Radio as a National Influence.

By the DUKE OF SUTHERLAND.

[Pursuing the policy of offering the hospitality of our columns to organizations connected with wireless, we publish this article by the Duke of Sutherland, President of the Radio Association. We are glad to note that the Radio Association has abandoned the "bogeys" of three years ago, and that fear of "the alleged monopolies and privileges" has now given way to appreciation of the B.B.C., which, in the Duke's words, "stands as the finest broadcasting service in the world."]

IN our national life a great part is played by the development of new sciences. From the invention of Caxton in the fifteenth century to the modern Fleet Street, wielding great influence over the people, a long period has elapsed. In the science of aeronautics, the progress has been rather quicker from the biplane built by the Brothers Wilbur and Orville Wright in 1903 down to the present day, when the Director of Civil Aviation, in the course of his duties, flies all the way from London to India.

But as a contrast, if the development of these sciences has been astounding, the development of broadcasting has been in the nature of a tidal wave or avalanche. So quick has been the development, so rapid has been its application, that it has entered into the daily lives of the whole population of the country, rich and poor alike.

Three years ago broadcasting was unknown to more than a mere handful of people, and the practicability of speaking by wireless was hardly realized except by those who came in touch with it during the war. Now almost every street presents a maze of aerials, and houses which have not a receiving set are more the exception than the rule.

That this new application of science which brings Art, Education, News,

National Events—and, perhaps, some day Parliament on a special wavelength—right into the home, will have an enormous influence, for good or evil, cannot be disputed. And this effect will, I venture to say, be quite as great as that due to the introduction of the printing press.

And when growth is so rapid, as it is with wireless, it is very necessary to have an efficient organization to assist the science in overcoming the difficulties which it will have to confront and to look after the interests of the experimenters and the millions of listeners.

That is why every enthusiast should help us to build up the Radio Association and give it the strength and backing which it should receive.

In 1922, some doubts arose, which found expression in Parliament, as to the arrangements which were being made for the launching of broadcasting in the British Isles. During the recess, the doubts which existed were further increased by the secrecy which surrounded the negotiations then proceeding between

A Song of Old Ireland.

The Story of "Father O'Flynn." By A. B. Cooper.

THE Bensons are often quoted as an example of a brilliant family, and with justice, for the sons of Archbishop Benson have, without exception, shown unusual talent and versatility, yet the family of a certain Bishop of Limerick, the late Rt. Rev. Charles Graves, who was not only a Doctor of Divinity, but a Fellow of the Royal Society, may fairly challenge comparison with it, both in scholarship and literature, whilst as a family of humorists, with Charles L. Graves and Alfred Perceval Graves, both famous Punch writers, in its ranks, it must be well-nigh unique.

Played as a Jig.

But the latter will probably be remembered longest as the author of "Father O'Flynn," a song which seemed instantly and inevitably to take an unassailable place among the "classics," without the preliminary try-out of a century or so. Many will recall the inimitable way in which Sir Charles Santley sang it, a tradition worthily followed by Mr. Kennerley Rumford.

An illustrated brochure on "Father O'Flynn," which lies before me as I write, contains versions of the song in Latin and Gaelic, and the following note: "The air of 'Father O'Flynn' is a Kerry version of 'The Top of Cork Road,' as first set down from Mr. Graves's whistling in Huddersfield. Mr. Graves had first heard it played as a jig by James Buckley, a famous Munster fiddler, and had often danced to it as a boy. The words of the song came into his head in London as he walked from Eastbourne Terrace across Hyde Park, the Green Park, and St. James's Park, on his way to the Home Office, in the spring of 1875.

A Treble Encore.

"On reaching his desk, he set it down just as it now stands, and sent it to the Spectator, where it first was printed. It was not published as a song until it appeared in a Collection of Irish Airs arranged to Mr. Graves's words, 'Songs of Old Ireland,' in 1882. It attracted Mr. (now Sir Charles) Santley's attention, and he obtained a treble encore with it at one of Boosey's Ballad Concerts."

When I asked Mr. Graves to give me some further particulars about his famous song, he said: "You know that I was an Inspector of Schools for many years, and in my earlier years had the Huddersfield district, where I added to my income by lecturing on Irish themes, generally accompanied by a well-known vocalist, especially when my topic was the Irish song writers. About this time I received a note from my old friend and companion of my boyhood, Charles Villiers Stanford, the well-known composer who so lately died, asking me whether I felt inclined to write or adapt words to old Irish folk tunes. In response to his wish, I presently sent him a batch of twenty or so, some of which I had already written, others of which I wrote specially for him.

A Famous Composer's Opinion.

"He accepted them all without demur, but took exception to the words I had written to a variant of the well-known air, 'The Top of the Cork Road.' This objection, he hastened to explain, was not either to their manner or matter, but he felt they were not suitable 'for a serious collection' such as he designed to issue.

"I need hardly say that the lyric was 'Father O'Flynn,' and I immediately pointed out to Stanford that it was never meant to be a comic song, although I was glad to think it was essentially humorous. He replied: 'All right, old chap, I'll throw it in with the rest.'

"Some time later Mr. Boosey, the London music publisher, wrote to me asking my advice as to the most suitable vocalists for these songs. I replied to the best of my ability, and, still maintaining my opinion about 'Father O'Flynn,' urged him to get Santley to sing it. He accepted my other suggestions, but added: 'I don't think it would be at all wise to ask Santley to sing "Father O'Flynn," for he has lately become a Roman Catholic convert.' 'All the more reason,' I replied, 'for asking Santley to sing it, for Santley does nothing by halves.'

"Whether Mr. Boosey followed this advice I cannot say, but when Miss Mary Davies visited us, when on a concert tour in our neighbourhood, she told me that when a group of songs was placed before a number of Ballad Concert singers, which included Santley and herself, and they were humming them over with interest, Santley suddenly held up 'Father O'Flynn,' as if he had seen a copy then for the first time, and cried: 'Here's a new song for me, and if I don't get a double encore for it, I shall be surprised!'

"As a matter of fact, he got a treble encore, and the song sailed off into success."

"FATHER O'FLYNN."

Of priests we can offer a charmin' variety,
Far renowned for larnin' and piety;
Still, I'd advance you, widout impropriety,
Father O'Flynn as the flower of them
all!

Here's a health to you, Father O'Flynn,
Slainé, and Slainé, and Slainé agin,
Powerfullest preacher, and tندرest

And kindest creature in ould Donegal
Don't talk of your Provost and Fellows of Trinity,

Famous for ever at Greek and Latinity,
Dad, and the divel and all at Divinity,
Father O'Flynn'd make lares of them
all.

Come! I vinture to give you my word,
Never the likes of his logic was heard,
Down from Mythology into Thavology,
Troth! and Conchology, if he'd the

Chorus: Here's a health to you,
Father O'Flynn.

And though quite avoidin' all fooliah
frivolity,

Still at all seasons of innocent jollity
Where was the Playboy could claim an

At comicality, Father, wid you?
Once the Bishop looked grave at your jest,

"Till this remark set him off wid the rest,
"Is it lave gaiety all to the laity?"

Cannot the Clargy be Irishmen, too?"
Chorus: Here's a health to you,
Father O'Flynn.

The attitude of the Radio Association towards the British Broadcasting Company has always been clearly defined. They have not hesitated to criticize where criticism was needed. They are not out to fight the B.B.C., or to support the rival interests of any newspaper or body.

The Radio Association is out to do everything possible to further the development of all the branches of radio science, and with the co-operation of eminent scientists, amateur experimenters and listeners, I am confident that our Association will assist in making radio science and broadcasting one of the most important and vital developments in modern life.

the Postmaster-General and certain electrical firms, and the difficulty which anyone outside a small privileged circle had of obtaining any information. The Radio Association has acted as the watch-dog of the public, and in chasing the bogeys of that time—the alleged monopolies and privileges—no doubt some unpopularity amongst the authorities was incurred. But the advent of broadcasting was hastened, and, whatever may have been said in those times, we are prepared to judge broadcasting by its achievements to-day, when the British Broadcasting Company stands as the finest broadcasting service in the world.

In the years that have elapsed since its formation, the Association, under the presidency of Sir Arthur Stanley, has maintained close relations with the Post Office and the British Broadcasting Company, always bringing matters concerning the listener to the notice of either or both of these bodies, when necessity arose.

When the Broadcasting Committee, under the chairmanship of Sir Frederick Sykes, was appointed by the Postmaster-General in 1923, the Radio Association was requested to give its views, and two representatives were deputed to give evidence. After consulting with its branches, definite proposals were put forward which were adopted by the Sykes Committee and incorporated in its report.

Amongst the Radio Association's proposals which were included in the Sykes Report and, subsequently, many of them adopted by the P.M.G., were, first, the establishment of a Broadcasting Board. This was one of the chief items in our policy. It still is. But we go further and say that instead of a purely advisory board, the basis of the Directorate of the British Broadcasting Company should be widened by the inclusion of representatives of, say, the Listeners, the Press, the F.B.I., the Trade Unions and the Arts, instead of, as at present, purely representing the manufacturers.

More recently, the Postmaster-General has met a deputation from the Radio Association in connection with the new Wireless Telegraphy and Signalling Bill, now before Parliament. The Radio Association, after consultation with its members, laid before the Postmaster-General certain constructive criticisms and amendments which the Postmaster-General promised favourably to consider.

These few examples show that it has been able to do useful work even with limited resources, and with our now strengthened re-organization we shall try to do still more. The higher technical side of the Radio Association provides the only distinctions (based on qualifying examinations) in the radio world. As a result of the technical standard which has been maintained, the Fellowship and Associateship are beginning to be recognized as a hallmark on which many radio firms are insisting for the higher technical posts on their staffs.

