Radio and the Crook.

By Sir BASIL THOMSON, K.C.B.

This article, by the former Chief of Scotland Yard, raises some important points in connection with broadcasting police news. Under its licence, the B.B.C. is obliged to broadcast all announcements required by Government Departments. Police notices are few and far between; but some listeners have objected to their introduction into the programmes on the ground that they prejudice artistic unity and spoil otherwise good entertainment. While anxious to avoid any interference with its programmes, the B.B.C. feels that it can render an additional service to the community by assisting in the detection of criminals.

ONE of the three sections of the International Prison Congress held in London recently was devoted to the question of the international criminal, who has become a problem in every European country, especially on the Continent. He loomed before the war; he suffered a temporary eclipse during hostilities, and for a year or two after the Armistice, on account of the stringency of the passport regulations; but, having now specialized in the art of fabricating false papers, he has come into his own again, and "his own" are the law-abiding in all countries.

Whether he is confidence man, or professional gambler, or pickpocket, or luggage thief, depends upon the season or the circumstances. The essential is that there should be a small gang, of whom the individuals appear to be unknown to one another, and of whom one or more has the gift of tongues. They are persons of ingratiating manners, convincing in argument and retiring in habit, ever ready to do some trifling service for a fellow-traveller which will give them an excuse for further acquaintance. Each of them has an assortment of names and nationalities, with passports to match them, and each is ready to flit over the nearest frontier at five minutes' notice on the completion of a successful coup, or a hint of suspicion on the part of the police.

Sir BASIL THOMSON.

But not together: from that moment they are strangers, and if they are constrained by the urgency of the case to cross the same frontier by the same train, it is in different compartments and with a new set of names to match one of the passports which they carry in reserve. It is a life of adventure that must be great fun until the inevitable end, when some misadventure lands them in a foreign prison.

One of the facts brought to light at the Congress by a foreign police officer was the difficulty of identification and the fatal delay in passing on the information to the police of the neighbouring States. Let us assume that a gang in Switzerland has just succeeded in obtaining valuable jewellery by a trick, and that the victim of the fraud goes to the police an hour too late. The police take down a descrip-

Poetry For The Plain Man.

A Suggestion to the Programme Builders.

MANY who know nothing of poetry, past or present, who have read no verse since they left school, would find their interest awakened if they listened to some of the best poetry read aloud by a poet.

There are many more willing to listen to poetry than there are those willing to read it for themselves. The unmusical can get much pleasure through hearing good music. The man with no poetry in his make-up cannot, by reading alone, obtain equal enjoyment. One might as well expect the unmusical to interpret from the old notation. And there are more barriers between the artist and the Philistine in poetry than there are in music; they are, perhaps, not so obvious. The fact that you can read prose no more implies that you can read poetry with understanding than the fact that you sing in your bath means that you can interpret Wagner.

No "Reciters," Please!

John Drinkwater writes, in "The Muse in Council," that "to value poetry for its message or the nature of its philosophic content is to misunderstand its very nature." The poet's statement can be applied to the foregoing argument.

It is the feeling that we are untrained and ill-equipped technically for the right understanding of poetry that keeps so many of us away from the poets. A few impatient attempts have proved to us that we do not get the same satisfaction from the reading of poetry as we obtain from prose and so we have taken refuge henceforth, whenever the subject has come up, behind the abrupt assertion that we are "not keen on poetry."

The B.B.C. can do good work here; they can prove to those to whom "not being keen" on poetry has become a habit that reading poetry for oneself and listening to it being read by an artist—as it should be read—are as different as the vamping of the smoking concert pianist from the artistry of Maurice Cole.

Many listeners would, I feel sure, be glad of regular opportunities of hearing poetry read by those who are competent to interpret it. (But save us from the reciter! Do not let me be misunderstood: I make no plea for "recitations," in the popular sense of the word! Let "reciters" keep to the "Green Tail of the Little Yellow Dog," "The Dustman's Wedding," and like masterpieces.)

Humble Music-Makers.

To return to poetry . . . I have just finished reading Robert Southey's essay "The Lives and Works of the Uneducated Poets." This has suggested the idea that the B.B.C. might give us an interesting half-hour with these poets who wrote from the heart rather than from the head. There is something of value for most of us in the works of the shoemakers, domestic servants, bricklayers, and other manual workers who turned to song for expression, scarce knowing, at first, why they sang.

A programme of this type would, I hope, include the story of John Gregory, Bristol's cobbler poet, to whom Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman granted a State pension. The Times, referring to Gregory's "My Garden," declared the volume to be "the work of a rarer, sweeter mind than Burns, and of a better singer than Bloomfield" (the farmer's boy). The songs of that fine poet and super-tramp, W. H. Davies, would also be included in our programme; those of Swindon's poet, too—a poet in Swindon!—Alfred Williams, the self-taught literary blacksmith, who, from the murk and clangour of the factory, caught the fragrance of flowers and the music of birds:

"Come into the woods, the wild birds are singing,
The white hawthorn's scents waft into the wind,
The skylark is up and the sweet bells are ringing,
Young Pleasure's before and old Sorrow behind.

"Founded on the Heart of Men."

Yes, a talk about our "peasant poets," outlining their life-stories and quoting the best of their thoughts, might help to stimulate the interest of some who are "not keen on poetry." Southey's "Uneducated Poets" could be taken as the introductory "talking point." Then, having dealt with John Jones—that admirable butler if somewhat uninspired poet; Stephen Duck, farm worker; James Woodhouse, shoemaker; and the others, our guide would lead us to Burns and Clare—peasants both—and so to the others. Thus might we learn that poetry need not be so far removed from our workaday lives as many of us imagine; that it can prove a very solid prop in times of soul-weariness. We should begin to realize the truth of Gordon Bottomley's grand lines:—

"Poetry is founded on the hearts of men . . .
O, years and tides and leagues and all their billows
Can alter not man's knowledge of men's hearts—
While trees and rocks and clouds include our being
We know the epics of Atlantis still."

let us say, in Paris. France at once becomes an unhealthy country. Every hotel porter, every café waiter whose glance appears to linger over his features, fills him with alarm. But to what asylum can he turn? The same message, he feels sure, must have reached Brussels and Madrid: the Fascist police must be on the watch for him on the Italian frontier; Czecho-Slovakia and Austria, as he knows from former experience, have a distressingly active and inquisitive police, and if he goes further East into the Balkan States, there are no foreign tourists to prey upon.

The broadcasting of information about travelling gangs might usefully be brought into practice at once by an arrangement between the Departments of Justice and the broadcasting companies. As far as the ordinary subscriber is concerned, messages of this kind would provide a mild stimulus. He has to listen, or to abstain from listening, to a good deal of matter in which he is not interested. An announcement of this sort in the general news would serve to remind him, even in the most remote backwater, that the tide of human life is still surging, and that at any moment a florid man of about forty, 5ft. 9ins. in height, with light hair thinning on the temples, blue eyes and a cropped moustache, with more than the usual share of surnames and a strong suspicion of having robbed an English maiden lady of her jewels, may be coming to take refuge in his village.

On Sunday, August 16th, a full church service will be relayed from the Dundee Station. The service, held in Dundee Parish Church (St. Mary's), will be conducted by the Rev. Olin McKendree Jones, M.A., of Philadelphia, U.S.A.

tion of the men, only to find that they left their hotels that very morning. They are traced to the railway station, where men resembling the description took the train to Paris. It is not enough to telegraph their description to Paris, for at any point in the journey they may have left the train and doubled back into Belgium, or Germany, or Austria, and to send lengthy descriptive telegrams to the police of twenty-four countries on the chance would entail a waste of public money, besides a gradual weakening of police vigilance when a number of such telegrams has been found to lead to nothing.

The police officer I have spoken of proposed an international register based upon the fingerprint system, to which every nation would contribute information. Other speakers advocated an International Bureau which would be responsible for circulating descriptions of only the most dangerous cases, and that whenever a case occurs of the nature described above, all the Swiss police would have to do would be to telegraph to the neighbouring country the number given in the register to the persons who most resemble the description and ask for their provisional arrest.

No speaker suggested what seems to me to be a far more speedy means of conveying the warning—namely, the wireless. There will, doubtless, come a time when the Central Police Office of every country will be in communication with its sub-offices by wireless of a special wavelength; but before that can be adapted to international police messages, it ought to be possible to mobilize the broadcasting stations of all nations to the extent of repeating S.O.S. messages from the police which would be picked up in every police station in the country. Such messages would have no element of secrecy; there are times when the widest publicity is of great service to the police. The more people are put upon their guard against an international gang, the better for Society and the worse for the gang, for the one atmosphere that is fatal to the international criminal is the atmosphere of suspicion.

To those who take their annual holiday abroad without suffering from the pickpocket or the luggage thief, or even from the attentions of the cardsharp, all this may seem like using a steam-hammer to crack a walnut; but, apart from the misery he causes to some unfortunate tourist, the professional criminal is a real enemy to international trade and to mutual confidence between nations.

Moreover, a successful gang is a recruiting centre for young criminals who judge from its skill in evading arrest that the game is a safe one. A few successful arrests have a very depressing effect upon the international swindler: he is not the superman represented in fiction, but is a hard man of business with a keen appreciation of profits and losses. A conviction spells ruin, for it means that his finger-impressions will be taken and no change of dress and appearance will avail him if he be caught again. His outfit of false names and false papers then become a positive danger, for if he is recognized when in possession of them, a long term of imprisonment is certain.

Nor need we be afraid of broadcast messages being heard by the subject of them, who is far too busy over his exciting work to have time for listening. If, by accident, he should overhear the broadcast message which concerns him, it would be all to the good. He overhears it,

Radio in a Flat.

