her finest soldiers, and no one will deny that "Tipperary," which was the universal favourite of all the bands at the front in the Great War, played a considerable part in that great victory.

[A further interesting Contribution by Lieut. Adkins next week.]

Radio Remedies.

By Robert Magill.

THERE is no doubt that, in time, wireless will make us all healthier. At sea, for example, many a life is now being saved because a ship which carries no doctor can get into immediate touch with a medical man on another vessel, describe the symptoms of a case, and receive the treatment back on the spot. I confess that it would be awkward if they got a weather forecast mixed up with "the mixture as before." The further outlook for the patient might be very unsettled, but you can't have everything.

Then lectures on hygiene by radio probably do more good than any number of articles on the subject. People will listen, where they will not read articles. Anyhow, radio persuades people to stay at home in the evenings, so that there is less chance of being run over by a motor-car.

Jazz for Electrons.

But does music have any appreciable effect on our well-being? You feel much better, thank you, when you hear a good stirring military march, and, on the other hand, the way the girl next door, who is learning to sing, misses her top notes takes away your appetite.

The other day, when I went to see my doctor, I found him dubiously looking in a catalogue at a picture of an instrument like a big tin tobacco pipe with embroidery on it.

"It's not a new stethoscope," he told me. "It's a saxophone. I'm wondering if I ought to learn to play one. So many people have said recently that music has certain curative powers that I fully expect in a year or so, instead of prescribing castor oil for your pains, I shall have to oblige you with a carefully made-up sonata."

"You understand that everything in Nature oscillates to a certain rhythm, and when you're ill, it means that your electrons are out of step, so to speak, and are causing atmospheric in your system. Fortunately, however, they've got an ear for music, and a little jazz soon sets them happily fox-trotting round again."

When Love Songs Will Be Barred.

"The time may come when we doctors will not only ask what you've been eating, but what sort of wireless set you've got. If you complain of a headache, we shall diagnose it as an over-indulgence in the too-rich programme from Birmingham, and order a course of De Groot, to be taken three times a day in water."

"In case of an influenza epidemic, the Ministry of Health will probably ask the B.B.C. to transmit something effervescent daily as a tonic; while during a heat wave all sentimental love songs will be barred. We shall need something cooling, like sea shanties."

"What I'm worrying about, though, is whether the wave lengths affect our health. Shall I, perhaps, have to tell a patient to buy another valve and pick up Manchester with its 378 metres, instead of Aberdeen with its 495? Is '5XX' too strenuous for anybody with a weak constitution?"

Are You in Tune?

"Anyhow, let me see if you're in tune. Open your chest and say 'ninety-nine.' I thought so. You're half a tone flat. Now take this prescription to the nearest music-publisher—I forgot—I mean chemist—"

I expect he was exaggerating, but there may be something in it. Some day the advertisements on the back pages will run: "Buy our 7/6 crystal set—Worth a guinea a box," or "Are you losing weight? Try Swanee River valves!"

And there will be a picture of grandpa leaping over a fence with headphones on. He will have got that "2LO" feeling!

The Lure of London's River.

By H. M. Tomlinson.*

OF such ports as Liverpool, Bristol, and Southampton, there is never a doubt about it. They are on the sea.

But London, with a name so magical that it strangely affects any exile who happens to see it under the counter of a ship moored to a foreign quay, London itself is not aware that it is on the sea. Anyhow, most of its citizens forgot that vital fact long ago. The sea is out of hail of Fleet Street. Wembley is much nearer. Yet if anyone had wanted an assurance that London is really the capital city of a commonwealth of nations, then the neighbourhood of Silvertown, with its concourse of immense ships, could impress that in a way beyond the scope of any other sort of exhibition.

Familiar Names of Famous Marks.

And Dockland, of course, is always with us. It is not an occasional event, yet Paris is nearer to our newspaper offices than Dockland, and is less strange, and speaks a more familiar tongue. How many Londoners who know Montmartre could find their way to Gallions, to Hookness, or to Blackwall Point? Yet these are the familiar names of famous marks on what sailors know as London River; and London River—which does not run above London Bridge—was here before London itself; it made the city; and it did most to create that commonwealth of nations of which the city is the heart. The lower Thames, the River of Ships, the river few of us ever see, has had a longer life, has a greater tradition, and is more vitally concerned with our history and our future, than any of the august features of the capital which send tourists hurrying and wondering.

The Gate to the Orient.

In some recent books, that gossiped of London, I have seen slighting references to what lies east of London Bridge. One book was rude to Fenchurch Street Station, and another to Wapping. The fact is, the Thames below the Pool is not respectable enough for polite literature. Once the Thames is out of Oxford, it comes down in more than one sense. When the river is named, most Londoners think of Richmond. But for some of us there is more of London and its river in the warehouses rising like dingy cliffs above the Pool, and in the ships there, than in the masonry and sham Gothic spires by Westminster Bridge; at which spot to-day, for most of us who remember that we have a rough island story, the river ends.

Yet shabby Fenchurch Street Station, with its cabs, is no less than the gate to the Orient. That railway track beyond its platform, which passes above a desert of mean roofs and chimney pots, is the road to China. Below that plateau of East End tiles is the Dock Road, which is the beach of London.

Misled by the Obvious.

Have you ever happened on a palm nut stranded in a Cornish bay? That is something like a messenger. Well, in that road to the docks your idle thought may run into just such a surprising derelict. You may, if you know the signs, recognize matters there that are not reported in the London Directory, which are not down in the official map of the streets.

Yet I should do wrong to promise anything to a chance visitor. The lights some of us see in the Dock Road are reflections on deep water. But a stranger, by night, might fancy there was only rain in an unfriendly industrial district. The lights for him would be merely the reflections on a wet road—probably of an electric tram passing Poplar Station. No more than that. It is not so easy to see things as many observers suppose. We are often misled by the obvious.

Once there was a tavern by the Thames called the Artichoke. It stood by Blackwall Stairs. It was a wooden house, with scarlet geraniums in its windows. You could watch from it incoming clippers warp into dock. You cannot do that to-day. Like the clippers, it has gone. But perhaps because my first view of the Thames was from that point, and perhaps because once I saw a clipper drop down stream, and heard her men sing a shanty, there is more for me in London River than there is in the Upper Thames.

A Link With Dickens.

Henley is a luxury, in high summer, and Clevedon Woods in autumn; yet some of us would prefer, at all seasons, to walk eastward as near to the river as the path allows from St. Katherine's Way by the Tower, or from Tooley Street to the Commercial Docks on the south side, than from Taplow to Maidenhead when the leaves are changing, and the light is at its best. I have preferred to sit with old Waters, the barge-builder of Narrow Street, Limehouse, who knew the man whom Dickens called Rogue Riderhood, and watch at high water, while he talked, the best view of the Thames there is—you may see it from the Grapes Tavern, which is the Six Jolly Fellowship Porters—than idle through reaches of the Upper Thames accompanied by the best literary reminiscences.

For me, there is no better story of the river than can be found around Wapping Old Stairs; and I don't think any view of the Thames, where it is tideless, so remarkable as the peep one gets from that historic hole in the wall at Wapping. You find it unexpectedly, a narrow cleft in the high gloom of the warehouses. They have shut one in, and have allowed not a peep of the river and the ships. You have heard, while loitering in that narrow passage, the voice of an unseen steamer. But you thought it was nothing. It was your imagination.

Outward Bound.

About you are the grim walls of an ancient inland city. The sea is distant enough. A van horse near throws up its nosebag to get the last bean. But you come to that cleft in the wall, a wedge of daylight holding the buildings apart. Beyond it is open space. Midway in that brightness, as you watch, and apparently floating on nothing, moves the black form of a steamer. She is outward bound.

I do not know much of the Thames above the point where it ceases to be London River, yet if Hampton Court and Richmond can beat the stories of Deptford and Ratcliff, then it is only in politeness, and not in richness.

Getting Things Done.

I prefer the grim walls of the busy place down stream, with the flood tide which has at least a tincture of saltness, the movements of ships, the shouts of river men, and the vapours and noise of those who are getting things done in the world. Nothing is artistically graded there, through a desire for correctitude, like the lawns and gardens beyond. But the dedication of Dockland comes to it—though unremarked by its own folk—who see but in simple curiosity, glancing up from their work, the dark majesty of the storm, the changing apparition of light on their river where smoke drifts and ships come and go; and these things do give to the working Thames the dignity which the effort of men to sustain their place on earth deserves.

* In a Talk from London.

Official News and Views. GOSSIP ABOUT BROADCASTING

Complaints about Daventry.

THE moving of "5XX" from Chelmsford to Daventry has had the effect of making crystal reception a good deal more difficult in a limited area of the East and South-East. The B.B.C. is keenly alive to the position, and regrets very much that the pursuit of a policy calculated to benefit the majority has damaged the facilities of crystal reception for some listeners. The fact that the crystal area of Daventry comprises a population of about six millions more than did the crystal area of Chelmsford, is little consolation for these crystal users in the East and South-East who are now outside the zone of the High-Power Station.

