The World On One Valve!

By P. P. ECKERSLEY.

I READ so much of sets which can give very loud signals, or can still hear very distant or weak stations. I read, in fact, so much of sensitivity that I sometimes feel I read little sense. Why is it that all must be praising sets in terms of quantity rather than quality? Why are sets which "hear" America on the fewest of valves held up to our admiring eyes?

I would, if I were a despot, forbid the use of a set which had not a sufficient factor of safety. I would forbid the set, not because I wish to stop anyone doing anything he liked, but because of the interests of the majority. It does not become anyone to interfere with other people's liberty; we should all be allowed to do exactly what we like, so long as we don't interfere with the liberty of others. We drive on one side of the road only out of consideration for others; if we were alone on the road, it would be a foolish rule that made us take one side or the other. Liberty should be the only thing worth having. Liberty, however, can only be secured by service. And the greatest disservice you can do your neighbour, the cause of broadcasting and yourself, is to think that you have the liberty to use any set you like.

I write naturally to appeal to all to refrain from making their sets oscillate. I have been depicted every now and again with lethal weapons searching with a livid face for oscillators. My friends malign me. I have the utmost sympathy with the oscillator. I can quite understand that he feels his situation. Look at it this way. Mr. Everyman (having bought his furniture) buys his wireless set. It is a crystal set. In time, he reads of valve sets; his imagination depicts him inviting his neighbours in to hear Rome, Brussels, Aberdeen, London or some remote station. He is everywhere encouraged to believe that, with a single valve set, he can hear the world. The very hoardings shout at him, "All the World on one valve!" He, in a moment of prosperity—I say this in no spirit of scorn; we all know what it is to pay for this new gadget and that—buys or makes this one-valve set. His local station he finds is stronger and, to that point, his purchase has been a wise one. The robustness of the single valve set is in its favour and, with dull emitters, the low and high tension batteries should present no drawback. But what of "All the World on one valve"? He has one valve—

I draw a veil. Alas! that such a veil of silence cannot be drawn over Mr. Everyman's aerial: Oh! Mr. Everyman, don't do it! Please don't! You render such a disservice to broadcasting, you annoy your neighbours, you irritate the family. This last point need not matter, it is your family and they can deal with you or you can deal with them. It is your poor unfortunate neighbours outside.

Of what is oscillation you can read hereafter by writing to us for our pamphlet. If I can persuade you that, unless it be in the hands of the very skilled, the single valve set is not useful except to listen on phones to your local station (up to thirty or forty miles), then I have not written in vain. The pure common-sense technical bedrock

An Immortal Love Story.

Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet."

OF all the lyric forms of Romeo and Juliet, Gounod's is the most popular. Before the "composer of love," as he called himself, turned to the drama of the Capulets, it had been exploited by many musicians, including Bellini. He wrote a work on the subject in four acts; but the third was so unsatisfactory that one from Vaccaj's opera on the same theme was substituted for it, and for years Bellini was commonly credited with the whole of this curious amalgam.

Sometimes it was no less remarkable for other reasons. Berlioz, when in Florence, heard that it was to be presented. He went to the theatre with an ardent desire to hear it, and was horrified to find that, while the Juliet was a big and bounteous woman, the Romeo was another actress, and one so small and slim that she was dwarfed in the duets.

Gounod's setting, however, is now most in favour everywhere, and is held in such esteem in France that it is considered superior even to Faust.

An Eleventh Hour Change.

Composed on the shores of the Mediterranean, Romeo and Juliet underwent many modifications before it was produced. One was made at the eleventh hour. At the early rehearsals the prologue was sung "off," with the curtain down; but, a few nights later, somebody proposed that the curtain should be raised, and that all the artists should take the place of the chorus. As a result, we have the prologue in which the characters and chorus briefly outline the story.

The opera was produced at the Théâtre Lyrique, Paris, on April 27th, 1867, and its success was never in doubt. Particularly well received was the now famous Balcony Scene, despite its many resemblances to the still more famous Garden Scene in Faust. So great was the enthusiasm, indeed, that it caused an incident probably unique in the annals of the lyric stage.

During a duet between Romeo and Juliet—"when," as a contemporary chronicler graphically narrated, "Mme. Carvalho passed from one of the arms of the tenor Michot to the other"—there was such tumultuous applause that the singers could not continue, and had to begin again.

A Favourite of Patti.

The audience, too, at once recognized the merits of the graceful and animated waltz, "Fair is the tender dream of youth." This number was written by Gounod specially to enable Carvalho to show her virtuosity, and, according to the wags, she used to sing

*Je veux vivre
Dans le rêve qui m'enivre*
in this fashion: "Je (one, two) veux (one, two) vi-i-ve-eu-eu-dans (one, two) le (one, two) ré-l-é-ve-eu-eu. . ." But she made the waltz a success, and afterwards it became a favourite of Patti and other prima donne.

When the curtain finally fell, there was a great demonstration, and for one hundred consecutive nights subsequently it was received with almost equal appreciation.

Prompted by the Composer.

The work was revived at the Opéra in 1888, and added to its repertoire. At the first performance, when Gounod conducted, the actress cast for the Page had a temporary loss of memory when it was her turn to sing. Gounod, who had been a choir-master, prompted her as he had many others in like circumstances in church, and thus many people in the stalls heard a musical phrase sung in an opera by its own composer.

Romeo and Juliet was started on its tour through Europe by a number of performances in Italian in London. Patti and Mario were the lovers, and both added to their laurels.

The prima donna afterwards sang the part at the Opéra, Paris, Nicolini playing Romeo. She was then, through the instrumentality of the Empress Eugénie, who had brought about her marriage, the Marquise de Caux; but this union was not to last long, and it was evident to some of the audience at the Opéra that if it was dissolved, Nicolini would be that nobleman's successor. For the couple were actually as much in love with each other as the parts they were representing would ordinarily have imposed on them to simulate.

One night a conscientious statistician kept count of the kisses they exchanged in the Balcony Scene, and he made the number twenty-nine! Not very long afterwards Nicolini became Patti's second husband.

The Balcony Scene from "Romeo and Juliet."

Since the London production in Italian, many other remarkable representations of Romeo and Juliet have been given in this country. In 1898 there was a "command" performance at Windsor, and on this occasion several London journalists were among the "supers," with the result that some exceptional details "got in the papers."

England, indeed, has shown itself more appreciative of Gounod's first and last immediate success than any other country, except France, and there is no sign of any change in public taste.

T. W. WILKINSON.

[The Opera of "Romeo and Juliet" will be broadcast from Manchester and Daventry on Saturday, November 21st.]

ECHOES OF THE PAST.

THE purport of the programme to be given from the Plymouth Studio on Friday, November 20th, is to recall to the minds of listeners "Echoes of the Past." Under this heading, Mr. James Vosper, well known in the West of England as the policeman baritone, will sing various old-time melodies, including "A Hundred Years Ago," by Geoghan. The Royal Marine Band of the Royal Naval Barracks (Devonport) will contribute suitable selections.

A recent programme, known as "Ye Goode Olde Days," met with much appreciation, and it is hoped that "Uncle Tom Cobleigh's Birthday"—an incident on Dartmoor, which will follow the first portion of the programme—will give listeners equal enjoyment. The sketch itself is by George Scantlebury and Ben Norton, and will be presented by Mr. Norton, who will himself take part. The principal characters will include Mr. George Scantlebury, Mr. James Vosper, and Miss Cissie Seaton. The evening's entertainment will conclude with a violin recital by Miss Jocelyn Bondy.

The World On One Valve!

of it all is that, as in all engineering, we must have a proper factor of safety. I am not ashamed in the least to repeat what I have written so often, because I am told repetition is the soul of journalism, and the best journalism aims at public service.

If you must listen, in the present stage of the art, to distant stations, two or three high frequency valves are essential. I have lately made my father-in-law a belated present of a wireless set. My father-in-law was born in that unromantic age when a hansom cab, apart from the train, was the fastest of vehicles (in more senses than one). He was never an engineer and his electrical knowledge is confined to a knowledge of how to switch on and off a light. He now finds himself in possession of one of the most remarkable pieces of apparatus in a world which daily produces more and more wonderful machinery.

Birmingham, Münster, or Brussels are his for the adjustment. While he, like a sensible man, mostly listens to London, he still has the other possibility of roaming further afield. And he never disturbs those few neighbours high on the Chiltern Hills. The reason and the only reason is that his set is a properly designed and manufactured set which is still sensitive and yet never offends others.

So we come to the fact that the fullest potentialities of wireless cannot be unselfishly realized unless we are prepared to pay money for the pleasure. We have always striven to stress the public service conception of our work. We have always tried to give you the best in the means whereby you receive programmes and the programmes themselves. We have given with both hands, I hope not stinting the service for the benefit of the few, but so rapidly has the art developed that we have been unable to make concrete some of the ideals we bear in mind, and we ask meanwhile for your co-operation and your patience.

Neither of these are given by the persistent oscillator who spoils the service for ourselves, himself, and others.

In a recent article, I tried to show how the art would, in all probability, develop; fewer stations, but higher power. Then, indeed, the single valve man, and even the crystal user, will have the chance of alternative programmes with simple apparatus. Then all England on the valve will be nearer realization. We aim at developing the art in terms of the best service for all. In the meanwhile, may we ask for co-operation and unselfishness from those who seek to take more from the service than the service can give. The service is doing its best. Won't you co-operate and do the same?

May I end by saying once more: "Please don't do it!"

EVERYBODY PLEASED!

It is natural that the close relationship between the B.B.C. and listeners should produce a big post-bag on practically every subject connected with the broadcast programmes, and it is also to be expected that the views of listeners should not be altogether unanimous. But at last we have apparently succeeded in pleasing everybody at the same time.

Of the hundreds of letters received in connection with the broadcasting of the Bells of Crowland Abbey on October 25th, not one contained an adverse criticism. This, we admit, constitutes a record in our programme correspondence, and one of which we are very proud. It is, indeed, something to have achieved for once, unanimity among listeners, although it may be a long time before it happens again. We sincerely hope that no listener will remember that he forgot to register a complaint!

Official News and Radio Gossip.

The Prince to Broadcast Again.

THE voice of the Prince of Wales will again be heard by London and Daventry listeners at 9.15 p.m. on November 25th, when he makes an appeal at the Guildhall on behalf of the "Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children."

"Mercenary Mary."

We intimated in a recent issue that London listeners could look forward to the broadcasting of an excerpt from Mercenary Mary, the musical comedy at the Hippodrome. This broadcast will take place on November 27th, and will begin at 8.50 p.m., with the song "Honey, I'm in Love," and the transmission will include the numbers "I'm a Little Bit Fonder of You" and "They All Look Good."

In Memory of a Famous Composer.

On the afternoon of November 29th, the B.B.C. will honour the memory of Puccini with a musical programme of his works. Mr. Percy Pitt, as an old friend of the composer, will give a short address and possibly an official representative of Italy—Puccini's nation—may also take part.

A Blind Organist's Recital.

In connection with the special concert, provided entirely by blind artists in commemoration of St. Cecilia's Day, on November 22nd, listeners to the London and Daventry programmes will hear an organ recital, between the hours of 3.30 p.m. and 5.30 p.m., by the well-known blind organist Mr. William Wolstenholme. His compositions, "The Question" and "The Answer," are familiar to all frequenters of organ recitals. This feature will be relayed from the National Institute for the Blind.

St. Andrew's Day.

The Programme Board of the B.B.C. intends to make a special effort to celebrate St. Andrew's Day, November 30th, by a special Scottish programme. Details will be announced in due course.

Lancashire Talent Series.

An entirely new movement is to be inaugurated at the Manchester Station on Friday, November 27th, when the first of a Lancashire Talent Series will be broadcast. The programme will be supplied, between 8.0 p.m. and 10 p.m., entirely by Bolton artists, and will include songs by soprano, contralto, tenor, and baritone voices, musical items being contributed by 'cello and solo pianoforte. It has been felt for some time that an intimate programme of this nature would appeal to the largest possible number of local listeners, and, following the Bolton programme, the series will include, at weekly intervals, programmes entirely contributed by other Lancashire towns. Strict impartiality has been observed in selecting the order in which these shall contribute, and no significance should be attached to the order of priority.

Another Radio Fantasy.

Radio Fantasy No. 10, entitled Echo, will be performed at Birmingham Station on Sunday, November 22nd, at 9.20 p.m. It has been written by Mr. Leslie Norris-Rogers, and the music has been specially arranged by Mr. Joseph Lewis. The incidental music will be provided by the Station Orchestra, and the characters will be played by Mr. Percy Edgar, who will take the part of "Harry," Miss Gladys Colbourne, who will play "Bertha," while "Echo" will be Miss Phyllis Richardson and "Pan" Mr. Harold Howes.

