The Coming of the Tango.

By GEORGE GROSSMITH.

IN 1912, the world gave birth to the dance craze. A couple had been engaged to dance at the Café de Paris in Paris. This was a novelty. Hitherto, dancing could be seen only at "places where they dance"; that is to say, in public and private ball-rooms, and upon the stage. A couple gyrating amongst the tables at restaurants during dinner and supper was something entirely new, and its introduction was greeted with enthusiasm. New York followed suit immediately, and England—as it always does—a year later.

Maurice and Florence Walton were probably the pioneers. After they had been dancing a few weeks, one or two venturesome couples among the diners, inspired by the exhibition, "took the floor" themselves, and this induced the restaurateurs to clear a space for their clients and make dancing a feature at the evening meals. The dances chiefly indulged in were the "Boston," "Hesitation," "One-step," "Two-step" and "Teddy-bear."

At Deauville, in 1913, I was dancing with a partner at the Theatre du Casino, Vernon and Irene Castle in the Casino Restaurant, and Maurice and Florence Walton at Ciro's. Later in the year, the Castles were earning £1,000 a week in New York. Then came the War, and poor Castle, best of brave and good-hearted fellows, took a trap-drum into the trenches and gave his brother officers dancing lessons behind the lines.

Then came the "Tango." In a beautiful house in the Rue de la Faisanderie, an old lady gave me my first lesson in this beautiful Argentine dance. She was the French wife of a Polish nobleman who had once been the greatest operatic tenor in the world. Her salon was the rendezvous for distinguished people of all nationalities, and to her I give the real credit of introducing the dance craze.

The ladies of a generation ago were at home on the "first and third Tuesdays" or the "second Thursdays," where a man usually found himself in a minority of one. My friend of the Rue de la Faisanderie replaced this dreary function with the Thé Dansant; to these she attracted the husbands, sons and daughters, as well as her women friends themselves.

There was an Argentine at the piano and one or two on the floor. The innovation spread like wildfire to all the French Plages, to all the big Paris and country houses, and throughout Europe and America. Statesmen and generals stood unnoticed in the corners of the great drawing-rooms, while their daughters were being piloted round the centre of the room by gentlemen from Buenos Aires and Rio.

Mr. GEORGE GROSSMITH.

A Veteran Composer's Triumph.

The Story of Verdi's "Aida."

VERDI, unlike other composers, steadily advanced in power with age, and his third period was marked by several operas of greater value than those which had previously come from his pen. Of the products of his fully-ripe genius, Aida, which is in his loftier and more dramatic style, is the most popular.

It was first represented at Cairo, and was the outcome of a proposal made by Ismail Pasha, Khedive of Egypt, who commissioned Verdi to write an opera for his new opera house. A "skeleton" of the libretto, the subject of which was certain phases of life at Memphis and Thebes in the time of the Pharaohs, was drawn up by Mariette Bey, the great French Egyptologist. This was handed to M. du Loële, who, with the aid of Verdi, wrote the text in French prose, which was subsequently translated into Italian verse.

A Horror of the Sea.

After Verdi had composed the music, he was offered money, honours, and decorations if he would go to Egypt and conduct it in person. But he refused. Like Rossini, he had a horror of the sea, and had suffered so much by trusting himself to it once, when he had visited London, that he had vowed never to venture on it again.

The opera was staged in December, 1871, and was a great success. At the general rehearsal, which lasted from seven o'clock at night till three in the morning, there was a large and distinguished audience, and such glowing accounts of the work were circulated that the demand for seats for the first performance was enormous. They had been bought up by speculators, who, at the last moment, it is said, "sold boxes and stalls for their weight in gold."

Soon afterwards Aida was represented at Milan, where also it was enthusiastically received. Verdi was called before the curtain thirty-two times, and after the second act he was presented, on behalf of the leading inhabitants of the town, with a sceptre of ivory adorned with a diamond star, similar to that carried by the King of Egypt in the opera.

Cool Cheek!

Equally warm was the reception given to the work in other Italian towns, though one man who heard it was by no means smitten with it. An inhabitant of a village, he went to hear the new opera, his night out, including railway fare and a "detestable" supper, costing him a little more than 31 lire. After reaching home, he asked himself whether the pleasure he had derived was worth the money he had spent, and, coming to the conclusion that it was not, he wrote to Verdi, stating that Aida was a failure, and requesting that he be reimbursed the 31 lire he had wasted in going to hear it!

A Remarkable Challenge.

The composer rose to the occasion admirably. He promptly authorized his publisher to send the malcontent 27 lire 80 centimes, the amount asked, less the cost of the supper, for which he thought he could not reasonably be expected to pay.

"It is understood," added Verdi, "that he will give you an acknowledgment, and, further, a short letter in reply, undertaking to hear my new operas no more, exposing himself no more to the menace of spectres, and sparing me further travelling expenses."

And this the aggrieved man did—quite seriously, too!

Later, also, a mediocre composer—one Vincenzo Sassaroli—issued a remarkable challenge to Verdi. After the production of the master's Requiem, this musician, thinking that the book of Aida could be better set off than it had been, offered "to compose music to the same libretto, without adding anything, without the smallest abridgment, without the slightest change whatever," on condition that he should be paid 20,000 francs if a jury should judge his work favourably and, if otherwise, that he should be compensated for the loss of his time. Obviously, here was a case of "Heads I win, tails you lose," and for this and other reasons Verdi ridiculed the proposal.

In the end, the musician published an account of the incident, with the not too "snappy" title, "Considerations on the Actual State of Musical Art in Italy, and on the Artistic Importance of the opera Aida and of the Mass of Verdi, by the Maestro Sassaroli, with two challenges sent by him to the Publisher Tito Ricordi and the Maestro Giuseppe Verdi and refused by them."

A Poor Joke.

Having made a triumphal tour of Italy and of other countries, Aida reached Paris in 1878, where it was first produced at the Théâtre Italien. Several years earlier, Verdi had been asked to allow it to be represented at the Opera, with which he had had some differences. One day he called the famous orchestra for rehearsal. The time of one piece was taken more quickly than he liked, and on his speaking to Dietsch, the conductor, the band began it again, this time dragging it in a ridiculous manner, with the object of annoying the composer.

"THE STREAM OF LIFE."

The first of Professor Julian S. Huxley's important series of Talks will be published in the next issue of "The Radio Times."

In these Talks theories will be advanced which probably will have the effect of influencing the whole trend of contemporary scientific thought.

"It's a poor joke!" exclaimed Verdi, stamping his foot.

"The fact is, maestro," said Dietsch, "these gentlemen think that they have no need to rehearse."

With a cutting rejoinder Verdi left, and never again did he appear at the Opera.

At the outset, therefore, he would not consent to the representation of Aida on the chief lyric stage of France; but ultimately he gave way, with results which were no less gratifying to him than to the management of the house.

The first performance of the opera in London was as successful as that in Paris. It was remarkable chiefly for the appearance of Madame Patti as Aida, in which part she scored a great triumph.

And ever since, this unit of the great trilogy—Aida, Othello, and Falstaff—has had a sure place in the affections of lovers of lyric drama in this country. T. W. WILKINSON.

[Act II. of "Aida," played by the British National Opera Company, will be relayed from the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, to various stations, on Saturday, October 10th.]

THE B.B.C. is supporting the British National Opera Company in its great campaign to consolidate and develop the basis of British Opera for the whole British people. The campaign will open at the Central Hall, Westminster, on Friday, October 16th, when representative leaders of all political parties, music, and the Press will speak. Lord Londonderry will preside. The speeches between 8.25 and 9.30 will be broadcast through all stations of the B.B.C.

The Coming of the Tango.

The dance craze became so powerful that even the tragic years 1914-18 failed to kill it. In Paris the Tango was almost exclusively danced, and a very beautiful dance it was. But there the dancers contented themselves by sticking almost exclusively to the "Corte." When the Tango was first introduced to the English public, it was shown as an exotic dance, bristling with 356 variations. Tango melodies flooded the music shops, the back covers containing nebulous diagrams and descriptions of the various movements quite impossible of understanding.

Expositions were given at nearly every music-hall, with the result that a few self-styled experts were rushing up and down drawing-rooms, executing vigorous "half-moons" and "scissors," throwing their partners into the air and introducing matriche steps into their gyrations, with the result that the dance was immediately voted "taboo."

There never was the slightest necessity for the Tango to be either immodest or ungraceful. But the English papers widely heralded it as such, "barbarian antics" and "negroid wriggings" being common terms in their descriptions. Wherever the fault may have lain, there is no doubt whatever that the Tango, as introduced to the English public a few years preceding the War, was far too complicated and, at its best, it became purely an exhibition dance. The Fox-trot absorbed whatever remained or could be grasped of the "Tango Corte" and the "Boston." I have always regretted this, as the beautiful metre and music of the Tango was lost to our ballrooms. Until lately, indeed, the Valse was also omitted, or nearly omitted, from dance programmes, entire evenings being given over to Fox-trots and an occasional One-step. It was a great pity, as we lost this contrasting rhythm as well as the beautiful melodies of the Tango.

But now we are to have it again, in the simple form of the French Tango, consisting practically of four steps. As it is being done now throughout France, it must be admitted to be the easiest of all dances. No one can cavil at its grace or suitability to a ballroom. I feel certain it will become popular in England, and dance teachers, welcoming it with open arms, are circularizing their clients to that effect.

The B.B.C., intending to be first in the field, have engaged Santos Casani to give a series of three lessons to listeners throughout the country. In addition to this Varaldi's Savoy Tango Band began its broadcasting this month. Casani is not only a brilliant teacher, but a teacher of teachers.

Listeners will have appreciated from his first lesson the simplicity of his methods. On a suggestion made by myself, he is instructing before the microphone a pair of pupils totally uninitiated in the Tango; instructions as to the placing of the hands, the movements of the feet, the poise of the body, etc., are given slowly in order that listeners may grasp them, and actually receive their lessons from the loud-speaker. A loud-speaker will be necessary; I cannot conceive a couple dancing with headphones on.

By carefully absorbing the three lessons, and a little practice in between, I know of no reason why listeners of all ages should not become sufficiently proficient in this alluring dance to appreciate and enjoy the Varaldi's Savoy Tango Band.

Weather Listeners Like.

Why Your Reception Varies.