The B.B.C. is pressing forward with new schemes, which should have the effect of removing this cause of grievance. But it is important that listeners should remember that all these schemes are subject to the sanction of the Post Office, which is in the unenviable position of acting as arbiter of the conflicting claims of the various wireless services.

International Broadcasting.

We are approaching the international era of broadcasting, and there is a strong probability that during the coming winter, British listeners will be introduced to some of the best programmes of America and the Continent. But some of the more definite statements which have appeared in the Press may have the effect of creating expectations which cannot be realised as early as indicated.

For one thing, there is no possibility of the regular relaying of Dominion and foreign programmes as early as September. The preliminary tests at the new B.B.C. International Receiving Station at Hayes will be carried out during September. If these tests are successful, then, when the necessary corresponding apparatus abroad is completed, we shall be able to go forward with the scheme. But listeners would certainly not approve of the premature introduction of a large proportion of badly transmitted foreign programmes.

Broadcasting Censorship.

There appears to be a misapprehension in some quarters on the subject of broadcasting censorship, relating particularly to religious addresses. Apparently, some people believe that religious addresses are censored by the Religious Advisory Committees that have been set up to assist the B.B.C. stations. This is not the case. There is a censorship, but it is entirely a B.B.C. affair. The station director exercises it, and if there is any point on which he is not sure and requires guidance, he refers to the B.B.C. Headquarters in London. Everything possible is done to eliminate controversial points from the religious addresses broadcast.

Broadcasting the League of Nations.

As we go to press with this issue, it is not possible to say definitely whether part of the proceedings of the League of Nations Assembly at Geneva will be broadcast. The proposal has been engaging the attention of the B.B.C. and the International Union of Broadcasters for some time past, and it is hoped that the Presidential address at the opening of the Assembly, on September 7th, will be broadcast in this country.

The Presidential address this year will probably be given by M. Painlevé at about noon on September 7th. The B.B.C. is most anxious to complete the arrangements to broadcast this speech, and is doing everything possible to bring it about.

Return of De Groot.

Listeners will be delighted to hear that De Groot and his Orchestra will return to the London Station programme on September 13th.

This popular outside broadcast, relayed from the Piccadilly Hotel, will once again become a regular feature after that date.

Moonshine.

The seventh of the Radio Fantasies, specially written by Mr. John Overton for Birmingham Station, entitled Moonshine, will be given on Wednesday, September 16th. The whole action takes place on a Midsummer Eve, during the reign of George III, and is divided into three scenes, the first of which is laid in the Library at Barrington Manor, the second in the Rose Garden, while the last takes place in the kitchen of the "Barley Mow." The music has been arranged by Mr. Joseph Lewis.

University Women of Many Countries.

Birmingham listeners will be interested to hear that, in addition to Mrs. Raekham and Miss Eleanor Rathbone, who are both visiting Birmingham in connection with the conference of the National Council of Women, they will have an opportunity of listening to a broadcast talk on September 24th by Professor Winifred Culliss, O.B.E., D.Sc., of the National Council of Women, on "University Women of Many Countries."

The Gaelic Mod.

Listeners in Scotland can look forward to a special treat on Friday, September 25th, when Glasgow Station will relay the Grand Annual Concert of the Gaelic Mod, which is to be held this year at Greenock. Listeners will also hear the speech of the evening by the Earl of Cassillis.

Ballet Music at Glasgow.

On the afternoon of Sunday, September 13th, Glasgow Station has an interesting Light Orchestral Programme, with Mr. Ian McPherson (baritone) as soloist. In an Operatic Group is included "Wolfram's Address," from Tannhäuser, and the Station Orchestra, conducted by Mr. Herbert A. Carruthers, will play some interesting ballet music, the evergreen "Minuet" from Mozart's "Divertimento in D," and the popular "Hymn to the Sun" from Rimsky-Korsakov's The Golden Cockerel.

"High Days and Holidays."

A care-free spirit will prevail at the Plymouth Station on September 18th, when the programme opens with "High Days and Holidays" and ends with "Valley of Laughter." Miss Nadia Poltava (soprano) and the Dolce Male Voice Quartet will make their broadcast debut, supported by the Plymouth Corporation Tramways Band. The latter will play a selection from The Country Girl, to open the middle portion of the evening's programme which is entitled "In the Country." The Elite Entertainers will provide the humour.

A Notable Pianist.

The special feature at the Edinburgh Station on the evening of Friday, September 18th, from 10.15-10.45 p.m., will be a pianoforte recital by Mr. John Petrie Dunn, the well-known Scottish pianist. Mr. Petrie Dunn is Assistant Professor of Music at the University of Edinburgh, and was formerly Director of a well-known Conservatoire of Music in Germany. He has successfully broadcast from the Edinburgh Station on several previous occasions.

Looking Backward and Forward.

A picture from the past and a peep into the future will make up an interesting programme of comparisons for Cardiff listeners on Monday, September 14th. The principal feature will be the production of two unusual types of radio-plays. The first, entitled An Hour in a Mid-Victorian Drawing-Room, is a clever sketch of the lives and thoughts of the eighties, and the second is a prophetic (?) extravaganza of 1970, entitled Ten Minutes of Progress. Music for the plays will include the "Blue Danube" Waltz, and the overture to The Bohemian Girl for the Victorian episode and Progress will be represented in music by Bantock's "Hamabdil" and Stravinsky's "Suite" for Small Orchestra.

Crosswords Without a Cross Word.

On Friday evening, September 18th, the Bournemouth Station will provide a "Cross Word Concert Party" (without a Cross Word), assisted by the Bournemouth Wireless Orchestra, conducted by Captain W. A. Featherstone. The programme begins with an Orchestral Dance Suite, by Ansell, entitled "The Shoe," which is a somewhat original item, the music being divided into five sections, each dealing with a particular form of foot-wear, and varying accordingly. The first part of the Cross Word Concert Party's Programme will be light and modern, but at 9 o'clock they will give "A Dream of 100 Years Ago," which should take us all back to the days of our grandmothers. To conclude the evening concert, the orchestra will provide half an hour of miscellaneous music by Sullivan and others, including Ivanov's "Caucasian Sketch."

B.N.O.C. Reception.

The reception which is to be given for the members of the British National Opera Company (who will be visiting the Theatre Royal, Leeds) by the Lord Mayor (Mr. C. G. Gibson) and Lady Mayoress of Leeds, and Mr. Francis Laidler, in the Leeds Town Hall, on Sunday, September 13th, will conclude with a concert by the principal artists of the Company, which will be broadcast to Leeds and Bradford listeners from 9 to 10 p.m.

Aberdeen's Late Night Fare.

On Monday evening, September 14th, when the Aberdeen Station is putting out the late night programme, a concert of varied interest will be broadcast. In addition to Miss Mavis Bennett, who will sing several numbers from Coleridge-Taylor, and Mr. Norman Williams (baritone), an hour's Recital of violin, pianoforte and vocal music will be given by Miss Millicent Ward (soprano), Miss Margaret Ludwig (violinist) and Miss Violet Ludwig (pianist). Then, after the News and an Interlude from Birmingham, the programme will be of a characteristically Scottish nature, in which The Fairies, the successful play by Mr. Arthur Black, will figure. The true atmosphere will be maintained by a short Recital of Highland songs by Mr. McLean after the curtain has been rung down on the doings of John McKay, a worthy crofter, and of his wife, and the strange sayings of "Daft Willie."

"The Duenna."

By arrangement with Mr. Nigel Playfair and Mr. Arthur Reynolds, a shortened version of Sheridan's comic opera, The Duenna, will be given from London Station on September 8th, at 8.25 p.m., S.B. to all stations, except Daventry. The cast and orchestra will be practically the same as in the original production at the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith. Mr. Playfair will be supported by Mr. Frederick Ranalow and Miss Elsie French, of Beggar's Opera fame.

Southern Reminiscences.

"Old Joe," the radio successor of the old-time Christie Minstrels, has won the hearts of Cardiff listeners with his quaint humour and philosophy, and many will welcome his inclusion in the Cardiff programme for Friday, September 11th. Southern Reminiscences, conjured up by the music of the Station Orchestra, will provide a joyous hour of favourite old tunes with "Old Joe" in his best vein.

PEOPLE YOU WILL HEAR THIS WEEK.

THE THREE CHOIRS FESTIVAL.

(RELAYED TO LONDON, WEDNESDAY.)

THE "Three Choirs Festival" is an annual event carried out by combined choirs from Gloucester, Worcester, and Hereford. It was instituted in 1724, and is held in rotation at one of the three cities. This year's Festival is being held at Gloucester.