By Robert Magill.

I ALWAYS like to be a little ray of sunshine, and when I am asked out, I usually take my portable set. I admit that I can't always get it to behave itself, and once, in a rash moment, after I had promised to get America, I found it was going to be more difficult than I thought, for I had brought my portable typewriter in mistake, and you can't tune in properly to KDKA with a back-spacer!

Nevertheless, it's a good idea. Just about the time when little seven-year-old Edith with the plaits gets up to recite "It wath the thchooner Hethperuth," I manage to get a wave-length that howls like a sick cat, and that changes the subject.

Too Much Publicity.

Consequently, when Jimson asked me to go round the other evening, I took the little case with the electric lights in it.

Now, Jimson lives on the second floor of a six-storey block of mansion flats. There are flats behind, and flats in front, flats on each side—flats, flats, everywhere, but never a place to live, so to speak. For a flat never is a real home. There is too much publicity. You always know when the people at 93 have got onions for supper, and when the man three floors higher drops a lead pencil, it sounds as though he was laying lino with a steam-roller. And everybody hates everybody else. You can't be friendly with a man who gets up at dawn and sings "Yo-ho" sea songs in his bath.

It struck me that Jimson looked sad when I explained what I'd brought, and he took me out into the back courtyard and told me to look up. I looked up. The whole face of that block was covered with so much wire that it looked like the tangled undergrowth on a cliff. Some went one way, some another, and some both way.

Awkward!

"They're the other people's aeriols," said Jimson, mournfully. "And I don't know why it is, but although under normal circumstances they might be decent human beings, when they live in flats, you'd think they were cannibals. Only last night that awful woman who lives on the ground floor asked me to refrain from emptying water down the waste pipe, because she'd got her earth fixed to it, and the gurgling tickled her ears."

We went indoors.

"I shouldn't unpack that thing if I were you," said Jimson. "Listen!"

A loud speaker in the room above us announced to an anxious world that the London Station was about to do something that we never distinguished, because just at that moment another loud speaker in the room below got Bournemouth, and we heard both programmes simultaneously.

The Man Who Didn't Listen.

The one on the left, not to be outdone, defiantly reached into the tortured ether and collected Birmingham, while the miscreant on the other side contemptuously dallied with Madrid.

"There's only one man in the block who doesn't listen," said Jimson, "and that's the professor on the top floor. He's too highbrow. He told me so himself."

Just then there was a knock on the door. It was the professor.

"Er—I—the fact is—" he said, eloquently. "I say, old chap, could you lend me a screw-driver?"

Jimson said, "Et tu, Brute?" and slammed the door.

If anybody wants a nice, comfortable flat, that would suit someone with musical tastes, Jimson knows of one. And there's no premium.

Writer of Two Thousand Songs.

Edward Teschemacher Tells His Story. By A. B. Cooper.

IF to write the songs of a nation is a greater service than to make its laws, then Edward Teschemacher—the name by which Mr. Edward Lockton is known to millions of music lovers and concert-goers wherever the English language is spoken and sung—has served well his day and generation. He has published upwards of two thousand four hundred, and, seeing that these include "Because," "Where My Caravan Has Rested," "Down Vauxhall Way," "Until," "I Know a Lovely Garden," "Shipmates o' Mine," "O Lovely Night," and "Tommy Lad," it will be granted that quality has not been sacrificed to quantity.

An Endless File.

One would imagine it to be a hard task to find a composer of repute who had not at one time or another set an Edward Teschemacher lyric to music. For many years Mr. Fred Weatherly, K.C., has been Mr. Edward Lockton's only rival in the number and variety of his lyrics written expressly for music; he, too, has collaborated with hundreds of composers, while Edward Teschemacher has had his lyrics set by Tosti, Sir Frederick Cowen, Leoncavallo, Sir Landon Ronald, Montague Phillips, Eric Coates, Haydn Wood, Teresa del Riego, Wilfrid Sanderson, Easthope Martin, Frances Allitsen, Hermann Löhr, Herbert Oliver, W. H. Squire, Guy d'Hardelot, Evelyn Sharpe, etc.

"There they are!" said Mr. Lockton, who, despite his record output of songs, is still on the sunny side of fifty, when I called upon him in his pleasant home up Hampstead way, pointing to an apparently endless file of uniformly-bound volumes. "Every song I ever wrote is there."

The Gardening Expert.

"I started when I was but sixteen, and had five songs published when I was a school-boy. What is more, in those young and callow years, I tackled not only the words, but the music also. No! Wild horse could not drag their titles from me. 'Requiescat in pace' is their fitting epitaph. There are thirty of them in all. I thought I was destined to be a composer in those days. We all have our delusions. That was mine!"

"By the time I reached the mature age of twenty-one, my published songs numbered a hundred. The first composer other than myself to set a lyric of mine was Richard H. Walthew, but my first big success came with my association with Madame Guy d'Hardelot."

It was no accident that Mr. Lockton's first great success should be "I Know a Lovely Garden," set, as everybody knows, by Guy d'Hardelot. When one comes to investigate origins, few such things can be set down wholly to chance. The fact is that Mr. Lockton is such a gardening expert that for many years he wrote one of the best-known and best-informed gardening articles in the London morning press, although few were aware of this.

Composed in a Hammock.

Though he now lives nearer town, much of his life has been spent in a Chiltern Hill village, and here he had such a charming garden that his friends used to ask him if it did not inspire him, and whether he did not feel drawn to make a song about it. When the song did come, it came in five minutes, and in a hammock!

"I suppose I must have composed song-words in and under all imaginable circumstances," he said. "The top of a 'bus is a very inspiring spot. Why it should be is hard to tell. I wrote 'Because' on the summit of Leith Hill; 'When the Great Red Dawn Is Shining' in the gardens of Buckingham Palace, where I did Special Constable duty during the war;

'Tommy Lad' in a Head Master's study; 'O Lovely Night' in the woods near Chillon, and 'Songs of the Air Service'—the work of half an hour—in the train.

"It is surprising what a number of things set one writing songs," said Mr. Lockton. "But of all these things books are the foremost springs of inspiration and ideas. I do not read in order to write. I read for my own pleasure and instruction. I do not, for instance, say to myself: 'I will write a cycle of songs entitled: "Songs of the Norseland," and not being a Norseman myself, and knowing only by hearsay anything about their land, I will forthwith read it up.' By no means! I am naturally fond of travel books, and when I come across a book on Norway, say, I read it, and having, I suppose, an absorbent mind, I feel I am there. I get the atmosphere and the result is the Norseland Songs.

"Songs of Old London."

"I read a book about Australia, and it 'follows as the day the night' that I produce forthwith 'Six Australian Bush Songs.' I read a book about travels in Roumania, its people and customs, and another on the Far East, and presently there appear song-cycles entitled: 'Songs of Roumania,' and 'Songs of the Orient.' I have written over sixty song-cycles.

"In a similar way, a chance visit to the Guildhall Library in quest of something quite different proved the genesis of the most popular of all these song-cycles—'Songs of Old London,' and still another in which I use the melodious and very quaint London Cries as refrains.

"I think the reason why I have been able to please so many composers with my words, and singers with my songs, is my habit of talking to vocalists and trying to ascertain at first hand what they like, the sort of thing that pleases them best.

But Mr. Lockton has still another string to his bow. He has not only written songs of his own, but has translated many songs from other languages. Thus he has translated Parsifal, Brahms' Requiem and over three hundred classical and other songs by such composers as Schubert, Schumann, Tchaikovsky, Liszt, Franz and many others.

Why Be A Poet?

"I don't aim at anything approaching a literal translation. What I try to do is to make the song I translate sound like an English song. I catch the sentiment, the idea, then go my own way, singing over the words until they seem to fit like the proverbial glove. Caruso used to sing my version of Leoncavallo's 'Mattinata,' which I call 'Tis the Day,' and the serenade 'O Sole Mio!' is my successful song, 'Beneath Thy Window.' Robert Hichens quotes my translation of Brahms' Wiegenlied in his novel, 'In the Wilderness.'

"And, in conclusion, let me tell a story about an old-fashioned publisher of my early days to whom I went to 'trade' a lyric. He was a man of few words, and either very busy, or pretending to be. He asked me shortly what I wanted for my verses and I said five guineas. He said 'One guinea.' I said that I objected to parting with the offspring of my brain for so small a sum. He lifted his brows and said 'Why?' 'Because,' said I, 'I think they are too good to sell for such a price.' Again he said 'Why?' 'Well,' I said, 'I've taken a lot of trouble to make them perfect!' He lifted his eyebrows higher still and murmured: 'Why?' 'Oh, well,' I said, a little nettled, 'dash it all, even a poet must live.' 'Why?' said the publisher."

Official News and Views. GOSSIP ABOUT BROADCASTING

Mr. Bransby Williams' Engagement.

MR. BRANSBY WILLIAMS, the eminent Dickens character actor, has been engaged to appear at the London Station during the week beginning August 24th. On Monday, Wednesday, and Friday Mr. Bransby Williams will be heard at 10.15 p.m., and on Saturday at 10.30 p.m. It is probable that on Monday and Friday Mr. Bransby Williams will be simultaneously broadcast to other stations.

Mr. Desmond MacCarthy.

In connection with the prospective development of the Educational and Literary side of the programmes, Mr. Desmond MacCarthy, Literary Editor of the New Statesman and well-known critic and litterateur, will begin a new fortnightly series of book reviews on September 22nd. Mr. John Strachey will continue his association with the B.B.C. in another capacity of equal importance and perhaps greater novelty. Particulars of this will be announced later.

"By The Way."