BECAUSE the broadcast programmes are not consistently of the same strength in your headphones, you need not always conclude that your receiving set is at fault. Nearly every listener has his pet theory that reception is better during certain weather conditions, but many agree that music is clearest and loudest on a wet, windy night. This is all the better, because you usually make up your mind to stop indoors and listen when the weather is bad.

Rain is Good for Radio.

It was definitely proved, many years ago, that a heavy rainfall increases the range of wireless communication. Rain forms a film of moisture over the ground which probably prevents the dissipation of wireless waves into the earth. It is a well-known fact that radio signals travel better over water than over land, and communication is established regularly at sea over distances which make the landsman gasp. On a very wet night, radio conditions ashore resemble those at sea.

If you have a crystal set, an important consideration influencing the strength of your reception is the earth system. A good shower of rain usually improves the earth connection, especially if it is not normally very efficient. So, on a rainy night, you may find that signals are stronger.

Mystery of "Fading."

But rain often has a bad effect on reception, particularly if the aerial lead-in is arranged so that the rain drops on to the insulator. When this happens, the aerial is really connected by a thin layer or stream of water to the damp walls of the house, which brings about a great reduction in signal strength.

Snow on the lead-in insulator may also "short" the aerial.

Have you ever noticed a thin layer of ice on your aerial system after a sharp frost? Moisture on the wires and insulators freezes, and sometimes causes considerable leakage of energy.

One of the most mysterious things connected with broadcast reception is that effect known as "fading." Signals which are coming in quite clearly seem to fade away suddenly, although no adjustment or alteration to the set has been made. Conditions in which this annoyance takes place are being studied very closely, and although no complete explanation of "fading" has yet been propounded, American investigators have demonstrated conclusively that it is often due to the presence of fog. A cloud of fog can have the same effect as a mountain which, as is well known, can shield a radio instrument from signals in certain directions. Weak signals suffer most from "fading."

Atmospherics and the Wind.

What are those funny, crackling noises you sometimes hear in your headphone? I do not mean those "frying" sounds often due to faulty batteries, but mysterious noises which you may hear even with a crystal set. They are known as atmospherics, and are said to be due to electrical discharges in the atmosphere. In America they call them "static." This nuisance is more prevalent there, and in all tropical countries. Apparently, there is a close connection between atmospherics and the wind, and your enjoyment is likely to be interfered with chiefly when the wind is dry and warm. But on wet, windy nights, you can be fairly sure that atmospherics will not worry you.

Kicks and Ha'pence.

By A. Corbett-Smith.

[The following article represents an independent expression of opinion on a highly controversial subject.]

WHEN you are a servant of the King, which means the State, it is a rule of the Game that you shall be given many kicks, but few ha'pence. Do your work well, and ten to one someone else will get the credit; fail, whatever the cause may be, and you will have to bear the blame.

Now that is good law, and it has served the British well. It has made men to deal faithfully by the State at home and abroad. It has encouraged responsibility in lonely places. It has created a system, essentially British, wherein there is mutual reliance and mutual respect between the individual and the State, which is the people.

Working Uphill.

But when there are neither kicks nor ha'pence, it means that there is indifference. And indifference is good for neither man nor beast. Besides, it is a breaking of the rules. And the British folk pride themselves upon holding the rules and keeping the ring.

And that little company of public servants which we know as the British Broadcasting Company is getting neither kicks nor ha'pence. It is working uphill against indifference. And that, as I say, is good neither for them nor for the public whom they serve. Most certainly it is not good for the Game.

Now I hold no brief for the Company. I am, in fact, probably their sternest critic, and I do not hesitate at times to hit pretty hard. But being, as I hope, a sportsman, I am keen on the Game and I want to see it played out, thoroughly and well. "For the Game is more than the player of the Game, and the ship is more than the crew"—as Kipling sings.

The Vital Needs.

To get down to brass tacks. The two vital needs in broadcasting to-day are, on the one side, leadership, and, on the other, an enlightened public opinion. With the first, I am not for the moment concerned, except to remark in passing that a wise and discriminating guidance and inspiration in all things that make for happy and honest citizenship is surely the primary function of British radio.

Public opinion to-day towards broadcasting is neither positive nor negative. It is largely neutral. And it is neutral because at present it lacks knowledge. It fails to bring the much-needed critical pressure to bear upon the service because it does not know exactly what is wrong with the service, nor how to criticize it. There is a vague feeling that something is wrong and, every now and again, there is an outburst of vague complaint, encouraged as a "stunt" by some journal or other. But it ends precisely as it began because there has been nothing definite nor constructive about it.

A Curious Phenomenon.

An enlightened public opinion can only be secured by continuity of reasoned, critical, and constructive comment upon the part of the Press. And of this to-day there is hardly the least sign. Indeed, this indifference of the Press towards matter in which virtually every family in the land is interested is, of its kind, the most curious phenomenon which I have encountered in some twenty-five years of public enlightenment work. Nor do I pretend to account for it.

It is not a question of the radio service giving "what the public wants," but of giving the worthiest in every department and in the most effective manner. This, indeed, is "what the public wants," and to this the public will immediately and wholeheartedly respond.

An excellent example may be cited in the case of chamber music. Here is the highest and most abstract form of the art, demanding the closest concentration by the listener. A year ago it made but very small appeal. The London Station, to its credit, set out to perform this music regularly and well. To-day the public demand for more is so strong that additional sessions have had to be arranged.

Here was a definite case of good leadership, and its happy result. It started with plenty of kicks. Now, to the astonishment of most folk, there is a harvest of ha'pence. That is honest encouragement.

Merely Boring.

Now, why should we not see the same happy results all through? We shall, if we kick hard enough. But we have got to find the right spot to kick. It is no good launching out into thin air, or we get the same feeling that Dan Leno experienced when he went upstairs. He put his foot on the top stair, and it wasn't. And this is where an impartial, straight-kicking Press comes in, on behalf of the public.

May I give just one very little kick, say, upon the shin, by way of suggestion? We have all noticed, I expect, that the London Station announcers are very fond of reeling off dates of musical compositions. "This sonata was composed in 1770," and so forth.

Now what is the use of that? What does it convey to anyone? It is something dug out of an encyclopedia and it is merely boring. The only date in history that anyone ever connects with anything is "William the Conqueror, 1066." So folk write in to say, "Cut out that preliminary talk." But, they haven't kicked the right spot.

A Human Peg.

If the announcer were to add, "That was the very year that Nelson first went to sea as a midshipman," we should at once have a little human peg. We all know Nelson and what he looked like and how he dressed, and so we've got a general idea of the period. Our interest is aroused. If we are told that the population of China is 400,000,000, it means absolutely nothing to us. But tell us that if the entire population of the world were marching past us in fours, there would be a Chinese in every four, and we get the hang of it at once.

That is the kind of practical criticism that is wanted. We want to know what is wrong and why, and then we can kick. Then we shall, I think, be only too ready with the ha'pence. But neither kicks nor ha'pence, let me repeat, is not playing the Game.

AN EXTENDED SERVICE.

As part of its development scheme for the coming season, the B.B.C. will expand the Daventry service for a trial period of a month by transmitting through "5XX," from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., every day, except Saturday and Sunday, during October. The new transmissions will be of a light musical character and will include interesting "outside broadcasts" taken from London restaurants and places of entertainment.

It is believed that this extension of the broadcast service will be acceptable, particularly to listeners at home and to hospital patients. A good deal of expenditure is involved in the provision of programmes, in organization, and in the technical arrangements, and the trial period will prove whether this expenditure is justified by results.

Official News and Views. GOSSIP ABOUT BROADCASTING

Dance Music Every Night.

STARTING on November 2nd, broadcast dance music will be available from Daventry every day, except Sunday, from the conclusion of the ordinary programme until midnight. "Outside broadcasts" will contribute to this late dance music. It is proposed also to send out studio dance music between 6.0 and 7.0 on weekdays.

Famous Bands.

The Savoy Bands have found that the pressure of their existing broadcasting commitments is so severe that they will be unable to continue on the same scale as hitherto. But we are glad to be able to tell listeners that they will not be deprived of the services of the Savoy Bands and, moreover, that these Bands will contribute more novelties in future. For instance, on Wednesday, November 4th, the Savoy Bands will give a special syncopated concert in the London Studio, which will be broadcast through all stations from 9.0 to 10.0 on that night.

Other famous bands, including Jack Hylton's Band, at the Piccadilly Hotel, and the Kit Cat Club Band, will be heard at regular intervals during the coming season.

"The Lure of the Dance."

On the evening of Saturday, October 17th, Manchester Station will provide the programme relayed through Daventry. The title of this programme is "The Lure of the Dance," and an endeavour will be made in the first hour to take listeners, metaphorically speaking, across Europe, to hear dances characteristic of Russia, Italy and France. In the second hour, a return will be made to the British Isles to hear characteristic Scottish, Welsh, Irish and English dances. The artists will be Miss Lillian Stiles Allen, Mr. Edward Dykes, Mr. Edward Isaacs (at the piano), and the "2ZY" Augmented Orchestra, conducted by Mr. T. H. Morrison.

A Studio Tattoo.

The B.B.C. will reproduce a Studio Military Tattoo which will be simultaneously broadcast on Tuesday, November 3rd. In view of recent experiments in acoustic effects, it is thought that an adequate radio representation of the Wembley Tattoo can be achieved. It is hoped to introduce such novelties as the Old Army Quadrille.

A Guy Fawkes "Thriller."

On the night of Thursday, November 5th, the feature of the simultaneous broadcast programme will be a surprise "thriller" marking the anniversary of Guy Fawkes Day. All the resources of radio drama will be brought to bear in making this surprise as thrilling and realistic as possible.

"Miss 2025."

A novel talk will be broadcast at 4.45 p.m. from Birmingham, on October 17th, by Miss Dora G. Mercer, whose subject is "The Young Woman of 2025." Miss Mercer has obtained the opinions of several well-known men and women on what the English girl will be like 100 years hence. Listeners will be told the opinions of Mr. George Bernard Shaw, Mr. John Hassall, Miss Sheila Kaye-Smith, Dr. Walter Hadwen, and Mr. T. P. O'Connor.

Bells.