Community Singing at Birmingham.

It is hoped to broadcast a Community Singing Concert to be relayed from the Town Hall, Birmingham, on Monday, November 23rd. The singing will be conducted by Mr. Joseph Lewis, who has made a speciality of these concerts, both here and in London. The artists will be Mr. Parry Jones (tenor), Mr. Dale Smith (baritone), and Mr. Percy Edgar in recitals.

New Schemes for Radio Humour.

The lighter and brighter side of wireless entertainment is always popular with a large number of listeners. Recognizing this, the B.B.C. constantly endeavour to enlarge upon the humorous items which are the most acceptable to their unseen audiences.

In the beginning, these items were usually of the simple entertainer variety to which we are accustomed in concert halls and elsewhere. These being found successful, other artists were engaged—troupes and concert parties—who were equally welcomed. Then the B.B.C. realized that, successful though these were, a more intimate type of humour might be developed.

Wireless Revues.

A kind of Wireless Revue was evolved, a type of revue written specially for, and suitable only to, the peculiar requirements, advantages, and possibilities of invisible entertainment. Entitled Radio Radiance, this met with instant and gratifying appreciation, and, together with another form of revue, represented by "Winners," in which popular numbers are happily blended together by whimsical patter written by Mr. R. E. Jeffrey, there has now been built up a steady demand for this kind of humorous entertainment which has led the B.B.C. to make yet another advance in providing the lighter portions of their programmes.

To this end, the services of Mr. Donald Calthrop, the well-known actor and producer of Yoicks, one of the most successful revues of modern times, have been secured to help, advise, and direct the further activities of the Dramatic Department which, under the direction of Mr. R. E. Jeffrey, has always been the means of providing these popular forms of humorous entertainment.

Brahms' "Requiem" at Bournemouth.

The chief feature of the Sunday evening programme at Bournemouth Station on November 22nd will be the Brahms Requiem. The solo parts will be sung by Miss Kate Winter (soprano) and, it is hoped, by Mr. Roy Henderson (baritone). The choral parts will be rendered by the Frome Choral Society, conducted by Mr. A. M. Porter. This Society is well known in Somerset and the West of England.

Another Cathedral Service.

The recent transmissions from York Minster and Worcester Cathedral were so much appreciated that listeners will be interested to hear that on Sunday, November 22nd, the Plymouth Station has arranged to broadcast the service from Truro Cathedral, when the Address is to be given by the Rev. Canon Trevor Lewis, M.A. (Sub Dean).

An Entertaining Farce.

A farce, entitled Affinities, by Vernon Woodhouse, will be broadcast from the Edinburgh Station on the evening of Friday, November 27th. This is well adapted for radio purposes, and the members of the cast have had considerable experience in dramatic productions over the microphone.

The same evening a novelty will be broadcast from the Station, consisting of a performance of a number of the shortest musical compositions, poems, and stories, in existence. The artists on this occasion will be chosen from members of the Edinburgh Station staff.

Derry and Dublin Talent.

Belfast, unlike most of the other B.B.C. main stations, has no other very large town in its area. Northern Ireland, apart from Belfast, is almost wholly agricultural, and the only large town is Londonderry. On Monday night, November 23rd, a Derry programme will be given by Derry artists, two singers, a pianist, and Mr. Albert T. Cunningham, who will conduct the Belfast Station Orchestra.

Dublin is also represented in the programme that week, for, on Saturday, November 28th, Mr. Percy Whitehead, the well-known Dublin baritone, will be heard.

New Talks Series at Belfast.

Two interesting series of talks begin next week at Belfast Station. On Tuesday, November 24th, Professor Walmsley, of Queen's University, Belfast, will, at 7.10 p.m., give the first of six talks on "The Structure of the Body," and on Thursday, November 26th, at the same hour, Mr. Carl Hardebeck will discuss "Gaelic Music," upon which he is a great authority.

Sunday Concert from Leeds-Bradford.

A special concert is being arranged in aid of the National Institute for the Blind, which will be broadcast from the Alhambra Theatre, Bradford, on Sunday, November 22nd. The Band of the Grenadier Guards will play, while vocal items will be given by Miss Maggie Lister (soprano) and Mr. A. B. N. Forbes (bass-baritone). Mr. J. W. Ainsworth, A.R.C.M., will be at the piano.

Special Studio Service at Dundee.

After the News Bulletin, the whole of the programme from the Dundee Studio will be sustained by the Dundee Select Choir on Sunday evening, November 22nd. Under the leadership of Mr. H. Marshall, various items, including psalms and hymns, which have been specially asked for or chosen by local listeners, will be sung.

A Collector of Folk Songs.

In memory of Cecil Sharp, that indefatigable collector of English folk songs, special items will be included in the programmes on November 23rd. These will consist of many folk songs, sea shanties, and country dance tunes, which he arranged so delightfully.

Sir Hugh Allen and Dr. Vaughan Williams will broadcast a few words in appreciation of his work, and also on behalf of the Cecil Sharp Memorial Fund at present being established.

Mr. Harry Plunkett Greene will be Master of the Ceremonies, and will contribute songs to the programme. Other artists who will assist are Mr. Frederick Ranalow, of Beggar's Opera fame; Mr. Stewart Wilson, the English singer who recently represented us in the Venice festival; Mr. Douglas Kennedy, singing unaccompanied ballads, and Mr. Harold Samuel, the pianist.

A Memory of the War.

A programme which should prove attractive to ex-Service men will be given from Cardiff Station and relayed through Daventry on Thursday next. Although it will deal with the Great War, the terrible side of the fighting will be kept in the background, and listeners' attention will be focused on the wit, the little worries, and the good fellowship which always existed among the troops. All the old familiar tunes will be heard, and there will be an amusing estaminet scene, and listeners will be finally brought face to face with war in a front-line trench.

Many famous broadcasters will be discovered by attentive listeners, but for this evening, as a tribute to their comrades, artists and others prefer to remain anonymous.

Beethoven's Sonatas.

As the sequence of the thirty-two Pianoforte Sonatas of Beethoven, being played by Mr. Herbert A. Carruthers from Glasgow Station on Monday nights, was unavoidably broken on Monday, October 26th, all the subsequent Sonatas were put back a week, and the fifth of the series, which will be given on November 16th, will replace what was originally intended to be the sixth.

Our Point of View.

Radio Revels—Wireless in the Wards.

ALL ENGLAND DANCING.

PREPARATIONS are now far advanced for the holding, in about four weeks' time, of a simultaneous "revel" in every town which has a B.B.C. main or relay station. Those of our readers who have had experience of organizing even one such function will sympathize with the committee which, at Head Office, has been co-ordinating the details of twenty. In most cases the whole profits, and in other cases (where it has been found necessary to borrow the premises, bands and organization of a local dance hall) the whole B.B.C. share in the profits, are going to charities, and preferably to wireless charities.

The London Revel, and, to some extent, other revels, are helping the Daily News Fund for Wireless Installations in Hospitals, and the other charities which will be supported (and, it is hoped, will reap handsome returns) are in the majority of cases similar in kind but other deserving causes have not been ignored. The bands in all these halls will be reinforced by loud speaker installations, which will give forth the strains of the bands playing at Olympia, so that all England will be dancing at times to the same tunes broadcast from London and Daventry—perhaps from Rome and Vienna, and from even farther afield.

But it will be time, when the Revel is over, to discuss it as a revel. At this stage, it is a more serious note that we would strike. We would ask readers to book December 15th, not primarily for the sake of an enjoyable carnival evening, but for the sake of the charities it stands for.

As we have said, these are in the main wireless charities, but the rest are charities for equipping hospitals with special treatment plant, providing fresh-air holidays for slum children, furnishing rest-houses for girl workers, and for half a dozen other special objects, as well as that most ordinary, yet most essential, object of keeping up the funds of the great general hospitals.

GIVING AND RECEIVING.

THE Radio Revels deserve their name for two reasons. Charity takes the form of radio, and radio becomes the vehicle of charity. The importance of the first we would by no means underrate. And yet, desirable as it is that the dim, still evenings of those who lie in the wards should be soothed or brightened by the music and speech which is generated in the headphones—attractive as is the idea of providing the blind with a form of enjoyment which can dispense with their friends' or nurses' help, and appeals with peculiar intensity to their supersensitive ears—radio, on the Revel night, addresses itself not to those who receive, but to those who give.

In some cases the places of revel are to be open at "popular" prices, but more often the prices are somewhat higher. And this is just as it should be. To a public which we serve, month in and month out, with programmes of music, lectures and dramas at a cost to the listener of a third of a penny a day, we can safely address an appeal to spend on this one night in the year with a free hand. On such a night a popular price is the price which listeners feel glad to pay to help a popular cause—no more and no less. And, equally, to revellers in the towns and villages where there is no organized Revel, but only the familiar domestic or communal dance to the S.B. music of a loud speaker, we say—let this be a night of charity of giving, as well as of receiving.

TO-DAY AND YESTERDAY.

ALTHOUGH to the ordinary listener it may seem that the wireless transmissions from day to day remain at their same order of excellence—or, as some may prefer to express it, at their same order of inferiority—the engineers of the B.B.C. are all the time seeking to make improvements.

It is interesting, therefore, occasionally to go back three or four years and get a direct contrast between what, in broadcasting, is to-day and yesterday. Only by doing this can we see the full extent of improvements as they have been gradually brought about over any given period. Many instances might be quoted, but probably one of the most fascinating is an examination of the fundamental problem and difficulties of making a mechanical reproduction of music by means of wireless.

It is a remarkable fact that in the range of frequencies in speech and music which lie between 30 and 10,000 a second, there is an extraordinary predisposition in all apparatus, whether mechanical or electrical, to respond to the middle frequencies round about 1,000 and 2,000 a second.

Careful investigation shows this peculiarity to be a common fault with almost every part of wireless equipment—whether transmitters or receivers. They uniformly favour those frequencies represented by the centre notes of a piano. They all fall short in their ability to reproduce the low and high notes. The combined result of these effects is that in reproduction we seldom get an absolutely faithful copy of the original. It is to overcome these problems that research work is continually going on. Decided improvements, slow, but sure, are likewise always being made.

Four years ago we were probably transmitting no treble or bass notes at all, but we know that to-day 80 per cent. of perfect reproduction in the highest notes (10,000 a second) and 30 per cent. of the ideal in the lowest notes is actually being sent out.

Most of these experiments are done in London, and as discoveries are made they are applied to the apparatus at other stations. Research and development are unremitting. We are still far from satisfied with results. Only when we have attained 100 per cent. reproduction of all musical notes will we relax our efforts in this direction.

It is still the major part of the manufacturers' problems to see that the loud speaker or telephone responds in the right ratio to the straight-line characteristic we endeavour to achieve at our stations.

Wireless Wisdom.

Points From Talks.

"The Cheshire Cheese."

THE quaint old bar is unlike any other bar in London. Its very customs are different. No one familiar with them would dream of asking for Irish whiskey: he would call for arrack. But it is the valuable collection of punch-bowls which makes the bar unique. Round those steaming bowls our convivial forefathers chorused the National Anthem and cheered themselves hoarse over the news of Blenheim and Ramilles, of Trafalgar and Waterloo and other great victories of a time when the British Empire was in the making.—Col. W. P. Drury.

ROAD sense in the abstract gave us white lines on the concrete.—Stenson Cooke.

Light Baths for Night Workers.

ALL night workers suffer sooner or later. Many causes have been assigned for this fact. I believe it to be due to lack of sunlight. They should have artificial light baths. We might well begin with the night nurses in our hospitals, most or all of which have installed lamps during recent months for the treatment of their patients. The argument applies to all night workers and, by similar reasoning, to our miners, who leave the light of day for subterranean gloom and danger, in order that our nation may live. Light baths at the pit-head, as well as baths of water, should be part of the equipment for the future.—Dr. C. W. Saleely, F.R.S.E.

If I may be daringly candid, even a scientist does not always in his heart welcome fresh truths.—Professor Barkla.

Triumph Over Trade Depression.

THE sterling character of our people shows itself at its best when in a tight place, and I am confident that our manufacturers and merchants will emerge from the present trade depression no less triumphantly than did their predecessors from the difficult times which followed the Napoleonic Wars over 100 years ago.—Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, K.B.E.

GENIUS is an extraordinary thing and resembles a cat, inasmuch as you never know which way it is going to jump.—James Agate.

What Is the Answer?

AN old Malay from up jungle, who knew practically nothing of Western life, stopped me one day just after the outbreak of the Great War. He was anxious to know if the Germans were lighter or darker than the Malays. "Why, Ibrahim," I told him, "they are white like the English." "White, Tuan!" he ejaculated in surprise, "well, are they Christians?" "Certainly, they are," I assured him. He seemed perplexed, but at last managed to stammer: "If they are white and Christians, Tuan, why do they fight white men who are also Christians?" How could I answer him in a way that he would understand? But I know it made me feel rather small.—John Burnley.