As a part of the Festival, some new works, or works seldom performed, are always given, and several such works are included in the programme to be broadcast from the London Station.

SMYTH'S OVERTURE, "THE WRECKERS."

Dame Ethel Smyth's Opera The Wreckers is founded on the activities of the Cornish shipwreckers of the eighteenth century. The Overture depicts the various phases of the character of these people.

"L'AMERO" (FROM MOZART'S "IL RE PASTORE").

Il Rè Pastore (The Shepherd King) is a short "music drama" (Mozart's own description) in two Acts. It is an early work. The text of L'amerò ("I will love him") is just the conventional love-song. The music is quiet and expressive, rather than florid.

HOWELLS' "PARADISE RONDEL."

(First Performance.)

Herbert Howells is a Gloucestershire man, born in 1802. His music, up to the present, shows close affinity to English folk-music and to the music of our composers of Tudor times. Mr. Howells is a Professor of Composition at the Royal College of Music.

The following description of Paradise Rondel is the composer's own.

"The Paradise of the title of this piece is no more distant than the village of that name in the Cotswolds, and any other village might have done for the work if it could have lent as good a name. Paradise is a good walking place, full of tunes for those who can hear them. Most of the few themes in this short work are quick-moving and lively."

STANFORD'S "SONGS OF THE SEA."

Stanford excelled as a writer of sea-songs. Of these, probably the best-known, and perhaps the best, are those which actually bear the title, "Songs of the Sea." They are settings of verses by Sir Henry Newbolt.

REED'S "ÆSOP'S FABLES."

William H. Reed (born 1876), composer and violinist, has been famous for many years as leader of the London Symphony Orchestra.

The following summary of Æsop's Fables is based on the composer's own description.

The whole piece is played without break. There are three main Sections of the work.

I. Æsop (Miniature Overture). This opens with, and is almost entirely constructed on, the ÆSOP THEME (Trumpet Solo)—which, in the next Section, becomes the moral to each Fable.

II. This Section contains five Fables: (a) The Fox and the Grapes, (b) The Lamb and the Wolf, (c) The Frogs and the Bull, (d) The Fisherman and his Pipe, and (e) The Dog in the Manger. "The stories are familiar to the entire world in all languages."

III. Finale. "In this Fable I have imagined Æsop himself to be the Traveller who battles with the wind and succeeds in retaining his coat, in spite of the wind's blusterings, but takes it off under the warmth and geniality of the Sun's rays. The Finale is practically constructed upon the Æsop Theme."

BANTOCK'S "THE FIREFLY."

Granville Bantock (born 1868) is Principal of the Birmingham School of Music. Among a number of notable compositions are many Solo Songs, of which The Firefly serves as a representative at this concert.

SIBELIUS'S "VALSE TRISTE."

Jean Sibelius is the foremost Finnish composer of the day. Valse Triste is one of his best-known works. Its "programme" is as follows.

A youth has fallen asleep at night by the sick-bed of his mother. A valse tune is heard, dancers appear, and the mother dances with them. Once she falls on her bed exhausted; but she makes a supreme effort and the dance is renewed, wilder than ever. At the climax, Death appears.

BREWER'S "SUMMER SPORTS."

Dr. Herbert Brewer (born 1865), Conductor of the Festival, has been Organist of Gloucester Cathedral since 1897, and has seven times conducted the Three Choirs Festival. He has had many works produced at this Festival. His Summer Sports Suite for Chorus and Orchestra contains settings of five lyrics by old English poets.

I. Come, my Daphne, come away, is a dialogue between Strephon (represented by men's voices) and Daphne (women's voices).

II. Barley Break ("Now is the month of maying") is set for men's voices.

III. Love is a sickness, full of woes, is the well-known lyric by Daniel.

IV. Golden slumbers kiss your eyes is a lullaby for women's voices.

V. Summer Sports, which gives the title to the whole Suite, is the longest and most developed number. Tenors and Basses open with Hay-makers, vakers, reapers and mowers, Wait on your Summer Queen.

GERMAN'S "THEME AND SIX DIVERSIONS."

The term "Diversions" is used by the composer of this light orchestral work, rather than the more usual term of "Variations," on account of the freedom of treatment adopted. This work was described in full in The Radio Times dated August 7th.

HANS SACHS' MONOLOGUE.

Wagner's one Comedy Opera, The Mastersingers of Nuremberg, is for many people the best work he ever wrote. Its subject is the sixteenth-century Guild of townsfolk known as "The Mastersingers." HANS SACHS is a cobbler, but much more than a cobbler—a poet, and the best-loved man in Nuremberg.

Sachs' Monologue occurs at the beginning of Act III. of the Opera. Midsummer Day is just breaking, the day of the Mastersingers' contest. Sachs sits outside his workshop, a great volume on his lap, and meditates on men's incessant, bitter strife with one another, and considers how he may turn it to the furthering of the noble end he has in view.

GLINKA'S "KAMARINSKAYA."

Glinka (1804-57) was the pioneer of Russian music. Before him, Russia's only art-music, as opposed to simple folk-music, had been imported Italian opera. One day he heard a village wedding song and a country dance ("Kamarinskaya"), and out of these he made an orchestral piece.

"A Famous Song of Toil."

DEAR SIR,—I write to express my great appreciation of the kind remarks by Mr. A. B. Cooper about my grandfather, Willoughby Hunter Weiss, the singer and composer of "The Village Blacksmith," in his article entitled "A Famous Song of Toil," in The Radio Times. It is so nice to feel that there are still some left in this age of Jazz who appreciate the old song.

Mr. Cooper is, indeed, right in his remarks regarding the pecuniary side of the song.

My grandfather gave the song to my mother, with all rights, etc., making the publishers trustees, and during the forty-two years' duration of the copyright it produced the sum of over £20,000—nearly £500 per year.

My mother, Mrs. F. Selwyn-Graham, was Angélique Weiss, only daughter of W. H. Weiss, and she died in July, 1920.

Yours, etc.,

F. WILLOUGHBY WEISS GRAHAM.

Harrow.

S.B. on Saturday.

DEAR SIR,—We in country districts have a grievance with the Director of Programmes. In the early days of broadcasting we were always sure of a light and bright programme on Saturday nights. This evening is the only time in the week in which the majority of country dwellers can stay up a bit later than usual.

Every Saturday we are now shunted over to some other station, which we don't like. If we must have any other station, why can it not be on some night other than Saturday?

Yours, etc.,

Saxmundham.

A. R. F.

The Black Country.

DEAR SIR,—I hope you will correct the mistake made in the "Grand Good-Night" as given from the studio, i.e., in assuming that Stoke-on-Trent is in "The Black Country." The town referred to is in "The Potteries," which are in the extreme north of the county. "The Black Country" is in the south of the county, in the Birmingham district, and includes Tipton, Bilston, Smethwick, etc.

Yours, etc.,

Stoke-on-Trent.

P. PRICE EDWARDS.

All on One Valve.

DEAR SIR,—A short account of the achievements of our one-valve set may be of interest.

We are situated here in open country about 100 miles from London, thirty-five from Daventry, and twenty from Birmingham, on the top of rising ground, 230ft. above sea level.

We use a straight detector circuit with reaction on aerial, D.E.R. valve. With 'phones, we receive High-Power, London, and Birmingham splendidly. (I believe Daventry would work a loud speaker easily.) Bournemouth, Manchester, and Nottingham are quite good. Cardiff is useful, but London interferes rather. We have had Newcastle, Aberdeen, Stoke, and other British stations.

Petit Parisien has given us some enjoyable times, the concerts coming over with surprising power and beauty. The School of Posts is often to be got, and Madrid has been most interesting.

Yours, etc.,

E. WOODWARD JEPHCOAT.

Great Ayn, Warwickshire.

[The writer of this letter must be very skilful at operating his one-valve set, or the set must be a very exceptional one. We would not advise our readers to try and repeat the performance, because, while we feel sure that the writer has never offended by causing interference to others by oscillation, a less skilled person than he is might commit this indiscretion.]

Lunch-Time Music.

DEAR SIR,—I wish to criticize one of your regular features—the lunch-time music from a London restaurant.

I say nothing regarding the execution of the various items, which is excellent. I refer to the choice of programme numbers, which are too heavy to be suitable as "lunch-time" music. Items such as the "Seraglio" Overture and "Scheherazade Ballet" are more suitable as evening items.

The habit, common in London restaurants, of beginning the programme with a rousing march, is, to my mind, a bad one. Restaurant music should be "insinuating" rather than "forceful," and should consist of light, tuneful, and easily-digested items—waltzes, intermezzos, and light opera selections—nothing of a heavy nature. (The opening crash of the selection from Carmen never fails to give me "quite a turn.")

Yours, etc.,

Hove. H. MURGATROYD FARREAR.

Opera in English.