Excerpts from the popular revue By the Way, which is running at the Apollo Theatre, London, will be broadcast (S.B.) for twenty-five minutes from London Station at 10.40 p.m. on Friday, August 14th. A sketch, songs, and a dialogue will be given, and Mr. Jack Hulbert, Miss Cicely Courtneidge, and Mr. Harold French will be heard.

Tapping Cambridge.

Last week we announced that it had been decided to establish a switching point at Oxford. This idea has now been extended to include Cambridge, which probably will have its switching centre also. There need, therefore, be no misgiving on the score of the B.B.C. favouring the dark blues! Features of the life of both Universities will be carried by wireless into the homes of listeners.

Wireless League Policy.

Sir Arthur Stanley's recent broadcast statement of the policy of the Wireless League indicated that the new organization of listeners definitely associates itself with the endeavours of the B.B.C. to make British broadcasting an auxiliary to education and citizenship as well as a purveyor of wholesome entertainment. It is gratifying to note also that the Wireless League recognizes the importance of the public service conception of broadcasting. The Wireless League now takes its place beside the Radio Association and the Radio Society of Great Britain as a colleague in the common cause of safeguarding and advancing the interests of wireless and wireless broadcasting.

Ulster Ceidilith.

The Ceidilith (pronounced "Caley"), to be produced for the third time by the Radio Players at the Belfast Station on Wednesday, represents a farmhouse kitchen in County Down, with songs and music characteristic of the occasion; and the racy dialogue of the Irish countryside. This has been arranged and produced by Mr. Charles K. Ayre, a leading member of the Belfast Radio Players, and well known as actor and playwright in connection with the Ulster Literary Theatre.

A "Radio Radiance" Revival.

On August 15th, at 9.0 p.m. the second edition of Radio Radiance will be revived by another production from the London Station. This experiment in the new technique of Radio Radiance is proving immensely popular and points the way to great possibilities in the future. It is now proved that vision is not essential in the interpretation of Revue as adapted for broadcasting.

The Radio Revel.

Plans are going ahead for the great Radio Revel announced here last week. This will take place about the middle of November and will mark the third birthday of the British Broadcasting service. Unfortunately we find that the Albert Hall will not be available for the purpose. Another London venue is now being sought. Listeners all over the country can look forward to a really great occasion, probably on the night of Friday, November 13th. Whatever profits accrue will be devoted to the "Wireless for the Wards" Fund, organised by the Daily News.

Voices from the Past.

The British Museum authorities have approved in principle the proposal of the B.B.C. to reproduce the gramophone records of the voices of great men. Unfortunately, most of these records are defective, and a good deal will have to be done in the way of correction and amplification before they can be broadcast satisfactorily. By a curious coincidence, the letter from a listener on this subject, which we publish in another column, reached us when the negotiations with the British Museum were

THE PRIME MINISTER TO THE B.B.C. on the occasion of the opening of the new "5XX."

I CONFESS to a feeling of keen disappointment at my inability to attend the opening of the new Wireless Broadcasting Station at Daventry.

It is not too much to say that broadcasting is already contributing appreciably to the happiness and knowledge of the present generation. The opening of the Wireless Broadcasting Station at Daventry—the highest powered station at present in the world—will give no less than twenty million people the opportunity to receive both education and entertainment by means of cheap and simple apparatus; and I look upon Daventry as another milestone on the road to the social betterment of our people.

STANLEY BALDWIN.

in progress. The reproduction of the voices of distinguished men, if it proves technically feasible, opens up great possibilities for the appropriate celebration of anniversaries by wireless.

Our American Cousins.

Dr. Sigel Roush, who will give a "Travelogue" from the London Station on Monday, August 10th, on the subject of "The Eastern Mountains of the United States," declares that his object is "To better acquaint the great middle-class of the British public with the public of the same stratum of the American society, and thereby create a better understanding and lasting spirit of fellowship between us as individuals and as nations."

Dr. Roush will tell us how Americans spend their summer holidays on motor tours, in camp, and cooking at the roadside. He will also have something to say about how the American uses his gun and rod on holiday.

Miss Beatrice Miranda at Aberdeen.

On Thursday evening, August 20th, Miss Beatrice Miranda, the British National Opera Company artist, will be heard from the Aberdeen Station for the first time. This feature is being anticipated with keen interest by Aberdeen listeners.

The Daventry Programmes.

The programmes of the new permanent High-Power Station are to include the best programmes of London and occasionally a special programme from other main stations. In addition Daventry will provide a certain number of programmes of its own which will be alternative to those of its listeners within range of other stations.

Not a Dumping Ground.

The experiments at Chelmsford have convinced the B.B.C. that it would not be the best policy to use Daventry as purely a distributing centre for alternative programmes. The greater part of the area served by Daventry is not covered also by other stations, and it would be unfair to deprive listeners in this area of the best London programmes and selected programmes from elsewhere. Daventry listeners, therefore, need entertain no fear that the new "5XX" is to be used as a dumping ground for material not wanted by other stations. "5XX" programmes should prove to be of greater variety and of more general interest than any other programme in the country, and for that matter in the world.

Alternative Programmes.

It is too early yet to lay down a schedule of the relaying of Dominion and foreign programmes through Daventry. The series of experiments in this connection will begin in September. It is anticipated that during the coming winter the Daventry programmes will contain a regular admixture of the best programmes abroad.

But Daventry does not solve the problem of adequate alternative programmes. To provide these the B.B.C. must secure a considerable extension of the facilities so far authorized by the Postmaster-General. There is no doubt of the reality of the demand for regular alternative programmes in all parts of the country. Judging from his speech at the opening of Daventry, the Postmaster-General is alive to this demand. After making due allowance for the difficulties of adjusting the rival claims of other services, we believe that he will find it possible to grant the facilities required for the further necessary development of the British broadcasting system, if its present margin of superiority over other systems is to be maintained.

"I Pagliacci" at London.

On Tuesday, August 18th, London Station will give a special production of I Pagliacci, perhaps the most popular of the works of Ruggiero Leoncavallo, who is regarded as the principal representative of the young school of Italian opera composers, which include Mascagni, Puccini, and Giordano. In the forthcoming London Station production, the leading rôle, that of Canio, will be taken by the famous Greek tenor, Ulysses Lappas, who distinguished himself at Covent Garden in the recent Italian season. Miss Miriam Licette will take Nedda, and Mr. Harold Williams Tonio. Mr. Herbert Thorpe and Mr. Dennis Noble are also included in the cast. The conductor is Mr. Aybner Buesst, whose fine Wagner Symphony Concert will be remembered by London listeners.

A Lighter Sunday Programme.

On Sunday afternoon, August 16th, the programme from Glasgow Station will be a light classical one, including the Symphony in D by Haydn, and the Suite No. 2 in B Minor (Strings and Flute) by Bach. Another interesting item will be the second and third movements from the Concerto for Piano and Orchestra in A Major, by Mozart, the soloist being Mr. Andrew Bryson, supported by the Station Orchestra.

PEOPLE YOU WILL HEAR THIS WEEK.

[Hona.
Miss WYNNE AJELLO (Soprano) will sing next week from London and "5XX," Manchester, Belfast, Glasgow, and Aberdeen.

[Harris.
Mr. JACK HULBERT, the popular Comedy Actor, playing a leading part in the revue "By the Way," which is being relayed from the Apollo Theatre on August 10th.

[Hona.
Miss MURIEL WHITE (Pianoforte Entertainer), who will visit Cardiff, Birmingham, Glasgow, Aberdeen, and Newcastle Stations during the week.

Mr. LOUIS GODOWSKI (Violinist) will broadcast from London and Daventry on August 9th.

[Stage Photo Co.
Miss CICELY COURTNEIDGE, the charming actress, who will be heard in "By the Way" on Friday.

[Maurice Beck & Macgregor.
Miss CONSTANCE IZARD (Violinist), to play at Manchester on August 13th, Birmingham on August 14th, and Cardiff on August 15th.

Mr. ERIC FOGG, the Pianist, will be at Manchester on August 9th.

[Frighton
M. SAPELLNIKOFF, the Pianist, to broadcast from London and "5XX" on August 9th, and from all Stations on August 12th.

[Honey.
Miss NELLIE KEIGHLEY (Contralto) will sing from Manchester on August 9th.

GERMAN'S "THEME AND SIX DIVERSIONS."

(BOURNEMOUTH, MONDAY.)

EDWARD GERMAN (born 1862) is one of our dearest writers of effective light music. "Diversions" expresses very well the character of these graceful presentations of a melody, the word being chosen, we are told, because some of them are more free than the older type of variation, in which the theme could always be quite clearly perceived through its decorations.

The MAIN TUNE is given out, after a short Introduction, by OBOE, FIRST VIOLINS and 'CELLOS. Its rhythm (in three-time) has a peculiar charm.

Diversion 1. Quick, but not too much so. Dignified. The Tune is in the BRASS, in unison, at full strength, Strings weaving parts round it.

Diversion 2. Very quick. Playfully. Tripping, fairy-like music, in German's most delightful vein. Some of the bars have two beats, some three—an element that felicitously suggests the whimsical meaning of the word Scherzando in the title. This goes straight into Diversion 3. Quick and lively. This is one of those Gipsy Dances of which the composer has given us many examples. The Tune undergoes some little development here, and the colours of the orchestral palette are freely applied. This, which we may call the English idealization of the gipsy's life, may be compared with Liszt's picture in his Hungarian Rhapsody, discussed elsewhere. A horn note brings

Diversion 4. Slowish, but with movement. Calmly. The STRINGS, muted, are divided into ten parts. The Theme is in the major. Later, Wood Wind replaces the Strings. With a rush comes

Diversion 5. Quick, in Valse style. Mostly STRING and WOOD WIND tone. Free in manner, this Valse is cool and debonair—a bit of German's most elegant dance music. A climax comes, a pause, and Diversion 6. Slowish, with movement. The Tune returns, very softly, the lower Strings (plucked) accompanying. The Full Orchestra takes it up, and the whole is rounded off by a Coda (Quick and brilliant).