Camels Children Swallow.

ELLEN KEY, the Wise Woman of Sweden, has said: "Where the faults of children are concerned, at home and at school, we strain at gnats, while children daily are obliged to swallow the camels of grown people."—Muriel Wriach.

BOOKS of any merit convey to us a certain infection.—Desmond MacCarthy.

When to Plant Roses.

THE greatest strides in the evolution of the rose have been made during the past fifty years, in which time roughly 3,000 varieties have been created, varying in colour from rich crimson and pure white to the innumerable shades of yellow, pink and almost blue, but not quite. Given a soil and situation in which the average vegetable life flourishes, provided the right sorts are chosen, roses can be made to thrive with a minimum amount of trouble and expense; but they must be planted at the right time, the end of October, November or December.—F. Cant.

PEOPLE YOU WILL HEAR THIS WEEK.

The TEMPLARS' CONCERT PARTY are visiting London Studio on November 19th. They will also be heard from Daventry and several other Stations.

[S.Aort.]
Miss IRENE BROOKE, who is giving a pianoforte recital to Bournemouth listeners on November 19th.

[Warschawski.]
Miss HILDA ATKINSON will sing and play harp solos at Manchester on November 16th.

[Maurice Beek & Macgregor.]
Mr. ROY HENDERSON (Baritone) is singing at Nottingham on November 20th.

[Fandy.]
The Rt. Hon. Sir SAMUEL HOARE, Secretary of State for Air, is to broadcast a talk on Aviation on November 17th (S.B. to all Stations).

[Maurice Beek & Macgregor.]
Miss VIVIEN LAMBELET, of the Offenbach Follies, will be heard by London, Daventry, Liverpool, and Belfast listeners on November 20th.

Wake Up, Novelists!

Their Sad Neglect of Radio Stories. By Herbert Shaw.

THE coming of wireless gave to novelists a great treasure-house of imaginative possibilities, and they have been too lazy to turn the key of the door. Have our sensational writers, in some secret council, decided among themselves to boycott wireless, and the fine chances it gives them for new turns and situations in their stories?

They have certainly neglected it, for you won't find it mentioned, except incidentally, half-a-dozen times in the year's output of novels. This is odd, because although all of us are now familiar with wireless, there is hardly a thoughtful man or woman who does not still appreciate its magic and its wonder.

Imagination's Lucky-Bag.

The story writers used the S.O.S. call from vessels in distress, and then ran away from the theme, although more and more, as wireless has grown to be part of our daily lives, imaginative yarns in which wireless figured would be welcomed, to entertain the great host of radio enthusiasts.

It is time they woke up and mended their ways—isn't it the present-day novelist's boast that he must be modern and bang up-to-date, whatever his faults?

Their neglect of the possibilities of wireless is a crime. Sensation and sentiment, drama and mystery and action—all these could be "woven into wireless" and add a fresh interest to the romances of to-day.

As the writers of fiction seem so shy of the subject, let us have a look into the lucky-bag of imagination and see if we can find a few ideas for their use. Playing the old favourite children's game of "Let's pretend," which every writer of stories must do when he attacks his work, we will give them one or two suggestions for plots which may spur our dilatory novelists on.

A Romantic Plot.

First, let us think of an imaginary country somewhere in the Balkans, a romantic kingdom of fierce warriors and lovely ladies like that country of Ruritania of which Sir Anthony Hope made such good use. The whole land is seething with discontent, and this discontent, for his own purposes, has been fanned to the point of flaming into rebellion by a cunning noble who has deceived the gallant young king.

The noble is at the head of a band of conspirators who have worked long and hard to undermine the faith of the people in their king. They desire revolution above all things. Revolution and the overthrow of the king will bring them great rewards.

There comes a day when the princess, who loves the king, finds proof of the treachery of the conspirators, and discovers all their plottings. Is it too late to save the kingdom and its ruler? At midnight the revolution is timed to begin. The princess rushes to the palace with her momentous news. What way can be found of acquainting the people of the country with the news that they have been deceived by the covetous noble and his allies? In an hour, in less than an hour, the gun that is the signal for uprising will sound in the great square!

Saved by Radio.

There is only one way—wireless. Just in time, near the close of a special wireless programme that has kept most of the inhabitants of the capital in their homes, the young king broadcasts a wonderful message to the people of his threatened realm. Such a message—so sincere and enthusiastic and instinct with truth that it sets the people cheering in their houses and saves the kingdom from the disaster that was so near.

More difficult to work, but worth attention and speculation, would be the unknown broadcasting station from which a gifted leader of men who aims to be Dictator of a country sends out mysterious messages. Who can this man be, this man who has such intimate and uncanny knowledge of all the affairs of State? His influence could be, for story purposes, either for evil or for good. His powers of remaining unknown, the methods by which the inexplicable secrecy of his station and his hiding-place is for so long maintained, with a thousand people intent upon tracking him down—ought not these things to make a worthy stage for a first-class yarn of thrills, adventures, and achievement?

Love and Humour.

These are big themes, but in the field of wireless there is more than enough room for smaller and quieter ideas. In his lodgings, the lonely young man is tired and unhappy. To listen, he thinks, may lighten his mind—and then he receives a shock. Somewhere, a year before, he has heard that sweet voice that comes to him from the night, singing a loved, familiar song. The singer's name is not on the programme—or he finds it to be an assumed name, when eagerly he makes inquiries. There seems to be a conspiracy to stop him from discovering the identity of the singer, and he is so sure he has met her before. But he determines to find her, and his adventures on the way to success make the story.

There are humorous possibilities also. There could be wireless stories of laughter as well as romance. Take this same young man, searching passionately for the owner of the unknown voice which has so greatly stirred him. He swears he will find her. For weeks he plods through the programmes of the various stations, to discover her name again.

For One Night Only.

At last, he gets upon the right track. And at last, following disappointment after disappointment, adventure after adventure, he meets the fair singer face to face, and a cruel and awkward disillusionment is his unhappy lot.

For the owner of the wonderful golden voice is a young man—a female impersonator who, for sufficient reasons, has been able to keep his identity secret until now!

Crime has not yet been touched upon; but, in clever hands, it should provide as wide a field as romance for fiction with a "wireless end." What a story waits for our entertainment if an ingenious writer can set himself to make plausible the theme of the capturing of a broadcasting station—for one night only—by a gang of clever crooks who are out for a tremendous coup. There are no limits to the evil they could do. Special message sent out for a millionaire—the crooks waylay him, kidnap him, hold him to ransom. Also they secure his only daughter.

A Guilty Secret.

Or they could threaten a rich man with a secret past with the broadcasting of his guilty secret. They could follow this plan of blackmail with a hundred rich men whose secrets they had worked for years to secure with just this end in view—a colossal night of blackmail. Imagine their confederates, simultaneously in a hundred great houses in the city—"You must decide very quickly what our silence is worth. I am to send a message to my colleagues by telephone within five minutes from now. If you do not pay what we ask . . . your secret will be broadcast to London and the world! You had better pay up!"

Wake up, please, novelists! There are great chances in wireless themes for your clever brains, for your skilful pens. Wake up—and let us hear from you!

Points From Radio Preachers.

The Raw Material of Character.

OUR life is a continuous extraction from the raw material of circumstances into something other, for better or for worse. Our bodies are great and intricate factories receiving daily the raw material of air, food and clothing which by chemical action and reaction is turned into living tissue, rich blood and tough fibre. Man yet but dimly understands this inward process that so rhythmically maintains comparative health and strength. But Life knows other raw material besides these things. Human experience is a long category of sorrow and suffering, of despair and defeat, of confusion and sin, and these things are to the soul what minerals and wood are to the factory, and food and air to the body, just raw material.

As the enrichment of life is determined by our power of converting its raw material into effective necessities, so is the enrichment of character determined by our power of turning suffering and sorrow into abiding values.

Man has tried many ways of overcoming the agony of affliction and the despair of defeat, but always without success until he learns the employment of moral and spiritual power. For this task, man is not sufficient, his inventive genius is of no avail. If suffering is to be transmuted into beauty, loss into gain, darkness into light, then man must needs learn the grace and power of God. If a moral failure is to be transformed into a moral victory, it will be accomplished by the spirit of God, and nought else.—The Rev. Alexander Butler, Whitefield's Tabernacle, London.

Ruined by Friendship.

SOME men are ruined by their enemies, more are ruined by their friends. It is amazing how easily some people form their friendships, how they take the line of least resistance, how they fail to realise all that is involved in the mystic bond of friendship. Friendships are lightly made, and secretly, slowly character degenerates, ideals are dimmed until that friendship, begun in the comradeship of some light-hearted hour, closes the door on a hundred noble things.

So is it with the choices we make. Every day we are called upon to decide in a hundred small concerns, and our choices make us or mar us. Then one day we are called upon to face one of life's great decisions, and, it may be, we have not been living on high levels, we have been guilty of infidelities to conscience, and we choose amiss; for the action of any decisive hour is shaped by the influence of the innumerable lesser choices of every day.

Then days or years pass and the choice slowly works itself out in character, and a thousand things are tainted by our disastrous choice. We never meant to shut out power and purity, but they have receded ever since; we become aware that we have lost something without which life can never be the same again.—The Rev. F. Ives Cator, Stoke-on-Trent.

Medical Work In India.

AS a nation, we have had, and still have, a large say in the profound revolutionary changes which have taken place during the last hundred years with growing momentum in the life of India.

In nothing has that silent and unselfish service been better exemplified than in the devotion of medical men and women, many of them servants of the Government, not a few of them missionaries of the Christian Church, who have dedicated life and thought and labour to the alleviation of the bodily ills of the people.

How great the problem has been will perhaps be better realised if one compares it to an effort to supply with an effective medical service the whole of the continent of Europe, excluding Russia. When one thinks of it in that way, one wonders not so much at any shortcoming as at the extent of the success achieved.—Dr. Lechmere Taylor, Edinburgh.

Bow Bells.

The Chimes Beloved By "Cockneys."

[London's famous Bow Bells will be broadcast on Sunday, November 15th.]

ST. MARY-LE-BOW is the premier church of the City of London. Usually called "Bow Church, Cheapside," it was erected by Wren, in 1671, on the site of a previous Norman edifice which was destroyed in the Great Fire of 1666. Wren, in fact, used the original Norman Crypt for his foundation. The Normans employed Roman bricks and tiles and, it is thought, Saxon workmanship. Here, on the capital of one column, may be seen a specimen of Norman spearhead decoration—the only known example in the world.

In the well-proportioned tower, considered Wren's masterpiece of its kind, are the twelve famous bells. The tenor bell weighs over two and a half tons.

"The Whittington Chime."

In his book on Bow Church, the Rev. A. W. Hutton says: "It is probable that what Dick Whittington heard on Highgate Hill was the curfew on Bow Bell. In 1469, the Common Council directed that it should be rung on Bow Bell at 9 p.m."

The bells now in the belfry are not those heard by Sir Richard Whittington, according to the legend, in 1375, for those perished in 1666 in the Great Fire. Also, there can be found no record of more than one bell until 1515, when another was presented and rung at the funeral of a churchwarden. Now, six bells are needed for the "Whittington Chime," so that the legendary tune to "Turn again, Whittington, Thrice Lord Mayor of London" cannot be historically maintained. But it is true that the curfew was rung at this church at the time, and among the City records is contained an order, made in 1334, forbidding people to wander about the streets after "the hour of Curfew has rung out at the Church of Our Lady at Bow."

A Great Poet's Birthplace.

High above Cheapside, on the top of the steeple, is the copper-gilt dragon, 8ft. 10in. long, and its wings are "charged" with Greek or, as they are now called, "Geneva" crosses.

The altar panel is a copy of Murillo's "Holy Family," and is said to be one of the six most valuable pictures in the City of London.

All the stained glass windows are modern. The large West window is the John Milton memorial, and depicts a scene from "Paradise Lost." Milton was born close by, in Bread Street, and the church possesses the register entry of his baptism.

The church's pulpit is a work of art, on which are carved the Royal Arms and interlocking "C's" of King Charles II. and his Queen Catherine, who were accustomed to witness "Chepe" tournaments from a gallery erected close to the Lantern Tower of the old Norman Church.

Noted for its Music.

It is of noteworthy interest that the ceremony of the Confirmation of the Election of all Bishops in the Province of Canterbury takes place at Bow Church.