DEAR SIR,—Why was the opera I Pagliacci recently broadcast in Italian? How can English audiences understand words in Italian?

I write to voice the opinion of a great many musical people who wish to hear operas rendered in English, which everybody can understand. Otherwise, I am afraid the number of listeners will diminish.

Yours, etc.,

Willesden. JAMES JOHNSON.

What Is It?

DEAR SIR,—In answer to your correspondent who asked for a short new name for listening sets, I suggest "Airophone" as meeting the case. It is short, descriptive, and easy to spell and to write.

Yours, etc.,

King's Stanley. URSULA STANTON.

A Musical Syllabus.

DEAR SIR,—I suggest that the B.B.C. should prepare in advance a Musical Syllabus, forecasting the main works to be broadcast, of the same type as that issued by the Educational Department. This would be of great interest to those listeners who, like myself, look upon the B.B.C. as potentially the greatest factor in the musical education of the country.

Yours, etc.,

Edinburgh. THOMAS DAVIDSON.

In Favour of Relays.

DEAR SIR,—For the improvement of the broadcasting service, I suggest that all stations, with the exception of London and Daventry, should be relay stations, that is to say (with the possible exception of one night per week), the London programme should be S.B. for the following reasons:—

(1) A considerable saving in both organization and money would result, which would enable the London programmes to be greatly improved.

(2) The best talent in the country—possibly in the world—is centred in London, certainly better than can be obtained in the provinces.

(3) The elimination of oscillation, as receiving sets would be tuned in to the nearest station and allowed to remain there.

I have discussed this with a large number of people and the general opinion seems to point to such a change being much appreciated.

Yours, etc.,

Wilton, near Redcar. E. S. R.

A Neglected Musical Genius.

Purcell and His Works. By Dr. C. Purcell-Taylor.

[Although Purcell has been neglected by the present age, he is beginning to be known to listeners, owing to the broadcasting of some of his works. In the following article Dr. Purcell-Taylor, who is a lineal descendant of the great musician, gives some interesting reasons as to why Purcell has not been more popular.]

HENRY PURCELL was of the oldest family of France, and his name should properly be spelt Pourcel. He has no connection with any English or Irish families of the same name. Those of his immediate ancestors who had escaped the Bartholomew Massacre came to England to escape religious persecution, and they endured very great hardships for the sake of their religion.

They were glass manufacturers, a business they had followed for centuries. They were not able to start glass works here because the monopoly of glass-making in England had been sold by the Government not long before their arrival. The only glass made here at that time was the commonest window glass and drinking glasses; and by the creation of that monopoly England closed the door to an immense new manufacture of fine table glass and mirrors, which continued for another two centuries to be imported from France and Italy.

From Glass-Making to Music.

Being thus deprived of the wealthy business they were willing to introduce into England, they were compelled to turn to account their musical talents, which were of a very high order; but had up to that time only been a source of amusement in their family circle.

Music was then very popular in England; and people of all ranks were far better trained in music than they are now.

Every man then could sing correctly his part—alto, tenor, or bass—in a glee or a catch or a part song. Most men could also play an accompaniment; and this accomplishment was so common that lutes and violins were hung up in the shops of the barbers, that customers waiting their turn might occupy themselves with music.

The families spent their evenings in what was thence known as chamber music—music written for a small room, to be played by all the persons present, all hands performing and no idlers.

Old-Time Composing.

In the evenings men of all-classes spent their time at the taverns, where musical parties met, and where all the professional musicians of that day might be found. Each man took his part—vocal or instrumental; only the oldest men were allowed to be listeners.

The professional musician was even better trained, for he had to extemporize as he went along from a figured bass. How many persons now know what that is? I had better explain. A musical composer in those days composed first his base (now mis-spelled bass), the notes being such as were within the compass of the bass viol or the ordinary male voice. On that base he erected the other voices, soprano, alto, tenor, and the parts for the instruments in chords according to his own fancy, obeying the canons of musical composition.

The accompaniments were not, as a rule, written down note by note as you see them in modern music; but figures (numbers) were placed against the notes of the base to indicate to the performer what note he should play. Not every note was thus figured.

It will be seen that this method required a very high degree of musical skill, and a quickness of apprehension to grasp, as the musician went along, what would be the most suitable note to harmonize with the other parts. But, at the same time, it gave immense scope for the exercise of his genius, and in adapting the music to the peculiarities of each instrument and the tones of each singer's voice.

But, after about 1750, when people had become lazy, and preferred to listen, the faculty of reading thorough bass began to decline; so that in 1809 I find an edition of Purcell brought out by Dr. John Clarke, in which "a separate part for the pianoforte is added, in order to obviate the difficulty to the generality of performers of accompanying from a figured bass." In a word, the decline came about with the introduction of the pianoforte.

Orchestras in Church.

Most magnificent music has been written for the Church of England, fully as grand, in my humble opinion, as anything that has been written for the Church of Rome. Many full Services have been composed for the Church of England by many eminent musicians during the last four centuries or so, but the majority of the members of the Church of England do not even know the names of those men.

And in Purcell's time, the accompaniment was nearly always strings and wood wind. There was not always an organ, but if there was one, it took only a subsidiary part, helping, not drowning, the other parts.

Now there is no orchestra, only an organ.

Why is it that now Henry Purcell's music is scarcely ever heard?

The first answer is that it is difficult. I have asked Church organists to sit down at my little organ and put a piece of Purcell's in front of them, and they have said: "I cannot play that—it is too difficult—it would want practice," and so on.

Costly First Editions.

Henry Purcell's music is much esteemed in Germany and is better known there than here. Moreover, the only correct modern editions of his music are those prepared in Germany. This last fact gives the key to the problem—it is the lack of cheap editions and of correct editions that prevents it being popular. The original editions are now very scarce and costly. The latest correct editions are those of the Musical Antiquarian Society, published nearly eighty years ago, and they also are now scarce and costly.

There are no relics whatever of Purcell in London; there is not even a street named after him. It is true there is a Purcell Crescent in Fulham, but it was so named after its builder.

His organ in Westminster has been destroyed, altered, and rebuilt; the last atom of wood in that organ as he used it was taken away by my grandfather eighty years ago and made into picture frames.

A Malicious Story.

One of the musical magazines published pictures of an old house in Westminster as that of Purcell; but that house was not built until twenty years after his death!

His later years were passed in a house on the west side of Dean's Yard, long since pulled down; but the new house erected on its site bears the name Purcell House.

His death was due to consumption. All the family, except my mother, died of it. The story about the locking out by his wife is all malicious nonsense.

When I first started the revival of Purcell's music about forty-five years ago, it was the rarest thing to see his name on a programme or to find anyone acquainted with it.

However, by fifteen years' steady persevering effort I did manage to arouse some interest, but far more in the Latin countries than in England.

THE CHILDREN'S CORNER.

NEWS FROM THE AUNTS AND UNCLES.

A Special Treat.

DURING the London Children's Corner on Wednesday, September 9th, there will be duets played on two pianos by Stanford Robinson and Leslie Spurling. This is a special treat put in to take the place of Uncle Jeff, who will still be on holiday.

On Friday, September 11th, there will be a complete entertainment by "The Pied Piper of London" Concert Party. The Pied Piper himself is Mr. Hamilton Howell, and his companions will be Miss Irene Lee and Miss Bee Belton. Their programme will last for the whole half-hour and will include "The Pied Piper Chorus," "The Thistle-down Fairies," "Old Nursery Rhymes," "The Toy Band," and "Cock-a-doodle-Don't."

Uncle Rex will be away during the week beginning September 14th. So far, he has had only part of his holiday, and he is going to have the rest of it before the autumn comes on. If you miss his voice in the Studio, you will know now just why.

Have You Got Your Badge?

Starting from Monday, September 14th, the time of the Children's Hour at the London Station will be from 5.15 to 6.0 each evening. The Birthday Greetings will be given during the last ten minutes of the programme—as they are now.

We now have a whole lot of Radio Circle badges ready to send to Nieces and Nephews who are not yet Members. All you have to do is to send in your full name, address, age, birthday date, and a P.O. (or stamps) for 1s. The badge will be sent by return.

A Letter From America.

The following letter has been received from two members of the Birmingham Radio Circle, who now find themselves in a new home at Brooklyn, New York, U.S.A.

After inquiries after Uncle Edgar's health, they say:—

"We are now in America and have been here a year, but don't like it so much as England. We have got a very big wireless set now, but we have never heard England yet. We are very proud of our Radio Circle badges because no one has them here, and they always ask where we got them from and we tell them from the dear Birmingham Station. Here they do not have a Children's Corner and it is not nice at all; they only have fairy stories about once a week."

In conclusion, the writers send their love to all the members of the Radio Circle, and we feel sure that their good wishes will be returned from this side of the Atlantic.

At Manchester.