LISZT'S "HUNGARIAN RHAPSODY," No. 1.

(BOURNEMOUTH, MONDAY.)

This is an arrangement for orchestra of one of the twenty Rhapsodies Liszt wrote, in which he expresses his affection for the folk-music of his native Hungary. Most of these works were composed after his return to Hungary in 1839 from tours abroad.

The melodies he treats are those of the gipsies.

The First Rhapsody begins with a dignified section (called a Lassan), containing two themes. The FIRST MAIN TUNE is given out, in the minor key, by HORNS and BASSOONS. This is repeated in the major.

The SECOND MAIN TUNE, Very slow, resembles the well-known Rakoczy March. Berlioz's treatment of which most listeners will remember. The march melody is repeated, on Brass and Wood Wind, while Strings sweep round it in scalic work.

Next comes an Allegretto a la Zingarese—a lively section in the style of the gipsies' Friska dance. Its TUNE is played by VIOLINS, with a delicate accompaniment. The music works up in speed and brilliance, the First Main Tune occurring again, and a fourth TUNE appearing before the exhilarating finish.

GRIEG'S VIOLIN AND PIANO SONATA IN F.

(BIRMINGHAM, MONDAY.)

I. Quick, with spirit and force. After two piano chords, curiously "out of the key," the FIRST MAIN TUNE is given out by the VIOLIN, reinforced by the PIANO. It freely touches, very early, on a new key, but comes back to F for the second strain, with its skipping "arpeggio" leap.

The PIANO alone has the SECOND MAIN TUNE, a little two-bar phrase repeated (a mannerism of Grieg), and taken up by the Violin. The very clear "Development" of this matter begins with a change to slower time (for a few bars only), and the Movement ends with the usual "Recapitulation" of its two Main Tunes.

II. At an easy pace, not very fast. The PIANO gives out a minor TUNE of Norwegian folk-song-like character, which the Violin repeats and extends. Another theme, dance-like, in the major key, forms the middle part of the Movement, and then the minor Tune returns.

III. Very quick and lively. The FIRST MAIN TUNE enters at once, on the VIOLIN. The repetitions of a little pattern of six notes are characteristic of the composer and, to some extent, of Norwegian dances. A passage of rich descending harmony begins the short "Bridge" between the Main Tunes.

The SECOND MAIN TUNE is a quiet theme rising stepwise up the scale. From this material the Movement is formed. It speeds up towards the close, and a Coda, at full speed, rounds it off.

THE first of a new series of local talks at the Hull Station, which begin on Friday, August 21st, should be of special interest to listeners in Hull and Yorkshire. This talk deals with the local exploits of that most notorious of highwaymen—Dick Turpin.

A special local musical programme has also been arranged for the same evening. This includes Miss Elizabeth Sissons (mezzo-soprano), Mr. Percy Thompson (baritone), Mr. Fawcett Evans (entertainer), and Mr. Arthur Johnson's Pianoforte Quintet.

THE new series of Women's Nights at Cardiff have proved most successful. The third of this series will be given on Monday, August 10th. Miss Ruby Helder (tenor), and Miss Christina Carpenter (baritone), will sing. The entire performance is left in the hands of the ladies, even to the announcing. Miss Helena Millais and Miss Muriel White will entertain; and Miss Mary Kennedy (siffleuse), and Madame Vera McComb Thomas (solo pianoforte), will also be heard.

Making a Radio Star.

DEAR SIR,—The article in The Radio Times, by Mr. C. A. Lewis, on "The Making of a Radio Star," might be read with profit by some radio singers, speakers, and actors. I refer particularly to the paragraph headed "Showing Up Defects" for those who have cultivated the habit of lisping the consonants "S" and the soft "C." It is sufficiently ridiculous to hear Shakespearean plays lisped; though the climax was reached when we were treated to Schubert's beautiful song, "The Erl King," minus the correct sibilance.

Mr. Lewis is only stating the truth when he says "the microphone . . . shows up defects with devastating clearness."

Yours, etc.,

Vanbrugh Park, S.E.

J. F. C. SMES.

Does Radio Help Vegetation?

DEAR SIR,—I was interested in the letter in The Radio Times from Mr. John Rombouts regarding the amazing growth shown by a bush planted near the spot at which his earth wire enters the ground.

The growth of this bush has probably been accelerated by the fact that the ground in which it stands was recently broken up to a good depth for the purpose of burying the earth plate, which would not be the case with the ground in which the other bushes were planted at the same time.

There is a well-known process of electro-culture which promotes the growth of vegetation and the germination of seeds, but this is brought about by means of the high frequency discharges from a large spark coil being applied to the ground, one electrode of the coil being connected to a wire suspended horizontally above the garden or field to be treated and the other to an earth plate buried in the ground.

Yours, etc.,

Felixstowe.

C. V. BOWELL.

"The Grand Good Night."

DEAR SIR,—I should like to congratulate the B.B.C. on the new innovation—the Grand Good Night as given the other night. Whoever originally thought of this must have had in mind the "personal effect" it would have.

To us, at Chesham, only a short distance away, it seemed as if a friend were bidding us good night.

The B.B.C. can be a splendid medium of peace on earth and goodwill toward men—an ideal for all the year and not just a certain period.

The B.B.C. have struck the right note in this closing, which, however, we presume will not be given too often, if it is to have the same effect as it must have had the other evening.

Yours, etc.,

Chesham.

W. J. FOX.

[This "Good Night" will be published in our next issue.]

A Gramophone Suggestion.

DEAR SIR,—Staying recently with English friends in Germany, I was given an interesting surprise—a graphic description of suffering humanity and a call to help, in a well-remembered voice, at once gruff and gentle. The speaker was General William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army.

May we not hear again the voices of those who have preceded us into the celestial ether?—of Gladstone, Wilfrid Lawson, Tennyson, Barnardo, Woodrow Wilson, and others, whose "records" are no doubt available?

Yours, etc.,

Thundersley, Essex. ARTHUR E. COPPING.

Wireless and the Deaf.

DEAR SIR,—A little while ago, a young man, deaf and dumb, came into my shop, and while conversing in writing, a chime clock on the wall struck. Suddenly he turned round and began counting in his way, and I asked if he could hear it, and he wrote "Yes."

It occurred to me to take him into the room where I have a three-valve set and one valve amplifier, and I put the whole four valves on and gave him the earphones. He was delighted. The "2ZY" Orchestra was playing, but in a little while someone began an address, so he gave back the earphones to me. After listening for a few moments, I wrote on a piece of paper: "Could you hear the words?" He wrote "Yes," but he did not know their meaning.

Now it struck me afterwards that if means could be found to broadcast once a week for the benefit of the various deaf and dumb institutes, these poor people could be benefited to the same extent as are the blind.

Yours, etc.,

Skelmanthorpe,

H. SENIOR.

What Is Jazz?

DEAR SIR,—I read with interest in The Radio Times the interview with Mr. George Gershwin.

His main point of argument is that jazz will gradually improve until it will become high-class music, and, as he says, "In a word, the future will see jazz composers trying to raise their art to the level of the classical." With all due respect to Mr. Gershwin, I venture to question this statement. To argue the point with him is rather difficult, for he frankly admits that he cannot define jazz. Greatly daring, I will try to supply his want. Jazz is music in which time, strict time, is the first and absolute necessity, while melody and "soul" are secondary considerations.

To call all dance music jazz would be a mistake, for that includes some of the most delightful light music ever written. Jazz has its limitations and beyond them it cannot possibly go, for when jazz improves to Mr. Gershwin's hoped-for standard, it will cease to be jazz.

There is one thing I do agree with him in, and that is that wireless has brought an improvement in public taste. As one who is groping on the fringe of things that matter in music, I know what the B.B.C. has done for provincials, and my conclusion is a hope that, disregarding the carping criticism of some who are never satisfied, they will carry on with the great work.

Yours, etc.,

Stoke-on-Trent.

F. E. LOWE.

A Doubtful Suggestion?

DEAR SIR,—In the technical Press recently have appeared comments suggesting that each of the B.B.C. stations should take its turn in closing completely for one evening a week in order to permit the "D.X." fan to receive distant stations.

I am as much a "D.X." enthusiast as the next man, but I am able to receive distant stations only when the local station is working, for during that period the ether is quite at peace.

Immediately "2LO" ceases its programme the ether becomes choked with catcalls, squeaks, howls, yells, and whistles. Nowhere between 250 and 500 metres seems to be free from this ever-growing nuisance.

I sincerely hope that the B.B.C. will not entertain the suggestion of the technical Press until the "one valvers" cease to expect ten-valve results.

Yours, etc.,

Forest Gate,

ALFRED S. HADDOCK.

Summer's Sun to Make You Well.

By Dr. C. W. Saleeby, F.R.S.E.*

AT the beginning of 1922, the Medical Research Council appointed a Committee, at my suggestion, to study sunlight, for I had found that none of the great foreign doctors who used it understood how they obtained their results. Now this English Committee is placing our practice on the solid foundation of exact knowledge, which will mean that, ere long, we shall be able to spread the light and use the light as never before. The capital discovery was made in London, under the auspices of this Committee, that even one dose of sunlight—not to say six months' treatment, but one single dose, will so change the blood that it will destroy germs which would previously have thrived in it.

Sunlight as an Antiseptic.