During Plymouth Station's Novelty Night on Friday, October 16th, part of the programme will be entitled "Bells," and will include the Kitto Hand-and-Sleigh-bell Ringers. At the conclusion of the programme of "Bells," the Welsh air, "The Ash Grove," will be played by the Kitto Quartet, in conjunction with the Hand and Sleigh bells. Then there will be an interlude for a talk on "Bells," followed by a section entitled "Entertainment," when Mr. George Parsons, the blind baritone, will contribute popular vocal numbers. The band of the 2nd Battalion of the South Staffordshire Regiment will also play, and included among their items will be a Brass Quartet number, "Spring," by Round.

Men of the Mendips.

Under this alliterative title, Cardiff's programme for Friday, October 16th, will be of special interest to Somerset listeners. The occasion will be a broadcast performance by the Wookey Hole Male Voice Choir, which has a great reputation in the West of England.

Dog Talks.

The late Secretary of the Suffolk Kennel Clubs, Mr. Sydney B. Askew, will shortly give a brief series of talks to dog lovers from Birmingham Station during the Afternoon Topics. On October 16th he will give a lesson in dog-management, with hints on health, exercise, and feeding, to be followed, on October 30th, by a description of what the "ringsider" does not see at a dog show, and concluding, on November 13th, with some First Aid Hints in Sickness.

Beethoven's Sonatas.

Earlier this year, Glasgow Station aroused considerable interest by broadcasting the nine Beethoven Symphonies on successive Wednesdays, and now another interesting series is to be provided by the same Station, when Mr. Herbert A. Carruthers, Musical Director at Glasgow, will play the thirty-two Pianoforte Sonatas. It has been arranged that the Beethoven Sonata will be played each Monday at 8 p.m. (subject to such unexpected events as may render this impossible) and the first of the series, No. 1 in F Minor (Op. 2, No. 1), will be broadcast on Monday, October 12th.

A Purcell Programme.

At Bournemouth Station, Friday evening, October 16th, will be devoted to the works of Purcell, the English composer who lived from 1658-1695. The programme will open with Amphitryon, or The Two Sosias, a comedy written by Dryden, to which Purcell wrote the music and songs. This will be followed by Bonduca, or The British Heroine (an anonymous alteration of a tragedy by Beaumont and Fletcher). The artists will be Miss Dorothy Bennett (soprano), Miss Gladys Palmer (contralto), Mr. Sydney Coltham (tenor), Mr. Harold Williams (bass), and the Bournemouth Wireless Augmented Orchestra, conducted by Captain W. A. Featherstone.

Masters of Music.

Music by most of the great masters, from Purcell to Elgar, will be played at Belfast on Thursday, October 15th. The programme is arranged in chronological sequence and listeners will have the opportunity of trying to trace the evolution from Purcell to Handel, from Bach to Beethoven; the eighteenth century to the romantic style of Mendelssohn; Mendelssohn to Wagner, and Wagner to Elgar. For those who find this too exacting, the Belfast Radio Players will produce another of the series of "Double-sided Records," and the Station Orchestra will play a programme of very light music.

A Visit From Birmingham.

The chief event of next week at Nottingham Station is a visit which Mr. Percy Edgar and a party from Birmingham are paying the Studio on October 16th. This will be the first time that a party from another station will make such a visit to Nottingham.

Aberdeen's School Fare.

Aberdeen Station's School transmissions begin on October 11th. Each transmission consists of two talks, separated by a quarter of an hour's orchestral music. The first-talk period will be devoted to Mr. William Swainson's addresses on Folk Songs, Orchestras and Famous Composers, illustrated by examples. The other period will be filled by Miss Coutts' geological talks on "The Work of the Wave," "The Work of Ice," and the "History of Rocks."

Women Only.

The programme from Leeds-Bradford Station will be given entirely by women on Friday, October 16th. Miss Helena Millais, whom listeners have so often heard from London, will pay her first visit to this station, and will entertain in her own inimitable way. She will be supported by Miss Kathleen Frise Smith, who will give a pianoforte recital.

A Varied Programme.

The local programme from the Edinburgh Studio on Friday, October 16th, will be given by Miss Christine Crowe in character studies, story, and song; Mme. Gertrude Edgard, the well-known mezzo-soprano, and Mrs. Kennedy-Fraser, who will give a talk on Music.

"The Constant Lover."

At the Hull Studio on Friday, October 16th, Miss Colette O'Neil and Mr. Arthur Whatmore will present the amusing one-act comedy, The Constant Lover, by St. John Hankin. Later in the evening there are also two interesting talks—at 6.40 p.m., the Weekly Football Talk, and at 7.10 p.m., Mr. Stanley Duncan, Secretary of the Wild Fowlers' Association of Great Britain and Ireland, on "Wild Fowling Afloat."

On Saturday, October 17th, there will be an outside broadcast of Mr. Wilfred L. Stephenson's Popular Celebrity Concert from the Queen's Hall, Hull, when Walter Rummel will be the leading artist.

"Peer Gynt."

A notable production to be broadcast from Glasgow Station on Friday, October 9th, is that of scenes from Ibsen's Peer Gynt, translated and produced by Miss Isabelle M. Pagan, who will describe and introduce them. The music, by Grieg, will be provided by the Station Augmented Orchestra, under Mr. Herbert A. Carruthers, and consists mainly of those little-known and seldom-played compositions which Grieg wrote specially for the play. Peer Gynt is of great length, and will last, with liberal cutting, as much as four hours, so, on this occasion, whole scenes will be omitted. These, Miss Pagan will summarize as briefly as possible.

How a City is Run.

The Town Clerk of Nottingham is giving a talk at Nottingham Station on "Municipal Administration" on Wednesday, October 7th. It is hoped to continue with talks from the Director of Education and the Chief Constable on the work of their respective departments.

Offenbach Follies.

A diversion in one act, entitled "The Offenbach Follies," which has been arranged by Mr. George Grossmith, with lyrics by Mr. Adrian Ross, should prove a welcome "diversion" in the London Station programme at 9 p.m. on October 7th. Mr. John Ansell, the composer and conductor, has specially arranged the music from popular operas by Offenbach, such as Tales of Hoffmann. A strong cast has been engaged and Mr. Ansell will conduct the production.

The week's feature at 10.30 p.m. will be provided, as already announced, by Mr. Jack Buchanan in some of his recent revue hits.

Earlier Sunday News.

The News Bulletin will be read at London Station on Sunday evenings, after October 11th, at 9 o'clock, instead of 10 o'clock.

PEOPLE YOU WILL HEAR THIS WEEK.

[Harris.]
Miss NORA DELMARR (Soprano) will broadcast from Newcastle and Glasgow on October 8th and 9th.

[Foulsham & Banfield.]
Mr. JACK BUCHANAN, the Revue Star, will be the Week's Feature at London on October 7th. S.B. to all Stations.

[Mott & Yee.]
Miss HELEN HENSHEL, who is singing to her own accompaniment from various Stations this week.

[Wright.]
Miss UNA TRUMAN will give a Pianoforte Recital at Sheffield on October 8th.

[Kis.]
Miss GWEN FARRAR and Miss NORAH BLANEY are to give their entertainment from London, S.B. to all Stations except Belfast, on October 6th.

[Lalagette.]
Miss SYBIL GORDON (Mezzo-Soprano) will be heard from Manchester on October 6th.

[Langley.]

ACT II. OF PUCCINI'S "TOSCA."

[LONDON AND OTHER STATIONS, THURSDAY.]

PUCCINI'S Tosca, produced in 1900 (after La Bohème and before Madam Butterfly), is founded upon Sardou's tragedy, La Tosca.

Below are given, first a brief sketch of the whole plot, then a guide to the Second Act, which may be followed step by step as the Opera proceeds.

The setting is Rome of 1800. Mario Cavaradossi, an artist, shelters an escaped political prisoner. He is suspected by Baron Scarpia, Chief of Police, arrested and put to torture.

The case against Cavaradossi is proved, and Scarpia tells Tosca (or "La Tosca," a singer, and Cavaradossi's true-love) that Cavaradossi will be put to death, unless he (Scarpia) is bribed. The bribe is to be Tosca herself.

In desperation, Tosca professes to acquiesce, and when she has gained possession of a passport for herself and Cavaradossi, she kills Scarpia.

Scarpia's orders are to be carried out, and they are that a mock execution shall take place, Cavaradossi dissembling death. But instead of blank cartridges, actual bullets are fired, and Cavaradossi falls dead.

The murder of Scarpia has by now been discovered, but as the guards rush in to arrest Tosca, she throws herself over the battlements.

ACT II.

SCARPIA (Baritone) is seated at supper, musing in his apartments at the Farnese Palace. SCIARRONE (Bass), a Gendarme, enters, and is given his orders to bring La Tosca, who is singing before the Queen. He withdraws, but soon returns to announce SPOLETTA (Tenor), a Police Agent, who brings news that he has not found Angelotti, the fugitive, but has arrested Cavaradossi.

CAVARADOSSI (Tenor) is now brought in, and scornfully, and stubbornly, repudiates the charge of sheltering Angelotti.

Presently TOSCA (Soprano) rushes in, and Scarpia orders Sciarrone to take Cavaradossi away—to the torture chamber, though Tosca does not yet know this.

Tosca is now left with Scarpia, who tries in vain to gain information from her. Then he tells her that Cavaradossi is being tortured, and groans are just then heard. The conditions are intensified, until the doors are thrown open, and Tosca sees Cavaradossi. When he utters an excessive, prolonged cry of pain, she yields, and tells Scarpia where Angelotti will be found.

Cavaradossi, swooning, is now brought in and laid on a couch, where Tosca embraces him, though he reproaches her when he finds she has given away the secret of the prisoner.

Sciarrone enters with bad news of the fighting, at which Cavaradossi exults. He is told he will be hanged, and is dragged away.

Tosca and Scarpia are again left alone, and Scarpia, calmly resuming his supper, gradually discloses to her that Cavaradossi can be saved if she will give herself to him, Scarpia.

Tosca is at first seized with utter revulsion; but her plight is extreme. Presently she sings her poignant song Vissi d'arte (Love and music, these have I lived for.)

At length Spoletta brings word that Angelotti swallowed poison when he was arrested, and that Cavaradossi's fate awaits Scarpia's word.

Scarpia appeals to Tosca, who at last yields; and he sends Spoletta away with secret orders for a mock execution—"Simulated. . . . As we did in the case of Palmieri!"

Tosca now demands safe conduct for herself and Cavaradossi. While Scarpia writes out a passport, she goes to the table, intending to drink a glass of wine. She catches sight of a knife, picks it up, and, when Scarpia comes forward to embrace her, stabs him.