On and after September 7th, the "Children's Corner" at Manchester will be from 5.15 till 6.0 p.m. each day. The music for children on Sundays will continue to be from 5.30 till 5.45.

A Picture Gallery.

During the summer holidays, the young members of the Edinburgh Radio Circle have been very faithful in remembering their Aunts and Uncles at the Edinburgh Station, and a surprisingly large number of picture postcards has been received from all parts of the country. These have come from such distant parts as Shetland, Lindisfarne, and even Palestine, and set up as they are in Auntie Molly's private office, they constitute an interesting record of the Children's holidays and make a pretty little picture gallery.

Sugar Canes for Singers.

There is going to be a feast of good things in the Aberdeen Children's Corner during the week beginning September 14th, but only on one day will they be eatables! These are the sugar canes which you will hear about in the Darkey Picnic on September 18th. The Uncles and Aunties have been told that sugar canes are the finest refreshments for picnic and other entertainments, as you can sing so sweetly after eating them. It is rather a tricky business to extract the juice, we believe, but Uncle Sam Johnson, who has lived on a sugar plantation all his life, will explain how it's done.

There are other good things, too. On Tuesday, September 15th, Mrs. J. G. Burnett is going to tell all about Gipsy Music, and will play typical examples on her violin. Mrs. Burnett has lived for several years in the Gipsy country—that is Old Hungary—and knows a great deal about these musicians. Their music is very pretty, and this interesting feature should on no account be missed.

Sad, But True!

The Uncles in Glasgow have been forced to come to the conclusion that Uncle Alex, during some portion of his life, has lived in Aberdeen! Of course, there is no actual harm in his having lived in such a beautiful city—but why did he allow himself to become so "canny"?

Here is just one example of his "canniness":—

While Auntie was on holiday, she devoted an hour one morning to sending picture postcards to the Uncles. Now, the cards were written high up on a Yorkshire moor, and for one moment they were placed on a tuft of heather. Suddenly, along came an impudent little breeze and scattered them all over the place. What a racing and a chasing poor Auntie had to get those cards! Indeed, one was about half a mile away before she rescued it. Well, the cards were stamped and dropped into a letter-box and duly arrived in Glasgow, with the exception of Uncle Alex's.

What a to-do there was until it was explained that perhaps the card had blown away! Someone suggested that if any kind fairy found a postcard lying on a Yorkshire moor, she would probably post it.

Then this "canny" Uncle began to get alarmed. "No, no!" said he, "I don't want that card, for there was no stamp on it and I'd have twopence to pay!"

THE RADIO FAIRIES.

By CLARENCE WINCHESTER.

They listened to the broadcasting.

the Radio Fairies. You know, those fairies we peeped at the other night when all was still!"

So I am going to tell you of what we saw by the thin light of the stars. The old Man in the Moon had not got up out of his bed, the lazy fellow, but we managed to see all right as we hid behind a bush in the dell.

Within the circle of a mushroom ring they were all dancing. There was Gwim, who is King of the Fairies, and his Queen—who is called Glome. They were in the very centre, and all around them pranced the little people of the mist, as the fairies are called. You see, they are made of mist; and they are so slim and fair, and not more than three inches high.

Said Gwim to Glome: "I am tired of dancing, and I am jealous of the Great Big Grown-Ups!"

And Glome said to Gwim, her eyes sparkling: "Jealous of the Great Big Grown-Ups? Whatever for? They have to work very hard; and all we have to do is to dance and sing by night—and sleep by day."

"That is all very well," replied Gwim, "but our music doesn't travel far, and theirs is sent all over the world by something they call wireless! That makes me jealous."

"Cannot we make a wireless?" asked the Queen. "It would be very jolly to send our music to the other dells and glades, and we might hear theirs in return."

King Gwim thought for a moment. Then he gave an order for any fairy inventor to come forward and build a fairy radio. Winkle and Tinkle were the two clever inventors within the fairy circle, and thus it was that they were given the job.

They built their broadcasting studio under a giant toadstool, and then they went off to a distance where they began to put up a receiving set. Of course, they wanted an aerial.

"And what are we going to do for an aerial?" asked Tinkle. "If we don't do our work well, King Gwim will lock us up in the old oak tree."

"I've an idea for an aerial," said Winkle, who was a very clever fairy. "What about a piece of spider's web? Here's the very thing." He unwound twelve inches of web and stretched it across two little sticks until it looked just like a real aerial—only a tiny one just suitable for tiny fairy folk.

"And for a loud speaker I think we could use a bluebell," remarked Tinkle. But when they looked for a bluebell, they couldn't find one because bluebells don't blossom at this time of the year.

Instead, they had to use half an acorn which they found beneath the old oak tree; and it worked very well.

A Very Good Concert.

King Gwim and Queen Glome came to the spot where the receiving set had been built and, sitting on thrones made of soft green leaves, they listened to the broadcasting which Tinkle and Winkle did from the toadstool studio.

It was a very good concert. Tinkle sang about Old Mother Hubbard who went to the cupboard, and Winkle recited about Jack and Jill who went up the hill. And then they did their turns together, so that they got Old Mother Hubbard going up the hill to fetch a pail of water—and Jack and Jill going to the cupboard to find a poor dog a bone! Which was all wrong, but it made Gwim and Glome laugh and that was all that mattered.

From that night onward Tinkle and Winkle were doing overtime building fairy radios all over the place. They earned ever so much fairy money. And that is why, if ever you stumble on the fairies nowadays, you will see them listening just like you and me. But you need to keep very still and quiet, for if they hear the Great Big Grown-Ups—well, they simply vanish!

Overture.
SCENE I.

The Company, urged on by the Comedian, give cause for a severe reprimand from the Revue Director, but the Comedian has the last word in "Any Old Night." Next we find the Juvenile Lead is lost, and our Soprano finds him eventually and says "I'll Tell the World," after which, they both steal softly away. Our Character Lady is next accosted by the Comedian, and she goes off into fits of unseemly laughter; the reason for this is explained by the Comedian in "Oxford Trousers." We then overhear something about the past of our Comedienne and Juvenile Lead in "When You and I Were Seventeen," and this scene is brought to a close with an altercation between the Revue Director and Comedian.

Interlude: "Oh, Flo!"

SCENE II.

This opens tearfully, but our Juvenile Lead, whose motto is "Ready, Aye, Ready," gives good advice in "Smile Through Your Tears," which is accepted by our Comedienne, and they both disappear for a quiet smoke; after which our Soubrette and her friends tell us that her "Sister Hasn't Got a Chance."

The quiet smoke ended, the Juvenile Lead returns, and in soliloquy sings "I Never Knew How Much I Loved You." This is followed by "Proposing," and the Company conclude the scene with "Way Down Home."

Interlude: "Tell-Tale Eyes."

SCENE III.

The Comedian is again found accosting strangers, and this time the Soubrette and he discuss "Gardens," which is appropriately followed by our Soprano's invitation to "Come Along with Me to Flowerland"; everyone having accepted the invitation, we find our Comedienne chatting pleasantly with "Farmer Jack of Devonshire." Next we are introduced to a domestic episode in "Cross-Word Puzzles," and to bring this scene to a fitting close we give a little exhibition of "Acting."

Interlude: "A Windy Day in March."

SCENE IV.

Opens with the Comedian again accosting someone. This time it is the Revue Director, and they both join in giving "Some Dust," which is rudely interrupted by the arrival of a person referred to by the Comedian as "The Sheik." This latter gentleman, assisted by his Staff, sings of his "Oriental Love Dreams," and then passes on. The Comedian next accuses the Soubrette of being a vamp, but she explains what a real vamp is like in "Sob Sister Sadie." The finale of this scene takes the form of an introduction to our "Tourist Agency."

Interlude: "Did Tosti Raise His Bowler Hat?"

SCENE V.

Some Famous School Songs.

By A. B. Cooper.

[A number of Public School Songs will be broadcast from Newcastle on Monday, September 7th.]

ALMOST every great public school in England has a song of its own; but it is just as true of songs as it is of poets, that they "are born, not made." Similarly, just as it is said of kissing, that it "goes by favour," so of school songs; you may write a song for a school, and they may sing it on state occasions, but it is ten to one [that the] boys will sing something else for choice.

Nevertheless, there are some school songs which are as much part and parcel of the school as its desks or cloisters, songs which are sung spontaneously, in season or out of season, in term and out of term, and of these there is, of course, none more widely known, even among the general public who never knew a public school, than Winchester's "Dulce Domum."

A Pleasant Tradition.

This is not only the oldest public school song, but it makes an appeal, by virtue both of its sentiment and its setting, far beyond the bounds of school life. It is still sung every evening during term, as it has been for some 240 years past, and it is more than probable that its Latin title was James Howard Payne's cue for the most popular song in the world—"Home, Sweet Home."