Bow Church has long been famous for its music. Every Sunday a small, but accomplished, choir renders fully choral cathedral services. A feature of these services is the use of Sir Walford Davies's "speech rhythm" method of singing the Psalms. Many years ago, oratorio services were inaugurated on the last Sunday evening in each month, and these are still held. Oratorios by Handel, Haydn, Parry and Mendelssohn are sung and the "Christmas Oratorio" and other cantatas by Bach are frequently given.

The church possesses a three-manual "Walker" organ, which is famous for its striking diapason tone and for its delicate and beautiful soft flute stops.

Sir Walford Davies's well-known "Solemn Melody" for organ and strings was written for, and first performed in, Bow Church. J. E. H.

The Pioneer Spirit.

By F. A. Mitchell-Hedges, The Explorer.*

MANY people have put the following questions to me: What is the use of exploration work? And what benefit is it to the country if you do find a ruined city, the evidences of ancient civilizations and their culture—we cannot possibly see what good it does to bring back specimens for the museums? Others have frankly told me that they considered it a waste of money on our part.

The "Petty Cash" Mind.

I am quite sure all these people are well-meaning, and I will even join issue with them to this extent, that if exploration work, if the discovery of ancient cities, and knowledge of bygone civilizations simply means the donating to museums of specimens, I consider the work largely valueless, as, of course, it would be unproductive—by this, I mean that it would not produce revenue. But it is necessary to have a broad vision. We are, unfortunately, inclined to be insular, and my personal experience is that during the last few years the horizon of thought with many in this country has become attenuated. It is fatal for any country to develop the "petty cash" mind, and that is why with exploration work we must look beyond ancient ruins, specimens, and adventures in practically unknown lands. We must embrace an ideal.

What has made the British Empire? It was the pioneer spirit of adventure, of men like Sir Francis Drake, Captain Cook, and Sir Henry Morgan, to mention only a few, whose amazing deeds and whose courage and fearlessness will go down to posterity for all time. It was men like Clive. Later, we have that great pioneer, Cecil Rhodes, whose name will for ever be associated with Rhodesia and South Africa.

Romance of Two Poor Boys.

Now let us forget the whole of their work from an exploration and spirit of adventure point of view, and come down to cold facts. What did they produce for the benefit of their country? Drake and Morgan, the West Indies, and the wealth that the nation has year by year derived from trade and commerce, through giving us this part of the world. Captain Cook, Australia and New Zealand. Consider the power, prestige and financial benefit these virile and wonderful countries have given us. Cecil Rhodes, Rhodesia and South Africa. Here the ground has, year after year, poured forth its riches for the further advancement of our Empire.

But one need not search ancient history to find records of great deeds. Look what we have achieved in Canada. It is a romance, yet, I am afraid, not sufficiently appreciated by the people of to-day. Two poor Scotch boys, fired with the spirit of adventure, left Scotland to arrive at last in a country where, outside a few comparatively small towns, there was practically nothing but hundreds of thousands of square miles of prairie and forest.

Into the Great Unknown.

Largely through these two boys' stupendous work and fearlessness, the scenery changed. Gigantic railways grew, coal mines were opened up, prairies disappeared, in their place mile after mile of waving cornfields arose. It was a great Canada, no longer the land in which they arrived, but almost an Empire in itself that magically appeared. Undaunted by the heat of the summer, undaunted by the bitter colds and blizzards of winter, when the thermometer would sink to fifty, even sixty, below zero, they fought the elements, they conquered, they were an amazing example of our breed.

Later, the world honoured them, their names for ever will stand as two of the greatest Empire builders this country has ever known. I speak of Lord Strathcona and Lord Mount Stephen—they were the poor boys who emigrated from Scotland

* In a Talk from London.

into the great unknown. Fired with the pioneer spirit, which every Briton should have, they discarded the thought of the privations which lay ahead. The dictionary had not revealed to them the word "vacillation."

Risen From the Ranks.

It is strange, but true, that many of our greatest Empire builders have come from the ranks. The many marvellous feats in railroad building in the Argentine have been largely accomplished by men who have risen from lowly positions. Egypt, India, Australia, Rhodesia, practically every country throughout the world can tell the same story. The great wealth we derive from our South African mines, running into millions of pounds every year, was produced by the indefatigable work of men who rose from the people.

In Great Britain, our princes of industry are nearly all men who have had to fight and battle their way through life. The late Lord Leverhulme stands as a magnificent example. That great pioneer, by his forcefulness and strength of character, built up a colossal business, which year after year has produced a gigantic revenue, largely derived from abroad, for the benefit of Great Britain.

Living to-day, you will find that our greatest shipping magnates, railroad controllers, heads of vast industrial concerns, inventors, statesmen, authors—in fact, all branches—embrace men whose names are household words and who have risen from the ranks. It is to men of this breed we owe our Empire, and they were certainly not born with a silver spoon in their mouths.

A Light That is Dimmed.

But to-day, is the flame of our pioneer spirit shining with the strong clear light that has made it a world beacon through past generations? I fear not. If there were 150 first-class funerals to-morrow, have we among our men up to the age of forty those with sufficient knowledge, breadth of vision, forcefulness and inflexible belief in themselves to take their place and carry on?

At school, and up to a certain point, numbers of young men seem to do splendidly, then, for some strange reason, they appear to become inoculated with a bacillus of inertia, against which it would seem no anti-toxin can prevail.

To-day, among the majority in this country there appears to be something lacking; it can best be described as the difference we all know between the brilliance of the diamond and paste. There is not the fire, initiative and dynamic forcefulness which is necessary to carry us through to the goal that we in our youth dream we intend to reach. Too many follow a path of least resistance.

Women and the Empire.

It is much the same with our women. One finds somnolence and a distinct spirit of taking it easy. There is probably nothing finer than the right type of woman; the help and inspiration she can give to a man is an immense force for good. A man who is a real man when he cares for a woman can hardly be a failure. His own pride will never allow him to shatter the trust and belief the woman has in him. The destiny of the Empire, I feel certain, lies more in the right type of British women's hands than people think.

What is the value of exploration and the discovery of old ruins and fresh lands? There are still vast tracks of country in the world that have never seen a white man and I will tell you the value of exploration in these bleak spots of the map. It will be the vanguard of the trade army that will follow behind. America fully appreciates this; she has had five big expeditions out within the last year. Shall we, who have always been recognized as world pioneers, fall behind? Throughout the whole of the United States the slogan is 100 per cent. American. Ours must be 100 per cent. British.

News from the Aunts and Uncles.

The Children's Corner.

"For Aunties Only."

GREAT was the excitement when at the Cardiff Studio the other day there arrived a little booklet labelled "For Aunties and Cousins Only." There was only one Uncle present, and he was quickly "shooed" away until the Aunties had carefully read the contents of the booklet.

It contained pictures of charming frocks, and a little later, when the fuss had died down, everyone made her choice in front of the microphone.

The Uncles feel rather hurt that, so far, no interest has been taken in their ties and socks. Will some expert offer advice—and then, perhaps, the Uncles will stop being jealous?

Santa Claus at Glasgow.

Preparations are now in full sway for the Radio Circle Party to be held in Glasgow at Christmas. It is hoped that about a thousand poor children of the City will be entertained to tea and that Santa Claus (who has already given his promise to be present) will have a gift for every child. All this depends greatly on the help given by the members of the Radio Circle. Of course, the Uncles and Auntie know that it is not possible for all the little ones to be present at the party, but just think what can be done even by those who live at a distance, for contributions of toys, money, books, and sweets—no matter how small—will all be welcomed at the Studio, 21, Blythswood Square.

Novelties at Leeds-Bradford.

Starting on Monday, November 23rd, some new features will be introduced in the Leeds-Bradford Children's Corner. First of all, we are promised a "Dreamy Evening" with Uncle Bob. He has already been discovered asleep in the Studio twice during the Children's Corner, so we shall all look forward to his "Dreamy Evening." We hope it won't send you all to sleep.

On Tuesday, we are going to the "Mad Hatter's Tea Party" with Uncle Max. Special arrangements will, of course, be made for an extra supply of clean teacups. On Wednesday, Auntie Nora will re-introduce us to Robert Louis Stevenson. Thursday is never complete without Granfer Daisy. On Friday, Auntie Doll is going to give an evening of "Old Rags." This will not be such a beggarly evening as it sounds. You will be surprised at the number of old Rags which you know and have forgotten; and no Saturday is ever complete without Billy Smiff.

There will probably be other visitors as well, but their identity will be a secret for the present.

Uncle Tom to Leave Belfast.

All those who listen to the Belfast Children's Hour will be very sorry to hear that Uncle Tom is leaving the Belfast Station. His jokes and nonsense will be badly missed, but it is hoped that, as he will still be in Northern Ireland, he will sometimes be able to renew acquaintance with the large family of nephews, nieces and cousins.

A Fancy-Dress Party.

Most of the details for the big Fancy-Dress Party for Aberdeen Radio Circle members have now been arranged. It will be held in the Music Hall, Aberdeen, on December 15th, from 5.0-7.0 p.m. The fun will start with a Grand March for everybody, which will be headed by the Toy Drum Major. Prizes will be given for the prettiest and funniest costumes worn by the children. Then, there will be dancing for the older children and games for the younger ones, with treasure hunts and all sorts of exciting things. Be sure to watch for the Donkey Parade. The Uncles and Aunties think it will be great fun.

The tickets, which are ready now, are one shilling, which includes tea. They are for Radio Circle members only, of course. There will be room for parents and others who want to see the jolly scene, in the gallery. Tickets for this will be one shilling, and the proceeds will go to the Aberdeen Sick Children's Hospital Fund.

THE MOON MAN.

THE stars were winking down upon a little boy. His name was Billy Bunnyhug. He could not understand why the sky had so many eyes while he had only two.

As he stood at his cottage door, just by the tiny garden, he heard the sound of music coming from afar. It was like one long sweet note, growing louder and louder, coming nearer and nearer . . . and nearer . . . and NEARER!

Ding . . . ding . . . ding . . . DING . . .

Then a small voice chuckled: "Are you Billy Bunnyhug?"

For a moment Billy didn't reply. He looked round to see who was talking, and his two eyes were quite enough to show him a queer creature who danced in the moonlight.

"Yes, I'm Billy Bunnyhug. Whatever do you want? And wherever did you spring from?"

The queer creature went on dancing his funny jig and answered: "I want you to be my friend. And I sprang from the moon. See that moonbeam there, Billy Bunnyhug? Well, I slid all the way down from my home in the sky!"

They went for a walk up the moonbeams.

Billy Bunnyhug stood amazed.

"Surely, you can't be the Man in the Moon!" he said.

"Yes," came the answer. "I am the Man in the Moon. Look to the moon now and you will see no face smiling down. When I'm not at home, the moon doesn't smile."

"But I thought the moon was made of green cheese," remarked Billy. "Nobody can live in green cheese!"

"No, the moon is made of melted sixpences," said the Moon Man. "That's why it shines so brightly."

"How silly!" said Billy. "I do believe I'm dreaming."

"You are," the Moon Man said. "Else I shouldn't be dancing before you."

The Man in the Moon and Billy Bunnyhug got on very well together, so well that they went for a walk up the moonbeams and left Clover Cottage far below.

Presently, they reached the end of the journey. When Billy looked down he saw the old world floating about like a great balloon.

"However am I going to get back?" he asked suddenly.

"By waking up," said the Moon Man. "But first, let me show you what a large place the moon really is. This side we're on now is always facing your earth as we float round the world, and this is the side where I sit and smile down at you all. Jolly, isn't it?"

As they strolled across the moon's face, Billy thought he heard a bell ringing. . . . Ding . . . ding . . . ding . . .

"My!" he cried. "What's that?"

"I believe it's a sign that you're going to wake up. You'll have to come and see me again tomorrow night. . . ."

Billy Bunnyhug opened his eyes to find the sun shining and his mother standing over him.

"Come along, Billy," said Mrs. Bunnyhug. "You've overslept and will be late for school. Can't you hear the bell ringing?"

Ding . . . ding . . . ding . . . DING . . . C. W.

Readers' Stories.

Merry Mishaps Told by Listeners.

[We print below the readers' amusing experiences in connection with radio that the Editor considers to be the best submitted this week.]

"Shocked" the Sailors.

MANY years ago there was moored at Malta, one Saturday morning, a brand-new battleship just fitted up with what was then quite new and mysterious—a wireless installation.

Now it was the custom then, as it still is, to the great discomfort of H.M. Navy, to wash down decks every Saturday morning, and on this particular day bare-footed bluejackets were vigorously plying their water-hoses all over the quarter-deck.

What was "amusing and surprising," but quite unpublishable, was the language of those same bluejackets when they received electric shocks whenever the water from their hoses came in contact with the down lead of the transmitting aerial, which was then being tuned up with a powerful plain aerial spark.—Lt.-Col. Chetwode Crawley, 34, Alexandra Road, S.E.19.