Scarpia falls to the ground and dies. Tosca washes the stains from her fingers, takes the passport from Scarpia's clenched fist, places candles at his head and a crucifix on his breast, and goes from the room.

CHACONNE FROM "THE GORDIAN KNOT UNTIED" (PURCELL).

(LONDON, SUNDAY.)

The play called The Gordian Knot Untied, for which Purcell wrote incidental music, seems to have disappeared, leaving no tracks.

A Gentleman's Journal in 1691-92, speaks of the author as a "Gentleman who writ lately a most ingenious Dialogue concerning Women."

Purcell's music consists of eight numbers, of which the Chaconne is the sixth. The Chaconne was a stately dance, in a slow three-in-a-bar time. The general style of the music is that of a "ground bass," i.e., a piece in which the same phrase is repeated over-and-over again in the bass, the upper parts always changing. This rule, however, is not rigidly enforced.

Purcell wrote many Chaconnes, and they are among his finest music, for his wonderful genius excelled in writing amazing variations in which every stroke of ingenuity only heightened the musical effect.

DE FALLA'S "NIGHTS IN THE GARDENS OF SPAIN."

(LONDON, SUNDAY.)

Everyone knows the mood evoked by a fine, warm summer's day. It is that dreamy, passive, romantic mood that this music calls for, rather than a plain, matter-of-fact mood in which one asks of music straightforward, "catchy" tunes.

Not that there are no good tunes in this piece—there are plenty of them; but they are not very definite—generally heard, as it were, through a haze. From this point of view, the general background of the music may, perhaps, conjure up beautiful Spanish scenes, full of colour, but mostly subdued colour.

De Falla's Nights in the Gardens of Spain consists of three "Symphonic Impressions" for Solo Piano and Orchestra. The First Movement comes to a definite close, but the Second runs straight into the Third.

The FIRST MOVEMENT, In the Generalife (a famous garden near Grenada) suggests an improvisation. The gently-swaying Chief Tune is heard at the opening in the Orchestra.

The SECOND MOVEMENT is a Distant Dance—mostly a lively, rhythmic piece. This runs straight into—

The THIRD MOVEMENT, In the Gardens of the Sierra (or ridge) of Cordoba. This is a brilliant piece, with a very florid Chief Tune.

Listeners' Letters.

[Listeners are reminded that we do not consider anonymous letters for publication. Preference is given to letters which combine interest with brevity. The Editorial address is 8-11, Southampton Street, Strand, London, W.C.2.]

For Future Ages.

DEAR SIR.—We think that it may possibly be of interest to you to know that in the casket built in the foundation stone in the New Bournemouth Pavilion, a current copy of The Radio Times was included with other documents and records placed therein on September 23rd, 1925.

No one can foresee the developments which will take place in wireless, and a copy of your journal will supply for any future generation who may uncover it, a definite record of the state of broadcasting at the present time.

Yours, etc.,

HOME AND KNIGHT, A.A.R.I.B.A.

37, Russell Square, W.C.

A Question of Language.

DEAR SIR.—One of your correspondents asks why the opera I Pagliacci was broadcast in Italian. This opera was written by an Italian, and it is only natural to perform an opera in its original language.

It is a great mistake to perform an opera in any other language than that in which it was originally written; the text never fits the score. If people would only acquaint themselves with a synopsis of the text before listening to an opera, they would be surprised how easily they could follow it. The correct way, of course, is to arm oneself with a score and follow the music line for line.

Yours, etc.,

Charlton, S.E. MILLICENT BAYLEY.

"Within Sound of Bow Bells."

DEAR SIR.—I would like to draw attention to a common error made by announcers and artists.

They apparently do not know that a "Cockney" does not speak like a "costermonger."

The confusion of these two words makes it very annoying to one who was "born within the sound of Bow Bells."

Yours, etc.,

London, E.C. J. E. NEVILL.

Learning English by Radio.

DEAR SIR.—With keenest interest I listened to a B.B.C. "talk about talks" the other day.

I have always been regretting that up to now in the programmes of the B.B.C. "talk occupied a very moderate share of the day's activities"—but, of course, it was not for me as a foreigner to utter this opinion. The more thankful I am now that in future I shall have some more opportunities of hearing good English spoken and of acquiring a true and correct English pronunciation.

As there is no English person living here at my place, the B.B.C. talks are for me the only means of getting on with my self-taught English.

Yours, etc.,

OTTO MÜLLER.

Geesthacht, near Hamburg.

"Parted."

DEAR SIR.—I am writing this in sorrow, to think that very soon the B.B.C. and myself shall be parted, and "Uncle's" voice will be still.

It is one of the most gruesome cuts in the tragedy of unemployment. In fact, apart from being unemployed, it is the most unkind cut of all.

Unemployment means the cutting down of a lot of life's little amenities. Tobacco, newspapers and other little oddments will have to go. Putting away my little wireless set will be like burying an old and tried friend.

Yours, etc.,

Hull. W. E. K.

Beyond Criticism.

(From Professor A. M. Low.)

DEAR SIR,—I feel that many people are willing to write to the B.B.C. when they have any complaints to make, but a far lesser number are willing to express their appreciation of broadcasting generally. During the past week, the programmes have been, in my opinion, beyond criticism, and I am certain that a repetition of the Eastbourne concert and the Wireless Revue could not fail to give satisfaction to the many millions of listeners both within and without the British Isles.

Yours, etc.,

A. M. LOW.

— ? Calling !

DEAR SIR,—I frequently fail to catch the name of the Station calling because the first word is the name of the Station, which comes sometimes unexpectedly.

I suggest that the name of the Station be preceded by a word or two, e.g.—“You are now listening to —,” which would give one a little more time to listen intently.

Yours, etc.,

Mansfield.

ERNEST GOUK.

The “Dicky Sams.”

DEAR SIR,—In a recent issue of The Radio Times, when mentioning the “6LV” Dicky Sams, it was stated that a “Dicky Sam” is an inhabitant of Mersey-side. This is not strictly accurate. A person known as a “Dicky Sam” is one born within the Old Boundary of Liverpool, and such a person automatically becomes a “Born Freeman” of the city.

Yours, etc.,

Aintree.

W. J. HAYES.

That Name for a Receiving Set.

DEAR SIR,—As many of your readers are asking for an appropriate and distinctive name for receiving sets, may I suggest “Autophone”?

Yours, etc.,

Dorking.

A. W. CAPLIN.

By Way of Daventry.

DEAR SIR,—In many letters from listeners one reads that there are several English stations from which one may select programmes, and Mr. Lee, of St. Annes-on-Sea, repeats this fallacy. In this district Morse signals are so loud and continuous that they absolutely drown the programmes broadcast on the short wave-lengths. Therefore, we are limited to the Daventry programme, and that only; so if Mr. Lee is able to select his entertainment from eight other stations, he is extremely fortunate.

For the above reason I trust that we may not be unduly deprived of our English programmes, via Daventry.

Yours, etc.,

Dover.

JAMES L. RUBIE.

Wanted: More Humour.

DEAR SIR,—A glance through The Radio Times shows that, as usual, in the London programmes, humorists are in a very small minority, in fact only one individual humorous entertainer is shown for “2LO” for the whole week.

I am all for helping to educate the masses in music, if it can be done, and the B.B.C. programmes are probably doing good work in this respect, yet I fear there will always be a large proportion of listeners who prefer at any rate some humour during the evening, and it seems strange that their wants should be met to so little a degree week by week.

Is it because of a dearth of suitable humorists, or is it that the B.B.C. authorities really do not favour humour themselves?

Yours, etc.,

Seven Kings.

Have You Been Poisoned?

By Philemon.*

IN her story entitled “Poison,” Katherine Mansfield offers an explanation of the notorious fact that a criminal court is always crowded to suffocation by the public when some particularly unpleasant trial is afoot. Why are they there? Why would thousands more be there, if they could get in?

“Guilt!” says the woman in the story. “Guilt! Didn’t you realize that? They’re fascinated like sick people are fascinated by anything—any scrap of news about their case. The man in the dock may be innocent enough, but the people in court are nearly all poisoners. Haven’t you ever thought of the amount of poisoning that goes on? It’s the exception to find married people who don’t poison each other—married people and lovers. Oh, the number of cups of tea, glasses of wine, cups of coffee that are just tainted!

“Both my husbands poisoned me. My first husband gave me a huge dose almost immediately, but my second was really an artist in his way. Just a tiny pinch, now and again, cleverly disguised—oh, so cleverly!—until one morning I woke up and in every single particle of me, to the ends of my fingers and toes, there was a tiny grain. . . .”

Overlooked By The Law.

I am afraid that it is true. It is not well to keep harping on the fact (for the simple reason that that will not do any good), but the fact should be seen and placed fairly prominently in the background of any mind which would clearly observe and correctly estimate the world—the fact, namely, that the things which really hurt and hinder life are not such as the law takes cognizance of at all.

The real damage, the damage that counts, is not done by criminals.

“Crime” is a legal term; and crimes are defined by reference to some law which has been broken. Therefore, since laws exist to preserve public decency and order, in all highly-civilized communities, crimes are comparatively rare, and the number of criminals (in proportion to the total population) almost negligible.

We congratulate ourselves upon this—too easily, perhaps. The ordinary man is apt to lay great stress upon public decency and order, which he can see and appreciate and reckon upon; and when he finds the decency preserved and the order kept, he becomes proud of the society in which he lives and is at his ease in it and concerning it.

Moreover, and for the same reason, he is inclined to exaggerate the importance of the detection and arrest of crime, and troubles himself but little concerning those things which, although no law has been formulated against them, do assuredly offend and profoundly injure life.

Something Queer.

For one man who administers arsenic to somebody who stands in his way (which, after all, is a fairly solid and practical reason), there are hundreds who, for no reason whatever, but simply through spite, cruelty, or sheer mischief, poison those near to them by more subtle and deadly toxins.

Civilization stands in far less danger of those who kill the body than of those who are able to destroy the soul.

It depresses me sometimes—the number of people one meets who, as soon as one gets close to them, have something—something queer about them; a vision slightly blurred; a distorted outlook; an odd kind of irritableness;

a prejudice in favour of despair. Poisoned undoubtedly; some, aware of the fact, others quite unaware. And by whom? Certainly not by criminals; not necessarily by brutal persons, even.

Robbery Without Risk.