The listener pays for the year, but the broadcaster has no means such as the theatre, newspaper, or lecturer has of becoming directly aware of the feeling of the enormous unseen and unheard audience. The Radio Association makes the millions of listeners articulate. It provides the applause or censure which otherwise would be lacking. It also protects the listener against onerous or restrictive legislation or regulations. If an analogy were needed, I would say that the Radio Association looks after the needs of the listeners as the Automobile Association and Motor Union protect the motorist.

A Master of Church Music.

Tercentenary of Orlando Gibbons.

THERE is, perhaps, a certain appropriateness in the fact that the first service to be broadcast from Canterbury, the mother of English cathedrals, should be held to commemorate the tercentenary of the death of one of the greatest figures in the history of church music.

When Orlando Gibbons died on June 5th, three hundred years ago, he had earned for himself the title of "The English Palestrina," an eloquent testimony to the value of his genius to the Church. Some of his compositions are in frequent use to this day. Among them are the anthems "Hosanna, O Clap Your Hands!" (which formed his exercise when he was given the degree of Doctor of Music at Oxford), and "God Is Gone Up."

Compositions at Half-a-Crown.

Born at Cambridge in 1583, Gibbons sprang from a stock in which the musical strain was remarkably strong. Not only were his two brothers musicians of distinction, but his father had claims in that direction, while his son became organist of Westminster Abbey.

Orlando received his early training in the choir of King's College, Cambridge, under his elder brother, the Rev. Edward Gibbons, and before he was eighteen, he was showing marked skill as a composer. It is recorded that the college authorities bought his compositions for two shillings and half-a-crown each, a rate of payment which one would describe as encouraging rather than munificent.

At twenty-one, he became organist of the Chapel Royal, and, after that, he began to develop rapidly as a composer. In 1610, he published "Fantasies in Three Parts," which was the first music to be printed in England from engraved plates, and a little later he was associated with Dr. Bull and the famous Byrd in the production of the collection of music for the virginals published under the name of "Parthenia."

Anthems and Madrigals.

Then came a number of anthems. One was "Blessed Are All They," a wedding anthem written for Lord Somerset. Another was "Great King of Gods," which was "made for the King's being in Scotland." An autographed copy of "Behold, Thou Hast Made My Days," states that it was composed at the request of Dr. Maxey, Dean of Windsor, "the same day se'nnight before he died."

While Gibbons has had few equals as a composer of church music his claims to distinction as a madrigalist must not be overlooked. Two of his best known madrigals are "The Silver Swan" and "Dainty Bird." It is doubtful if anything has ever been written that is better in its way than the former of these.

A Violent Assault.

In 1623 came Gibbons' appointment as organist of Westminster Abbey, and it may be that he was not sorry to leave his old surroundings in view of an unpleasant incident in which a "gentleman of the Chapel Royal" had figured. It appears that this individual "did violently and sodenly without cause runne upon Mr. Gibbons, take him up, and throw him doune upon a standard, whereby he received such hurt that he is not yett recovered of the same, and withall he tare the band from his neck to his prejudice and disgrace."

The great composer was not destined to hold his new post for more than two years. Summoned to Canterbury to attend the marriage of Charles I., for which he had composed some instrumental music, he was taken ill there and died. He was laid to rest in the cathedral in which, on June 5th, the Church will do honour to his memory.

With Radio Out-of-Doors.

Listening Amidst the Joys of Nature. By R. de Poynton.

AT this time of the year our thoughts turn naturally to the open air. The cosy room, the armchair and the fireside are all very well during the colder and darker months, but now that summer is nearly with us, we long for the open country, the river, or the sea.

There are some who are inclined to regard wireless as mainly a winter hobby, associating it chiefly with those periods of the year when inclement weather and short hours of daylight keep us willy-nilly within the four walls of our houses during the greater part of the twenty-four hours. Summer, they say, is the time to be out in the open air; wireless is not an outdoor pastime; therefore we will leave it alone until the evenings draw in again.

And there many people make a great mistake, for wireless in summer time is just as interesting as it is in winter and the receiving set can add very greatly to the joys of an outdoor existence in the hot weather.

On a warm, calm summer evening there is no more pleasant way of spending the time than sitting out in the garden to chat, smoke, read or merely laze. No one wants to go indoors to listen to the wireless set. But why not take it, or rather its telephones or loud speaker, out into the garden with you? It is the easiest thing in the world to obtain from any electrical shop a length of flexible wire to bridge the distance between the output terminals of the set and your favourite corner in the garden.

You need not fear, if yours is a valve set, that the extra length of wire used will prevent you from hearing properly. In many cases the use of long leads to the loud speaker or to the telephones actually improves reception. Fix one end of your flexible wires to the telephone terminals and to the others fit any kind of attachment—clip, plug-and-socket or clix—that will fit the ordinary short leads. You can now use your telephones or loud speaker indoors on wet evenings with its own leads, or out-of-doors when the weather is fine with the help of the long ones. The set itself remains unmoved.

So much for wireless in the garden. Can we take it with us when we go further afield? Only a short time ago it would hardly have been possible to take a receiving set capable of operating a loud speaker on excursions into the country, to picnics, on motor drives or on the river. But, with the coming of the dull-emitter valve, we can discard the heavy accumulator and use in its stead the dry cell, which, in addition to its lightness, contains no corrosive liquid liable to do considerable damage if spilt. To-day portable sets are available, many of them no larger than attaché cases and just as easily carried. With these we can have music wherever we go!

A Picnic Aerial.

Many of these little sets will work quite well with a frame aerial, and there are aerials of this type which can be folded up so that they occupy hardly any room. But results will always be better if, instead, we make use of a suspended wire. To rig up a picnic aerial is really a very simple matter. All that we require is a coil of strong insulated flexible wire, a piece of stout cord and a stone. Nature obligingly supplies the last, as well as providing the tree which is going to be pressed into service as the aerial mast. Fasten the stone to one end of your cord, and to the other tie one end of your wire. Throw the stone over the highest branch in your immediate neighbourhood, over which it will carry the cord. With the latter, haul up your wire. Fix its free end to the aerial terminal of your portable set, and you have as good a collector of wireless waves for outdoor use as you can wish for.

Your earth connection you can make by thrusting into the ground a small cheap poker to which is fastened a wire for attachment to the earth terminal. When the time to return home comes, the aerial is taken down by simply pulling it back from the branch of the tree. It is then coiled up once more and when the poker earth has been pulled out, you are ready.

On the river, conditions are rather different, for, unless your boat is moored to the bank, you cannot look to a tree to provide you with an aerial mast. Two short light bamboo poles, one at the bow and one at the stern, with a pair of wires stretched between them, will make an excellent aerial, easy to erect or to dismantle. And what of the earth? Though it may sound rather an Irishism to say so, water is the best of all earths! A piece of stout bare wire attached to the earth terminal and allowed to trail in the water from the side of the boat will provide a first-rate earth connection.

Sampling as He Moves.

The motorist who contemplates a summer tour will find the portable set a splendid thing to take with him. With its aid, he can sample one station after another as he moves about the country, and though he may use it only occasionally, it will be a great source of pleasure. Those who intend to indulge in camping or in caravanning for their holiday should see that a wireless set goes with them.

The portable sets for expeditions of all kinds should be large enough to work a small loud speaker, for you will find that if you can receive broadcast programmes out-of-doors, everyone will want to hear them. And, most important of all, you cannot dance to wireless music if you have only telephone receivers.

Yes, summer wireless is well worth while and those who put their sets more or less out of commission during the warmer months are missing a great deal.

Official News and Views. GOSSIP ABOUT BROADCASTING.

For Service or Profit?

THERE is a revival of activity among those who are determined to commercialize British broadcasting. The real motive of all these moves is to upset the present system in favour of a system which will be definitely in the interests of the broadcasters rather than of the listeners. Those concerned do not mind at all what happens to standards and ideals. They are out for nothing but profits. All the denunciation against "monopoly" is so much "camouflage." They know perfectly well that geographical and wave-length limitations in the British Isles are such that competitive broadcasting would certainly entail chaos and demoralization far worse than anything that exists in America.

The B.B.C. tries to carry out its duty to listeners with the minimum of friction; but it will resist to the limit any attack on its ideals or public service character. And if there is to be a trial of strength on the issue of profits versus service, the B.B.C. will look confidently for the support of its vast army of listeners.

Eminent Speakers.

M. de Fleuriot, the French Ambassador, has consented to introduce a talk on the "Gardens of Devastated France" on May 29th; and M. Emile Cammaerts, the famous Belgian poet, will speak on June 7th; both from London. Mr. Cosmo Hamilton, the well-known novelist and playwright, will give from London some "Unwritten History" during his visit to this country early in July.

Grand Opera at Manchester.

The reluctance of the concert industry to permit the regular broadcasting of grand opera is not to deprive listeners of this form of art. Gounod's Faust will be performed at Manchester Station on Saturday, June 13th, and will be relayed to Chelmsford. Miss Lily Allen will take the part of Marguerite; Miss Rachel Hunt, Siebel; Mr. Wilfred Hindle, Faust; Mr. Lee Thistlethwaite, Valentine; and Mr. Herbert Ruddock, Mephistopheles. They will be assisted by the "2ZY" Opera Chorus, and the "2ZY" Augmented Orchestra, conducted by Mr. T. H. Morrison.

Scotland Ahead.

The Scottish Education Authorities are distinctly more favourable to wireless than are the English. All stations except one have at least one weekly transmission during school hours; Cardiff has it twice a week, Glasgow has four lessons on two afternoons a week, and Manchester has a daily transmission.

A Breath of the Heather.

In "The Rob Roy Country" feature programme of June 12th Glasgow will try to convey by sound the beauty of the Trossachs, and give something of their romance and memory. Rob Roy himself, Helen Macgregor, Dougal, and Francis Osbaldistone are among the characters in Sir Walter Scott's novel who will be heard in this programme.

For Scandinavia.