We have learnt, also, that it is the white cells, the home defence army, the devoted soldiers of the blood, which are thus reinforced and powerfully armed, by a dose of light, against our deadliest foes. No drug in all the pharmacopœias of the earth, past or present, has this power which resides in the light of life, and which begins to explain to us how the diseases of darkness vanish before the dayspring from on high.

We knew that sunlight kills germs on pavements, on children's sand-heaps in the parks, on the seashore, and so forth; we knew it to be the best and cheapest and safest of all antiseptics, but we did not know that sunlit blood is its own antiseptic. This wonderful and epoch-making discovery would have rejoiced the Danish pioneer, Dr. Finson, who used sunlight as an antiseptic to cure tuberculosis of the skin thirty years ago. Queen Alexandra introduced her young fellow-countryman's discovery into England and gave the first piece of apparatus to the London Hospital in the year 1900.

Early last summer some friends of mine thought the time had come to form a Sunlight League, and when Lord Knutsford, Chairman of the London Hospital, approached Queen Alexandra on our behalf, she graciously consented to become our Patron. In the Middle Ages, Sovereigns were thought able to cure the so-called King's Evil by their Sovereign touch.

I have been to Switzerland, where Dr. Rollier, at Leysin, opened the first school in the sun, in 1910. Let us call this institution a "Preventorium." It prevents disease and creates health. It has spread all over Switzerland. Last year an International Congress against tuberculosis was held in Lausanne; but nothing was to be heard or learnt during its sessions to compare with what one saw before and after them, whilst swimming in the Lake—hosts of happy children, illustrating the saying that "baths of water are good, baths of air are better, baths of sunlight are best," and guaranteeing that the present rapid fall of the tubercle death-rate in Switzerland will be even accelerated in the coming years. Some day, my ambition will be realized.

Light Baths.

Meanwhile, the winter will approach, with the pall of smoke against which I have objugated for more than twenty years, exhausting the resources of the dictionary, but never yet stating the full measure of our case against it. What are we to do? First, as an emergency measure, we may have recourse to artificial lamps, such as the doctors are now purchasing as fast as they can, to serve instead of the sun—which, as you know, is more or less eclipsed by the moon on certain astronomical occasions—but is totally eclipsed nearly every winter's day by the coal smoke in our cities. Ere long, municipalities will be providing light baths as they now provide swimming baths. Swimming baths are not much fun in winter, and the only use I have ever made of that nearest me is to practise cricket in it, with the aid of boards and matting. But in winter we need light baths, and I think we should have them.

Of course, they are only second-rate substitutes for the light of day. I appeal to architects. They are to build new houses and to plan new suburbs. These must be very different from those which contented the presumptuous and muck-raking materialism of the nineteenth century. Our new houses must be so placed so as to face the sun in the most used rooms.

Man is Guilty!

The power of sunlight for our lives is a poetic, no less than a scientific, truth. I once stood in the tiny bedroom, facing north, where John Keats died in Rome—he who lamented this world of ours:—

"Where youth grows pale and spectre thin and dies."

He died at twenty-five of consumption or tuberculosis, the terrible disease to which that line alludes. It should not exist, nor many others like it. Youth was not meant to grow pale and spectre thin and die. Not Nature, nor Heaven, but we are guilty. Youth was meant to live and love and to sleep. To that end, for ourselves and those to follow us, we must learn and think and teach and toil. So, but only so, we shall make real the vision of an even greater poet than Keats—his friend, Shelley:—

"Our toil from thought all glorious forms shall cull
To make this earth, our home, more beautiful;
And Science, and her sister Poesy
Shall clothe with light the fields and cities of the free."

SONGS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW.

"A May Morning."

THIS song will be broadcast from Glasgow by Miss Beatrice Lomax on Saturday, August 15th; the music, by L. Denza, is particularly tuneful, and the words are among the best efforts of that doyen of song writers Mr. Fred E. Weatherly. We publish the words by permission of the Publishers, Messrs. Chappell & Co., Ltd.

Come out, come out, my dearest dear,
Come out, and greet the sun,
The birds awake on tree and brake,
The merry May's begun.
Come out and drink the diamond dew,
Come out and tread the lea,
The world is all awake, and you
Are all the world to me.

Put on your gown of dainty white,
Put on your bodice blue,
For I've been waiting all the night,
To greet the May with you.
And ev'ry tree is white with thorn,
The village blithe and gay,
Come out, come out, this happy morn,
And be our Queen of May.

The White-throat sings unto his mate,
And I am singing too,
For morning early, ev'ning late,
My heart is all for you.
My songs shall blossom at your feet,
My heart your throne shall be,
For you are Queen of May, my sweet,
And all the world to me.

THE CHILDREN'S CORNER.

NEWS FROM THE
AUNTS AND UNCLES.

Mental Gymnastics.

AT Hull, Uncle Tom, Reg, and George have a new game for the Children's Corner. It is called "Mental Gymnastics," and this is how it's played.

A subject is set for an impromptu story and Uncle Tom begins. If he flags or gets "tied up," Uncle Reg carries on, and when he has further involved matters he leaves Uncle George to straighten out the tangle and end up the story happily.

The result is always a most interesting story and this feature is, apparently, enjoyed by the grown-up listeners as well as by the children.

Aeroplane Adventures.

A strange and powerful influence from the outside world seems to have upset the Aunts and Uncles at the Plymouth Station.

On more than one occasion every week the studio evidently becomes unbearable to them. The result is that they leap into the Station aeroplane and, making a somewhat undignified exit through the studio window, find themselves hurtling through space at a mileage per second never before achieved by science.

Curiously enough, from an immense altitude, they can still talk to the members of the Radio Circle, describing (in spite of the roar of the engine) the Eddystone Lighthouse and the lapping of the waves in the Sound far below. They seem also to have an intimate knowledge of the net-work of streets over which they pass, especially those where Radio children live.

In time, with perseverance, the Station aeroplane may, in a spasm of energy, alight gracefully upon Mars, where a crowd of Martians will be hauled, willy nilly, into the Radio Circle net.

Curious Happenings at Aberdeen.

The Uncles and Aunties at Aberdeen—especially the Uncles—are always liable to have the most peculiar adventures happening to them. For instance, recently, Uncle Harry was the victim of the Fatable Man, who turned his elbow into a nice beefsteak pie for Uncle Harry's supper, and then turned the poor Uncle as red as a Red Indian for eating it! Fortunately, the spell came to an end with the last day of the week, as the red wouldn't wash off!

The next victim was Uncle Will. He was foolish enough to insist on eating a strawberry ice after lobster salad, and the results were so amazing that you'll hear about them from the Aberdeen Station on August 11th. Uncle Will is very penitent now, and asks that all boys and girls should listen to the warning, especially those who like green apples, green gooseberries, and baked potatoes!

A Queer Debate.

Still more curious happenings at Aberdeen. On Friday, August 14th, there is going to be a debate—between a violin and a saxophone! The subject has not quite been decided upon, but probably it will be something like this: "Would a spider make a good drummer in a jazz band?" Auntie Win has promised to act as chairman, and interpreter, if the remarks become too peculiar. She is learning Russian in order to be prepared for the task.

Fairy Tales.

Every child has read those exciting "Fairy Tales from Grimm," and Uncle Max of Leeds-Bradford has had the happy idea of attempting to turn them into plays. The first one to be given was "The Drummer," where the brave drummer boy climbs up the glass mountain and meets the witch.

Each week a new and exciting adventure will be broadcast, and let it be whispered that Tuesday is the "Grimm" evening.

During the Holidays.

What sort of holiday have you had?

That is the question that many Edinburgh boys and girls will be putting to one another when they return from their summer vacation, and Auntie Mollie is going to see that it is properly answered. In other words—children who are members of the Edinburgh Radio Circle are being invited to write a concise description of what they did, saw, and heard during their summer holidays, and the three children, whether boys or girls, who are adjudged to have given the best description will be invited to repeat it over the microphone at one of the first Children's Parties in the autumn.

Did You Guess It?

The latest competition in the Children's Corner at the Dundee Station was to guess the name of a record that was broadcast on two successive afternoons. Some managed to have the correct title straight away, but many were puzzled and were just not quite right.

The Holiday Post Bag.

A number of Cardiff's most enthusiastic Kiddiewinks have written to say that they are just off for their summer holiday. We envy them (Cardiff writes), but we are delighted when they say they are going to keep in touch with their Aunties and Uncles in Cardiff and tell them of their doings. Please follow their example. Tell your aunts and uncles all your adventures and let them have some snapshots.

"2LO" Radio Circle Badges.

The Radio Circle of the London Station has been growing so rapidly that it has been impossible to keep up the demand for new membership badges. A new system of numbering has been introduced and in future every badge will be allotted a number. There are now three thousand nieces and nephews in the "2LO" Radio Circle and it is hoped that very soon they will all have their badges and their numbers.

The Wicked Uncle Again.

Uncle Leslie must have his holidays like the rest of us and therefore his Zoo Talks will stop during August. Hearing of this, the Wicked Uncle immediately volunteered to deputise for Uncle Leslie. He is to be given a chance, but we warn listeners that if the Wicked Uncle's talks about animals are anything like his singing then they are in for a nasty shock. But fortunately our nieces and nephews in London have not heard the Wicked Uncle sing and we shall do our best to save them this ordeal.

THE SAND IMP.

By LANGFORD REED.

"Down he went, headlong."

requently, no pierrots, no bands, no picture theatres, and not even any organs. However, sleepy though the place was, John Peyton Vavasour—for that was the real name of the Sand Imp—certainly managed to wake it up. He was only eight years old, but in any competition for naughty boys he would probably have won the first prize.