There is the man who meanly betrays your confidence; the man who treats you with neglect and indifference; who makes you feel that you are under suspicion; who mocks you with a gesture, an innuendo. The family of the Borgias was as nothing to these.

And, when once you have been poisoned, it is so terribly easy for you to become, in your turn, a poisoner.

There are a few burglars here and there who, at considerable risk, attempt a redistribution of property in their own favour, and have an eye upon your jewellery or your spoons.

On the other hand, there is the man who, at no personal risk whatever, robs you of your self-confidence, or of your gay spirit, of your faith in humanity.

Behind The Faces.

Mr. Lonsdale, in his play, Spring Cleaning, showed us a group of tolerably respectable people—sufficiently respectable, at any rate, not to need to worry at the sight of a policeman—violently protesting against even momentary association with a woman who, on her part, cannot altogether ignore the attention of the policeman, but who simply does openly and in a professional way that which they themselves are doing with furtive intrigue “under the rose.”

A bishop, the other day, was speaking alarmingly of the underworld of night clubs and that sort of thing. If I were a bishop, I do not think that that would alarm me so very much. What would alarm me, perhaps, would be the underworld which I could not see behind the faces of my immense and highly respectable congregation!

THE CHEIROPHONE.

WE have received, through Sir Richard Paget, the following interesting report from Mr. W. J. Matthews, M.I.Mech.E., at Gibraltar:

“You will no doubt be interested to know that we heard your lecture on ‘Handmade Speech,’ illustrated by the Cheirophone, via ‘5XX.’ Using three valves on a home-built straight set receiver with head-phones, every syllable and sound came through perfectly—in fact, just as clearly as it would have done if you had been in the room. Fortunately, we were not interrupted for the whole period of your lecture, which was remarkable, because we get so much Morse from spark stations in the vicinity that we can never depend on a clear ten minutes of broadcasting.”

NEWCASTLE STATION offers two dramatic features on the evening of Wednesday, October 7th. The “5NO” Repertory Company will give three episodes, first of all from Under Two Flags, by “Ouida,” specially arranged for broadcasting by Mr. S. G. Jones.

Later during the same evening, listeners will hear El Amor Br. jo—Love the Sorcerer, or Wedded by Witchcraft, a gipsy one-act play, by G. Martinez-Sierra. Miss Elsy Treweek (mezzo-soprano), Miss Grace Angus (soprano), Mr. John Collinson (tenor), and the Station Orchestra will supply the musical side of the programme.

THERE are hundreds of Face Creams, but there's only one Pomeroy Skin Food. For twenty-five years it has been beautifying complexions, clearing the skin of impurities and keeping wrinkles and blemishes away.

Your skin needs food; otherwise it becomes wrinkled and sallow. Pomeroy Skin Food is the food it needs. A little rubbed into the skin at night works wonders.

Try it on your own face to-night. It is a perfectly safe cream to use. It is made of the purest ingredients and it cannot—positively cannot—encourage the growth of Superfluous Hair.

A Run Round the Stations.

By J. H. Squire.

[Mr. J. H. Squire is well known to listeners as the leader of the Celeste Octet. In the following amusing article he describes a recent tour of the Stations.]

"MR. SQUIRE, sir, Celeste Octet?"
"That is I," I answer on a recent morning to an inquiry by one of the station officials at Euston.

"This way, sir, two reserved carriages for you and your party."

Following my guide to the 11.50 a.m. Manchester express, I find the majority of the Octet awaiting my arrival. John Henry is busily engaged in giving instructions about some domestic details to Blossom ere we depart, when Mr. Willie Sear, my right-hand man, exclaims: "Where is Gordon Mayer?"

String Quartets en Route.

Gordon, our leader and solo violin, like most geniuses, I may explain, has a "kink." His particular hobby seems to take the form of losing his luggage or his violin; besides which, he always endeavours to step off the pavement in front of some passing vehicle, to the consternation of all and sundry. Luckily, there is a later train he can catch and still be in time for the programme, so we take our seats, the whistle blows, there is a cry of "Stand back, there!" and something dashes through the barrier and falls into a rear compartment. Our solo violinist has caught the train!

"I thought you said 11.55, not 11.50," is the only explanation he offers, and so our 1,700-mile trip begins. Gordon collects his second violin, together with the viola player and the cellist, and goes off to the second carriage to play string quartets.

John Henry at His Best.

Miss Ajello, our vocalist, opens the morning paper, and four others of our party start to play "Solo," a game that John Henry thinks he would like to be initiated into. Lunch-time, and very pleasant, too. We toss up for the bill.

Manchester, and there to welcome us on the platform is Moses Baritz, the lecturer. He has been busy, for he shows us Press cuttings galore from the Manchester papers about our visit to that famous musical city. Baritz comes to dinner with us and then we're off to the studio.

John Henry puts over a new talk all about the Octet, which sends us into fits of laughter as it comes over the loud speaker in the artists' room. Programme over at 10 sharp, and Exchange Station with Baritz seeing after the luggage and giving us "Good luck" as the train steams out at 10.20 for Holyhead.

In a Jaunting Car.

Holyhead and "once aboard the lugger." Fear of sea-sickness had driven two of our party to buy up every remedy (so-called) that is on the market; but their fears were unfounded. The sea was like the proverbial mill-pond. Kingstown we left, after close scrutiny by the Customs, for Belfast, at 9 a.m., reaching our destination some three hours later. We lunch (but as nobody suggests tossing to see who pays, I have no opportunity of getting my own back for four lunches on the Manchester train).

After lunch we go by jaunting-car out to the famous Bellevue. What horses they breed in Ireland! Five miles all uphill and a fast trot all the time with seven people up. A jaunting-car is not the most comfortable way of travel, but when, some thirty minutes later, we arrive, and climb the 228 steps to the summit, the wonderful view of Belfast Lough repays with interest the discomforts of the ride. Back to dinner (by tram) and then the programme.

Finish at 9.30 p.m., and taxis rush us to the boat which leaves for Ardrossan at 9.45.

All are feeling quite hardened salts by this time, and we yarn away in the comfortable saloon until we clear the sheltered channel and strike the open sea, and then a few "white horses" appearing, send the sea-sick contingent to their patent remedies and their bunks.

Next morning, we leave for Glasgow, and arrive at our hotel at 9 a.m., in time for a hearty breakfast, after which, John Henry, Willie Sear and self stroll up to the studio for letters, where Herbert Carruthers ("Uncle Bert") gives us the glad hand.

Some time later, we go back to the hotel and while away an hour on the billiard table. Then dinner and the studio. John springs a new gag over the "mike" in which he has the assistance of the whole Octet, and, the programme over, we return to the hotel and the first bed we have had since we left London. 9.30 a.m. and Buchanan Street Station, and the four-hour journey to Aberdeen, where we are given a hearty welcome by that prince of good fellows, Station Director Neil McLean.

Working Against Time.

We are spending the week-end here, and next morning McLean and his friend, McDonald, call at the hotel, on one of the most glorious days one could wish for, and Miss Ajello, John Henry and myself go off in McDonald's luxurious saloon car to Braemar, some sixty-six miles away, in the heart of the Highlands.

Personally, I do not think that any scenery in the world can compare to the glories of the Highlands as they appeared on this wonderful Sunday.

After lunch, we go on again to the most beautiful place of all—the Linn of Dee.

We are working against time, and the speedometer touches the sixty mark several times ere we reach Aberdeen once more. Next morning "good-byes" are said and our journey south to Newcastle is on. The next day Birmingham, followed by Cardiff, with a very courteous host in Mr. Settle, and Friday evening at 11 p.m., I shake hands and say good-bye to Mr. Fryer at Bournemouth.

Then, barring the two and a half hours run to Waterloo, the 1,700-mile hustle is over.

WHAT THE PUBLIC WANTS.

SOME listeners have been complaining that the B.B.C. neglects the public taste. The Company therefore has taken the trouble to ascertain the opinions of some of these critics on what would constitute the ideal popular programme. The first reply advocated nothing but dance music, John Henry, and the Vicar of Mirth for the next six months. The second reply excluded all dance music in the interests of symphony and education. The third eliminated all orchestral items in favour of vocal music. The fourth wanted to substitute Esperanto for English in all the talks.

A Huge Percentage Satisfied.

There is some evidence to show that none of the above suggestions would increase the popularity of the service. There are about ten million people interested in B.B.C. programmes, and there are certainly 100,000 different conceptions of "what the public wants." Most of these differ more from each other than from the programmes being supplied.

Over 90 per cent. of the 2,000 letters that reach the B.B.C. from listeners each week, however, are definitely appreciative of the present composition of programmes.

The Child Idea.

By Robert Magill.

WHERE I made the first mistake in introducing the radio set to my small daughter, aged six, was in attempting to explain matters. If I had clamped the earphones on her and let it go at that, I should not now be wondering whether these mental hospitals are as comfortable as they are said to be.

"But why do they call it wireless, Daddy?" she said.

I told her that it was because it was telephony without any wires. From her expression, I could see that she was struggling hard to believe me, then she asked me what telephony was, anyhow.

Reprieved for a While.

The telephone, as I began to explain, is a means of using electricity—and then I hesitated. She was making a mental note of the word. Later, I should have to define electricity, so I tried another wave-length.

"The imponderable ether—I began, and left off. After all, I was not entirely to blame.

"Look here," I said, "wireless is—this!" I hooked the thing up and told her to listen.

"Oh!" she said. "He's talking! O-oh! There's a band!"

If only the directors of the B.B.C. could have seen her at that moment, they would have felt amply repaid for all their trouble, unless somebody had told them that she got just as excited when she first met a gramophone. At all events, I was reprieved for a while. Wireless was the music in the little box.

A Masterly Description.

One morning she wanted to listen before breakfast. I explained that the people in the studio sat up so late at night that they couldn't get up in the morning. How did I know? Was the studio in the box? If not, where was it?

By now I had had time to think out a really masterly description of the way broadcasting is carried on. I spoke poetically of the method by which they boil the notes down into ohms—

"Like they boil a bullock down into beef-tea?" she said.

I said yes, rather irritably, because I'd learnt my little piece off by heart, and she was breaking the thread. I went on to explain how the little fairies called rays carried the ohms and delivered them into our radio set—

"Same as the milkman delivers a pint every morning?"

"Yes. But don't interrupt. Then the works in that little box change the ohms back into music. Now, isn't it wonderful?"