Listeners in Norway and Sweden receive Aberdeen better than any other British station. In recognition of this, Aberdeen is putting on a special programme of Scandinavian music on Thursday, June 11th. The Symphony in B Flat by Svendsen will be broadcast for the first time. The artists will include Miss Eda Bennie (soprano), Mr. Norwell McGillivray (bassitone), and Miss Anne Ballantine, who will conclude the programme with a group of six songs by Grieg.

"La Fille de Madame Angot."

Birmingham will try French comic opera on Thursday, June 11th, when the Station

Repertory Chorus, and Augmented Orchestra, under Mr. Joseph Lewis, will give La Fille de Madame Angot, by Lecocq. Mr. Sydney Russell, of the B.N.O.C., is supervizing the production.

A Message From Italy.

The Hon. Commendatore Zimolo, a member of Signor Mussolini's Cabinet, who was on a semi-official visit to this country, broadcast a message partly in English and partly in Italian from Edinburgh Station. After emphasizing the reverence in which the Italian people hold the graves of Scottish and Allied soldiers, he remarked: "If we Italians keep sacred the memory of Shakespeare, Byron, Shelley and Browning, so do you preserve sacred the cult of Dante, in demonstrating your wish to learn the language of the great poet."

Patriotism Stimulated.

There is conclusive evidence that the broadcasting of the opening of Wembley, and particularly of the King's Speech on that occasion, made a profound impression throughout the "Waitress" comes next and is followed by the "Nurse."

Musical Comedy at Leeds-Bradford.

Leeds-Bradford will make a special effort on Friday, June 12th. Orchestral and vocal items will be given from Musical Comedies pre-war and post-war. Miss Dorothy Sunderland (soprano), Mr. William Lovell (baritone), and Mr. Herbert Short (tenor), will take part, and the programme will be strengthened by the band of the 8th Batt. Leeds Rifles (West Yorks. Regt.).

Mme. Gertrude McMahon at Plymouth.

On June 26th, Mme. Gertrude McMahon will play her Cremona violin in the same way as she so frequently played it for Queen Victoria. She will be supported by the band of the 1st Battalion Somerset Light Infantry, and the Spooner Male Voice Quartet.

Stoke-on-Trent Active.

There appears to be no indication of a seasonal decline in radio in the Potteries. The Stoke-on-Trent Relay Station reports increased local interest. The demand seems to be principally for light orchestral music. A special programme is being arranged for Friday, June 12th, when Miss Mabel Wilshaw (soprano) will sing, and Mr. Lucien Boulemier will contribute humorous and dramatic items.

The Fisk Singers.

The Fisk University Jubilee Singers of Nashville, Tennessee, will broadcast from London on June 3rd. These singers have been well known on both sides of the Atlantic for nearly a century, during which time four generations have "followed on." The present members are Mr. J. A. Myers, Mr. C. J. Barbours, Mrs. J. A. Myers, Mr. H. W. O'Bannon, and Mr. L. D. Collins. Their Negro spirituals were generally acclaimed during their European tour of last year.

"Running Deer."

Os-ke-non-ton, the Mohawk singer, will be heard from London Station during the "From the New World" programme on June 5th. This Canadian Indian, whose name means Running Deer, is regarded as the best vocal exponent of the tradition and tragedy of his race.

Walford Davies Recital.

On Friday, June 12th, Edinburgh Station will give a recital of pastorals and nursery rhymes by Sir Walford Davies. These are arranged for the most part for vocal quartet and string quartet accompaniment, and among them will be the unpublished quartet "The Kid," the words of which are an old Hebrew rhyme.

Broadcasting Propaganda.

According to The Times, the Australian Labour Council has decided immediately to proceed with a comprehensive scheme for wireless broadcasting in connection with Trade Union propaganda. Likewise, if the enemies of the unified control of broadcasting in this country have their way, no doubt we shall have a variety of interests employing wireless for propaganda purposes. Whether the programmes will be improved or not, is another matter.

"Opium"—Episode II.

The second episode of the play Opium will be broadcast from the Cardiff Station on Wednesday, June 10th, as part of one of the well-known "Charm of Variety" programmes. Opium describes the history of an unofficial attempt to suppress the opium traffic in a novel way. Each episode is complete in itself, so that listeners will have no difficulty in picking up the threads of the plot.

A Famous Quartet.

The London String Quartet, playing at the London Station on Tuesday, June 2nd, is one of the most famous native combinations in the country. Its first performance was given in January, 1910, as a part of a series (which afterwards became known as the "L.S.Q. Pops") which had as its objects the revival of the glories of the old St. James's Hall "Pops" in seeking out the works of brilliant composers who had had no chance of public performance. Over a hundred of these "Pop" Concerts were given and in that alone the London String Quartet did excellent work on behalf of Chamber Music in England. Subsequently, the Quartet has toured in America and throughout the Continent. Next January it will set out on its sixth American tour. Included in its programme at London next Tuesday is Elgar's lovely String Quartet in E Minor, in commemoration of the composer's birthday.

Sheet Music and Broadcasting.

A large London music collecting house reports that its experience proves that broadcasting in England definitely stimulates the sale of sheet music. Where a new demand for an old work has been created, it can usually be traced to the broadcasting of the work.

PEOPLE YOU WILL HEAR THIS WEEK.

Mr. STANLEY BALDWIN will broadcast from Dundee on June 3rd. [Scott.]

Mr. ALBERT SAMMONS. Mr. Sammons is, without doubt, one of the most brilliant of living violinists. On Thursday, June 4th, he will play in a Sonata Recital from Newcastle with Mr. William Murdoch, the famous pianist. He will also broadcast from Glasgow on June 5th.

Miss ENID CRUICKSHANK (Contralto) will sing from various stations this week. [Harris.]

Mr. FREDERICK RANALOW (Baritone) will sing from London on July 4th.

Miss PHYLLIS PANTING, who will play in "The Little Quaker" at Aberdeen on June 3rd. [Maurice Beck & Macgregor.]

Mr. LOUIS HERTEL (Entertainer), who will broadcast from London on June 6th.

Mr. EDWARD ISAACS (Pianist) will play at London on May 31st. [Lassells.]

The FISK JUBILEE SINGERS, who will broadcast on June 3rd. (S.B. to all Stations). [Lassells.]

Miss MAVIS BENNETT (Soprano) will broadcast from London on June 4th. [Maurice Beck & Macgregor.]

A Weekly Feature Conducted by Percy A. Scholes.

ELGAR'S STRING QUARTET.

(LONDON, TUESDAY.)

DURING recent years, Elgar has concentrated almost entirely on Chamber Music. Formerly, he seems to have given practically no attention to that branch of composition. He began very early to write orchestral and choral works, and continued to do so for many years. Then, in March, 1919, a Violin Sonata (Opus 82, i.e., approximately his 82nd work) was given its first performance. It was followed at a distance of only two months, by this String Quartet (Opus 83), and a Piano Quintet (Opus 84), brought before the public simultaneously.

In the Quartet there are only three Movements; each is distinct from the others.

I.

Moderately Quick. The FIRST MAIN TUNE really consists of several detached figures, each of a mere two or three notes. It is not easy to follow these in detail, but the most important is a drooping figure, which is heard at the third bar (i.e., about six seconds from the beginning!). This drooping figure is, in the course of the Movement, occasionally inverted and made to reach upwards.

The SECOND MAIN TUNE is a more definite melody—swaying, very expressive. It is first heard in FIRST VIOLIN in tender vein; but it can be highly impassioned, as one finds later.

The Movement is fairly long, and consists largely of broken dialogue; but generally the drooping figure is being discussed, or the swaying melody sung.

II.

Pleasantly. This Movement starts with a straightforward Tune, which just runs its course uneventfully and (as the composer indicates) pleasantly. The First Violin rests at first; and in the middle the Cello plays a phrase with the Second Violin and Viola beneath him, then the Viola goes to the top, then the Second Violin again. Then the Tune is repeated, with the FIRST VIOLIN PLAYING IT AN OCTAVE ABOVE THE SECOND.

After this, there is a good deal of fragmentary material, the mood remaining, almost throughout, quite unexcited. At length the first Tune is played very loudly, starting in SECOND VIOLIN AND VIOLA IN OCTAVES, with First Violin overhead and Cello below. Most of the other material is repeated, and the Movement gradually fades away, all instruments muted towards the end.

III.

Very Quick. The Finale begins with terse, peremptory ejaculations from VIOLA and CELLO. These quickly lead into the FIRST MAIN TUNE, in which the FIRST VIOLIN rushes up to one note, on to another, then back again. This rather rough going lasts for some time. At length things become smoother, and the more lyrical SECOND MAIN TUNE arrives, at first in FIRST VIOLIN.

When this seems temporarily finished with, the VIOLA comes upon a fussy little, chattering figure—only to find that we are not really rid of the Second Main Tune.

The Movement is, in fact, barely begun; but practically everything is derived from what has by now been heard.

LISZT'S "TASSO."

(BIRMINGHAM, WEDNESDAY.)

The full title of this work is "Tasso, Lament and Triumph Symphonic Poem, No. 2." Liszt may be said to have invented the Symphonic Poem—a big orchestral work, without the fixed form which a symphony is (or certainly was, in Liszt's days) supposed to have. Further, Liszt, in his Symphonic Poem, strove to embody some literary or pictorial idea, or "programme." So it is with the work now described.

Tasso was, of course, a great sixteenth-century Italian poet, whose life was, physically and mentally, very troublous. Liszt, writing of Tasso on the title-page of this work, speaks of his "groanings in prison, so nobly and eloquently expressed in [Byron's] Lamentations," and also of "The Triumph which awaited, with a tardy but shining justice, the chivalric author of Jerusalem delivered."

He says that he has tried "first to conjure up the great shade of the hero, even as he appears to-day, haunting the lagoons of Venice; then we have seen his haughty, afflicted countenance as he glided past the fêtes of Ferrara, where his masterpieces had first seen the light of day; finally we have followed him to Rome, the Eternal City, which, by giving him his crown, glorified in him the martyr and the poet."