The Cat Was Innocent.

I PUT the head-phones on my spaniel puppy a few nights ago for the first time. She listened very attentively to the music and the announcer, but when a soprano began to sing, she immediately turned and stared suspiciously at the cat!—A. R. McLaren, "Ryhall," Plumpton, Sussex.

Slightly Mistaken.

ONE night recently a friend who knew very little about wireless came to my house to listen. Noticing the darkened part of the valves, he asked: "What's the matter with them, have they been smoking?"—J. T. Hymas, Junr., Prospect House, Burton Leonard, Harrogate.

Whiskers!

A MAN came into the wireless stores where I am employed and asked what cats' whiskers are made of. He said he had a valuable Persian cat and one morning, after the animal had been out all night, he noticed that some of its whiskers were missing. If anyone had cut them off to use for their wireless sets, he said indignantly, he would prosecute them!—J. J. Mawby, 105, Howard Road, Leicester.

A Light Reason.

"You know I envy you having the wireless," said a friend who came to tea one afternoon. "I should have one myself, but we haven't got the electric light laid on."—Mrs. Plaistowe, 17, Stanhope Road, Highgate, N.6.

Why He Failed.

AT a farm in Devon, where I spent my summer holidays, a labourer who had rigged up an aerial between his house and a nearby barn, found he could get no results whatever. Thinking the trouble was caused by birds sitting on the wire, he fixed up a scarecrow on the roof of the barn, but without any better results. Finally, it was discovered that no connection had ever been made between the aerial and his lead-in wire.—Miss E. Beavis, 85, Cressfield Road, West Acton, W.3.

The Dancing Porpoises.

DURING the summer months, I was on board a steamer, off Ushant, listening to dance music played from London, and received on a powerful loud speaker set. One afternoon a shoal of porpoises following the boat seemed to be attracted by the music, and while it lasted, flopped up and down and over in the water keeping correct time to the tune.—H. Gunzer, 98, Churston Avenue, Upton Park.

LISTENERS will enjoy reading in book form those delightfully written Anniversary Talks that are broadcast every evening and which have just been published under the title of "A Minute a Day" by Messrs. Herbert Jenkins at 5s. net. It will come as a surprise to most people to learn that the author of the smallest, though one of the most popular features of the programmes, is the A. Bonnet Laird whose name is as familiar as the country-side Talk he gives from London each Wednesday.

PARTS OF "THE RING OF THE NIBELUNGS."

(LONDON AND OTHER STATIONS, MONDAY, TUESDAY, AND FRIDAY.)

LAST week, an Act from Wagner's great Cycle of music-dramas, The Ring, was described in these columns. Two more Acts are to be given this week, and Siegfried's Funeral March is in the Liverpool programme for Tuesday; listeners who are not thoroughly familiar with the whole work should turn back and read at least the first two paragraphs of last week's article.

ACT II. OF "SIEGFRIED."

In the gloom of forest night, by the entrance to a cave sits the Nibelung dwarf, ALBERICH (Baritone). He it was that first stole the Rhine Gold and made of it the Ring. He has long since lost it and now watches at the entrance to the cave where Fafner (once giant, now dragon) guards the Ring and the rest of the Gold. Alberich expects the young hero, Siegfried, to come here and slay the dragon, and hopes he may himself regain the Ring by strategy.

WOTAN (Baritone), god of gods, now appears under guise of "The Wanderer." Alberich gives him no words of welcome, for Wotan tricked the dwarf of the Ring (and himself forfeited it in turn). But "The Wanderer" suggests to Alberich that he warn the dragon of Siegfried's approach, and offer to avert the fight if Fafner will give him the Ring. They rouse the dragon, FAFNER (Bass), but he is not perturbed. The Wanderer laughs and leaves Alberich, who, grumbling, withdraws into a cleft.

As day breaks, Alberich's brother-dwarf, MIME (Tenor) approaches with his foster-child, SIEGFRIED (Tenor). The young hero, Siegfried, who has some of Wotan's own blood in his veins, is destined by the god to regain the Ring. Mime, of course, knows all about the Ring, and hopes to gain it himself through Siegfried's aid. He now brings Siegfried to the lair of the dragon who is to teach fear to this fearless youth.

Mime gives Siegfried a terrible description of the dragon. But Siegfried drives Mime away contemptuously, then lies down on a bank and listens to the ravishing murmurous sounds of the forest. He hears the rapturous song of a bird and wishes he could understand it. But he cannot even answer it on a reed which he cuts; so he blows his hunting-horn.

By this Fafner is roused, and emerges from the cave. Siegfried fights and kills him.

When he has tasted the dragon's blood, he is able to understand THE VOICE OF A WOOD-BIRD (Soprano) which tells him of the treasure, and he enters the cave. Mime and Alberich slink back. They meet and, of course, quarrel, since both of them covet the Ring. When Siegfried returns from the cave, they withdraw. The Bird warns Siegfried against Mime. Mime returns, and tries to poison Siegfried, pressing on him a refreshing draught after his fight. Mime's nervous patter is a confusion of threats and flattery. Siegfried's response is to strike him dead.

Weary, Siegfried lies down again on the bank, and appeals to the Bird. The Bird now sings to him of a glorious bride who awaits him, sleeping on a rock, guarded by fire—Brünnhilde (Wotan's "wish-maid," who has disobeyed the god, and is condemned to be the wife of the mortal who finds her; but Wotan has yielded to her pleadings that she shall be surrounded by a great fire that only this hero of heroes may win her).

Siegfried's whole being is thrilled by the ravishing song of the Bird, who flies before him, leading him to Brünnhilde.

Listeners' Letters.

Do Professors Ever Dance?

PROFESSOR W. G. WHITTAKER, in his article on "The Future of Music," in The Radio Times, speaks of the "worthless music associated with the more frivolous theatrical entertainments," and "the drivel of the music-hall and the nag of the jazz." I would not dare to argue with anyone about the merits of classical music, still less with a professor; but is it fair to call the lighter and frivolous types of music worthless?

There is a time for everything and man is a many-sided being. We do not always want to be reading Shakespeare, perfect as his English is. It is frequently a real joy and relaxation to turn to the light and frivolous. So with music. I unashamedly confess that times without number when I take up my ear-phones I would sooner listen to "Show Me the Way to Go Home" than to Beethoven's "Moonlight" Sonata, much as I love the latter.

Many of us want not only education, but relaxation in radio. Life is serious enough as it is, and a lapse into the frivolous is good for the soul. "Worth" is a relative term, and the lilt of dance music will often do more good to a tired mind than a Brahms recital. Do professors ever dance? I hope so, for their own sakes.—FRANK TINEHAM, Curate, St. Paul's, Truro, Cornwall.

Keeping Children Young.

I THINK the article by Mrs. Masterman, in The Radio Times, under the heading "Do You Like the Children's Hour?" is grossly unfair to the B.B.C. Children do not need teaching—in the strict sense of the word—all day long, and surely any normal child would bolt from the room at the mere mention of Children's Corner, if teaching were the rule.

Children need entertainment quite as much as the grown-ups, and no one who loves children would wish to see their Corner turned into an educational one, and thereby putting old heads on young shoulders. The kiddies have a fair proposition of "star" turns and appreciate them, but the programme would not be complete without some "patter" or "back-chat" between the uncles and aunts, which, after all, is not harmful in any way.

I, for one, say, carry on as usual and let us keep our children with us as long as possible.—M. H., Chelmsford.

Discouraging the Uncles.

As a constant listener to the Children's Hour, I think that some of Mrs. Masterman's remarks in your paper are not only crushing, but most discouraging to those Uncles and Aunts who are doing their best to speak naturally and simply to the kiddies. It is the very "amateurishness" (to quote Mrs. Masterman) by which the success of the Children's Hour is achieved.—AUDREY MONTAGUE-SMITH, Ardleigh, Chipstead, Surrey.

"Those Talks."

WHILE the opposing opinions on programmes can never be fully reconciled, there might be common ground in agreeing that any non-musical item which can be easily sought and read, and which does not greatly gain in value by the personality or delivery of the speaker, is not a suitable broadcast item. News and weather reports must be excepted, as these depend upon the time factor. The Horticultural Bulletin is an example of the item which is better printed and more likely to be followed by leisurely reference.

Similarly, the announcer's remarks on composers would be no less interesting if printed adjacent to the item. Why waste golden minutes in saying what could be read by those who wish to know it? I think that music unduly dominates the programmes. Strawberries would surfeit, if we had them all the year round. We are tending to undervalue exquisite music by having an excess of it.

Let us have more expert talks and more plays. Whilst music is a transient pleasure, the views of the scientist, the discoveries of the explorer, and the emotions of the actor leave us satisfied when we each ask ourselves: "What have I acquired this evening?"—F. RATCLIFFE, 7, The Green, Twickenham.

Lille Listens to Daventry.

I AM an Englishwoman living with a French family who possess a four valve wireless installation. Naturally, it is possible to capture most European posts, but I find it difficult to conceal the feeling of pride and pleasure which I have, when the Frenchman, after having tried several stations, is naturally, but sometimes reluctantly, attracted back to Daventry—firstly, by the clearness of its transmission and secondly, by the variety of the London and Daventry programmes, which he realizes are selected to suit all tastes.

Sometimes a wish is made that more dance music, not necessarily "jazz," should be included occasionally at about 7.30 p.m., but, of course, the English listeners come first.

The Frenchman is very gracious in his admission of the superiority of English transmissions, and is immensely flattered by the fact that a good proportion of French music is included. Would not this be one way of retaining amicable relations between the two countries in the future?—EILEEN DONOVAN, Lille.

Radio and Shorthand.

WITH reference to your paragraph with the above title, it may interest you to know that for the last fifteen months I have used the wireless extensively for speed practice. Not only have I used it myself for reporting most of the speeches that come through after 10 p.m., but during the day the School Talks are reported by the students in my school. The talks and speeches are of the utmost value from the shorthand writer's point of view.—GEO. W. VERRON, 32, Crosby Road, West Bridgford, Notts.

Wanted: A New Call.

I SHOULD like to suggest an alteration in the "calling" of the stations. There are thousands of us listeners who are not so alert in hearing as when we were younger, and it would be a real boon to us and could not conceivably be objected to by others if the present form of, say, "London calling" were altered to "Station calling—London," with a momentary pause between the word "calling" and the station.

This form would prepare the ear for the name, which at present falls suddenly on the ear with, if anything, a slight emphasis on the "calling."

Even in church the number of the hymn is generally repeated, though if still missed, it can be obtained from one's neighbour, but this is impossible in wireless.—FRED WEBB, Worcester.

Wireless While at Work.

WE have a wireless set in the laundry here so that our girls can listen while they work.

As we only work until 6.30 p.m., we are always glad when entertainments begin early.—G. MARGARET, Spelthorne S. Mary, Bedford, Feltham.

The Next "Noises."

HERE is a suggestion for the next "Stunt"—let the B.B.C. invite all listeners who have cats and dogs to leave their loud speakers on when they go to bed on a given night, and then relay a performance from The Tiles.—"INSOMNIA," London

Are You a Middle-Brow?

Going to School by Wireless. By Clarence Winchester.

TOO much has been heard from the radio high-brow who treats with scorn the rather jolly jazz programmes, and from the radio low-brow who looks with contempt upon Einstein's theory and kindred interesting subjects. It is time that something was said on behalf of the middle-brow who can take with perfect equanimity judicious doses of both jazz and Einstein.

The high-brow is a prig with his erudition. The low-brow is a "mug" in his ignorance. The middle-brow is the listener who is ever ready to enjoy light items when he is in a light mood and to learn something fresh when his mind is receptive to information.

I am a middle-brow, like the majority of listeners, and accordingly I welcome the innovation of the "Broadcast University."

Room for Improvement.

Because the middle-brow can trip lightly to the strains of the Savoy Band, he is none the less capable of adding to his normal store of knowledge. Because he would like to know something about heredity, or the meaning of progress, or of man before history he is none the less joyous when he hears the saxophone. Indeed, he is one of the bulk of listeners who marvel at the comprehensive nature of the programmes, without being blind to the fact that there is room for further growth and improvement.

He knows that it is very pleasant to learn new things, if you are interested in those things. With Shakespeare he says:—

No profit goes where is no pleasure ta'en;
In brief, sir, study what you most affect.

Nobody need be frightened of being educated, even by wireless. It is a pleasing process if your interest is aroused; and, if interest is not aroused, it is easy to switch off and wait a few moments for the jazz. It is easy, too, to blame the speaker for having failed to tickle your intellectual palate—and to wait for another who will give you profit and pleasure!

Moments for Fooling.

As a middle-brow, I draw swords with the low-brow and claim that education never did anyone any harm; I draw swords with the high-brow and challenge him to deny that there are moments for fooling and moments for schooling.