"Why is it wonderful?"

Alone I Did It!

I always had a certain amount of sympathy for that old prophet who called the bears out to deal with the children, although I confess that he was a little hasty.

The trouble is that I don't know the answer. When you come to think of it, it would be far more wonderful nowadays if it didn't happen. The same natural laws have always operated, and wireless has always been possible, except that we didn't know how to work it. I dare not tell my small daughter that. She'd want to know why, and she despises us grown-ups quite enough as it is.

But when I bought a valve amplifier for my first crystal set, I attached a wire to the wet battery, and behold, the light lit.

"Oh, Daddy," she said, "how did you manage to make the light come on without touching a switch? That was clever!"

I am content to let it go at that. At last she has seen something wonderful in wireless, and alone I did it. I admit that I blew the stuffing out of that valve five minutes later, but it was worth it to be a hero in the eyes of a blase, disillusioned child of six.

Are You a Radio Dancer?

By LYDIA KYASHT.

[In the following article, Mme. Lydia Kyasht, who is now touring some of the leading theatres, gives her own views of radio's effect on modern dancing, and gives some useful hints to those who dance to the loud speaker.]

DANCE music forms a part of nearly every radio programme. I think it is safe to prophesy that dancing to those syncopated strains, which come so mysteriously "over the air" every night, will be more popular during the present season than ever before.

To listen to a loud speaker delivering the perfect dance music broadcast, for example, by the Savoy Orpheans Band, is a delight to one with the heart of a real dancer. It brings the exhilarating atmosphere of the ballroom into your home. The transmissions of this band have now been perfected to such an extent that, when you dance to their music, you forget that you are listening to a loud speaker. You are transported by the magic of radio, which overcomes distance. You believe you are actually listening at close quarters to the band. This is the highest compliment that can be paid to the engineers of the British Broadcasting Company.

Out-of-Date Knowledge.

As they return home from a modern ballroom, the sad truth is forced upon many people that their knowledge of dancing is distinctly "out-of-date." You can see wanderers in the labyrinth of new dances who confuse waltz steps and fox-trots, or who abandon the puzzle altogether and just trundle along. After the crushing failure of the Blues, and the persistent blows delivered by public and teachers alike against novelty dances, it was thought that the dance innovators would have lost enthusiasm. And nominally, they have done so. The fox-trot is still a favourite. It seems to suit the British temperament.

You have been disappointed if you anticipated that dancing style would revert to old-fashioned models, something painfully sober and staid. For if the names of the dances have remained unchanged, the same cannot be said of the dances themselves. Continually fresh interpretation, in fact, renders it more and more difficult for a dancer of ordinary ability to recognize the dances of a year or two ago that carried the same names.

Dancing is evolving.

THE fifth dramatic performance broadcast from Manchester Station will be celebrated to-night, Friday, October 2nd, when, in answer to many requests, the "2ZY" Dramatic Company will present for the second time The Witness for the Defence, a play in four acts, by A. E. W. Mason. The first two-hour play ever broadcast from the station, it was received with great enthusiasm by listeners. On this occasion it is proposed to issue a synopsis in booklet form for the benefit of those listeners who will not be able to listen to the play from start to finish.

As a matter of curiosity, the number of licence holders in Hull was ascertained for announcement in the Hull Birthday Programme. In Hull itself the actual number of holders at the present time is 23,782—of which the total number of new licences issued since Hull Station opened is 23,068. The figures do not include outside areas, such as Grimsby and Beverley, the figures for which are 3,200 and 1,300.

Understanding of the perpetually changing form of modern dances is only obtained by intimate consideration of the feelings to which the movements correspond. The conventional and standard steps of new dances must be learned, but the most accomplished dancers of to-day are those who have caught the spirit of the dance. They are able, by a kind of apparent intuition, to improvise little variations consistent with the underlying theme.

Seizing upon and analysing this inner fire or personality of a dance is not easy. But even if you have not given previous thought to the matter, you will soon be convinced that to-day means a collection devoid of meaning, that detractors are to be.

Mme. Lydia Kyasht.

At one time, the only way of enjoying dancing, other than in the ballroom, was by means of a gramophone. But dancing to a gramophone had severe drawbacks. The music was seldom loud enough, and very often uninformed folk set the machine working too fast or too slow, which interfered with the correct timing of the dance.

Again, few people, except the very wealthy, had a collection of records which was really up-to-date. By dancing to radio music, you hear the very latest fox-trots and waltzes played by the very best orchestras. There is something very satisfying, too, about dancing at home or in woodland surroundings to radio music. A quality of inspiration is present which is often absent amidst the artificiality of the ballroom.

Some few years ago, the crash-bang of jazz was in full vogue. Decried on all sides, it nevertheless conveyed, or insinuated, a feeling of irresponsible jollity. And although somewhat mechanical, the musicians who utilized for their peculiar effects the tin cans and motor-horn undoubtedly possessed a distinct individuality. A discerning eye regarded that extraordinary phase of dancing as a mirror held up to the passing mood, which at that time was one of exuberant delight at freedom from the trammels of a terrible conflict.

Following the return to steadier and more normal methods of life and thought, dancing steps have also changed, but are still a vivid index to the mental outlook of the average citizen.

Dancing has become more stately, dreamier, but in some quarters it is tending to become rather slipshod. The ballroom reflects the national mind, and true artists endeavour to detect and interpret the latest mood that is finding expression in the steps.

A Reminder to Parents.

Advent of the dancing season may remind many parents of the rather staid dancing parades for children that were customary some years ago. In contrast, the dancing classes for tiny feet nowadays seem an irresponsible romp, which deters many mothers from allowing their children to attend. Fancy that objectionable features of jazz and other modern dances are associated, by many parents, with dancing in general. But radio is altering their viewpoint. A lesson that teaches co-ordination of mind and muscle must be valuable, and radio dancing is now a reasonable outlet for those emotional changes felt by every child, and for which means of expression ought to be found.

There is a definite physical gain in child dancing. An upright gait is cultivated and round shoulders avoided. Circulation of the blood is improved to a remarkable extent, and it is noteworthy that young radio dancers do not suffer much from cold feet and hands or chilblains.

Dancing is the natural way that normal human beings express joy. Radio makes this happiness possible in ever-widening surroundings.

REGIMENTAL REMINISCENCES.

FOR those who like to tread the by-paths of history, there are few subjects more attractive than the annals of our Army. With the heroic deeds recorded in general literature, such as the Charge of the Light Brigade or the advance of the Seventy-Eighth Highlanders at Lucknow, most of us are familiar. Apart from such as these, however, regimental records teem with interesting incidents which are not so well known. Deeds of gallantry are innumerable; but there are also many quaint occurrences which possess great interest and some of them are commemorated in various ways to this day.

With the idea of portraying some of these incidents, the Dramatic department of the B.B.C. has prepared a series of Radioviews which will be broadcast to-night, Friday, October 2nd. The incidents will be enacted by specially selected artists, who will be assisted by the Band of the Royal Air Force and a detachment of cadets from the 19th London (Cadet) Battalion.

DUNDEE listeners have always been fond of Band Programmes, and the local station is providing another of these on Friday, October 9th, when it presents the Dunnikier Colliery Prize Band, conducted by Mr. R. Rimmer. On this, their first appearance at the Dundee Studio, the Band will render for the first hour a programme of music with reference to the sea, and, for the second hour, music reminiscent of the open country.

On this occasion, two well-known artists: Miss Gretta Den (soprano), and Mr. George J. Jeffcock (baritone), will make a very welcome re-appearance at this station.

LIGHTHOUSES equipped with wireless are to be constructed along the French coast if Parliament votes the credits for a programme approved by the Under Secretary for Mercantile Marine.

It will interest many listeners to know that of seventeen S.O.S. broadcasts from London during July, nine were successful, two were unsuccessful and in the case of the remaining six the result was unknown.

THE CHILDREN'S CORNER.

NEWS FROM THE AUNTS AND UNCLES.

A Punch and Judy Show.

MANCHESTER kiddies should listen hard about the middle of October, when a Punch and Judy Show will be broadcast from the Children's Corner. The Uncles and Aunties are going to have difficulty in preventing the Wicked Uncle from stealing Toby; but Auntie Vi and Uncle Victor think they have hit on a plan to stop him!

Birmingham's Children's Concert.

Rehearsals are now taking place for the monthly Children's Concert from the Birmingham Station.

Every Saturday sees a small army of aspirants winding their weary way up the seventy-six stairs. At the summit, those who can still aspire enter the Studio for a preliminary canter under the watchful eye of one of the Aunties.

Of course, not all, even of those who have survived the stairs, can expect to be chosen, but only the very best, and so the success of the more fortunate children is all the greater.

Competitions in Disguise.

The "Mystery" Competitions from the Aberdeen Station are now in full swing. They are held every Wednesday evening in the Children's Corner and the results are announced the next week. To an ordinary listener they sound like a problem in arithmetic that has been badly mixed up; but, to those who know, they are quite simple and very fascinating to work out.

All Radio Circle members have been provided with a "Magic Key" to unlock the puzzle, and two prizes are offered every week for the correct results first opened. The competition is already extremely popular, and the Uncles and Aunties expect that they will be asked to continue it right through the winter.

Excitement at Dundee.

Aunt Betty and Auntie Jean are now ready for their Winter Season at Dundee. With the first of the Fairy Frolics in sight, excitement is becoming feverish.

Aunt Betty's Singing Choir has been tuned up to concert pitch, while the Verse Speaking Choir of Auntie Jean is also anxious to show what it is worth.

Talks and Nursery Rhymes.

Autumn arrangements are taking shape for the Belfast Children's Hour. In addition to the usual programme of Folk-Songs, rhymes, and stories, there will, on three days a week, be chats on a number of subjects for older children—books, for instance, and ships, and hobbies of various kinds.

Then, on Wednesdays and Saturdays, the first twenty minutes of the programme will be devoted to Nursery Rhymes, and stories and jokes for listeners under seven years of age.

Up the Chimney.

Uncle Leslie, of Edinburgh, is at present on holiday and his absence caused a most unfortunate happening in the Studio one day. Uncle Dick and Auntie Molly wanted to pay a visit to some foreign land, but realized at the last moment that Uncle Leslie had not left the Magic Words necessary to transport them to other countries. They decided, however, to try something; but unfortunately, the words they used had a terrible consequence and they found themselves up the chimney.