Liszt has used, as his chief Tune, a song from Tasso's great work, Jerusalem delivered, which is even now sung by the gondoliers of Venice. This tune dominates the long first part of the work—sombre, melancholy, and at times fierce. In the middle there comes the picture of festivities at Ferrara (quasi Menuetto). After a while, the gondoliers' song reasserts itself as the music works up to the triumphal end.

DELIUS'S SECOND VIOLIN SONATA.

(NEWCASTLE, THURSDAY.)

This Second Violin Sonata by Delius, one of his latest compositions, is a work which does not insist upon great intellectual effort (though such an effort is necessary for its full understanding). And even if one does not choose to regard it as one of his greatest works, it has much charm, and one could hardly choose a better work to play to anyone who wishes to learn to understand the least revolutionary of "modern" music.

BORODIN'S "IN THE STEPPES OF CENTRAL ASIA."

(GLASGOW, FRIDAY.)

Borodin, one of the great Russian "nationalist" composers, wrote this "Sketch" in 1880.

A "programme" is printed on the title-page of the score. It may be translated as follows:—

"In the silence of the sandy steppes of Central Asia ring the first notes of a peaceful Russian song. One hears, too, the melancholy strains of songs of the Orient; one hears the tramp of horses and camels as they come. A caravan, escorted by Russian soldiers, crosses the vast desert, fearlessly pursuing its long journey, trusting wholly in its Russian warrior-guard.

"Ceaselessly the caravan advances. The Russian song and the native songs mingle in one harmony, their strains are long heard over the desert, and at last are lost in the distance."

The Russian song is heard at the opening in a Clarinet, answered by a Horn. A few moments later the Cor Anglais (Contralto Oboe) plays the Oriental song.

"RADIO TIMES" READING CASE.

Messrs. George Newnes, Ltd., have prepared a handsome case in red cloth with gilt lettering for "The Radio Times," complete with cord down the back to hold a copy of this publication. A pencil is indispensable to the listener during the course of the programme, and this is included conveniently in a slot at the side. Listeners should order this to-day from any News-agent. It is published at 2s. 6d., or send 4d. extra to cover postage for a case from the Publisher, "The Radio Times," 8-11, Southampton Street, Strand, London, W.C.2.

Ca Canny!

DEAR MAISTER EDITOR,—Me being the faither o' a student at oor University, may I be sae bold as ask ye a question? Seein' ane o' the professors be giein' lectures on Nat'ral History on the radio, can I no' get a reduction in the fees I'll hae tae pay neist October when my laddie gangs tae that class? It seems tae be an unco sinfu' waste if I canna, a' them guid lectures gaein' for naithin'. As weel, seein' as how that professor is presumably makin' extra baccy bawbees wi' his broadcastin', can we no' hae his salary reduced an' the benefit applied tae a reduction in the rates?

Onywey, the first question's the mair important, for if there's tae be nae reduction I'll tak' the whusker off the crystal while the professor is speakin' so's no' tae waste it, an' we'll get a' the story when Tam gangs tae the class.

Altho' I ha'e na paid ma licence, I'm no' gaein' to cheat ye. I'm only waitin' tae mak' sure the set's workin' richt.

Yours, etc.,

Aberdeen.

TAMMAS M'KIRKEY.

Mixed Programmes.

DEAR SIR,—I sympathise with S. W. D.'s desire for "unbroken" programmes, as I, too, have found it annoying to be switched from the "sublime" to the "ridiculous," and then, perhaps, on to a rather dry lecture; but on considering the matter, I have found two very good arguments in favour of mixed programmes. The first is that most people have not time to listen for two or three hours at a time, and therefore the unwelcome interludes will enable them to perform some of the numerous duties that can't be done while one is joined to a crystal set.

The second is that many people can spare only one night a week to listen, and if on that night the programme is entirely "sublime" or entirely "ridiculous" there is bound to be trouble!

A mixed programme has, therefore, its blessings.

Yours, etc.,

Beckenham.

L. APPLEBY.

The Sunday Evening Service.

DEAR SIR,—The present method of conducting this service from the Studio is, as "John Henry" would say, "all wrong."

That a short service gives much satisfaction to vast numbers is certain. It is equally certain that unless the present method is altered, many will "cut it out."

Surely, it is as important to create the right atmosphere for a religious service as for a transmission of a play, and such an atmosphere is automatically created when the service is relayed from a church. Yet, when this cannot be arranged, with the consequent loss of bell-ringing, full choir, etc., the items of the service are announced from the Studio in much the same manner as those of an ordinary programme. To my mind, it would be infinitely better for the announcer merely to introduce the preacher and leave him, not only to give the address, but to announce the hymns.

I would like to see the Bible-reading item dispensed with altogether. It "cuts no ice" even in a place of worship—still less, therefore, when broadcast.

Of course, the ideal arrangement would be to relay a church service each week.

Yours, etc.,

Wallington.

E. B. STEGGALL.

DEAR SIR,—Surely, Sir Landon Ronald is at fault in not differentiating between the types of monopoly?

Suppose the B.B.C. had a competitor. This would involve a duplication of services, or, if expenditure be equal to the present, twice the programmes at, presumably, half the quality; which is decidedly undesirable.

It would also produce unnecessary expenditure on advertising, and divert the attention of programme producers from good programmes to "best-sellers," as in some way revenue would depend on popularity, or the competitive incentive would vanish.

With two companies bidding against each other, the only people who would benefit would be the more celebrated artists. Competition, for the listener, is too much a double-edged weapon.

No! Let us indeed be thankful that the B.B.C. has no rival and can pursue its progressive path uninterrupted, even as the structure of science has been brought into being by men who loved their work, and not by competition.

Yours, etc.,

GORDON K. CLATWORTHY.

Gt. Sankey, Warrington.

The Broadcasting of Games.

DEAR SIR,—Mr. George Grossmith, in his article in The Radio Times, refers to the broadcasting in America of outdoor events, and I can endorse his claim that they are interesting. On several occasions this winter I have listened to ice hockey games played in Boston and broadcast from "WBZ." (My set, by the way, is a 2-valve, with indoor aerial.) The announcer made the games seem very real to me lying in bed thousands of miles away, and the music, shouts of the crowd, the referee's whistle, and so on, made a perfect atmosphere. The announcer's comments were always clear, concise, and frequently amusing, as, for instance, when he started admonishing a player and then apologized for his partisanship.

Big Cup Ties could be brought right to the doorsteps of people unable to be present. Boxing matches, too, would make good material.

Yours, etc.,

Hull.

G. A. BINNING.

For the Tired Worker.

DEAR SIR,—As an ordinary workman, I wish to add my testimony to the good programmes provided. Having attained the age of seventy-two, my hearing is not so good as formerly, and if I go to a concert or a theatre, my place is in the back seats, which deprives me of the pleasure I should otherwise derive.

Wireless remedies this, and after a day's toil it cheers one up and acts as a good tonic, especially for the nerves.

Carry on, in spite of the few grumblers.

Yours, etc.,

Battersea, S.W.

GEORGE DOWNING.

Radio in Hospitals.

DEAR SIR,—A successful appeal has recently been launched through the Cambridge Daily News for a wireless installation at the Fulbourn Mental Hospital, Cambridge. As an encouragement to other towns, will you kindly make this known through the medium of The Radio Times?

It is sad to think that up to recent times some of the poorest, most afflicted people in England—many of them entirely friendless—should have been almost forgotten, because they have been hidden away in these necessary institutions.

Medical superintendents have stated that wireless might be the means of many recoveries.

Yours, etc.,

Cambridge.

"CHARITY."

Napoleon By Loud Speaker.If Radio Were Not So New. By Dorothy Margaret Stuart.

[The writer of this article is well known as D.M.S. of "Punch," and she was Silver Medallist of the 1924 Olympiad.]

THERE was a time, not a hundred years since, when the very sound of the word "Progress" sent shudders down the spine of the sensitive poet. It brought with it visions of reeking stacks and roaring wheels, fuming funnels and murky skies. Small wonder, then, if he could see in Progress only a gruesome witch, an evil genius, darkening green meadows and blue horizons wherever she was allowed to dwell!

Wistfully he looked back at the "hollow ships" of the Homeric heroes, forgetting that neither Homer nor his heroes seemed fully to realize the decorative value of the gilded prows and low, square sails with which they sought to outwit the fierce and fickle god of the sea. Sadly he mused upon the ambling nags, the jolting coaches, the jogging Sedan-chairs of the ages that knew not steam. Regretfully he contrasted the restful grace of Penelope's loom with the unloveliness of the spinning jenny.

Dust and Rust.

Even Tennyson, so responsive to the poetry of natural science, felt some alarm at the spread of mechanical industrialism, and was fain to "take cover" among Arthur's knights at Camelot. The lesser poets of his epoch, poor dears, took to walking backwards, screwing up their eyes and shading their brows, in an anxious effort to discern some picturesque curves and colours somewhere. If they failed to see any element of romance in the foot-prints of Progress, the fault was not entirely theirs. She was an unbeautiful babe; her first garments were sombre, her first shoes left grimy tracks.

But that time is long past. The perturbed poets are dust, their good pens are rust; their souls are with the Muses we trust. And Progress, forsaking her grim pathways upon earth, has taken unto herself wings; she is visible and audible in the shining mansions of space. Poets, no longer perturbed, look up, and go up; they listen, and listen to the wireless. Now they salute Progress as their forerunners saluted Romance, and for the same reason. In both forces the eternal spirit of beauty has been made manifest to men.

Speaking From the Clouds.

The poet's imagination was not slow to react to the glamour and grace of the aeroplane. Some airmen even burst into song, while some singers whose baser clay remained below sent their minds soaring and swooping

Above the smoke and stir of this dim spot
Which men call earth.