Tradition asserts that the words were composed, about 1650, by a Wykehamist who had been kept in school to write an "impot" whilst his comrades were having a half-holiday; but, like many another pleasant tradition, it lacks positive proof—a lack which precludes no Old Wykehamist from believing it.

The two Latin stanzas, beginning "Concinamus O soldates" have been translated by Mr. Alfred Perceval Graves for "The National Song Book" as follows:—

Come, companions, join your voices,
Hearts with pleasure bounding;
Sing we the noble lay,
Sweet song of holiday,
Joys of home, sweet home, resounding.

Home! sweet home, with ev'ry pleasure,
Home! with ev'ry blessing crown'd!
Home! our best delight and treasure!
Home! the welcome strain resound!

Quit, my weary muse, your labours,
Quit your books and learning;
Banish all cares away,
Welcome the holiday,
Hearts for home and freedom yearning.
Home! sweet home, etc.

"Forty Years On."

Next in order of fame and of popular appeal comes, undoubtedly, Harrow's much more modern, but truly splendid "Forty Years On." The lyric which Harrow's famous music master, John Farmer, set to music in 1869, was written by E. E. Bowen, who collaborated with Mr. Farmer on many occasions for the well-known Harrow Song Book, and it is with one exception the nearest approach to true poetry made by any of the school song writers. We have not space for more than the first and final verse:—

Forty years on, when afar and asunder
Parted are those who are singing to-day,
When you look back, and forgetfully wonder
What you were like in your work and your play,
Then, it may be, there will often come o'er you,
Glimpses of notes like the catch of a song—
Visions of boyhood shall float them before you,
Echoes of dreamland shall bear them along.

Chorus.

Follow up! Follow up! Follow up!
Till the field ring again and again
With the tramp of the twenty-two men.
Follow up! Follow up!

Forty years on, growing older and older,
Shorter in wind, as in memory long,
Feeble of foot and rheumatic of shoulder,
What will it help you that once you were strong?
God give us bases to guard or beleaguer,
Games to play out, whether earnest or fun;
Fights for the fearless and goals for the eager,
Twenty, and thirty, and forty years on!
Follow up!

Rugby, ever redolent of "Tom Brown" and his "school-days," fragrant with memories of the great Thomas Arnold and his greater son, Matthew, of Arthur Penrhyn Stanley, Dean of Westminster in "Good Victoria's golden reign," and of Arthur Hugh Clough, has an excellent school song, "Floreat Rugbeia," written in 1870 by the Rev. Charles Edward Moberly. It is in Latin, and its inspiration is evidently the ancient "Dulce Domum."

Eton's "Boating Song."

A large number of schools have their "Carmens," including Westminster, Wellington, Cheltenham, Haileybury, Eton, and Charterhouse; but it seems a pity that there is not a little more originality of idea in them. Take the Eton song, for instance. Doubtless "Carmen Etonense" is sung at Eton, but the real, the authentic song of the school, as so well befits a school which almost lives in or on the Thames, is the famous "Eton Boating Song." Here are two of the five verses:—

Jolly boating weather
And a hay-harvest breeze,
Blade on the feather,
Shade off the trees;
Swing, swing together
With your backs between your knees.

Skirting past the rushes,
Ruffling o'er the weeds,
Where the lock stream gushes,
Where the cygnet feeds.
Let us see how the wine glass flushes
At supper on Boveney meads.

Immortalized by Thackeray.

A state of things somewhat similar, though not so marked, obtains at Godalming, for the "Carmen Carthuseanum," although the official school song, has not the prestige of "Laeti laudate Dominum" at the school which Thackeray immortalized in "The Newcomes." This stately song was written by William Horsley, who was organist at the Charterhouse School from 1843 to 1873. His Latin dedication ends with the cry dear to all Carthusians: "Floreat Aeternum Carthusiana Domus."

Haileybury's "Carmen," although a fine Latin song, is also generally ousted on all but state occasions by A. G. Butler's stirring "Vivat Haileyburia!" Written as late as 1892, it lacks the "old and crusted" bouquet of an old vintage like "Dulce Domum." Nevertheless, its author has had boys in mind and has made a song in the right spirit, as witness:—

The Romans were a knowing race,
Vivat Haileyburia!
They made a road down to this place,
Vivat Haileyburia!
Romans came and passed away;
Normans followed; where are they?
But we are here, and here we stay!
Vivat Haileyburia!

Then vivat, vivat, round the board;
Vivat Haileyburia!
And yet once more with louder chord,
Vivat Haileyburia!
For we've been boys and men together,
Have wielded bat and hunted leather,
When life was bliss in summer weather,
Vivat Haileyburia!

Studios Old and New.

Improvements to Aid Transmission.

IN the great building at 2, Savoy Hill, which houses London Station and the central offices of the B.B.C., workmen are busily engaged on the construction of four new studios. When these are completed, it will not mean the dismantling and putting out of commission of the two old studios. These, it is hoped, will still continue to play their part after they have been renovated and brought up-to-date.

Hallowed Ground.

To think of all that the original studios have heard and witnessed—from the first opening ceremony, conducted by H.R.H. Princess Alice, down through all these months of rapid development and varied extension of aim! Think of the great artists who, after facing the largest and most critical audiences in Europe, had entered these little rooms in fear and trembling to try a new medium for their art; and of the young artists, who had never known what it was to face a great concert crowd in the flesh, and had found acceptance and popularity almost instantaneously with unseen thousands of listeners! Where these incidents had taken place was surely hallowed ground!

So it is a relief to know that the old studios have not been condemned—that while the original one may be pensioned off on to lighter work, its successor on the first floor will be brought up-to-date and will continue in use.

Of the four rooms under construction, two are designed to be suitable for the transmission of talks and plays.

Reserved for Talks.

The average learned authority who comes to deliver a fifteen-minute dissertation upon his special subject is embarrassed if he finds himself sandwiched in between a high-stepping Radio chorus and an orchestral item. Under the new arrangements, he will be able to deliver his talk under ideal conditions, in a small cosy sanctum, specially built and specially reserved for talks, with a comfortable chair drawn into a gently-sloping desk on which his manuscript lies—lit up by an adjustable standard lamp. The microphone will be at the top of the desk at the desired distance from the speaker and the room is to be draped and carpeted so as to give the least possible echo effect.

Perhaps the most interesting of the new studios is a large room divided by a glass partition and glass doors, which is set apart for rehearsals and dramatic transmissions. The two halves of this room are differently constructed and arranged. In the one, the players will speak their parts; in the other, the effects will be produced, by assistants who can see when is the right moment through the glass. For the former, the walls are hung with fixed drapery—to avoid echo—and the floors are carpeted; in the latter, the drapery is variable and the floor uncarpeted to permit of experiments with noise effects.

After Many Experiments.

A silence-cabinet will make it possible for the dramatic producer to see what is going on in both rooms and to hear how the sounds blend as they are transferred by two separate microphones to the amplifying room; he will be able to indicate by word of mouth, or by an indicator-board, to those in either room whether they are too loud or too slow, and, if need be, cut off the effects when they are drowning the diction of the players.

It is not everyone who realizes what infinite ingenuity and art go to the construction of a successful transmission studio. The present plans are the result of many experiments, and the B.B.C. engineers have by no means finished with their experimenting.

The Reason Why of Call Signs.

By P. P. ECKERSLEY.

I SUPPOSE that the average man—or shall we say the man uninterested in wireless?—wonders sometimes to hear the jargon on the lips of “fans.” The average man, indeed, might have been surprised to hear someone about 1911 say: “I got ‘FL’ on a bedstead,” and could little guess that the speaker referred to receiving Paris (on a crystal) on his spring-frame mattress aerial.

The letters “FL” convey, I suppose, to all the old gang of wireless enthusiasts their introduction to wireless. Believe it or not, but to hear once a day perhaps “per pah per per—per per pah per” was sufficient thrill to us older wirelessites to keep us busy with cardboard and wire and crystals and quaint aeriols for days and nights.

The “LO” Tradition.

There is something definite and personal about a call sign, and now, with the advent of broadcasting, a quite definite entity is built about certain letter combinations.

No one will ever forget “2LO.” One is glad to feel that “3LO” is within the Empire and one feels that Melbourne will live up to the “LO” tradition.

And “KDKA,” with the pause between “KD” and “KA” given in the slightly nasal accent of our cousins in Pittsburg—what vision does that cabalistic region conjure up? Long nights in the winter, I expect, trying to drive your receiver down shorter and shorter—X’s—lots of X’s—and a wish for a warmer dressing-gown and sorrow that you hadn’t made up the fire.

Signals that Vanished.

Long handles on condensers, and signals, faint at first—that vanished did one so much as change one’s mind. Sets that changed theirs if we moved a hand, petulance at a wireless widow’s voice over the banisters—and finally that great night when, clear, strong and beautiful the loud speaker gave up its struggle, cleared its throat and poured out: “‘KD—KA,’ East Pittsburg, U.S.A., calling!” Mystic letters, indeed, meaning a wealth of struggle and achievement to you. To others, of course, just “KDKA,” spelling nothing, meaning nothing, unless it be the name of a Polish town.