After an argument with the Keeper of the Chimney, they reversed the order of the words and returned to the Studio; but when they looked at each other, they collapsed with laughter because each face was decorated with smuts, and ever since Auntie Molly has had a bad cold.

Cinderella at Edinburgh.

Auntie Molly, of the Edinburgh Station, has adopted a novel method of telling fairy stories to the children. Instead of being merely spoken, they are now musically illustrated, and "Cinderella," which was given recently, proved a great success in its new form. During the description of the ball scene, the children were delighted to hear the music to which Cinderella was dancing.

Another illustration was the "Wedding March" to the strains of which the Prince and Cinderella drove off after the wedding. Needless to say, the music did not proceed from such a matter-of-fact instrument as a piano, but from the Bells of Fairyland.

The Children's Finale.

The latest addition to the Radio Circle Hour at Plymouth, "The Children's Finale," is creating a stir among the more ardent listeners of the great West.

Now that this announcement is in the hands of the Press, the members of this peerless

"gang," namely the Aunties and Uncles, begin to tremble slightly at the thought of the reputation they must needs maintain. But no doubt they will forget to tremble when those marvellous sounds next break forth upon the ether just before they collect round the microphone to say good night.

Look out for Aunties Winnie and Gwen, the popular piano duettists, and look out for Uncle Jim with his Chinese drum!

A Little Girl's Thanks.

Some touching letters have been arriving at Glasgow during the past few weeks. As most of the little listeners round about Glasgow know, the money raised at the Radio Circle Bazaar was sufficient to instal three sets, complete with loud-speakers, in three different children's hospitals. The children in Robroyston Sanatorium are now listening daily and have become enthusiastic members of the Circle.

Here is a letter which has come from one of these little invalids:—

"Dear Auntie and Uncles,

"This is a short note on behalf of Ward 3, to thank all in the Radio Circle for contributing their shillings, so that the hospitals in Glasgow may have wireless sets. We all listen to the 'Children's Corner' and enjoy it very much. Please thank the head of the 'Children's Corner' for sending a set to Ward 3 of Robroyston. The loud-speaker is working splendidly and many an hour is spent listening, when, before, we had just to amuse ourselves as best we could.

"Your loving Niece,

"BETTY ANDERSON."

The "2LS" Radio Circle."

After the glorious weather that the Fairy Queen so kindly arranged for the Leeds-Bradford Picnic in July, it is only natural that she should afterwards visit the Clerk of the Weather to thank him for his kindly interest in the "2LS" Radio Circle."

As it is rather a long journey and he is a very busy man, it will naturally follow that she had to be away for some time. We hope, however, that by the time these lines appear in print she will be coming back to us and will once more grace the studio with her presence on Thursdays, and introduce us to still more of the wonders of her realm.

HOW TO LISTEN TO MUSIC.

A TALK TO SCHOOLS. By Sir WALFORD DAVIES.

[Sir Walford Davies broadcast the first of his special series of talks on music to school-children on Tuesday afternoon, September 22nd. In view of the suspension of transmissions from Daventry on that afternoon because of the Army and Air Force manoeuvres, many school-children taking Sir Walford Davies's course did not hear his introductory talk. For the special benefit of these pupils we now publish a short summary specially prepared by Sir Walford Davies himself.]

[HOPE all schools and all the grown-up scholars will listen to the Tuesday music-lessons and the Friday school concerts for the rest of the term. Let me give you a few homely hints on the best way to listen to a broadcast concert. Remember, you can only watch these concerts with your ears!

Coming up in the train to-day I sat opposite a fat, intellectual-looking business man. I couldn't hear his thoughts, although he was talking. I got nothing through my ears but I "listened with my eyes" to his face and movements. It was fun! I could read his thoughts when he smiled and when he looked cross, and when he fidgeted and when he lay back, but most of all through his face.

We must learn to hear both the thoughts and the character of the music sent to us by wireless.

The first thing I saw in that business man's face was bright hopefulness, high spirits. This is the first thing you will see in Mozart's Symphony or in a Beethoven Sonata. The first thing to look for in music is life, or call it energy. We are told that the whole Universe is Energy; God's own Energy, His mighty music.

In a moment I will give you about a dozen words to write on your blackboard or in your musical pocket book, and the first thing we must put down and always remember is, that Music Records Energy.

If you bang your hands cheerily several times haphazard on the keyboard of your piano you can record energy, but it will not be music! Do it for fun, and you will see that it sounds like cats running over the keys or a housemaid dusting them. Something more is needed.

Music must be orderly, it must show Mental Mastery. Here again if you were to play the same neat chord very loudly one hundred times in succession, it might be full of life and order, yet not be musical. This makes it clear that we must write a third thing on the board. What is it? It is hard to find a good name for it. We call it imagination, inspiration, genius—we give it all sorts of grand names. Its chief characteristic is that it is free. It is full of fancy and the liberty to go anywhere and do anything. Let us call it by a lovely old Elizabethan name, Free Fantasy.

Now we have nearly got it. When music is full of life, order, and freedom it is sure to please somebody. There is one more thing needed if it is to please all who listen—it must fit our minds. It must all be human like ourselves. I can imagine a Russian loving some gloomy music with which I should be "fed up" in a moment. That does not mean that it is either good or bad; it only means that it fits or it does not fit. This, I think, is why broadcast music must be the most human of all; fit for the ears of everybody within earshot—a very large order!

Now do not forget to listen to the school music-lessons and concerts on Tuesdays and Fridays this term.

[Our short story for children will be published as usual next week.]

A wonderful new Brown Loud Speaker

Brown H.4.

WE have good reason to be proud of the new Brown H.4. To produce a complete Loud Speaker—a miniature in every respect of the larger Brown models—at the price of a pair of good headphones is a wonderful manufacturing feat. You must remember that this new H.4. is a real Brown—it is fitted with a similar tuned reed movement to that found in Brown Loud Speakers costing four times as much. The Brown H.4. is the only low-priced sensitive loud speaker on the market.

Owing to its extreme sensitiveness it requires considerably less power to operate it. Comparative tests have proved that the Brown H.4. will give loud and clear results from two valves when other low-priced Loud Speakers require at least three valves to produce the same volume. There's a simple explanation for this. The Brown uses a cone-shaped aluminium diaphragm of extreme thinness actuated by a vibrating reed. The slightest movement of the reed is transmitted to the diaphragm and converted into audible sounds. The ordinary small Loud Speaker, however, uses a flat diaphragm of iron. The diaphragm must be made substantial in order to give it the necessary springiness to vibrate. The smaller the diaphragm the less resilient it will become—and the more power it will require to actuate it.

Don't judge the Brown H.4. on its price—the only fair test is its actual performance. Because only the Brown can use the tuned reed principles of reproduction only the Brown can obtain such sensitiveness and volume from a Loud Speaker standing but ten inches high. If your Dealer has not one in stock yet, place your order right away. Our works are making every effort to cope with the huge orders we have already received for this amazing little H.4.

New improved models

A.J.S.

(Sir Oliver Lodge's Choice After Test)

THE new 1926 range of A.J.S. Radio Instruments has proved an overwhelming success. Not only has the selectivity and range been increased, but the appearance of the Models themselves is one of the most notable A.J.S. features. Every new step forward makes A.J.S. Models more perfect as musical instruments and elegant pieces of furniture. Write for complete descriptive literature of the new A.J.S. Radio Instruments—post free on request.

Isolation!

Free and untrammelled to attain its own ends and soar to heights of success. Give your aerial the same chance, and make sure that your set is not being half-starved. Don't be content with any insulator; avoid all losses by using the Climax Aerial Insulator.

THE NEW CLIMAX AERIAL INSULATOR.

This will stand four times the flash-over voltage of the ordinary cheap shell or egg insulator, while it has far less capacity to earth. It is made of the same High-Tension vitreous porcelain as the 100,000-volt insulators on High Power transmission lines. It will stand a direct pull of hundreds of pounds. It is entirely non-hygroscopic. It cannot absorb moisture even if fractured. IT INSULATES PERFECTLY DURING RAINFALL. It is self-cleaning on all surfaces. Price per pair 1/-.

The Climax Insulated Shock Absorber Set, comprising set of four Climax Low-Loss Aerial Insulators and two Climax Aerial Shock Absorbers, 3/- per box.

THE CLIMAX RADIO EARTH—the low-loss direct tubular earth. Far better than the old-fashioned water-pipe or gas-pipe earth. The latest pattern is provided with flanges, which break up and help to fill in the earth around the tube, thereby preventing any rocking of the tube in the ground. In addition, the projections on the surface of the tube provide water courses which make for perfect electrical contact. Ready to use. Easily fitted. Maximum efficiency. Length approx. 30 ins. Price 5/-

Climax Insulated Low Loss Earth Lead, 20 ft. Price 1/8

THE CLIMAX LIGHTNING ARRESTER.

Made on the multi-gap, quenched spark principle. Provides atmospheric space charges, and lightning discharges, with a straight path to earth of very low reluctance. Protects the set whether in use or not. NO SWITCHES NECESSARY. The Mica insulating discs and series multiple gaps ensure complete absence of shunting effect, leaving your signals at maximum strength. The glass cover protects the gaps from becoming semi-conducting due to dirt, damp or other interference.

Price 7/6 complete, ready to fix.

MAKE SURE IT'S CLIMAX

If you have difficulty in obtaining genuine CLIMAX productions and are asked to accept inferior imitations, kindly send your order direct to us, enclosing P.O. or cheque to the correct amount, when immediate attention will be given to your instructions.

Above your armchair, over your bed, in fact anywhere within arm's length. Instead of reaching to the bookshelf above your head you reach for the headphones. In place of the book—music, laughter, song.

Reproduction has never been so perfect as this new Cosmos Crystal Set reproduction. Music has never come through so sweetly, song has never rung with as bell-like a tone. Very selective, very sensitive as well. Several new features which this Cosmos Set embodies will give you good results within a seventy-five mile radius of a high power station. Within twenty miles of a main B.B.C. station. And with all this, a delightful compactness. You hang your headphones as you would a telephone receiver. You hang your Cosmos Crystal Set as you would a picture.

Marcuse & Simmonds
the famous amateurs, whose long distance telephony and other experiments have caused a sensation throughout the world, write exclusively every other week for POPULAR WIRELESS. They give details of their record-breaking experiments and their articles are full of helpful advice.