And now Progress speaks from the clouds once more, and he would be a dull-eared poet who failed to hear. She appeals to sight as well as to hearing; there are new beauties in her which blind Milton and deaf Beethoven might both have felt, though not in the same degree. Thanks to her latest victories, we can say of England:—

... the isle is full of noises,
Sounds and sweet airs, that give delight and hurt not.

Sails Between the Chimneys.

And the angular grey roofs of London houses are suddenly invested with the beauty of ships, ships at anchor, with sails close furled, their masts and ropes etched with delicate precision against the pale London sky. So great is the affinity, it would hardly startle us to see sails unfold between the chimneys and the masted roofs move majestically away.

Another type of aerial there is which has its own suggestion of the sea; I mean that type which is so like the crow's-nest of a Spanish galleon. (It is also like that sort of wire basket in which French cooks shake golden flakes of potato over a clear fire!) And thus Progress has somehow contrived to make the least picturesque of houses look like the most picturesque of sea-going craft.

Great marvel though the telephone be, there is little to excite the poet in the idea that those ugly, serried cables are twittering and squeaking over his head unheard of him. Very different is the emotion with which he looks up at the slim poles, the fragile filaments, and feels that they are skyey snares set to catch the wandering voices of the air.

Broadcasting Pitt.

Soon he begins to ask himself what might have been the effects of this invention upon ancient song and story. He has a vision of a heavy-lipped Spanish king sitting in some arrased room of the Escorial with a loud-speaker at his royal elbow and listening, much disheartened, to the energetic accents of a Tudor Queen haranguing her troops at Tilbury.

Horace Walpole, held captive by gout, might have reposed at Strawberry Hill with his muffled foot on a cushion and yet have heard Garrick's thrilling voice and the roar of applause at Drury Lane. Many of Dr. Johnson's more fastidious contemporaries, who liked his conversation better than his company, might have rejoiced had a microphone been fixed upon Mr. Thrale's breakfast table at Streatham. How many quiet hearths, how many "hamlets brown and dim-discover'd spires," would have thrilled with hope and pride had Pitt's famous Guildhall speech been broadcast, the speech in which he proclaimed that England had saved herself by her exertions and Europe by her example!

Crosswords Between the Stars.

It is beyond doubt that broadcasting would have appealed strongly to Napoleon. He would have been well pleased to make the deep, abrupt tones of the Imperial voice audible from the Seine to the Volga, from the Pyramids to the Pyrenees.

Many poets have sung of the starry chime, the music of the spheres; many must be wondering now if we shall ever be able to catch the sound-waves of interstellar space. If we ever do, shall we hear only the deep boom of exploding gases in the sun, the crash of meteors, the murmur of Saturn's revolving rings? Voices may yet vibrate from the purple silence; chess-tournaments and cross-word contests may yet be arranged between Mercury or Uranus and ourselves. Interplanetary passenger-services may follow.

And then, if poetry should go utterly out of fashion, or if only mediocre minds should apply themselves to the poetic art, this world may some day transmit to a friendly planet some such message as this: "Do you happen to have a hefty half-back, or a good bowler, or, better still, a wakeful bricklayer, whom you would let us have in exchange for five gross of modern poets, assorted colours and sizes?"

At the time of his graduation at Trinity, Cambridge, Mr. Paul Kilburn, the new Musical Director of the Aberdeen Station, had the distinction of being the youngest Bachelor of Music in Europe. He appeared in London as conductor of the Royal Albert Hall Orchestra in 1923. He has also conducted the London Symphony, and the Scottish and Leeds Symphonic Orchestras.

THE CHILDREN'S CORNER.

NEWS FROM THE AUNTS AND UNCLES.

An Interesting Concert.

THE Children's Corner concerts, on Saturday afternoons, given from the Birmingham Station by child members of the Birmingham Radio Circle, have now been discontinued, but will begin again in the autumn. Instead of taking place every Saturday, it is probable that they will then take place once a month.

One of the most interesting concerts and the most successful was given towards the end of the present series by children from the Royal Institution for the Blind. Accompanied by their blind conductor, the choral and solo items were sung in such a way as to suggest that the absence of the music was in no way a handicap, but even an advantage.

It is interesting to note that these children have been provided with a complete wireless set by the members of the Radio Circle.

Nottingham's Radio Circle.

The membership of the Nottingham Station's Radio Circle is now nearly 6,000. £85 has been provided by the Circle for the installation of wireless for the entertainment of children in hospitals and other institutions in and around Nottingham, including the Nottingham General Hospital, the Beeston Home for Boys and Girls, Greendale House, the Nottingham Ear, Nose and Throat Hospital, the Nottingham Eye Infirmary, and the Derby Royal Infirmary.

A Photographic Competition.

Children have their favourite songs as well as grown ups, and so a request programme has been arranged during the Children's Hour, at Manchester, for May 30th.

Competitions are also very popular at this station, and none more so than the Photographic Competition which is held during the summer months. This competition adds great interest to country walks, and the number of entries, which generally deal with countryside subjects, has in the past been very large.

Children's Portraits at Plymouth.

When the curiosity of visitors to the Plymouth studio is satisfied, when, in fact, they have discovered that the microphone never "argues back" and that the hangings conceal no subtle mystery, then it is they are irresistibly drawn to the special-particular-corner—the gallery of children's photographs, intermixed with a few vigorous examples of modern juvenile art.

There is, for instance, a peacock whose huge feathers almost completely hide the unfortunate bird. Then, a certain snapshot tells us that Uncle Henry has spoilt a perfectly good camera; while poor old Felix, reproduced in many a different medium, still keeps on walking into the hearts of Plymouth radio members.

Request Day at Edinburgh.

An interesting feature of the Children's Corner at the Edinburgh Station is Request Day, which is always held on Mondays. Young listeners are invited to send in requests for the performance of pieces of music on the piano, violin, etc., or for recitations, stories and so forth, and the day has proved very popular.

The requests range from such things as Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata and Liszt's Second Hungarian Rhapsody to the latest popular trifles, and on the side of recitations from passages of Shakespeare and other poets to pieces written by the children themselves. The request list is assuming cumbersome proportions, and only a small number of the requests actually received each week can be broadcast during the fifty minutes at the disposal of the Uncles and Aunties on Mondays. A strict chronological order, however, is maintained, and no favour shown, except in the cases of children who are sick in bed.

A Clever Reciter.

There is a very good reason for the boys of Glasgow wearing their caps at a rakish angle these days. One of the members, Tom Fletcher, took second place in the competition open to Glasgow schoolboys during Sir Frank Benson's recent visit to the City. He gave a splendid performance in reciting a part of the play, Julius Caesar.

Grace Competition.

Many entries were received at Glasgow for the above, and the winner was Emily Sellar Smith, who received first prize for the following:

Thank You for the world so sweet,
Thank You for the food we eat,
Thank You for the birds that sing,
Thank You, God, for everything.

A Visit to the Zoo.

At least once a week the Kiddiewinks of the Cardiff Station listen to true stories about the inhabitants of the Zoo. It is probable that they will pay a visit to Regent's Park the very next time they go to London in order to meet personally such attractive-sounding people as Jumbo, Alice and other celebrities who live their lives behind bars, and consider buns but insufficient compensation for their enforced captivity.

A Child Genius at the Piano.

Miss Audrey Smith, the fourteen-year-old pianist who played for listeners to London Station on May 22nd, could read music before she knew the alphabet. She played well at the age of six, and was on the concert platform at ten.

Mr. Keene, the King's organist, was so impressed by Miss Smith that he left her his piano in his will. Paderewski and Pachmann have praised her playing.

A SEASIDE ADVENTURE.

By A. COLEMAN HICKS.

Down came Stephen and poor Elsie, too!

STEPHEN and his cousin Elsie were having a good time at Brightsea, where they were spending the Whitsun holidays.

One day they obtained permission from Stephen's mother to go in search of a place called Cowrie

Cove, some distance along the shore, where some wonderful shells were to be found on the beach.

Walking along the beach, carrying their tea in a basket, they were nearly clear of the town when they came to a boat which was drawn up half in, half out, of the water, and the oars had been left in it.

"Here's one of old Bill's boats," said Stephen. "Let's take it, and I'll row you along; it will be quicker and save us the fag of walking."

"I don't think we ought to without asking Bill," said Elsie; "he may have let it to someone else, or be going out himself."

"Oh, I'll pay for it if he finds out," replied Stephen, who, I am afraid, was not very particular how he got anything he really wanted.

"I don't like taking it, all the same, but it's very hot and it would be lovely on the water. Perhaps it'll be all right." Elsie could no longer resist the temptation, and she jumped in, and Stephen soon had the boat afloat and moving slowly in the right direction.

"I think it's round that point," he said, after half-an-hour's rowing, and in a few minutes they saw the beautiful little bay with its beach of white sand that they were looking for. Stephen turned the boat towards the shore.

"How shallow it is getting!" said Elsie, bending over and trailing her fingers in the cool sea. "I can see lots of seaweed and such big rocks. Be careful, Stevie, we nearly touched one then!"

"Oh, there's plenty of room," replied Stephen, carelessly. "A few more digs and we'll be on the beach," and he gave an extra strong pull.

Crash! The front part of the boat had struck a sharp piece of rock, which came right through the side, and water at once began to flow in through the hole.

"Oh, Stephen, look what you've done!" wailed Elsie. "It serves us right for taking the boat without asking."

Stephen was standing one of the oars in the water to see how deep it was.

"It's all right," he said; "it won't come above our waists. We'll have to wade ashore, but I'll try and carry you," and he got over the side, and standing with his back to the boat, Elsie had a rather unsteady pick-a-back ride to the beach.

Just as they splashed through the tiny wavelets that crept up the beach, Stephen put his foot on a large stone covered with that smooth shiny sort of seaweed and slipped.

Down he came—and poor Elsie, too—down on the wet, hard sand. She did not hurt herself; but Stephen found that he could not stand up, for he had sprained his ankle!