The middle-brow is welcoming the broadcast 'varsity courses, for the simple reason that education proper more often than not begins in earnest when school days finish. Much of that education comes from the bitterness and sweetness of life—and much of it from books; but, try as we will to engage in book-learning, some of us find that the spoken word leaves a more indelible impression on the mind. That is why so many students go to night classes and university extension lectures. For myself, I sit in front of the loud-speaker, note-book in hand, and record the salient points of lectures in which I am interested.

Learning in Comfort.

Some may say that this is learning with laziness. I would rather say that it is learning in comfort, for I have sat on hard class-room desks for many hours until the physical aches have ousted any mental ambitions I may have had. I am, you see, just a middle-brow, and I have yet to hear any logical reason for gaining knowledge with a maximum of discomfort.

The universality of the wireless 'varsity is its most praiseworthy feature. Whether you live in Mayfair or Limehouse, or at Land's End or John o' Groats, you are not deprived of this practically free learning. It is the only truly democratic system of education; and whether you wear dress clothes or corduroys, the information broadcast is always at your service.

Whether the time will come when the B.B.C. control an educational centre on a special wavelength I do not know; but I feel safe in prophesying that one day there will be wireless examiners who will receive papers from these middle-brows who, like myself, would like to check what they have learned and hold a periodical mental stocktaking. The fancy lends itself to further exploitation, but we shall of necessity go slowly in a spirit of inquiry and useful experiment.

In the Minority.

French is already part of the curriculum. It would be well if we could add English, for if language is the machinery for the inter-communication of thought, then the teaching of English is the first essential in successful wireless education. Too many of us speak bad French before we have troubled to speak intelligible English—the language which is the communicating medium between wireless teacher and wireless student.

I admit that there are some people who do not wish to be intelligible—they are usually very high-brow or very low-brow; but they are in the minority. Most of us are middle-brows, earning our daily bread, desiring amusement and instruction, having our gay moments and our serious moments; and, accordingly, listening to whatever entertains or instructs us.

If I have misjudged the number of middle-brows, I shall be astonished.

SONGS WORTH KNOWING.

"Linden Lea."

THIS Dorset song, the words by W. Barnes, has been set to music by R. Vaughan Williams. We publish the words by permission of the publishers, Messrs. Kegan Paul and Co.

WITHIN the woodlands, flow'ry gladed,
By the oak trees' mossy moot,
The shining grass blades, timber shaded,
Now do quiver under foot.
And birds do whistle overhead,
And water's bubbling in its bed;
And there for me, the apple tree
Do lean down low in Linden Lea.

When leaves that lately were a-springing,
Now do fade within the copse,
And painted birds do hush their singing,
Up upon the timber tops;
And brown leaved fruit's a-turning red,
In cloudless sunshine overhead,
With fruit for me, the apple tree
Do lean low down in Linden Lea.

Let other folk make money faster,
In the air of dark-room'd towns;
I don't dread a peevish master,
Though no man may heed my frowns.
I be free to go abroad,
Or take again my homeward road,
To where for me, the apple tree
Do lean down low in Linden Lea.

A TORQUAY correspondent asks us to issue a warning to any of our readers who may be users of battery chargers at home against the practice of bringing naked lights near whilst charging is proceeding.

When thus charging his accumulator, he lighted a match to see how the work was progressing, when an explosion took place, blowing out one of the plugs and causing the acid to get into his eyes—fortunately, without serious results, although forcibly reminding him of the reporter who, being instructed to write-up a motor accident, sent in a note as follows:—

"John Smith lit a match to see if there was any petrol in his tank. There was. Age forty-seven!"

ACT II. OF "THE TWILIGHT OF THE GODS."

The dull-witted Gunther, survivor of the Gibichung race, has accepted the counsel of his crafty half-brother Hagen (son of Alberich) to seek to gain Brünnhilde as his wife. To this end, they use Siegfried, who has come to them, wandering in quest of heroic adventure. Through a love-potion, he forgets his love for Brünnhilde, falls in love with Gunther's sister, Gutrune, and agrees to gain Brünnhilde for Gunther.

Once again Siegfried plunges through the fire, this time disguised as Gunther. He seizes Brünnhilde by force, wrests from her the Ring, which he had given her as pledge of his love, and brings her down the mountain, disappearing, and leaving her with the real Gunther.

When ACT II. opens, HAGEN (Bass) sleeps at night outside the Gibichung's Hall by the Rhine. To him comes his father ALBERICH (Baritone), and foretells the downfall of the gods and urges him to gain possession of the Ring.

With the breaking of day, Alberich departs, and SIEGFRIED (Tenor) returns. Hagen summons GUTRUNE (Soprano), and Siegfried tells them how he has gained Brünnhilde, who follows behind, led by Gunther. Siegfried enters the Hall with Gutrune to prepare for the double festivities, Hagen summons THE VASSALS (Basses and Tenors) for the rejoicings. (Later, women also join the throng.)

Presently, GUNTHER (Baritone) brings BRÜNNHILDE (Soprano) in a boat to the shore and leads her into the midst of his people.

Brünnhilde's perplexity is increased tenfold when she finds Siegfried here, and his name coupled with Gutrune's, and finds him wearing the Ring, pledge of his love, which she thought Gunther had stolen from her. She cries out vehemently against Siegfried, saying that she is his wife and he has been false to her. But Siegfried is still under the spell of the love-potion, and remembers nothing of his love for Brünnhilde.

For a long time these two are at cross-purposes. Brünnhilde hardly controlling her shame and passionate wrath.

At length Siegfried swears his innocence on Hagen's spear-point. Brünnhilde strides forward, tears Siegfried's hand from the spear-point, and places thereon her own hand, swearing that he has broken all his vows.

Finally, Siegfried makes light of Brünnhilde's outburst, and gaily leads off Gutrune into the Hall. Everyone follows him but Brünnhilde, Hagen, and Gunther, who stay behind.

Hagen says that Siegfried must be put to death for his treachery. Brünnhilde tells Hagen that Siegfried is invulnerable except in his back, which needs no protection, for he would never turn his back to a foe.

Gunther is overcome with grief, but is persuaded by Hagen to agree to their plot against Siegfried; and all three solemnly vow that Siegfried's blood shall atone for his crime.

FUNERAL MARCH FROM "THE TWILIGHT OF THE GODS."

Hagen has persuaded Siegfried to relate to the people the story of his life, giving him a draught which restores his memory. Siegfried unthinkingly tells of how he first won Brünnhilde—for himself. The people spring up in amazement, and Hagen thrusts his spear into Siegfried's back. Siegfried dies, calling on Brünnhilde.

In the course of SIEGFRIED'S FUNERAL MARCH, his body is borne away on a bier by the vassals. In this most imposing and impressive funeral music we have almost the whole of the great drama recalled.

8.—The Armada: How Amyas Settled with Don Guzman.
9.—Home: Amyas, Being Blind, Sees Clearly.

- Music played by
THE WIRELESS ORCHESTRA.
The production is an attempt to give an outline of the essential narrative of Charles Kingsley's great work. The Radioviews will be linked up by short announcements giving the details of the scenes as they are reached, and of the intervening circumstances with which the Radioviews do not deal.

- The sound effects accompanying the transmission will have a musical background, through which the Actors will speak; and it is hoped that all our listeners will thus have a further aid to the atmosphere which we shall try to impart.

- 9.30.—Speeches by HIS GRACE THE DUKE OF SUTHERLAND, VISCOUNT CECIL OF CHELWOOD, AND SENATOR MARCONI, on the occasion of The Radio Association Dinner. Relayed from the Hotel Cecil.

BIRMINGHAM NEWS.

ON Sunday, November 15th, at 8.30 p.m., a special Birthday Service will be broadcast from the Birmingham Station, with an address by the Rev. J. L. White, of the Parish Church, Nuneaton. The evening's programme, which begins at 9.20 p.m., contains the names of Mr. Harold Casey (baritone), and Mr. Percy Edgar (recitals).
Mr. Sidney Rogers, F.R.H.S., has selected "New Perennial Flowers" as the subject of his Monday talk. Mr. Rogers is the recipient of a small, but steady, stream of letters from interested listeners, and there is no doubt that his weekly contribution on Horticulture, whether it describes work in the flower garden, the eradication of insect pests, or vegetable cultivation, is regularly awaited and made a note of by many of Birmingham's allotment holders.
In the Children's Corner, on Tuesday, November 17th, Mr. Norman E. L. Guest, B.A., will give a historical talk, "Queen Elizabeth Watches a Pageant." Mr. Guest gave a number of historical talks in the "Teens' Corner" last winter, and these talks are a continuation of the historical talks given then.

Dramatic Stories.

Miss Gladys Ward, who is giving No. 5 of her Dramatic Stories, was born in Wolverhampton, but that was not her fault, so she says! When she was twelve, she began to read everything that came her way, and when she was in her teens, she went to school in Berkshire. Though she has studied music at the Royal Academy of Music with the idea of taking up a musical career, she also studied the art of elocution, and she thinks that it was this initiation into the subtle beauties of the English language that decided her in the eventual choice of literature as a career.

A Children's Concert.

On Friday, at 8.30, approximately, there will be a Children's Concert, under the direction of Mrs. E. L. Webb. None of the performers are more than sixteen years of age, in fact, most are below. In Cyril Johnson's Boys' Orchestra the ages lie between ten and thirteen.

On Saturday, in the Afternoon Topics, those listeners who think that undue preference has been given to dogs will have the opportunity of listening to a Talk "All About Cats," by Mr. G. F. J. Buvington.

"Anno Domini—The Flight Into Egypt."

By Edwin Long, R.A.
This painting depicts the Holy Mother seated on a donkey with the Infant Jesus in her arms and Joseph walking by their side.

They are passing a great procession which is taking place in honour of the Egyptian Goddess Isis, and her son Horus, whose images are being borne aloft through crowds of worshippers. In the foreground are the sellers of idols, charms, and necklets, the whole forming a strikingly dramatic contrast. We commence our "Picture" before the arrival of the Holy Family, and with the procession in the distance.

Dialogue written by GEORGE STONE.

Talk on Australia, "Mixed Farming," by a Successful Farmer. S.B. from London.

7.30.—"SIEGFRIED" (Act II.). Relayed from the Opera House, Manchester.

8.40. "John Citizen At Home."

On this evening an effort will be made to give a wireless representation of John Citizen at home. Picture the cosy fireside; a few cheery stories; the family playing charades and musical chairs. The young daughter Molly volunteers to play the piano, but is advised to desist in favour of the loud speaker which provides a varied programme. Some criticisms are levelled at the musical fare provided, and a heated argument follows. The parrot is called upon for a few remarks. A hand passes by; everybody rushes to the window, but are soon drawn back on Molly's suggestion to clear the room for a dance.

BOURNEMOUTH NEWS.

THE Educational Talk on Tuesdays, from 3.10-3.40, during Term Time, is about "Books of the 18th Century." Although these talks have been mentioned already, listeners did not, perhaps, quite realize the aim in giving them.

History is not always attractive to the young, because it suffers at the hands of the many writers of text-books, who are generally bound down to the construction of the skeleton outline in their efforts to bring their subject within the scope of the particular class of scholars for whom they are catering; so it almost invariably happens that the most stirring episodes and the most intriguing political moves lack colour and life—the skeleton is not clothed in flesh. It is inanimate. Writers of historical novels have, however, come to the rescue of those who are fond of history—they "write round" a particular epoch; with them, episodes take movement, characters act, live and breathe; the motives of action become clear, the results of those actions in their external influence become apparent, and policies understood. It is, therefore, in the subjection of the historical novel to the light of history, and in their interaction that a lively and intelligent interest is kindled. History then lives, and its characters become real.

Mr. Graham has enabled listeners to grasp the main points and the chief details of the history of the century in those books with which he has already dealt. The rest will prove equally arresting.

PLYMOUTH NEWS.

ON the evening of November 24th, Dr. Samuel Weeks will take listeners to the Dolomite Mountains and Cortina in a vivid description of his recent travels.

On Friday, the 27th, Mr. Ben R. Gibbs will give a short talk on the famous poet "Francis Thompson," including a few quotations from some of this poet's works.

This talk will be followed by a "Request Programme," which will include two popular West Country artists whose previous appearances at the Plymouth Station have met with much appreciation. These are Miss Gladys Ball (contralto), and Mr. Frederick Allen (baritone), who are well-known in this part of the country for their duets. "The Sweet of the Early Morning," of which this is the first performance, has been specially written for these artists by Mr. Cecil Baumer.

Plymouth Station will again welcome Miss Margaret Kettlewell, solo violoncello, and also the Stenales Silver Prize Band. This is the first Cornish band to come from the heart of Cornwall to make its broadcast debut from the Plymouth Station.