This is one of the many features which have helped to make POPULAR WIRELESS the most progressive and up-to-date weekly.

All owners of wireless sets should secure these two splendid handbooks. Listeners as well as experimenters, will find them miniature encyclopedias—a constant source of valuable help when anything goes wrong with the set. Circuits, elementary and advanced, are criticised and discussed; tables of British valves of all types are included in the valve book; together with theoretical and practical information specially prepared by one of the recognised radio authorities of the day. The Crystal Book also has been specially written, and contains, besides chapters on the theory and practice and general maintenance of crystal sets, constructional articles which will make a strong appeal to constructors. An up-to-date chapter on Oscillating Crystals is a feature of more than usual interest. Both books are amply illustrated by diagrams and photographs. Make sure of the two handbooks—buy POPULAR WIRELESS to-day, and order next week's issue.

A Revelation in Radio Reproduction

The RADIOLUX AMPLION Large Mahogany Model.

The

RADIOLUX AMPLION

Series

of hornless Loud Speakers introduces the nearest approach to the ever-present ideal—perfect reproduction of Radio Broadcast.

This new masterpiece blends the art of furniture design with the science of electro-acoustics.

Here the living voice and true perspective in musical reproduction are within the immediate reach of all interested in Radio. Sensitive to a degree, loud in its fullest measure, with unequalled brilliance and clarity, real music at last enters the home upon the trail of the Wireless Wave, providing an AMPLION is there to voice its accents.

The Radiolux series of cabinet styles is available in several alternative forms of varying capacity at "utmost value" prices, ranging from £4 15s.

For those who may still wish to procure the hitherto standard horn models, available in the Junior variety at even lower costs, the manufacturers continue to offer the famous "Dragon" range, a series known in every quarter of the globe.

It is a business principle of the House of Graham that every AMPLION user shall secure the best possible results, and an unconditional guarantee of satisfaction with the advantage of free service is extended to every purchaser of a genuine “WORKING Your Set from the D.C. Mains,” by Capt. H. J. Round, M.I.E.E. Every radio enthusiast knows what a trouble recharging accumulators is, and the expense of buying H.T. Batteries. Capt. Round in this number of “Modern Wireless” shows you how you can avoid this bugbear by tapping your D.C. lighting mains. You must read it. It will save you pounds.

Coastal dwellers, and those who live where the hammer of Morse makes the programme almost unbearable, will welcome A. Johnson-Randall's description of “The Coastal Three.” This highly selective and efficient 3-valve set is specially designed to reduce the annoyance to which most coastal dwellers are subjected. Full constructional details are given.

The Editor, John Scott-Taggart, F.Inst.P., A.M.I.E.E., writes “The Valve as a Detector.” This article will interest those who desire to probe deeper into the secrets of radio.

There are also numerous other constructional articles and tips of incalculable value, making the October “Modern Wireless” a wonderful issue. You cannot afford to miss it. Buy your copy to-day.

THE B3 Valve has a very low filament current consumption. Whilst retaining all the excellent qualities of the well-known R Valve, it has in addition, the economies of a dull-emitter. It is a really good all-round valve working exceptionally well in all positions, detector, H.F. or L.F. amplification. Undoubtedly it is the most efficient and most economical valve on the market at the price. Here are its chief electrical characteristics:—

Filament Voltage	-	-	1.8 volts
Filament Current	-	-	0.35 amp.
Anode Voltage	-	-	20 to 80 volts
Anode Resistance	-	-	27,000 ohms

When next you require a valve which will give perfect reproduction combined with good volume, specify B.T.H. and make sure of getting good results.

work a
Loud Speaker

IF your wireless set gives reception at good headphone strength, then by the addition of an Ethophone-Uniplex one-valve amplifier, you will get loud speaker reproduction. If cost is a consideration, the Ethophone-Uniplex and the Ethovox Junior Loud Speaker will particularly appeal.

Owing to its special construction, the Ethophone-Uniplex is a really distortionless amplifier and its reproduction of speech and music is all that could be desired. The instrument is supplied with a Burndept Super Power Valve (Type L.240). Price, complete with valve, £4.4.0; Licence, 12/6.

The Ethovox Junior Loud Speaker gives splendid results with low-powered sets and its rendering of broadcast is clear and very pleasing. It is 16½ inches in height and the flair is no less than 11½ inches in diameter. The instrument, which is coloured a deep shade of mahogany is supplied with a five-foot lead. The sensitive magnet-system is adjustable. Price, either 120 or 2,000 ohms resistance, £2.2.0.

Further particulars of these new Burndept products are given in Publication No. 275, a copy of which will be sent free on application. The Burndept Range includes everything for radio reception, from components to complete installations; Burndept Super Valves are guaranteed.

MR HAPPYMAN EXPLAINS

Life is wonderful now

THE hours and money and temper I wasted on wireless would make any man's wife sore with broadcasting. The only piece of humour in the whole affair was the reception I was forced to call "music."

NOW everything has changed!

Our evenings are an endless pleasure.

No matter how excellent your receiver, perfect reception is a question of using the right valves.

There is a real Master Valve with majestic volume, great range and purity of tone. A valve that spells happiness from the moment you insert it into your set.

If you appreciate real music for your wireless evenings at home you will appreciate

A New Loud Speaker!

THE first Loud Speaker that is a musical instrument, this is the "Kone" Loud Speaker, the step forward beyond the ordinary horn type of instrument.

Free from the imperfections of the earlier type of instruments, the "Kone" Loud Speaker reproduces the whole range of speech and music frequencies with perfect accuracy.

The findings of scientific research can be proved by you by asking your local dealer for a test.

This new production of the Western Electric Company will revolutionise Loud Speaker reproduction.

Price £6:6:0.

The "Kone" Amplifier, another new production of the Western Electric Company, has been evolved to operate the "Kone" Loud Speaker at the maximum efficiency. Write for Booklet No. W.546 where these instruments are more fully dealt with.

Music - as you should hear it

WHEN you pay for a loudspeaker you expect a return for your money in good reproduction. As often as not you get a travesty of music. Just blare and rasp.... a mockery of the best efforts of the best broadcasting orchestras.

We bore all these things in mind in producing the Ericsson Junior Loudspeaker. In it we have a worthy Junior to our famous Super Tone—crystal clear in its delivery, innocent of the least trace of distortion or metallic noises.

Specially built for small or medium rooms. Finished dull Black Enamel on Metal Base. 15½". Flare 9". Resistance 2,400 ohms. Complete with cord 39/6. Sold by good dealers everywhere.

Write for circulars fully describing our receivers, crystal and valve, Super Tone Loudspeakers, headphones, tested components, etc.

As the hound noses out the weakest trail

AS the hound noses out the weakest trail, so the Cossor Wuncell seeks out the weakest oscillation, amplifies it and converts it into an audible signal. There is no Dull Emitter so sensitive as the Wuncell because no other can utilise the highly efficient Cossor principles—the arched filament and hood-shaped Grid and Anode. Not since the first Cossor Valve—the famous P1—appeared on the market 2½ years ago, has any valve aroused such enthusiasm among amateurs. All early Dull Emitters possessed many defects—they were microphonic, considerably less sensitive, weak in volume and no two were alike. Yet for all these disadvantages they had many adherents.

The coming of the Wuncell has set an entirely new standard for Dull Emitters. For the first time there is available a low consumption valve of great economy which is a perfect match in every respect for any Cossor bright emitter. Its filament—made under a special process known only to Cossor—is built up layer upon layer until it is actually as stout as that used in a bright emitter. And yet at no time is it required to glow at a higher temperature than the embers of a dying match. Obviously such an abnormally low temperature must mean an exceptionally long life.

Before buying any more bright emitters ask your dealer for interesting literature proving its supreme economy—how it will save its cost within four months and go on saving money for you throughout its long life.

BURNE JONES COMPANY, LIMITED

On the 31st July, 1925, an Injunction was granted by Mr. Justice Tomlin in an action brought by Marconi's Wireless Telegraph Co., Ltd., against Burne Jones & Co., Ltd., for the infringement of certain of the Marconi Company's Patents by the sale of receivers or sets of parts for the home construction of receivers, with an invitation to the Purchasers to use the sets of parts in such a way as to infringe the Letters Patent referred to above.

The Marconi Company have agreed to grant Burne Jones & Co., Ltd., a licence.

Proceedings will be forthwith instituted against all infringers, including those who offer sets of parts of receivers infringing the Marconi Company's Patents.

Picture Yourself receiving this Cheque for £4500!

Now make it come true. You can, if you will—and this is the way. First, fill in and post the Enquiry Form below. You will then receive detailed particulars of a Plan of Investment-Insurance which already is helping thousands of young men to fortune.

When you get these most interesting particulars, study them carefully. See how wonderfully this Plan will help you to gain financial independence for your later years without undue sacrifice of present comforts—indeed, without any sacrifice at all.

And note how your interests and those of your family are protected at every turn. If illness or accident should permanently unfit you for earning a living, you will, under this Plan, receive a pension of £30 a month until your £4,500 is due, and you'll not need to make a single further deposit.

And in the event of you not living to the specified age your family will at once receive £3,000 plus half of every deposit you had made.

There are many other advantages you will discover in this Plan of Investment-Insurance which the Sun Life of Canada invites you to consider, and among them is a most welcome saving of Income Tax.

Whatever your age, whatever the sum of money—large or small—that you feel you can deposit annually, fill in the Enquiry Form and let the Sun Life of Canada—the great Annuity Company, with Government-Supervised assets of over £56,000,000—show you exactly what can be done under their Investment-Insurance plan.

FILL IN & POST FORM TO-DAY.

RICHARDSON'S NON-DIRECTIONAL PERFEX AERIAL

IMPROVES RECEPTION IN EVERY WAY

as irrefutably proved by thousands of users at home and abroad including leading experts who since 1923 have continually testified that in comparison with horizontal aerials the "PERFEX" provides reception that is considerably louder, clearer, of greater selectivity and from much longer distances, also reduces interferences and overcomes blank spots.

Needing no space, the "PERFEX" Outdoor Aerial can be erected on any building by one short mast at greater effective heights, free from screening, at minimum cost.

Outdoor PERFEX (Illustrated) 29 ins., 58/6, 36 ins., 75/-; Masts, 16 ft., 20/6, 22 ft., 30/6. Brackets, 25/- pair. PERFEX INDOOR AND PORTABLE AERIALS, 58/6.