Leaning on Elsie, he managed to reach the soft dry sand higher up the beach, and they sat down to consider their plight.

The only thing to be done was to wait there some four hours until the tide went out far enough for Elsie to get round the cliff, which rose almost straight up behind them, and walk home three miles for help, and it would be dark long before she could get there.

Elsie was a brave little girl, and said she didn't mind, but Stephen knew she did, and bitterly reproached himself for getting them both in this fix. It was all his own fault, he knew.

Then suddenly, to their great relief and delight, a boat came round the corner with old Bill in it. He had seen them take the other boat and followed to keep an eye on them. He rescued them after he had secured the wrecked boat, and what he said does not matter much, for he forgave Stephen in the end, because of his sprained ankle, which was punishment enough in itself.

The Great Gift of Wonder.

A Secret of Perpetual Youth. By "Philemon."*

WE were chatting frivolously, after dinner, round the fire. One of our number, an old sinner, philanthropically inclined, had recently sent a small subscription to some Charity Association in the expectation of winning a fortune, and since we were all poor, more or less, we began romancing as to what we would do if ten thousand pounds came fluttering into our hands from the blue.

One thing led to another; indeed, it became a series of "choosing" games; and, all at once, the Youngest Member of the party said: "If you were allowed to keep one faculty, and one faculty only, in full power up to the last moment of life, which would you choose?"

A Difficult Question.

Seeing that we were all much older than he was, much nearer, presumably, to that last dread moment, the question, which no doubt he was able to consider with detachment and theoretically, had for us a practical poignancy, and was not really very tactful.

"Oh, sight, of course," somebody answered off-hand.

"I meant a faculty," said the Youngest Member, "not a sense; we'll take the senses for granted."

We had become suddenly rather solemn. We were not (I think) seeking within ourselves for an answer, but rather how we might fence the question off.

Our efforts were not very successful.

"The faculty of pretending," said one, breaking the pause.

"Of enjoying good champagne," said another, who had evidently been reading a recently-published volume of Tchekov's letters.

"Of keeping awake when I felt drowsy," said a third who had charmingly procrastinated all his life, and would certainly procrastinate with death, if he could.

The Intoxication of Youth.

The Youngest Member by this time realized that his seed had not fallen into good ground, and, by the look of him, was feeling disappointed; so I pressed him for his own answer, believing that he had it waiting up his sleeve. He yielded reluctantly to my encouragement. "I had in mind," he said in a casual tone, "the faculty of wonder."

At that moment a blazing log fell opportunely from the fire on to the hearth.

I have since reflected that that was a most excellent choice on the part of the Youngest Member. In a way, it was a natural choice for a young man to make.

Wonder is the prerogative of youth. What, after all, is youth but wonder living in a wonderful world? Youth is a kind of intoxication—"The cup of my drunkenness, how splendid it is!" And so vibrant is it, so full of profound and quaking stir, that the outer world, vibrating in sympathy, is filled with dancing light, shimmering colour, and mighty music.

The Child and the Storm.

In the youth of the race, when the world was young, philosophy was born of wonder. The old myths—I need not have said "old" for there are no modern ones—were wonder-tales. And, personally, I believe that wonder had as much to do with the creation of the gods as fear; for I have frequently observed that a child is not as a rule terrified by a thunderstorm (let us say), but watches it admiringly, astonished, reading its little play into that great play—as if, on the floor of some gigantic heavenly nursery, a gigantic child, God perhaps, were playing with gigantic toys.

* In a Talk from London.

The precocious and sophisticated children, who are part of the stock-in-trade of our comic papers, are not really amusing. Bergson will explain the mechanism by which such pictures force a laugh; but the laughter is forced, mechanical, and will not endure reflection. These children are pathetic. They are monstrosities, having been born old. I do not believe in them. I find it easier to believe in Felix, with wonder coruscating for ever in notes of interrogation out of his little black noddle!

A blasé youth is a contradiction in terms.

We older men are lucky in our time, for there is a chance of our renewing our youth in a world of wonders. I am not thinking only of our scientific discoveries and inventions, but also of what is not altogether unrelated to these—the break-up of faith-systems, thought-systems, political systems, social order of long-standing; as if Life, like Samson, has allowed us to bind him with the green withs of our dogmas, hypotheses, and conventions, and, just as we were about to pounce upon him in triumph, springs free from our grasp, revealing his strength and stature.

The Inevitable Surprise.

Our world is to be made anew. If we think at all, we must think freshly; if we believe at all, we must believe freshly. Almost anything may happen. Behind every visible horizon looms a surprise.

I commend the choice of the Youngest Member.

The other night I stood on the hill, awed and astonished before a marvellous sunset. If I could attend the last sunset of my life with the same feelings, with the same calm and luminous heart, as the coloured shadow of death's wing faded into the darkness vast and quiet—yes, I commend the choice of the Youngest Member.

It has been said that those whom the gods love, die young. Not necessarily in tender years, mind you! But, young. Young, because they have not grown old with the years. And they have not grown old, because they have always acknowledged the wonder. That is the sign that the gods love them.

A MASTERPIECE ON A SLATE.

A CORRESPONDENT writes re the broadcasting of the Welsh National Anthem:—

This soul-stirring National Anthem does not belong to "tradition," but was composed well within the last hundred years.

The words were written by Evan James, a weaver of Pontypridd, and the music by his son. James senior kept near him a slate on which snatches of verse were jotted down as they came to him during his work at the loom, and it is said that a large number of poems stand to his credit. His son's taste was musical, and, as the father wrote verses, his son set them to music and played the accompaniments on the harp.

It was on a Sunday afternoon in 1856 that both father and son were inspired, and the result was the song and words in question. We do not know whether the music or the words were written first in this instance. Strange to say, it is the only work of the father and son that has survived.

It was submitted to the memorable Eisteddfod at Llangollen in 1858 after it had been given its first recital at Tabor Methodist church in Maesteg, S. Wales.

It was first published by Owain Alan in 1860 in "Gems of Welsh Melody." A quarter of a century later it had become the accepted National Anthem of Wales, and since then it has been sung wherever loyal Welshmen have met.

Vogue of the Banjo.

Its Evolution from the Tom-Tom.

MANY is the time I have lingered with the headphones, when others were in bed, listening to the Savoy Orpheans. And often I have walked along a tiny street at the back of Covent Garden without suspecting that a small workshop is there in which those Orpheans' banjos have been repaired.

It is hard to find, this little factory of music, for it is hidden away at the top of a tall building. Yet if you climb between thirty and forty steps and tap at the unpretentious door, you are assured of a cordial welcome.

Here it was that I met Mr. A. Weaver, who has been making banjos for fifty years. Around him were dozens of instruments, and handles, hoops, sheets of vellum and calf skin, silk-covered strings, brand new banjos—and the ghosts of old ones.

Jim Bohee.*

Looking down at me from the walls were scores of faces, mostly smiling, jostling one another to attract attention. They are the pictures of past and present giants of the banjo world for whom Mr. Weaver has made instruments. One in particular caught my eye. It was the photo of a handsome negro.

"That is Jim Bohee," Mr. Weaver told me. "I can remember his excitement when he was commanded to appear at Marlborough House to give lessons on the banjo to King Edward, who later became an accomplished player. I made over one hundred and fifty instruments for Jim Bohee alone. He and his brother came from America with the famous Haverley Minstrels about 1882 and went the round of the music halls for many years."

Assisting the Player.

Little doubt exists that banjos originated with the coloured nations, and they are probably a development of the tom-toms of the natives. Their extraordinarily rapid rise to popularity is one of the remarkable facts of musical history, for they were practically unknown in this country before the time of the Haverley Minstrels, yet to-day they are found in nearly every dance orchestra. Strangely enough, the design of banjos has scarcely changed throughout this interval. Modern instruments are, perhaps, more ornamental than the original ones, but the only innovation has been the introduction of frets which assist the player to "stop" the strings at the correct points for note determination.

Well-Known Names.

Mr. Weaver pointed with pride to many minstrel playbills belonging to the 'eighties and 'nineties. They display in bold characters such well-known names as Edwin French, Moore and Burgess, Berte Earle, and Chirgwin, all of whom obtained banjos from him.

"I do everything here myself," he went on, "and I believe I am the only man who makes the entire instrument." Then he showed me the first banjo that he made. "I just keep it out of curiosity," he said. "It was made in 1878, and differs very little from the one I made recently for the Prince of Wales and which he took with him on board the Repulse."

The next time I tune-in the Orpheans on my wireless set I shall listen for the thrums of those banjos with a new interest. K. P. H.

SOUTH LINCOLNSHIRE bulb growers are installing loud speakers in their packing sheds for the benefit of packers who work overtime. Some growers assert that packers do more work while listening to musical items, the reason advanced being that their fingers respond to the rhythm with more nimbleness than would otherwise be the case.

My Night Behind the Scenes.

Written and Illustrated by D'EGVILLE.

Could this be Uncle Whatsisname?

AMONG the many ambitions of my life, which include, among others, becoming Prime Minister, being a lion tamer and discovering the Dinosauros, there has always been that of visiting a broadcasting station and seeing for myself what actually happens.

Imagine, therefore, the glee with which I greeted an invitation to visit one a few nights ago.

I had previously formed a very clear idea of what a broadcasting station was like. My frequent perusal of The Radio Times, coupled with such pieces of information as I was able to gather from the earphone of my wireless home-made, one-crystal non-valve set, had given me my own notion of what it all looked like.

In My Mind's Eye.

I could see in my mind's eye the vast amphitheatre and upraised dais upon which the noble performers stand. All round this platform I could imagine great crystals as big as footballs, and electric light bulbs like melons; wires innumerable as thick as an elephant's leg, handles, sparks, levers, wheels colossal; intricate machinery which only the master hand could control, trap doors for letting down performers who died of fright, ambulances for any who inadvertently put a finger on a live wire—in fact, a maze of intricacies such as was never seen before, the kind of thing the average schoolboy of nowadays understands thoroughly.