CARDIFF NEWS.

IN collaboration with the Cardiff Musical Society, a concert will be given on Sunday next, November 15th, by the Cardiff Station in the Park Hall, Cardiff. The event is an important one in the history of choral work in Wales, and will form the basis of an interesting development. The Cardiff Musical Society is one of the oldest, and by general consent, one of the greatest of choral bodies in Wales. It is now in its thirty-eighth year, and during the whole of its existence the standard attained has been of a high order.

Many first performances are to the credit of the society, and one of their most recent successes was a complete concert at Wembley during Welsh Week, when the critics had nothing but praise for the singing.

The Station to the Rescue.

Unfortunately, the Society has had a check in its successful career due to circumstances which have no connection with its competence. There is no public hall in Cardiff at which week-day concerts can be given, and the Cardiff Station has, therefore, stepped into the breach by offering the resources of the Station to help the Society to continue its usual concerts.

The Cardiff Station Symphony Orchestra, under the baton of Mr. Warwick Braithwaite, will render the programmes with the Cardiff Musical Society's Choir.

SWANSEA NEWS.

THE acoustic properties of St.
Mary's Parish Church, Swansea, are particularly favourable to broadcasting. At the evening service, which is to be relayed through the local Station on Sunday, November 15th
the Vicar, Canon Cecil Wilson, M.A., will preach, and short organ recitals will be given, both before and after the service.

The feature of the local programme on Friday, November 20th, will be a Song Recital by Mr. George Llewellyn (baritone). The songs are all the work of Purcell. Earlier in the evening, The Port Talbot Cymric Glee Party will make their first appearance before the microphone. The Party is composed of well-known glee-singers and will be led by soloists of proved ability.
Their items will be followed by Welch and Hooper in violin and piano duets.
Neither of these artists needs introduction to local listeners.

NEWCASTLE NEWS.

MR. MACGREGOR CLYDE, who will be heard from Newcastle on Tuesday, November 17th, frequently plays in the local Station Orchestra.
Before taking up broadcasting, he played for several seasons with the City of Birmingham Orchestra. On the same evening Mr. Wallace Cunningham will entertain Northern listeners. Mr. Cunningham is a versatile entertainer and specialises in songs, stories, sketches, burlesques and ven-triloquism.

Force, Wits and a Woman, is the title of a play which will be given from the Newcastle Station, at 8.45 p.m., on Wednesday. This is a dramatic episode of the days of Cavaliers and Roundheads, by Julius Hare. The time is early in the year 1645, while the issue of the struggle between Charles and Cromwell is still undecided, and the action of the play gives some illustrations of the plot and counterplot inseparable from this stirring period.

A London Violinist.

Sir Hubert Parry and pianoforte under the late Herbert Sharpe. He settled in Newcastle as solo violinist and teacher, and ran a series of Chamber Concerts there for twelve years.
Mr. Wall has written a good deal of Chamber Music, which has been performed by Mr. Arthur Catterall and others, and orchestral works which have been produced at the Queen's Hall Promenades and at various Festivals, and in 1918 his Quartet for Piano and Strings won the Carnegie award and was subsequently published by the Carnegie Trust. He is also leader of the B.B.C. Newcastle Symphony Orchestra.

The Marsden Colliery Band, winners of the thousand-guineas trophy at the

A Concert from a Church.
ON almost every alternate Saturday, in future, a short concert, generally illustrating some well-known composer, will be broadcast from this Station between 6 and 7 p.m.
It is not often that a concert is relayed from a church, but on Sunday afternoon, November 15th, there will be a concert relayed from the West U.F. Church, Aberdeen. This is the church from which the monthly religious service is relayed. The vocalists will be Miss Doris Vane and Mr. Dennis Noble. The organist of the Church, Mr. Arthur Collingwood, who has conducted many performances in the Studio, will give an Organ Recital, and will also accompany the vocalists on the organ.
On Saturday, November 21st, an abridged version of Macfarren's "Lady of the Lake" will be broadcast.

 "Now Autumn's fire burns slowly along the woods,
 And day by day the dead leaves fall and melt,
 And night by night the monitory blast
 Waits in the key-hole, telling how it passed
 O'er grim wide wave; and now the power is felt
 Of melancholy, tenderer in its moods
 Than any joy indulgent Summer dealt."

NOTTINGHAM NEWS.

NEXT Friday's concert, which is to be given entirely by Nottingham artists, is expected to prove one of the most interesting ever sent out by this Station. Mr. Roy Henderson, the well-known baritone, is making a very welcome reappearance. Miss Doris Hibbert, another of the artists on that night, is making her first appearance before the microphone. The programme also includes a playlet, The Burglar and the Girl, by Matthew Boulton.

A Famous Church.

For some weeks Nottingham has been giving a series of talks on Tuesday evenings on "Famous Houses and Churches of the East Midlands." On November 17th, the seventh of this series will be given by Mr. J. Holland Walker, and his subject will be "Melbourne Church, Derbyshire."

WR1 for Detector and L.F. 16/-
WR2 for H.F. amplification 16/-

MANY a man trying out his first Wuncell has serious doubts as to whether his Valve is really switched on. In broad daylight it is literally impossible to discover, by a superficial glance, whether the current is on or off. And at night time the glow is only just discernible.

Such a record low working temperature means one of the biggest steps forward in the history of the valve. A brilliant contribution to the fascinating quest for the "cold" valve.

The Wuncell functions at only 800°—yet some dull emitters operate at 2000°. And its filament—built up layer upon layer under the Cossor patent process—is practically as stout as that used in a bright emitter.

Allied to the Wuncell filament, of course, are the well proved Cossor principles of construction. A hood-shaped Anode which retains almost the whole of the electron stream. An arched filament which is not subjected to the strains and stresses which every straight filament must undergo. And a hood-shaped Grid which—by a superb feat of engineering skill—is built up on a stout metal grid band with each turn of the wire secured in three distinct places. Every Wuncell Grid is secured in 35 distinct positions—such rigidity is not obtainable in any other valve. No wonder the Wuncell is acclaimed as the first non-microphonic Dull Emitter!

Remember, long life is only one of the Wuncell features—economy is another. Every Wuncell saves its cost in six months. An accumulator that lasted only one week on a charge with bright emitters would last nearly two months with Wuncell's. See your dealer about these super-economy valves at once and start saving money from to-day.

THINK CONSTRUCTIVELY!

Interesting Book which Shows You How To Make the Best Use of Your Brains.

EVERY reader who wishes to make the very best use of his or her mental powers should write to-day for a free copy of "The Efficient Mind."

This book shows you how that world-famous system of scientific mind-training known as Pelmanism is enabling thousands of men and women to increase their Earning Power, to win Promotion to higher positions and to double their Personal Efficiency.

One of the secrets of the success of Pelmanism is that it enables you to think constructively.

The average person, who has never trained his mind scientifically, has never learnt to think constructively, continuously and creatively.

From the time he rises in the morning to the time he retires at night, many hundreds of wandering thoughts pass through his brain, half-formed thoughts and vague impressions which never lead to anything, which are never connected up to any definite plan.

But the mind trained by Pelmanism to think on constructive lines, instinctively rejects ideas which are useless and purposeless and takes hold of those which are useful, develops them and harnesses them to some definite purpose.

That purpose may vary—in fact it does vary—with different individuals.

It may be an ambition to achieve success in Business or Professional life.

It may be a desire to win Academic success.

It may be a wish to win distinction in Art or Science or Literature or Public Affairs.

It may be an aim to do one thing, some particular piece of creative work, better than anyone else can do it, better than it has ever been done before.

But whatever your particular aim, desire or ambition may be, Pelmanism, by eliminating Mind-Wandering, by developing your powers of Concentration and by enabling you to think constructively, will help you to achieve it.

That is why Pelmanism is so strongly recommended to everyone who wishes to increase his or her efficiency, not only by thousands of successful business men and women but by such well-known authorities as:—

Lord Riddell	The Baroness Orczy
Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch	The Rt. Hon. T. P. O'Connor, M.P.
Sir Harry Johnston
The Rt. Hon. J. M. Robertson	Canon Hannay
	Mr. E. F. Benson
Sir L. G. Chiozza-Money	Dr. Ethel Smyth
Mr. Jerome K. Jerome	Maj.-Gen. Sir F. Maurice

and many others whose views on the subject of Pelmanism will be found in the pages of "The Efficient Mind."

This book shows you how, by devoting a few minutes daily to a simple course of scientific Mind-Training, you can develop just those qualities which will enable you to succeed in life.

Just write to-day to the Pelman Institute, 95, Pelman House, Bloomsbury Street, London, W.C.1 (using the coupon printed on this page), and a copy of "The Efficient Mind" will be sent to you by return, gratis and post free.

Don't Be a Slave of the Machine!

THIS has nothing to do with Engineering. It has to do with LIFE; your life, my life, everybody's life. It has to do with your Business, Trade, or Profession. It has to do with your Personality.

DON'T BE A SLAVE OF THE MACHINE.

It may be a typewriter, an office desk, or a shop counter.

It may be the customs, traditions, and conventions of your profession.

It may be the unchanging routine, the drab monotony, the mechanical regularity of your daily work and habits.

Sooner or later—that is the machine which threatens all of us. The months and years roll on; the vision fades; the ambition that once fired us and drove us forward disappears. A network of Habit entangles us; the mechanism of our Business has clutched us in its cogs; our Individuality has been surrendered to Routine; we have lost our Initiative, our Freedom of Choice; we have become the slaves of a soulless machine.

How to Develop Personality.

This tyranny of the-machine is a danger to which the Pelman Institute is giving great attention. It is employing every means to strengthen PERSONALITY, so that the worker in any Profession or Business shall retain his Individuality despite the soul-deadening influence of Routine, and shall become the MASTER and not the Slave of the Machine. In this work it is achieving remarkable success. The popularity of the Pelman Course proves this beyond a doubt. For 25 years the Pelman Institute has been studying the "human factor" and enabling thousands of men and women to strengthen their Personalities, to develop the undeveloped powers of their minds, to increase their Efficiency (and thus their Earning Powers), and to become the capable masters of the machine instead of its habit-enchained slaves.

"I feel and know that I am no longer a unit in the crowd but a man of Personality."

This extract from a letter received from a Pelman Student is typical of thousands of similar communications from men and women who have developed INITIATIVE, CONCENTRATION, OBSERVATION, ORIGINALITY, SELF-CONFIDENCE, JUDGMENT, DECISIVENESS, ORGANISING POWER, PERSONALITY, and other invaluable qualities of mind and character, by means of Pelmanism. And side by side with the development of these qualities have come increases of income to the extent of 50 per cent., 100 per cent.,

even of 200 per cent. and over, and promotion to positions giving greater scope and wider possibilities.

"Since taking up the Course, instead of being subservient, I have become master; at the same time my income has doubled itself, and should things progress in the manner they seem to be doing, before very long it will easily treble itself."

Writes a DENTAL SURGEON.

"The Pelman Course has been of the greatest value. I can directly ascribe to its influence the fact that my salary is now 300% greater and my position one of responsibility and trust, as against one of subserviency."

Writes a CASHIER.

Practise Pelmanism for 15 minutes or 30 minutes a day and you will be astounded at the results. No hard study is required. The "Little Grey Books" are the most fascinating and handy publications imaginable. You can carry them in your pocket and study them at odd moments. Pelmanism gives you just that light, pleasant, scientific mental training which fits in so well with evening work (after business hours), when more arduous studies are apt to be distasteful, a training which will bring you in rich rewards in the months to come.

Call or write for a copy of "The Efficient Mind," which tells you all about Pelmanism and how you can enrol for the Course on the most convenient terms. Fill up the coupon printed below and post it to the Pelman Institute, 95, Pelman House, Bloomsbury Street, London, W.C.1, and this book will be sent you by return, GRATIS AND POST FREE.

Readers who would like to call at the Institute and see the Consultant are heartily invited to do so. The Consultant will be very pleased to have a talk with them on any matter affecting their personal efficiency and no fee will be charged for his advice.

CLIMAX RADIO

"Made Specially to Stay Put."

CLIMAX POPULAR CRYSTAL SET, fitted with the Climax Popular Plug-in Detector with the Auto-micrometer Catwhisker, is undoubtedly the common sense solution to Crystal setting difficulties. The unique design based on the stylographic pen point eliminates all difficulties. An independent pressure between the Catwhisker container and the Crystal surface ensures complete stability. Remarkable for its high efficiency tuning system. Long wave tuning is accomplished by an adjustable plug-in coil giving unusually close tuning.

FOLDING FRAME-AERIAL

UNDOUBTEDLY THE BEST FOLDING FRAME AERIAL.