People have often asked how call signs are allotted and readers might be interested to know just a little of the machinery. When one applies to the Post Office for permission to erect a transmitting station, if one gets that permission, thrown in, you will find an allocation of certain letters. You are “5XY” or “3OK,” or something. Many have wondered if there is any underlying scheme.

It is obvious that for the many broadcasting stations a plan has been followed. Thus, “KH,” for Hull, was allotted because what you and I call Hull is really Kingston-on-Hull. The call sign, “HL,” was not allotted.

An Unfortunate Mistake.

Sheffield has a famous call sign with “FL,” but herein lies a tale. The letters allotted were “SL,” but in such a hurry were we in those days that a telephone message misread made the local man read “F” for “S.” As an order was on hand for the printing of two or three thousand badges, or something, the mistake could not have been rectified, and so it is “FL” to the end of time. “2LO” is pretty obvious, but why “5IT” and “2ZY”?

The Birmingham Station explains its call sign in a way acceptable to its proper pride, the letters, however, were allotted to the experimental station originally erected at the “G.E.C.” works there. The same with “2ZY.” These were simply letters that might have been allotted to any station, but were, in fact, given to the Metro. Vickers Experimental Station that was the nucleus of the present Manchester Broadcasting Station.

Why is Cardiff “5WA”? Think it out!

Their Real Meaning.

“5XX” might be more applicable, it might be thought, to certain types of liquid refreshment, but everyone knows that Chelmsford was originally Xperimental, if not extra so.

Sometimes owing to obvious letters having been allotted to other stations at previous times a place name is not exactly reproduced in its call sign.

We shall always remember them, though—“WGY,” “WEAF,” “2LO,” and “FL,” and the rest, just a combination of letters, but how much more? Let us hope that to one and all of you they convey goodwill, entertainment and service. That is what they really mean, and so I sign myself P. P. E.—B.B.C.

[A Caricature by Nerman.]

POPULAR SYNCOPATORS.

Layton and Johnstone, the American Negro comedians, are now as well-known to listeners as they are to patrons of “the halls.” They have personalities all their own and their melodies are of the kind that haunt one.

LISTENERS can look forward to some interesting talks this week. On Monday, September 7th, at 6.40 p.m., the Earl of Donoughmore will make an appeal on behalf of the London Homœopathic Hospital. On the eve of the St. Leger, September 8th, at 7.40 p.m., “Faugh-aballagh” will give a talk on the prospects of the race; and on Saturday, September 12th, Mr. A. H. Tear, a member of the House of Keys for Ramsey, will talk from Liverpool to other Stations on “Manxland and Its Parliament.”

* * * *

A PIANOFORTE RECITAL of interest to Fife listeners will be broadcast from the Dundee Station on Friday, September 18th, when Mr. Drake Rimmer, the pianist-composer, will play a number of his own compositions, including “The Spring Song,” and the first movement from the Concerto in C.

SONGS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW: “Love’s Old Sweet Song.”

THIS famous old song will be broadcast from Bournemouth on Friday, September 11th. The words are of that doyen of song writers, G. Clifton Bingham, and the music is by J. L. Molloy. We publish the words by permission of the Publishers, Messrs. Boosey and Co.

ONCE in the dear dead days beyond recall,
When on the world the mists began to fall,
Out of the dreams that rose in happy throng,
Low to our hearts Love sung an old sweet song;
And in the dusk where fell the firelight gleam,
Softly it wove itself into our dream.

Just a song at twilight, when the lights are low,
And the flick’ring shadows softly come and go,
Though the heart be weary, sad the day and long,
Still to us at twilight comes Love’s old song,
Comes Love’s old sweet song.

Even to-day we hear Love’s song of yore,
Deep in our hearts it dwells for evermore;
Footsteps may falter, weary grow the way,
Still we can hear it at the close of day,
So till the end, when Life’s dim shadows fall,
Love will be found the sweetest song of all.

Just a song at twilight, when the lights are low,
And the flick’ring shadows softly come and go,
Though the heart be weary, sad the day and long,
Still to us at twilight comes Love’s old song,
Comes Love’s old sweet song.

There's life in the family now!

*Introducing
Miss Mellovox.*

Merry Miss Mellovox has been chosen to identify in the advertising the merits of the Mellovox Loud Speaker. We shall see her making life generally a little brighter—in papers, in windows, at dances, here, there, and everywhere.

What a difference broadcast music, song and interest makes to family life. Greater still will become the added pleasures of radio now that the Sterling Mellovox is here. A loud speaker supremely perfect in performance, gracefully artistic in design and offered at a price that makes the luxury of its reproduction and appearance available to every radioist.

Hear it to-day at your radio dealers.

STERLING MELLOVOX Loud Speaker.

THE STERLING MELLOVOX is artistically finished in brown, blue or purple with floral designs on the diaphragm. 2,000 ohms resistance.

THE WUNCELL

—a centenarian among Valves!

OUR morning mail would be exceptional if it did not contain at least one letter from some enthusiastic Cossor user commenting upon the long life of his valve. Among our most treasured possessions are these hundreds of letters—each one of which has been written spontaneously to express the writer's keen approval of the satisfactory service he has received.

Typical among them is the following from Mr. H. Hayward, of 9 Daisy Gardens, Dagenham, Essex. He writes as follows :

"On looking through one of your ads. in 'Modern Wireless' a few days ago, and noticing the claims of some of your users, I think I ought to bring to your notice the performance of one of your valves. I bought this in July 1923, and after using it practically 4 hours per night on the average, and more so during week-ends, it has just given up the ghost. I reckon the life of this valve at about 4000 hours. Can anyone beat this? I won't say any more!"

But if the Cossor bright emitter is reckoned to possess a long working life, then truly the Wuncell Dull Emitter is a centenarian among valves. Here is a valve which is fitted with an entirely new type of filament—one which can be obtained in no other valve.

A filament which, instead of being whittled down to an exceptional thinness to obtain low current consumption, is actually built up layer upon layer until it is practically as stout as that used in a bright emitter valve. A filament which, mounted in arch formation and further secured at its centre by a third support, will readily withstand all the shocks and abuses of everyday use. A filament, moreover, that owing to its unique method of manufacture gives off an intensely powerful electron stream when barely glowing.

Ally such a wonderful filament to the Cossor construction and you'll readily appreciate why the Wuncell gives a standard of performance which has not yet been approached by any other valve.

The essential features of every Cossor Valve—irrespective of type—are its hood-shaped Grid and Anode and its arched filament. As every wireless enthusiast knows, the action of the 3-electrode valve depends upon an effective use being made of the electron stream given off by the heated filament. Previous to the introduction of the Cossor this had always been done by means of a spiral grid and a tubular anode. But obviously such a design suffers from severe limitations on account of considerable leakage of electrons from each end of the anode. In the Cossor, on the other hand, the arched filament is almost totally enclosed by the hood-shaped Grid and Anode, and few, if any, of the electrons can escape.

The Wuncell Dull Emitter incorporates every salient Cossor feature. It functions at 1·8 volts, while its current consumption is only 3 amp.—so low as to enable the standard six-volt accumulator, with its cells connected in parallel, to last six times as long as with bright emitter valves. The man changing over to Wuncells from ordinary valves, therefore, gets an additional five weeks' Broadcasting free of cost every time he has his accumulator charged.

So that, not only do you get a long-life valve when you choose the Wuncell, but you effect tremendous economies as well. In the face of such incontrovertible facts can you delay buying Wuncells any longer? In two types: W1 for use as a Detector or L.F. amplifier, and W2 (with red top) for use as a high-frequency amplifier. 14/- each from all Wireless Dealers.

A BRITISH BATTLE CRUISER

H.M.S. REPULSE

On Land and Sea

Loud Speaking Telephone Apparatus manufactured by THE HOUSE OF GRAHAM is used throughout the British Navy and adopted by many Foreign Governments, as also by leading Shipping Companies in all quarters of the Globe.

With over thirty years' pre-eminence in every field of Loud Speaker application, the utility, technical efficiency, and reliability of Graham instruments are conclusively demonstrated.

Just as the most exacting requirements of Naval and Maritime experts have been adequately met by production to meticulously accurate standards, so the present-day needs of Radio reception have been fully satisfied in the evolution of the AMPLION Loud Speaker.

A Product of The House of Graham

Recognised as the World's Standard Wireless Loud Speaker.

Obtainable from AMPLION STOCKISTS and Wireless Dealers Everywhere.