One of his most mischievous tricks at Dawdleborough was in connection with the bathing tents. They were not intended for bathing, originally, but old Dobber, who controlled the bathing arrangements at Dawdleborough, had bought them as a job lot and after setting them up on the sands, had attached a different number to each, on a hook.

One morning, when the bathers were enjoying themselves in the sea, and old Dobber was sorting the towels in his little office, the Sand Imp actually transposed a lot of the numbers! Oh, there was a row!

It took half the morning before the various bathers were able to find the right tents and they quarrelled so much about it that the Dawdleborough Police Force had to interfere. The Sand Imp, from behind an old boat, enjoyed the entertainment immensely.

On another occasion, he dug a deep pit and, having stretched a large sheet of stiff, brown paper over it, he covered it with a thin layer of sand so that the pit appeared to be solid ground. Then he waited for his first victim.

Now it chanced that a few hundred yards away a man named Spike Murphy was sunning himself on the sand, with his back against the low wall of the promenade. He had got into trouble with the London police, in connection with a burglary, and until it blew over, he thought it best to take a holiday at some quiet place where he was unlikely to be recognized.

Happening to look up, his eye caught the gleam of a magnificent gold chain, suspended from the waistcoat of an elderly gentleman who was leaning over the promenade railing and admiring the view. At once Spike's professional instincts were aroused and he could not resist such an easy chance of gain. So he made a sudden snatch and in a moment the chain and its equally magnificent watch were in his hands and he was dashing at full speed across the sands. The old gentleman and several other people, including a policeman, followed, but Spike was fleet of foot and would have escaped had not his course taken him across the Sand Imp's concealed pit.

Down he went, headlong, with his legs kicking in the air and his eyes and mouth filled with sand. He sat up dazed and choking and, before he could collect his thoughts and run off, the policeman caught him.

The old gentleman was very grateful to the Sand Imp. "You are a very good little boy," said he. "That scoundrel would never have been caught but for you. Here's ten shillings for you."

He patted the Sand Imp's curly head and the young rascal smiled so sweetly that one would have thought that he had dug the pit on purpose to catch the thief.

According to copy-book rules, the Sand Imp ought to have been gobbled-up by a shark, or drowned in a sudden inrush of the sea, or punished in some other frightful way for his naughtiness, and I do hope that when you are away at the seaside this year, you will not attempt to follow his example. If you do, it is extremely unlikely that you will catch a thief and be rewarded with ten shillings. You are far more likely to catch some innocent person and be rewarded with a smack on the ear.

A Musician's House of Dreams.

The Life and Work of Edward MacDowell.

MANY comparisons might be made between the lives and careers of MacDowell and Grieg, and it is a singular and happy fact that these two men who were so sympathetically allied in mentality should have been the greatest of friends, although, as Grieg wrote, it was never their good fortune to shake hands.

When one reads of MacDowell's life in "the house of dreams untold," the log cabin in the woods at Peterboro', where most of his later music was composed, we are reminded of Grieg's lonely, snow-bound hut; the undisturbed happiness of MacDowell's married life, the heroic devotion of his wife until the tragic end when his brain gave way, remind us of that equally courageous helpmeet of Grieg's; and, too, the placid, contemplative mind of the American—as compared with the fire and thunder of a Wagner or Beethoven—are reminiscent of the Norwegian. Above all, both of them, MacDowell and Grieg, had the firm, common bond of Scottish blood.

Rapid Progress.

MacDowell was an artist in more than the musical sense of the word. As a boy at school he made a sketch of one of his teachers, who showed the work to an eminent painter. Much impressed, the latter requested the boy's mother to allow her son to undergo a three-years' course of training in drawing, and was disappointed when other counsels prevailed. We have an example of MacDowell's power with the pen in his drawing of Liszt, with whom he struck up a friendship during his years of study in Europe.

Edward Alexander MacDowell was born in New York, on December 18th, 1861, and inherited from his father not only a Celtic ancestry in which Scottish and Irish blood were mingled, but a pronounced artistic impulse, combined with a highly sensitive temperament. He began to take lessons in the pianoforte before he was nine years of age, and his progress during the next few years was so marked that his mother took him abroad and he became, in Paris, a fellow-student of Debussy.

A Visit to Europe.

It was a great adventure for him, this visit to Europe which was to extend over a long period, and he embraced his art with a loving vigour and earnestness that held promise of a great future for him.

From Paris the young musician proceeded to Germany, where he continued his studies, while his mother returned to America. He was about nineteen when he met the girl who was to become his wife, and we are told that, at this period, "his keen and very blue eyes, his pink and white skin, reddish moustache brushed straight up in the prevalent German fashion, caused him to be known as 'the handsome American.'" Like himself, his wife was an American, one of the pupils whom he taught during the hours which he wrung from his own rigorously-defined course of study.

Fortuitous circumstances resulted in one of his first compositions.

Shy and Modest.

Securing a post as piano teacher at a conservatory in a neighbouring town, he was forced, in consequence, to travel a great deal by train, being unwishful of giving up the connections he had formed. During these journeys he found the time and the inspiration to write his second "Modern Suite."

At this period he was a voracious reader, consuming the German poets and the English. Tennyson's "Idyls of the King" inspired him with his love for ancient lore and artistry which was to find an emotional expression in many of his later works. Shy and modest to the point of self-effacement, we get an insight into this habit of mind by the confession MacDowell made about this time. "I had never waked up to the idea," he remarks, in effect, "that my compositions could be worth study by anyone. I would not have changed a note in them for untold gold, and inside I had the greatest love for them; but the idea that anyone else might take them seriously never occurred to me."

Not long after, on the recommendation of Liszt, MacDowell's music was being published by one of the greatest music publishing houses in Berlin.

Inspired By a Poet.

The next few years were divided between teaching and composition and, in 1884, when he was twenty-three, he returned to America and was married to his former pupil. He visited England on his way back to Germany, where, once he had settled down again, he composed his first work of real importance, his symphonic poem, "Hamlet and Ophelia." This he dedicated to Henry Irving and Ellen Terry, for it was in consequence of a performance by them in London, which MacDowell had witnessed, that the idea and inspiration for the piece had come to him.

Before he was twenty-seven he had also completed the other work which can rank with "Hamlet"—"Lancelot and Elaine," also a symphonic poem, composed at Wiesbaden, in 1886. Under the title, MacDowell indicates the source of inspiration—"After Tennyson." It is known that MacDowell conceived his music to correspond, point by point, with certain definite happenings as narrated by Tennyson.

His Last Works.

Leaving Germany for America for the last time, he bought a piece of land at Peterboro', in New Hampshire, and it was there he set up his log cabin in which he was to write most of his later music in the intervals of carrying out the arduous duties involved in his professorship of music at Columbia University—duties which undoubtedly played a large part in the final wearing down of the machinery of his brain. The beautifully simple piece, "From a Log Cabin," was a product of this period. The words run:—

"A house of dreams untold,
It looks out over the whispering tree-tops
And faces the setting sun."

These were the lines that formed his epitaph. He died in New York after an illness which made him, mentally, as a little child. On a hill-top they buried him, near to his "house of dreams."
R. D. S. McMILLAN.

A FEATURE programme at Plymouth on Friday, August 21st, will include an hour of Shakespeare in song and story, including excerpts from Julius Caesar and As You Like It, by Edwin Birch and Ian Shepherd. Miss May Burleigh (soprano), supported by the Royal Trio, will contribute items from The Merchant of Venice Suite and incidental music to Henry VIII.

ON Tuesday, August 18th, Bournemouth will give a morning transmission from 11.30 to 12.0, consisting of an Organ recital by Mr. Arthur Marston, A.R.C.O., relayed from the Royal Arcade, Boscombe.

BIRMINGHAM Station is shortly beginning a series of "Week-end Jaunt" Talks. These will take place during the Women's Half Hour and will endeavour to convey the atmosphere of the most charming holiday places in the Midlands.

THE DANE-TREE.

By ALFRED NOYES.

[This poem was written in honour of the official opening of the Daventry Station, and was broadcast during the inaugural ceremony.]

Daventry calling. . . . Dark and still
The dead men sleep, at the foot of the hill.

The dark tree, set on the height by the Dane
Stands like a sentry over the slain.

Bowing his head above their tomb
Till the trumpet reads the seals of doom.

Earth has forgotten their ancient wars,
But the lone tree rises against the stars,

Whispering, "Here in my heart I keep Mysteries, deep as the world is deep.

"Deeper far than the world ye know
Is the world through which my voices go. . . ."

Daventry calling. . . . Wind and rain
Against my voices fight in vain.

The world through which my messages fare
Is not of the earth, and not of the air.

When the black hurricane rides without,
My least melodies quell its shout.

My mirth and music, jest and song,
Shall through the very thunders throng.

You shall hear their lightest tone
Stealing through your walls of stone;

Till your loneliest valleys hear
The far cathedral's whispered prayer,

And thoughts that speed the world's desire
Strike to your heart beside your fire;

And the mind of half the world
Is in each little house unfurled.

Till Time and Space are a dwindling dream,
And my true kingdoms round you gleam;

And ye discern the thing ye crave—
That I go deeper than the grave;

I, the sentinel; I, the tree,
Who bind all worlds in unity,

So that, sitting around your hearth,
Ye are at one with all on earth.

Daventry calling: memory, love,
The graves beneath, and the stars above.

Even in my laughter you shall hear
The Power to whom the far is near,

All are in one circle bound,
And all that ever was lost is found.

Daventry calling. . . . Daventry calling. . . .
Daventry calling. . . . Dark and still
The tree of memory stands like a sentry. . . .
Over the graves on the silent hill.

Radio And The Multitude.