Constructed on an ingenious mechanical system by which it may be opened or folded in a few seconds. The wire folds into the frame or opens out to its final form without the least trouble. The winding is arranged in two flat coils which are mechanically and electrically balanced. They combine the advantages of the pancake type of winding with the solenoid type. A centre tapping is provided for use with various special circuits.

This frame aerial is very attractive in appearance, extremely efficient in operation, remarkably simple in construction and is very easily folded into a conveniently portable form. The stand also folds. It is offered at a particularly attractive price.

"Feed the Brute"

Here's Falstaff—a real good fellow, always at his best, always getting and giving good reception. What's the secret of his bonhomie, his complete success!

Follow Falstaff and remember it's just the same with your wireless set. Don't starve it; "Feed the brute." Avoid all aerial and earth losses by using the Climax Insulated Shock Absorber Set and the Climax Radio Earth, and give your set a really good chance.

The Climax Insulated Shock Absorber Set—for aerial insulation de luxe. One pair of Climax Insulators linked with a Climax Shock Absorber Spring at each end of a single span wire means perfect insulation, while the aerial wire is relieved from sudden strains due to mast-sway or halyard rope shrinkage.

Each Climax Insulator (Regd. Design No. 708718) will stand four times the flash-over voltage of the ordinary cheap shell or egg insulator, while it has far less capacity to earth.

It is made of the same high tension vitreous porcelain as the 100,000 volt insulators on High-Power Transmission lines. It will stand a direct pull of hundreds of pounds. It is entirely non-hygroscopic. It cannot absorb moisture even if fractured. IT INSULATES PERFECTLY DURING RAINFALL. It is self-cleaning on all surfaces.

Price: One Climax Insulated Shock Absorber Set, comprising four Climax Low Loss Insulators and Two Climax Shock Absorber Springs—3/- per box.

Climax Low Loss Insulators, Boxed separately 1/- per box.

Climax Low Loss Aerial, 120 ft. 6/-

Climax Low Loss Lead-in Connector. Much easier to fit than the ordinary lead-in tube, and with minimum dielectric losses. Price 2/6 each

THE CLIMAX RADIO EARTH.

(Prov. Pat. 17653.)—The low loss direct tubular earth. Far better than the old-fashioned water-pipe or gas-pipe earth. The latest pattern is provided with flanges which break up and help to fill in the earth around the tube, thereby preventing any rocking of the tube in the ground. In addition, the projections on the surface of the tube provide water-courses which make for perfect electrical contact. Ready for use. Easily fitted. Maximum efficiency. Length approx. 30 in. Price 5/-.

Climax Insulated Low Loss Earth Lead, 20 ft. Price 1/8

THE CLIMAX LIGHTNING ARRESTER.

Made on the multi-gap, quenched spark principle. Provides atmospheric space charges and lightning discharges with a straight path to earth of very low reluctance.

Protects the set whether in use or not. NO SWITCHES NECESSARY. The mica insulating discs and series multiple gaps ensure complete absence of shunting effect, leaving your signals at maximum strength.

The glass cover protects the gaps from becoming semi-conducting due to dirt, damp or other interference. Equipped with a Climax Lightning Arrester, an aerial is a positive protection against lightning, instead of being a source of danger. Price 7/6 complete, ready to fix.

THE FIRST WIRELESS LOUD SPEAKER WAS A BROWN

Such craftsmanship found only in the superb Brown—

WE are proud of the workers responsible for the manufacture of BROWN Headphones and Loud Speakers. Each one is imbued with one ideal, that every instrument, no matter its price, must be worthy of the great name enjoyed by the BROWN throughout the world. Not 'how cheap,' but how good is ever the motive at the back of the BROWN organisation.

How this is reflected in the instruments themselves can be seen by anyone—examine a BROWN with critical eye—note its exquisite finish, its plated parts carefully polished, its balance and its harmonious and pleasing outlines. But hear it and at once you'll sense its superiority—instinctively you'll feel that here at last is the interpreter of real radio music. It takes the BROWN with its tuned reed mechanism—found in no other Loud Speaker—to give you the true thrill of realism. All dealers stock BROWN Loud Speakers in a full range of sizes.

The secret of the efficiency of the Ethophone I.

A STANDARD Burndept Component which has contributed largely to the popularity of the Ethophone I. Crystal Receiver is the efficient Crystal Detector shown above. Fine adjustment can be made with ease by means of the micrometer screw movement and frequent re-setting of the gold cat-whisker is not required. The sensitive synthetic crystal, which is enclosed in a dust-proof glass tube, gives loud and clear signals.

The Ethophone I. gives good results on headphones 20 and 25 miles from a main broadcast station, and about 100 miles from Daventry. For the reception of the high-power or normal B.B.C. stations, no extra plug-in coils are required, a switch on the panel giving three ranges, covering 250 to 2,000 metres. Further particulars of this guaranteed instrument will be sent on receipt of the coupon below.

IT'S A RADIO PRESS PAPER

A New B.T.H. Receiver

Price £6-0-0
(Less batteries & valves)
Royalty £1-5-0

embodying a transformer
& condenser of amazing efficiency

THIS receiver is the latest development by The British Thomson-Houston Company, and is a really efficient instrument at a moderate price. Good loud speaker results can be obtained up to 25 miles on B.B.C. main stations, or approximately 100 miles on Daventry.

The circuit employed is a detector with one stage of L.F. The plug-in aerial and reactance unit is provided for 300 to 500 metres but a similar unit can be supplied for 1500 to 1800 metres at an extra price of 18s. 6d.

The perfect functioning and excellent reproducing qualities of this set are in no little measure due to the inclusion of the two following components:—

B.T.H. LOW FREQUENCY TRANSFORMER.

This transformer is the result of extensive research and experiments and has only been introduced after exhaustive tests. The windings are mounted on to a bobbin of synthetic insulating material, and are perfectly insulated throughout.

B.T.H. VERNIER CONDENSER.

Built on robust lines, this condenser provides a means of very delicate adjustment. Maintenance of calibrated capacities and silence in action are important features. A definite stop is provided to prevent complete rotation.

The relative positions of the transformer and condenser are shown in the above photograph. Care in wiring up, disposition of parts, and the use of the two components mentioned are responsible for the perfect functioning of this receiver, especially when used with B.T.H. Valves.

Where you paid twelve shillings for a 4-Volt Dull Emitting Valve you now pay eight.

You get the same valve, made with just the same first-class materials and workmanship, identically the same in performance, and it costs you four shillings less.

There is no catch in it. There is no sacrifice in quality. The four shillings were the middleman's profit. They are now yours.

Exactly the same applies to the 6-volt Dull Emitter—formerly 13/6, now 9/—, and to the Bright Emitter—formerly 7/—, now 4/6.

Every valve, of course, whatever its type, is fully guaranteed. All you have to do to obtain Loudon Valves at these wonderfully low prices, is to post remittance and order direct to us, and we will forward you the valves in sealed cartons, fully guaranteed. Ordering is facilitated by filling in the coupon below, and we urge you to use it, if it is possible.

BRIGHT EMITTERS 4/6

Type F1 (the plain Loudon) for detection and L.F. Amplification.	Filament Volts.....	4.5—5
Type F2 (the blue Loudon) for H.F. Amplification.	Filament Amps.....	0.4
	Anode Volts.....	40—80

DULL EMITTERS.

For 4-volt Accumulator 8/-
For 6-volt Accumulator 9/-

Type FER1 for detection and L.F. Amplification.	Filament Amps.....	0.1
Type FER2 for H.F. Amplification.	Anode Volts.....	40—80

Note.—These valves take only one-seventh of the current consumed by most bright emitters of other makes, and work straight off a 4-volt or 6-volt accumulator. They can be substituted for bright emitters with no alteration to Filament resistances or Set.

These valves can be obtained at these wonderfully low prices direct from us only, and from no other source.

“Ten, Twenty, Thirty, Forty, FIFTY YEARS Ago.”

THE Old Shako was still the headdress of British Line Regiments when Ericsson's first attacked the problems of telephonic reproduction. It is to the skilled, thorough, patient research and craftsmanship of half-a-century that British Ericsson headphones owe their well-known supremacy.

The sensitive diaphragm, faithfully reproducing the faintest whisper of sound—the delicate adjustment by which harsh resonances are altogether eliminated, the construction which gives long service at maximum efficiency—these are the virtues which make Ericsson's the first and final choice of the experienced listener.

Music and Speech

The aim in the design of the Cosmos Universal Valve Sets has been to obtain the most perfect possible reproduction, both of music and speech, and it will be found that the tone is wonderfully pure and the articulation clear.

The Cosmos Universal Valve Sets embody a number of remarkable and important features. They are highly sensitive and selective with a long range. They possess the maximum efficiency over a wide range of wave-lengths. They are extremely simple to adjust and operate, and the best results can be obtained by anyone without technical knowledge. Any types of valves and either accumulators or dry batteries can be used without alteration to the sets. Each set is individually tested before leaving the works.

THE TRIUMPH OF THE SAXON

SAXON Super-Efficient Wireless Sets have established their reputation for supremacy throughout the British Isles, and you may either buy them complete or make them yourself.

On our SAXON SUPER FOUR Valve Receiver, using three Valves only, eight foreign and eleven B.B.C. stations were heard in less than half-an-hour. Using four valves half of these stations were clearly audible on a loud speaker.

The "SAXON GUIDE TO WIRELESS," price 1/3 post free, enables any beginner to make Wireless Sets which are unequalled in price, quality or EFFICIENCY. Full instructions, with CLEAR WIRING DIAGRAMS, are given for making: SUPER EFFICIENT CRYSTAL SETS, SINGLE VALVE SETS, DUAL AMPLIFICATION RECEIVERS, ONE AND TWO VALVE AMPLIFIERS; ALSO THE VERY LATEST TYPES OF TWO, THREE, FOUR AND FIVE VALVE TUNED ANODE ALL WAVE RECEIVERS.

NO SOLDERING, NO SPECIAL TOOLS, NO KNOWLEDGE REQUIRED.

The exact cost of each set is clearly stated, and the chapter on testing wireless components is alone worth the cost of the book.

Clarity first!

The first thing you must consider about your valves is purity of reproduction. You don't want to amplify distorted sound and therefore your reception must be clear in the first place.

These three types of Cosmos Valve will give you distortionless results, in addition to the other services they render.

D.E.II (Dull Emitter Type) 12/6 A.45 (Bright Emitter Type) 7/6

This combines remarkably efficient rectification with good high and low frequency amplification and works successfully off a single 2-volt accumulator or dry batteries.

This type is an excellent "General Purpose" valve which gives brilliant results. It combines the advantages of other high- and low-frequency valves in the one valve.

TYPE S.P.18. (Red Spot) is a powerful amplifier, and using as it does one-sixth less in filament consumption than the ordinary bright emitter is economical for general purpose work. 12/6

The backbone of your battery

Cheap batteries are weakest where they should be strongest. The backbone of a battery is the plate, and as long as the plates are right the battery is right. Take care of the plates and the battery will take care of itself. The efficiency of PREMIER Accumulators begins at the plates and ends at the valves. Everything between is the best that human brains and long experience have produced.

You will find Premier Accumulators at the largest super stations in the land—you will find them attached to model sets and "silver sets"—all giving the satisfaction that comes from real quality. Next time, insist on Premier Accumulators.

SUPERIAL

THE KING OF AERIALS

Technique

The most extraordinary thing about SUPERIAL—the King of Aerials—is the manner in which instrumental music is reproduced.

Hitherto, people have been apt to blame the set or 'phones for faulty technique, especially of pianoforte music; whereas our laboratory tests indisputably prove that it is the aerial which is at fault.

The mathematical combination of heavily tinned strands surrounded by plated copper core in SUPERIAL has a very definite and beneficial action on the signals, so that when eminent pianists were Broadcasting the technique was perfect, every note ringing out distinct from its fellows, with the exquisite piano tone so essential for perfect reception.

SUPERIAL is especially adaptable for long distance reception, its extra-heavy vulcanised rubber insulation minimises all possible chance of leakage.

Insulators are, therefore, an extravagance,

Go to your wireless dealer to-day and ask for SUPERIAL, the "King of Aerials."

There's a Marconi Valve for every purpose.

THERE is not only a valve for every radio purpose in the Marconi range, but the purpose for which each valve is intended is guaranteed by the name it bears—Marconi—the name first and foremost in radio for thirty years—the name which has the greatest goodwill amongst radio users.

The valves used in a radio set either make or mar the reception of everything broadcast, for the reproduction of every note of music, every inflection of voice and all the charm of radio is dependent upon the perfect performance of the valves.

How important then it is to choose Marconi Valves—the valves that are supreme in performance and sturdily manufactured for lasting service, the well-tried and tested valves that any radio user or dealer is glad to recommend.