Send now for our latest Catalogue

EVERY man who takes a keen interest in the fascinating subject of wireless and wishes to keep in touch with the latest development of the science should write at once for the latest Burndept Catalogue which gives full particulars of the most extensive and efficient range of apparatus offered to the public, including everything from components to complete installations. Because we specialise in wireless we are able to produce apparatus of unequalled quality which can be guaranteed to give perfect results.

Many interesting changes have taken place in Burndept Apparatus and many novel features have been introduced. In the range of instruments, the Ethodyne, a seven-valve superheterodyne receiver of improved design, stands out prominently as the finest set ever put on the market and the introduction of Burndept Super Valves is a notable event which will arouse much attention; these valves are guaranteed. As the important advances that have been made cannot all be indicated here, we strongly advise you to secure a copy of our latest catalogue at the earliest opportunity.

Don't miss the Burndept Exhibit at the N.A.R.M.A.T. Wireless Exhibition at the Royal Albert Hall, Sept. 12th to 23rd. Stands 11 and 12, Boxes 74 and 75.

The Latest Wonder

A NEW invention of the Western Electric Company, that will put a new complexion on Loud Speaker reproduction.

The "Kone" Loud Speaker, as its name implies, has been evolved by the scientific application of two cones, with the result that absolutely faithful reproduction is assured of every musical note and complete freedom from the objectionable guttural tones associated with most Loud Speakers of the horn type.

Order yours now and save disappointment.

D.E.11 (Dull Emitter Type) 12/6

This combines remarkably efficient rectification with good high and low frequency amplification and works successfully off a single 2 volt accumulator or dry batteries.

A.45 (Bright Emitter Type) 7/6

This type is an excellent "General Purpose" valve which gives brilliant results. It combines the advantages of other high- and low frequency valves in the one valve.

Things like this were always happening till he got in touch with RICHARDSON & WHITAKER. Now he doesn't have to rely on his memory to get his accumulators charged. We see to that for him by calling regularly once a week and replacing his battery with a fully charged one.

We should like to do the same for you. Our service, which includes free collection and delivery, costs no more than ordinary charging rates and we save you all the trouble of carrying heavy accumulators about.

We have various rates designed to meet the needs of all valve users whether they have batteries of their own or whether they wish to hire them from us.

RHEUMATISM, GOUT, KIDNEY DISEASE, SKIN TROUBLES, and other affections are caused or aggravated by BAD WATER—

Water that has too much mineral matter (commonly spoken of as lime) in it. Many people get stiff in the joints, slow in the circulation and wrinkled in the face without so much as suspecting the water.

All these dangers are in addition to the danger everybody runs of getting TYPHOID FEVER (Enteric), CHOLERA, &c., from drinking water that contains the germs of disease. It was long thought that an analytical Chemist could tell whether water was safe. He can not. He can tell you when water is very bad and dangerous but he cannot tell you certainly whether water is actually safe. On the other hand Scientists agree that the most effective way of getting absolutely pure, palatable and safe water for drinking, cooking, &c., is by distilling it. And "The Lancet," "The Hospital," "Public Health," and other medical and hygienic journals have testified to the Efficacy, Simplicity, and Handiness of the

Here are the new Brown Loud Speakers

—the new Cabinet

The handsome instrument illustrated above is a welcome relief to some of the more usual type of Loud Speakers. Beautifully finished in a rich rosewood shade and made of the best mahogany, it will undoubtedly achieve a very wide measure of popularity. The same superb volume and purity of tone so characteristic of the Brown will be found in this new Cabinet model. If you have been prejudiced against the use of Loud Speakers—either on account of their appearance or their performance—your last objection has now been removed.

For supreme beauty of outline, clarity of tone and ample volume, the new Brown Cabinet Loud Speaker stands alone. Supplied in all resistances. £6-6-0

—the new HQ

A handsome new Loud Speaker possessing the same beauty of outline as the luxurious Q type whilst retaining the full volume and sensitiveness of the well-known H1. Available in a rich brown colour or a glossy black with polished mahogany base and nickelled fittings. A superb instrument which will charm everyone with its exceptional fidelity of reproduction. £6

What is "Milam"?

It is the new Lucas Battery Moulding Material which overcomes the disadvantages of ordinary Radio Batteries.

"M-I-L-A-M" means Moulded In Lucas Acid-proof Material and its use enables the outside covering to be moulded integral with the cells—this prevents leakage of acid, gives great mechanical strength to the battery, also a separate case or crate is not required.

The finish of this material resembles polished ebony and the consequent handsome appearance of Lucas Radio Batteries makes them an acquisition to any room where a wireless cabinet is installed.

The large bore vents are clean and effective, the terminals robust, and another special feature is the strong leather carrier (with its neat and positive attachment) which facilitates handling—a boon when the battery needs re-charging.

Each Battery has connections for 2, 4 or 6 volts, and prices include Lid and Leather carrier.

The Actual Capacities given are at a 20 hour rate of discharge.

WHY BUY ACCUMULATORS??

If you add depreciation to the expense and inconvenience of having your own accumulators unskilfully recharged—it costs you considerably more than our inclusive Hire Service.

WE hire specially constructed Rotax Wireless Accumulators of various sizes, clean and fully charged, keeping you continuously supplied by punctual weekly or fortnightly deliveries anywhere in Greater London from 9/6 per quarter and guarantee complete satisfaction. If you have your own accumulators we offer the same service at proportionate rates. If you have only one we lend you one of ours, alternate exchanges. Over 20 years' electrical manufacturing experience and a plant capable of charging 5,000 Accumulators, guarantees a punctual and efficient Service at all times.

RADIO DOCTOR AT YOUR SERVICE.

If you are not getting satisfactory reception, a fully qualified Wireless Engineer will examine and improve your set at your house anywhere in Greater London, for a small fee and estimate if necessary for repairs, overhaul or reconstruction. Why not have your set up to date?

just a ball, a metal plate—and no cats-whisker—

Abolish your Crystal and cats-whisker and adopt this trouble-free method of detection. Not a permanent detector, but a readily adjustable one, with a zinc ball making contact with a smooth plate coated with mineral compounds.

—and the volume of pure reproduction is extraordinary

Kathoxyd consists of a smooth metal plate in a brass mount, which fits your Crystal cup. It is supplied with two contacts—one a ball of zinc iron, for local-station use, the other a fine graphite point for long-distance work. Each contact is readily fixed in place of your ordinary cats-whisker.

Supplied in sealed boxes, containing one Kathoxyd Element, one Ball Contact, and one Long-distance Contact. From all Wireless Dealers. Price 1/6

Wholesale from all reputable Factors. All enquiries answered by—

THE B6 Valve, whilst possessing similar characteristics to the B.T.H. Type B4 Valve, is designed for use with dry batteries and can be operated in the same circuit with the B5 Valve. The combination of B5 Valves for H.F. and detector stages with B6 Valves for the L.F. stages means efficiency and economy. Below are given the electrical characteristics which contribute to the excellence of the B6 Valve:—

Filament Voltage	-	-	-	3 volts
Filament Current	-	-	-	0.12 amp
Anode Voltage	-	-	-	40 to 120 volts
Anode Resistance	-	-	-	12,000 ohms

Remember, a three valve set, fitted with two B5 valves and one B6 valve requires only 0.24 of an ampere for its operation.

"THE MAJOR."

Every month
the demand grows.

THE smoking public grows more and more enthusiastic over the UNEQUALLED VALUE of ARMY CLUB cigarettes—more and more appreciative of their quality and packing—of their unrivalled all round excellence and purity. ARMY CLUBS were inspired by a desire to meet the demand for a cigarette at a reasonable price with qualities that hitherto belonged exclusively to high priced cigarettes.

The phenomenal sales indicate that ARMY CLUB cigarettes have more than satisfied the craving for a better cigarette.

TUNGSTALITE

A GREAT DISCOVERY

At Last!
a ROUND
Crystal

The days of irregular shaped crystals of uncertain behaviour will soon belong to the past. TUNGSTALITE have discovered how to produce crystals which are sensitive all over, through and through, and which secure clear results over distances inaccessible with other products. You can try any specimen of TUNGSTALITE (Blue or Gold Label) and the results will astonish you. But this is not all! The new product known as is the first crystal to be made in perfectly cylindrical form. It fits instantly into all ordinary crystal cups without fracturing or splintering. It is sensitive at every point of both its cut and rounded surface. Every specimen possesses an equal and perfect sensitivity. SECURE YOUR SPECIMEN TO-DAY, 1/6.

1/6 TUNGSTALITE 1/6

Round Type Crystal

The "Electron" Crystal Set is wired with the world-renowned "Electron" wire, all the way from aerial to crystal.

The tuning is simplicity itself by a single control. The Detector is of an efficient pattern, with Sylverex crystal silver alloy (every piece being guaranteed).

The mounting is on a nicely framed black panel, an ornament wherever used, and cannot fall over.

On tests the result is far superior in every way to any other crystal set, whatever the cost.