Catering For All Listeners. By P. P. ECKERSLEY

IN talking the other day to an American who is interested both academically and commercially in what we call wireless and he calls radio, he told me that you might say there were three schools of thought in the States as how best to achieve the democratic ideal. I mean, of course, by the democratic ideal that state of affairs when everybody can receive wireless uninterrupted and on apparatus so simple that it is both easy to work and cheap to buy. "Anybody, anywhere with anything."

Three Schools of Thought.

Everybody who has ever given a thought to wireless, either commercially or academically, knows that its future can only be reached by its democratization—the policy of few low-power stations and a reliance upon "valve" trade is neither far-sighted nor even commercially sound; what is best for the people, is best for the trade.

Of the three schools of thought in America, the one school seeks to attain the ultimate aim of "every man his own programme" by the possibility of linking up every small low-power station by wire; the second by linking up lower-powered stations by wireless; the last by erecting few high-power stations and so covering the whole field by a few stations. One can, if one is fairly au fait with the politics of the art in America, easily guess the names of the protagonists of each scheme on the basis of what each protagonist knows what he can do best, and one has to assess the arguments in commercial terms rather than in a more altruistic manner.

A Good Start.

It is, therefore, more interesting to have one man who might easily be an upholder of one scheme only, say, that he sees the future built upon the basis of all three. It might be argued that there is good ground for believing that we in Britain have potentially a better system, where commercially we are not biased by the one method or the other, and that we can go ahead planning "each thing in its proper place."

I believe that the future can only be built up along the lines of all three, and that a good start has been made by our high-power, relay (lowest power), and main (medium power) stations. Of course, speaking purely as a technician, I would be an exponent of the high-power policy. How much easier to run, say, four high-power stations of 50 k.w. each, dotted about the country so as to cover each area adequately, and so achieve in one fell swoop the 100 per cent. crystal area! No fuss, no bother! Few engineers, centralization, concentration, all the advantages. The disadvantages, however—speaking now as one interested in the future of broadcasting in general and not only in the technical side of it—are too considerable not to weigh heavily against the integral adoption of this plan.

The Personal Note.

Firstly, broadcasting is a friendly thing; it has to have something local, something intimate, if it is to be successful.

Will not the relay station listeners agree with me when I say that some of the most interesting things to them are broadcasts of local significance? Does not civic pride carry some weight? Is it not amusing to hear a local function broadcast? Cannot broadcasting make the importance of civic life a more personal thing? And is not this good? The impersonal high-power station would never be the same.

Then, the main stations do give to some a chance of alternative programmes. True, it still remains for us to make it more and more possible to get these alternatives clearer and better. But we have already schemes on hand to this end, and we have our high-power station of robust signal strength, unsusceptible in west districts to fading, night distortion, and the other evils of short waves, not to mention the most important of all, freedom from jamming.

High-Power Relays.

Another American friend always tells me that our high-power station must come off its long wave-length some day. I agree; but that day will never arrive until the selectivity of many listeners' sets is improved, and until spark sets "cease from troubling" round our coasts.

Relay stations, then, for local interest, garnished by good relayed programmes—main stations for the same, but also giving alternative programmes to many—the high-power towering over the rest, filling up the gaps, helping in one fell swoop the democratization by including the country, as distinguished from the towns, to appreciate the service of broadcasting—and, as the ideal of the future, to be obtained through some higher-power relays, through new high-power, and through some higher-power main stations, is alternative programmes.

But the listener must not be too optimistic. He must remember that the space left in the ether is not infinite, that certain services can work only practically on certain wave-bands, that the safety of our realm depends upon the training of personnel in the use of apparatus only designed for certain wave-lengths, and, keen as we may be, or as listeners may be, that we should immediately bring our schemes into being, they must still realize that other claims must be assessed in the ratio of their importance.

That such changes must ultimately come about it would be treason to disbelieve. That difficulties must stand in the way is certain. It is hoped that you all realize that we are interpreting our ideals in terms of public service, and public service only.

"Now, chief, what about a song and dance?"
"No, sar, dat's a washout sure. Switch you on to '2LO,' if yo like."

A GROUP photograph of the Roosters Concert Party in our issue of July 3rd omitted the portrait of Mr. Percy Merriman and substituted that of Mr. Walter Lempriere, who acts as deputy to Mr. Merriman. We hope to reproduce another group, including Mr. Merriman in his right place, in a future issue.

On the occasion of the Prince of Wales's visit to Johannesburg, 3,000 natives assembled from the different mines under the auspices of the South African Chamber of Mines, and the whole gathering was addressed by H.R.H. The Prince of Wales by means of special speech amplification apparatus of British design and manufacture.

PIGS VERSUS GRAND OPERA.

MR. DAVID SARNOFF, Vice-President of the American Radio Corporation, who has recently completed an agreement with the B.B.C. for the exchange of programmes, gives an interesting account of an experiment made by his Company in catering for specialist sections of the public. They were anxious to attract listeners among the rural communities of the Middle West, and they arranged courses of instruction on pig breeding, and were surprised to find no response whatever from the farmers.

Ultimately, they found that grand opera was what the farmers wanted! They had no use for talks on pigs.

The following appeared in an American paper under the title "Hard to Beat": "Station 2LO in London is to be congratulated on some of the artists that have broadcast through their 'mike': John Barrymore and members of his company in excerpts from 'Hamlet'; Tetrassini, Lamond; 'Pilgrim's Progress,' relayed from Covent Garden; and a recital by Ignace Paderewski. And it is said that some listeners are unsatisfied."

The programme from the Dundee Station on August 21st will be devoted to chamber music. The soloists are Miss Mary Ferrier and Mr. A. B. Duncan (baritone). Mr. Hartley, on holiday from the Academy, will give a pianoforte recital.

You, too, can be a great traveller——

NO need to be a "stay-at-home" if your Receiving Set possesses a stage of high frequency amplification. Merely plug in a Cossor P.2 (if you use bright emitters) or a Wuncell W.2 (if you use dull emitters) and the distant stations will come through with ease.

These Cossor Valves are designed essentially to amplify those minute oscillations which strike your aerial but which are too weak to be rectified by the Detector Valve. Every moment during broadcasting hours signals from far-away stations are reaching you, but if your Set is not sufficiently sensitive you will not be aware of their presence.

It is no use adding L.F. Valves—if the signal is too feeble to be rectified, no amount of low frequency amplification will make the slightest difference.

The unique and well-proved design of the Cossor—with the electron emission given off by the arched filament being almost totally enclosed by a hood-shaped Grid and Anode—renders it peculiarly suitable for long-distance work. No other valve is—or can be—so sensitive to weak signals. And now that the same design is reproduced exactly in the Wuncell a great future is in store for it.

Here is a Valve with an entirely new type of filament, which operates with a glow that is well-nigh invisible. A filament which, besides having triple supports to ensure absolute rigidity, is quite as tough and robust as that used in any bright emitter valve.

No wonder that wireless enthusiasts throughout the country are beginning to realise that the Wuncell is giving an entirely new meaning to the words "valve economy." If you are not yet a Wuncell user, ask your dealer for a copy of our large illustrated folder and read more about this wonderful new valve.

A. C. Cossor, Ltd—Highbury Grove, N.5

Have you a Loud Speaker?

—here is the Valve you should use

In order to get the best results from a Loud Speaker you require ample power without the necessity of working your valves to their limit. This means that you need a proper Loud Speaker Valve designed for the job. The new Cossor W.3 has been specially built for power work with only a moderate high tension voltage. Use it in place of your L.F. Valve and you'll be amazed at the tremendous increase in volume.

Fifty Years Ago Old-Fashioned Virtues!

THE firm of Ericsson was established in a generation when Inverness capes and broadcloth coats were built to last a lifetime, and the unassuming carpet-bag had not yet given place to the unsubstantial glories of imitation leather. And throughout fifty years, Ericsson's have exercised the old-fashioned virtues of honesty, accuracy and hard work.

First-quality material, painstaking craftsmanship and long practical experience in the problems of telephony have made Ericsson Headphones what they are—unrivalled for volume and uniform purity of tone, as for length of service.

"Daddy—your Valves!"

"A complete valve set at St. Leonards-on-Sea was recently hurled to the floor by a spaniel that got caught in one of the connections.

The owner in distress rushed to the scene of disaster to find his set upside down, supported on his UNBROKEN valves.

Upon testing his set to ascertain the damage, he was surprised to find everything intact, including the Mullard Valves which had taken the full brunt of the shock."

The above incident is but one of many where the misfortune of an accident has revealed the marvellous strength of Mullard Master Valves to their satisfied users.

Accidents happen every day. Protect yourself against loss by securing the best. For robust construction, pure amplification and economical running you cannot do better than

I PAGLIACCI.

Composer—Leoncavallo. First produced in Milan, 1892.

"I Pagliacci"—a play within a play—tells of how a troupe of strolling mummers perform a "comedy" that coincides ironically with the tragic happenings of their real lives. It is the story of Columbine forsaking Punchinello for Harlequin—not only on the stage, but off—and how Punchinello, maddened by jealousy of a real rival, stabs Columbine to the heart during the play before the audience suspects that his emotion is not a masterly piece of acting.

No finer instruments than A.J.S. exist for bringing into your own home the full beauty of great music, with all its subtleties of light and shade.

If you contemplate buying a wireless set—or building one—we invite you to visit the nearest A.J.S. dealer and examine the full range of A.J.S. Instruments and Component parts.