I could picture the singer being led through a maze of dark passages to the platform, upon which the glare of myriads of 1,000 watt lamps played ceaselessly. I could see him pale and trembling as he stands at last before the horn of gigantic proportions into which he is to deliver his song. I could see all the uncles, bent and grizzled, sitting round in bath chairs.

A Shattered Dream.

I could imagine the cracklings and sparkings which would immediately precede his performance, as he stood there handcuffed to the platform to prevent his running away as a result of wireless stage fright.

Nobody could see them, so why worry?

All these things, and many more, I had conjured up in my mind. Imagine, therefore, my astonishment when I arrived at the broadcasting station to find that none of my ideas in the least corresponded with the facts. I was amazed. I was astonished. I was staggered. I was led up in a sumptuous lift to a big room with curtains hung about it. I peeped behind them. Where were the giant crystals? Where the valves and electric globes? Was I in the right place, or could I perchance have found my way into a slaughter-house or a typewriting office?

Where were the doddering old uncles with beards down to their knees? Not a wire in the place.

Confound it! Surely something was wrong.

I seated myself and waited. A tall man entered and piloted one of the world's most famous singers to a stool at the piano.

Heavens! Could this really be Uncle Whatsisname? It was! He said so. He shook hands with me.

A Mousetrap Affair.

"We'll be ready in a moment," he explained. Ah, perhaps, they'd gone to get another crystal, or fetch some wire or a variable condenser, or, possibly, an invariable one.

My ruminations were brought to a close, however, by a red light which suddenly shone over the door.

"Silence, please!" said the uncle, in a voice that would have needed no broadcasting, and before I could say "knife" (I daren't say even that) the singer started off.

"Good evening, everybody," she said, with the grace and affability which is customary Yet this excellent argument was somewhat weakened by a gentleman who accompanied his poetic recital by all the action which one is accustomed to see upon a theatrical platform. At any moment I expected him to bash the mousetrap into small particles.

And I had one exceedingly uncomfortable experience during the evening. I hardly like to put it down in black and white, or in any other combination of colours, for that matter, but I feel that mention should be made of it for the benefit of others who may also have the good fortune to visit a broadcasting station.

A Terrible Omission.

On entering the chamber of horrors, I forgot to blow my nose. The moment "Silence" was called, the need for a really good blow made itself felt very forcibly. To do so, however, would not only have brought about my expulsion, but the sound of that blow would have been carried to all four corners of the earth, that is, Edinburgh, New York, Amsterdam and Putney.

Letters would have poured in from all parts of the country with questions about this wireless phenomenon.

"Dear Sir,

"On the night of so and so, my wireless apparatus (nine valves—two not working) recorded a most extraordinary noise, something between that of a horse's neigh and a tube train starting.

"Could you possibly enlighten me as to the cause of this noise—etc."

You know the sort of thing. Even to sniff would have been fatal. But as soon as the red lamp went out, everybody began to sneeze and cough and stretch themselves and clear their throats. In fact, the amount of pent-up energy that was then let out was too remarkable for words.

Quiet at all Costs.

Another gentleman was nearly arrested for walking across the room in rather squeaky boots.

Don't, please don't wear squeaky boots. All England will know about it if you do, and if you are a heavy breather, wear a silencer. If your eyelids clatter when they meet, be sure to put felt slippers on them.

But do, at all costs, keep quiet!

The need for a really good blow made itself felt.

The Broadcasting Studio as I pictured it.

among all broadcasters. Nobody seemed to answer her. In fact, there wasn't anybody in the room except the uncle and myself. So whom she was talking to, goodness only knows.

Did they mean to tell me that there was no colossal horn to play into? Did they wish me to believe that that miserable little box contraption supported on four stalwart legs in the middle of the room was all there was?

They did. They said so. And to think that this mousetrap affair was capable of sending waves to Edinburgh, New York, Amsterdam and Putney!

You could have knocked me down with a two-valve set!

But disillusionment followed disillusionment. A quartet came hard upon the heels of the lady at the piano, and to my utter amazement, one of them had on a flannel suit, while another was garbed in plus fours and carried a fishing rod. The third was dressed in the garments in which he had played tennis during the afternoon, while the fourth was attired in immaculate evening dress, preparatory to going on to a dance at the Savoy.

At first, this appeared to me shocking bad taste, and, indeed, I did not recover until it was pointed out to me that nobody could see them, so why worry?

Squeaky boots.

TIT-BITS GREAT FREE WIRELESS BALLOT

£1,000

EVERY READER
OF "RADIO TIMES" SHOULD HELP THE
B.B.C. BY FILLING IN A "TIT-BITS" COUPON.

IN this Competition "TIT-BITS" offers to readers a double opportunity of winning a Handsome Cash Prize and of hearing their own favourite programme broadcast by the B.B.C.

All that Competitors have to do is to select from a list of outstanding features of the wireless programme the ten they consider most popular, and place them in order of popularity on the Coupon.

The idea of this Competition is to discover the features the public consider best, and Mr. Reith, Managing Director of the British Broadcasting Company, says, "We welcome the co-operation of the friends of the Press in helping us to gauge what the public thinks is best in our programmes. We shall await the results of this Competition with interest, and readers of 'TIT-BITS' will realize that, quite apart from their opportunity of winning £1,000, they may be contributing to the solution of some of our programme problems."

CONTENTMENT

THE razor-blade purrs smoothly through the cooling, copious, lively lather. A grateful contentment envelops you. How it refreshes heat-irritated skin—that creamy, foaming fleece from your Gibbs Shaving Stick.

After the shave, pass the palm of your hand contentedly over your chin. Smooth as a child's, isn't it? Aglow with healthful cleanness. As soothed and comforted as if newly massaged with cold cream. Real comfort and a clean shave—truly a boon on hot days!

Economy Note It's a good plan to keep two sticks going. The 48 hours' rest restores them to normal—gives more shaves to each stick. Get that second one to-day, but be certain it is a Gibbs.

D. & W. GIBBS, LTD. (Dept. 40 KE), Cold Cream Soap Works, London, E.1.

The Gibbs all-British Thumb-push Holder Top Case—the world's first patent holder, and the best—lets you use the soap right up. A Gibbs refill can then be inserted in a "jiffy." No other holder does as much—No holder could do more.

Get the best out of your set!

D.E.3 electrode system, front view. Spot welded at A (filament support), B (anode support), C (grid support), and D (filament support).

D.E.3 electrode system, side view. All parts accurately made to measure by machine figs. Assembled under individual supervision.

All-Bakelite base. Low self-capacity. Wide collar at top (firm grip for inserting and withdrawing valve). Moulded rib on same side as anode pin (ready identification of anode pin by touch. Obviates "burn out" due to incorrect insertion).

To get the best out of your set, put the best into your set. Fit the right valve for your individual needs.

The most efficient electrode system for one type of valve is not necessarily the best for other types. The electrode system of each type of the "Valve in the Purple Box" is the result of scientific determination of the best design for the conditions under which it is to be used.

A noteworthy example is

a General Purpose Valve for use with dry batteries, or 4-volt accumulators.

REDUCED PRICE 16/6

Outstanding features:

FILAMENT.

Although current consumption is only .06 amp., electron emission equals that of a bright emitter taking over twelve times the current. The filament does not depend for its emission on a substance coated on the outside which rapidly wears away in use. The active material permeates the whole of the filament.

GRID.

Special machinery provides for abnormally high exactness of manufacture. Spiral grid, each turn welded to grid support. Full control over electron emission ensured.

PLATE.

Most rigid construction employed (spot welding). Active portion of filament entirely enclosed.

The most economical valve in the world!

Ping! and never a discord from the Loud Speaker

EVER since the first Dull Emitters were used, wireless enthusiasts knew that microphonic noises seemed inevitable. A touch on the table—an adjustment of a rheostat—even vibration set up by passing traffic—and a succession of discords would mar the pleasure of otherwise perfect Loud Speaker reproduction.

So acute has become this problem of preventing microphonic noises when Dull Emitters are used that various ingenious shock-proof valve-holders are on the market. All these devices are merely the outcome of an endeavour to eliminate harmful vibration. They are just an effort to improve an admitted defect.

But there is now available a Dull Emitter which does not need the aid of any form of shock-proof valve-holder—the new Cossor Wuncell. And here microphonic noises have been completely banished by the simple expedient of improving the design of the valve itself.

Everyone should know that these noises are principally caused by the vibration of two parts—the filament and the Grid.

In the ordinary Dull Emitter the filament is long, straight and slender. It is usually supported in a vertical position and kept taut by means of two electrodes sprung apart. The Grid is generally a spiral of wire. With such a design, therefore, the risk of vibration is very grave.

But the Wuncell employs an entirely different principle. Its filament is arched and stayed at its centre by means of a third support. Its Grid is also arched in formation and built up on a stout metal grid band—each turn of the wire being anchored in three distinct places. The result is that the Wuncell is to all intents and purposes quite vibration-proof. The technical staff of Amateur Wireless reported that "... the valves are entirely free from microphonic noises. In fact no disturbances were heard when the bench on which the Valves were placed was thumped hard."

But the absence of microphonic noises is only one distinctive feature of the Wuncell. Every user marvels at its wonderful sensitiveness, its unprecedented volume and its exceptionally long life. If you have not yet investigated its merits see your Dealer about it at once, or write to us for interesting descriptive literature.

Wuncell Dull Emitters

Types W1, W2 & W3

W1 is the Detector Valve, W2 (with red top) is the H.F. amplifier specially designed for long-distance use. W3 is the new Cossor Loud Speaker Valve. All function at 1.8 volts.

Types WR1 & WR2

To enable users of multi-valve Sets to try out Wuncells along with their existing bright emitter valves from a 4- or 6-volt accumulator, we are also supplying them with a resistance incorporated within the base. In all other respects the WR1 and WR2 correspond exactly to the W1 and W2. When not required, the resistances can be short-circuited and the valves operated at their normal voltage of 1.5 volts.

Take your Radio with you

When you go away on your holidays there is no necessity to deprive yourself of the joys of Broadcasting.

A portable set will give you music wherever you are. Get ready now. June "Modern Wireless" contains an interesting article on "Portable Sets and Their Uses," by Percy W. Harris, M.I.R.E.

You are shown just how you can get the most out of a portable set under all conditions.

"A Two-Valve Portable Set," illustrated above, is described by A. S. Clark. Full constructional details are given showing explicitly how the enthusiast can build this compact and useful receiver.

John Scott-Taggart, M.C., F.Inst.P., A.M.I.E.E., the Editor, continues his very interesting article on "A Nine-Valve Supersonic Heterodyne Receiver."

Those interested in multi-valve set construction will find the article on "How to Make a Four-Valve Tricoil Receiver," by C. P. Allinson, of special interest, describing fully, as it does, the building of a novel and efficient four-valve receiver.

The June issue of "Modern Wireless" also contains numerous hints and tips of great value to all radio enthusiasts.

"WOULD YOU BE SO GOOD—?"

WHEN YOU move up from the wireless which perhaps you now have, to a Cosmos Radio Valve Set, it will be just as though you had moved in the concert-hall from a place not very good for hearing to a place in the very centre where you get the music to the best advantage. It is parallel to the thing which happens to you in a theatre when you have induced the lady to remove her hat. In the one case you see the other two-thirds of the stage. In the other case you hear the other two-thirds of the music. For that is what the Cosmos Radio Valve Sets do: they give you all the music; balanced, not compressed and distorted; coloured, not plain; pour it out like wine and not like water. This is why they have been called the Musicians' Sets. Musical people delight in them for their sheer musical virtuosity.

Defy the Demon

Baffle the demon of summer wireless!
Checkmate the danger of his lightning and stop his thefts of your signal strength!
Climax ensures your safety and your signals.

THE CLIMAX LIGHTNING ARRESTER.

Made on the multi-gap, quenched spark principle. Provides atmospheric space charges and lightning discharges with a straight path to earth of very low reluctance. Protects the set whether in use or not. NO SWITCHES NECESSARY. The mica insulating discs and series multiple gaps ensure complete absence of shunting effect, leaving your signals at maximum strength. High tension discharges are broken up between the several gaps provided. This system greatly reduces the destructive nature of the discharge. Several gaps in series, mica insulated and metal cooled, are obviously a very safe form of protection. The glass cover protects the gaps from becoming semi-conducting due to dirt, damp or other interference. Equipped with a Climax Lightning Arrester, an aerial is a positive protection against lightning, instead of being a source of danger. Price 7/6, complete, ready to fix.

THE CLIMAX JUNIOR CRYSTAL SET DE LUXE.

A very attractive crystal set in a small, beautifully finished mahogany case, carrying a brilliantly polished panel with silver finished fittings. The detector is the well-known Climax Sure-Set Plug-in detector, fitted with micrometer adjustment. This detector can be set quickly and easily, and is very stable when set. It has all the advantages of a permanent detector, with the advantage that you can adjust it. The miniature switch enables the wave length to be changed over to Chelmsford without using any loading coils.

Tuning is by variometer, and is very sharp and efficient. When not in use, the aerial can be switched direct to earth. Price 21/-.
The highest possible grade of crystal set at the lowest possible price.

INSIST ON THE NAME "CLIMAX." REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

Every Climax product is clearly marked with the name "Climax." In case of difficulty, or if substitutes are offered you, send your order direct to us, together with P.O., and we will send the goods by return.

THE NEW CLIMAX AERIAL INSULATOR.

(Registered Design No. 708718). This will stand four times the flash over voltage of the ordinary cheap shell or egg insulator, while it has far less capacity to earth. It is made of the same High Tension vitreous porcelain as the 100,000-volt insulators on High Power transmission lines. It will stand a direct pull of hundreds of pounds. It is entirely non-hygroscopic. It cannot absorb moisture even if fractured. IT INSULATES PERFECTLY DURING RAINFALL. It is self-cleaning on all surfaces. Price per pair 1/-.
THE CLIMAX INSULATED SHOCK ABSORBER SET. Comprising set of four Climax 100-000-volt aerial insulators and 1 foot Climax Aerial shock absorber. Price 2/6 per box.

WONDERFUL OFFER

OF

Louden Valves

DULL EMITTERS AT 8/- & 9/-.

FOR 14 DAYS ONLY.

THE Louden 4 Volt and 6 Volt Dull Emitters consume only 0.1 amperes in the filament. This is approximately one-seventh of the current consumed by most bright emitters of other makes.

If instead of these ordinary bright emitters you use Louden Dull Emitters in your set your accumulators will last seven times as long and your accumulator bills will be reduced to one-seventh. This will effect a considerable saving in a year's broadcasting expenditure, especially if you possess a multi-valve receiver.

An added advantage is that you can substitute Louden Dull Emitters for your bright emitters straight away and without having to make any alterations or additions at all to your filament resistances or set. It is also possible to use this valve in conjunction with a bright emitter, e.g., a bright emitter in the detector stage and a dull emitter Louden in the L.F. position or vice versa.

The 4 Volt Valve normally costs 12/- and the 6 Volt 13/6. For 14 days, however, we are making the wonderful offer detailed below so that every member of the wireless public can have the opportunity of testing this valve for himself at a specially reduced figure.

We are also requesting the name of your local retailer so that in future an adequate and steady supply of these valves will be secured in every part of the country.

Remember! This offer lasts only 14 days.

OUR OFFER.

Send direct to us at Park Royal, Willesden, a remittance of 8/- for the 4 Volt or 9/- for the 6 Volt Dull Emitter, plus 3d. to cover postage. We will then forward you in a sealed carton a brand new dull emitter bearing the usual guarantee.

Since this offer is made only for the reasons given above not more than two Louden Valves will be supplied on these terms to any one person.

LOUD SPEAKERS AND HEADPHONES

Nothing but the best will satisfy "Sparks"*

THROUGHOUT the world there is no better Headphone than the famous Brown A-type. Ships' operators—on whom may depend the tremendous responsibility of sending or receiving an S.O.S.—invariably demand Brown Headphones. They know that for sensitiveness and reliability these fine instruments are entirely without equal.

The well-proved principle of the tuned reed and aluminium diaphragm which is the exclusive feature of Brown A headphones, is also incorporated in all Brown Loud Speakers. Broadcast enthusiasts have long since realised that for pure tone and exceptional volume the Brown stands in a class by itself.

*"Sparks" is the nickname of the ship's wireless operator, just as "Chips" is the name given to the ship's carpenter.

Voiced Like an Organ

The voice is in the mouth of the horn and not in the box.

FOR true reproduction a Loud Speaker should amplify the vibrations of the diaphragm. It should not add any Harmonics, or take any away.

In certain types of organ pipes, it is necessary to produce the pure fundamental tones. The lip of the pipe is the place where the voicer's art is applied to obtain this result. The lip of the Loud Speaker is the part which has to be considered for fine reproduction. You appreciate MUSIC. You will appreciate the RADIOSUN. In sunlit mahogany finish.

Of WORLD WIDE Interest

is the fact that the HOUSE OF GRAHAM had the honour of being permitted to undertake a public address installation in St. Peter's Cathedral in Rome, on Sunday, May 17th, 1925.

Owing to the Supreme efficiency of their instruments the whole service, held by His Holiness the Pope—the prayers, speech and music—was perfectly reproduced to many thousands of people assembled from all countries of the globe to witness this unique ceremony.

The installation was carried out under the supervision of British engineers using throughout Graham "Public Address" equipment and

Enduring Sensitivity

Two large pieces of crystal, together with the essential Palladium catwhisker 2/- From your dealer or send to The Brownie Wireless Co. (of Gt. Britain), Ltd., Incorporating the J. W. & Co. Wireless Company, 110a-112a, Euston Road, N.W.1. (Facing Warren Street Tube Station.)

When you first use D.L.5 Crystal its amazing sensitivity is at once apparent. The concerts broadcast "come through" with a remarkable degree of sustained volume. Yet perhaps its most advantageous feature is the longevity of its sensitivity. Long after you expect it to deteriorate it is rectifying with the same degree of voluminous clarity. Get a box of D.L.5 to-day and discover how good crystal reception can be.

Lightning!

Convert your aerial into an absolute protection, by means of a Pressland Safety Lead-in. Without this device you run the risk of destruction of property, fire—maybe loss of life.

A house with an aerial and a Pressland Safety Lead-in is safer than a house without an aerial. It is futile to connect aerial and earth terminals on yourself, or to adopt any device that does not connect aerial to earth outside the house. Lightning will not follow angles; it takes a straight line. The Pressland Safety Lead-in puts the aerial lead and the earth in a straight line, has self-contained discharge gap, and provides for an external earth-rod.

The Pressland Safety Lead-in protects you—and gives £100 Free Guarantee.

Each Pressland Safety Lead-in includes a Free Insurance Policy, against loss or damage to property (including third party).

"A Garden of Music"

The glory of a garden is one of Nature's fairest gifts. The ever-forward march of radio science has added a new wonder to its beauty. For with Sterling Radio a garden may be filled with the charm of music that lends enchantment to idle hours or with syncopation for the dance al fresco. Let Sterling Radio give a new meaning to the joys that a garden in summer can bring.

Your radio dealer can show you a Sterling 4-Valve Receiver (at £26, accessories and royalty extra) and a Sterling

"Baby" Loud Speaker (at 50/-). And a demonstration will quickly prove that here is an ideal combination for indoor or outdoor use. There is no better example of the axiom that "those who buy Sterling buy best," for Sterling Radio ever gives tone-perfect reproduction of broadcast music, song and speech.