'THE HALL MARK OF RADIO PERFECTION'

A.J.S. PEDESTAL CABINET

Designed and constructed by experienced cabinet-makers, this cabinet represents the highest standard yet achieved in wireless receiving sets. Each is a complete unit containing 4-valve Receiver, L.T. Accumulator, special double capacity H.T. Battery giving twice the usual length of service, special A.J.S. Loud-speaker, four specially designed Mullard Valves, most economical of H.T. Current and giving stronger signals, Headphones, etc. In Mahogany or Oak, complete with all accessories, ready for instant use, £51 18s.

Write for Illustrated Catalogue or ask the nearest A.J.S. dealer to show you this and other A.J.S. models, including the A.J.S. Loud Speakers, Standard 2, 3 and 4-valve receivers, and "Unitop" Cabinet.

ONLY 500 LEFT
 ONLY 14 DAYS IN WHICH TO GET YOURS

For the next 14 days you can obtain the well-known Fellows Super-Two Valve Set at very little above cost price. Each set we offer is brand new and each one is fully guaranteed but—there are only 500 of them at this price.

Act quickly! Fill in the coupon to-day and post it to us accompanied by your remittance. We will then forward you the set (alone or with accessories as desired) packing free, carriage forward and on seven days' approval. If at the end of this time you are not fully satisfied send it back to us carriage paid and we will refund you your money in full.

These sets have been manufactured during the slack season when we have been running our works at full pressure and doing our own share of reducing unemployment. By sacrificing these 500 sets at these temporary prices we keep our output up and our prices down. We benefit the wireless public and help British Trade. Every set sold now means more men employed during the busy season.

FELLOWS SUPER TWO £5-15-0
 Usually costs £9-5-0. Inclusive of H.T. Battery, and Tax paid.

All-Station Two-Valve Set. H.F. Valve and Detector. Mounted in well-finished sloping mahogany cabinet. Easy to tune. Economical to run.

Illustration showing a Brown Transformer being wound in the extensive North Acton Works.

Brown

—the name of the first Loud Speaker ever built

THE first Loud Speaker ever built for Wireless use was a product of S. G. Brown, Ltd.—in fact, the term "Loud Speaker" was actually evolved by them to describe the new instrument.

Obviously such greater experience in the design and manufacture of Loud Speakers is reflected in the performance of all Brown Instruments. If you think that the results to be obtained from an ordinary Loud Speaker can be in any way compared to a Brown a visit to your Dealer will rapidly disillusion you.

No other Loud Speaker can compare with a Brown because no other Loud Speaker can make use of similar mechanism. From the tip of its horn to its base the Brown is different to all others. Its sound chamber has been designed to conform to the laws of acoustics and is responsible for a fine volume of mellow tone.

Its mechanism makes use of the tuned reed principle—an exclusive Brown feature—and utilises a cone shaped aluminium diaphragm as thin as paper yet immensely strong.

As a result the Brown is easily the most sensitive of Loud Speakers—just as the Brown A Type Headphone is recognised as the most sensitive of Headphones. Often the Brown will work well from a Receiving Set which is not sufficiently powerful to operate an ordinary Loud Speaker. And naturally it follows that the volume obtained from a Brown is in excess of that usually obtained from ordinary Instruments.

It is, however, in purity of tone that the Brown makes its special appeal. Before deciding upon your purchase, you should hear a Brown—we are then content to leave the decision in your hands.

Look to your Valves

They are chiefly responsible for the quality of reproduction. Badly exhausted valves, otherwise "soft" valves, are short-lived and give poor results. "Soft" valves cost less to make than "hard" valves, but they are expensive and unsatisfactory in use. B.T.H. Radio Valves are exhausted by a special B.T.H. process, which produces an exceedingly high vacuum.

"RADIO TIMES" READING CASE.

Messrs. George Newnes, Ltd., have prepared a handsome case in red cloth with gilt lettering for "The Radio Times," complete with cord down the back to hold a copy of this publication. A pencil is indispensable to the listener during the course of the programme, and this is included conveniently in a slot at the side. Listeners should order this to-day from any Newsagent. It is published at 2s. 6d., or send 4d. extra to cover postage for a case from the Publisher, "The Radio Times," 8-11, Southampton Street, Strand, London, W.C.2.

Any valve will fit your set—any valve. But the Cosmos valve, of all valves, will render the voice of the hidden station with all sympathy and truth. As the strings are to the 'cello, so are the Cosmos Valves to your set.

D.E.11 (Dull Emitter Type)

This combines remarkably efficient rectification with good high and low frequency amplification and works successfully off a single 2 volt accumulator or dry batteries.

A.45 (Bright Emitter Type)

This type is an excellent "General Purpose" valve which gives brilliant results. It combines the advantages of other high- and low frequency valves in the one valve.

TYPE S.P.18. A real two volt power valve. Price 12/6

Louden Valves

BUY BRITISH VALVES

We are convinced that not a single person in this country would buy a foreign valve if the latter were not rather cheaper than a similar British valve.

As a matter of fact experience shows that, even at 7/-, the Louden in the long run works out considerably cheaper than its foreign rivals. It is true that the latter may cost a shilling or two less but the Louden soon saves this by its low current consumption of 0.4 Amps. in the filament (half the current consumption of most other bright emitters) and by its longer life.

We realize though that people must see these things for themselves in order to appreciate them fully.

For a fortnight therefore we are offering the Louden at the extraordinarily low figure of 4/6. Almost an absurd price for a first-class valve. But there it is. Here is your opportunity to try the wonderful Silver Clear Louden and we are certain once you have tried one you will never use another foreign valve. During this fortnight also, in response to many requests we are offering our Dull-Emitters at 8/- and 9/-.

OUR OFFER.

Fill in the coupon below in block letters and forward it to us with your remittance which must include 3d. postage for each valve ordered. We will then send you the valves packed in the standard Louden box and bearing our usual guarantee.

BRIGHT EMITTERS 4/6

Type F1 (the Plain Louden) for detection and L.F. Amplification.
Type F2 (the blue Louden) for H.F. Amplification.

Filament Volts 4.5-5
Filament Amps. 0.4
Anode Volts 40-80

DULL EMITTERS.

For 4-volt Accumulator 8/-
For 6-volt Accumulator 9/-

Type FER1 for detection and L.F. Amplification. Filament Amps. 0.1
Type FER2 for H.F. Amplification. Anode Volts 40-80

Please state when ordering whether you require them for 4-volt or 6-volt Accumulator. By using these Dull-Emitters instead of ordinary Bright Emitters you reduce your accumulator bills to one seventh. No alteration is necessary to your filament resistances or set. These valves work straight off 4-volt or 6-volt Accumulators.

To get these valves at these wonderfully low prices you must order them direct from us on the coupon below. They cannot be obtained from any source except ourselves.

DRINKING WATER IS MORE OR LESS POISON

says the late Editor of the 'English Mechanic.' "The one safeguard is the persistent use of distilled water. This is easily and cheaply effected by the admirably constructed Gem Pure Water Still." He also says: "Distilled water is not merely a preventive of disease, it is a positive remedy for many complaints, including dyspepsia and bladder troubles. Let any reader thus affected try a glassful taken before each meal."

The Gem Still is a simple, effective domestic contrivance for rendering water free from minerals and germs. As supplied to H.M. Govt., well-known Doctors and health authorities. Booklet free. It is also especially valuable to wireless users for replenishing accumulators.

HEAR THE BELLS AGAIN

What a multitude of beautiful sounds there are about us — the cool ripple of a babbling brook, the morning song of the lark, the ding-dong of an old church bell, and many others. Do YOU hear them? Do you hear ordinary conversation? The Acousticon will enable you to. It has already helped 500,000 deaf people; it will help you too. It is the most wonderful instrument in the world. For 25 years leading Aurists have recommended it above all others. To-day it is used by The Royal Free and London Hospitals. It is so small that it can be almost completely concealed and yet it picks up the faintest sound. In London the largest and most luxuriously equipped building in the kingdom devoted exclusively to aiding the deaf is occupied by Acousticons. To-day nearly every deaf person wears an Acousticon. Why not call for a free fitting? If you are unable to do so we will gladly send you full particulars.

£100 Guarantee against Lightning Risks

WHEN your lightning-arrestor device puts the aerial lead and the earth in a straight line, your aerial is a definite protection to your house.

The STRAIGHT LINE Protects YOU

A house with an aerial and a Pressland Safety Lead-in is safer than a house without an aerial. It is futile just to connect aerial and earth terminals on your set, or to adopt any device that does not connect aerial to earth outside the house. Lightning will not follow angles; it takes a straight line.

The PRESSLAND SAFETY LEAD-IN

Each Lead-in includes a Free Insurance Policy against loss or damage to property (including "third party" risks).

It has a self-contained discharge cap and provides for an external earth-lead. It is specifically shaped to form a perfect insulator—free from surface leakage.

Sizes, 6-inch, 3/-; 9-inch, 3/3; 12-inch, 3/6.

Obtainable through all Dealers.

YOUR HOLIDAY.

THIS year try the holiday that is different. Explore new country and enjoy healthy, restful change, free from irksome routine.

THE NORFOLK BROADS,

with their natural beauties and quiet old-world villages, will enchant you. They are 120 miles from London and consist of 200 miles of safe inland rivers and lakes, situated between Cromer, Lowestoft, and Norwich. You hire from us for a week or longer a fully furnished wherry, yacht, or motor-boat, which becomes your floating home, moving when and where you wish, inland, not on the sea. We can supply an attendant to manage the boat and do all cooking. You only have to enjoy yourself. The cost, including boat, food, etc., averages £4 per head per week.

Send to-day 2d. postage only for 102-page booklet containing details of 500 yachts, wherries, motor-boats, houseboats, bungalows we have for hire, and article: "How to Enjoy a Broads Holiday." All owners' craft are included in this booklet.
