Radio to Make Us Healthy.

By Dr. AGNES SAVILL.

THE suggestion that our country ought to be supplied only with "light music and light entertainment" every evening of the week during the year has aroused much uneasiness in many quarters. And not only amongst the cultured circles does this prospect cause dismay. Those who call themselves "low brows" appear to be quite pleased with the title; indeed, to judge by the letters which a popular morning paper has recently published, some actually take pride in this designation, whilst others (who have apparently had some degree of education) resent the idea that they should welcome further knowledge in the world of music or general information; and hence raise objections to the classical music and the interesting lectures in the B.B.C. programmes.

* * * *

The healthy attitude of mind, surely all will agree, is never one of satisfaction with oneself. The wise man is well aware that even the best equipped brain has many gaps in its knowledge. There are innumerable avenues of knowledge and of delight which remain unexplored by even the most cultured men; the paths leading thereto are not trodden because they are unknown. Even the professional workers, and those who are accustomed to dealing with educational and scientific matters, become absorbed in their own work and tend to remain in a narrow rut for a lifetime.

* * * *

The average man and woman neither buy a book nor attend a lecture which deals with a subject in which they are not already interested. So routine bound is the mental outlook of the unawakened mind that the thrill of adventure is sought for and obtained by such means of stimulation as is given by a variety of plays, fiction, cinemas and music which appeal to the least intellectual faculties.

In time, such men become unable to appreciate the simple and natural pleasure conveyed by good music, good literature, good art, even the peaceful joys of home life. Picture the condition of England if the broadcasting authorities were unfortunately influenced to accede to the demand for the provision every evening of nothing but entertainment of this nature. After a few months of such nightly fare, even the "lowest brow" would clamour for variety. Then might follow a demand for the sensational methods which have been adopted by some cinemas, journals and vulgar forms of stage patter. Into every home these degrading forms of excitement would then enter, with disastrous consequences to the national character.

* * * *

The B.B.C. authorities, knowing that their programmes can penetrate into every home in the cities and the lonely country villages, realize, and try to act in accordance with, their tremendous responsibility. The newspapers containing the records of criminal and divorce court proceedings

Defects that Prove Progress.

By P. P. ECKERSLEY.

IT is a continuous embarrassment to know how much we should experiment upon the public. It is, probably, far easier to stick to a sameness, to dig in on the line of present achievement than to go over the top in an attempt to gain fresh ground. There are casualties, expenditure of ammunition, staff work till the small hours of the morning, and then we find, even when we have taken up new positions "according to plan," that their unfamiliarity makes them less tenable. Before, we had comfortable dug-outs to protect us from the fire of criticism, formulae by which to answer the letters of those who noticed unfamiliar changes.

New Studios and New Methods.

In our opinion, however, no advances can be made except in terms of actual service. Service spells experience; mock battles never yield the really important knowledge.

At the present moment, new studios, new methods of controlling, and other innovations are occupying us. We have, in consequence, received a certain amount of comment on "the variability of quality." Now, up to a few weeks ago, we played from, practically speaking, one studio. Those who wanted room to rehearse, experiment, give other programmes, fit in a talk and a military band, Sir Harry Lauder and a chamber music quartet with ten-second intervals, agitated considerably against this. Consequently, three new studios were built. Now we are able to have singer and piano in one, while the symphony orchestra is in the other, and waits between items are reduced.

The players may speak their lines in a quiet room while backgrounds are controlled in another studio by a headphoned individual who hears as much as you do. Now a speaker may be ushered into a (comparatively) hushed study and speak his talk at a desk capped by an unobtrusive microphone.

When Hearing Varies.

If you, with your own ears, were to walk from studio to studio and hear even the same sort of item in each, you would hear differences, owing to the varying acoustics of each room; and you would not greatly complain, I venture to suggest. If you went to hear the London Symphony Orchestra at Queen's Hall, the Philharmonic Hall, the Albert Hall and Covent Garden, you would not get the same effect exactly. I suggest in each case the effect would be well worth your visit.

When we relay the Savoy Bands from the Hotel, an orchestra from an Eastbourne Hotel, or De Groot at the Piccadilly, the acoustics are different, but mainly pleasing. The point is that there is no criterion as to which is absolutely right—only a very few are given ears to detect what they consider perfect, and a certain change is interesting. So with our studios; we cannot hope to do more than the ear; we cannot correct to a dead level the varying acoustics of different rooms. Thus my apologia for variations in the quality, apart from other causes.

Microphone Experiments.

From time to time, too, we experiment with new forms of microphone. Not until we are assured that the standard is good enough for broadcasting do we venture to put such devices into actual service; only by continued trials and your and our judgment can we expect to make up our minds.

Then, again, we are always trying to improve the performance of our transmitters, amplifiers, land-lines, and so forth; so changes—we believe for the better—are constantly in progress. A factor of variability must enter into our calculations; we try, as far as possible, that this variability shall be towards improvement.

Sometimes an actual improvement in theory may seem to a listener to be a retrograde step. Let us take it that a listener has, by certain "correction" circuits, made up for the lack of a frequency band in our transmission. I will not pretend that the performance of our system is such that it gives equal response (as it ought to) from 30 a second to 10,000 a second. (Incidentally, no receiver gives this, either).

Suppose that a correction circuit has been introduced to put in more of those frequencies between 30 and 100; then suppose after a year's work we get new transformers with better performance, then a step towards theoretical perfection has introduced, perhaps, too much bass in certain receivers and the step seems retrograde.

Obstacles to Success.

How easy it would be just to "sit tight" and explain away deficiencies! How much less criticism, worry and anxiety to continue in the old rut!

A statement of ideals, however, leads me to say that we must go forward; in terms of past experience we must progress and make changes, if we are to increase our facilities to the general public. Until all receivers are moderately selective, do not have to oscillate to achieve a robust signal, do not rely upon special circuits, give faithful quality without undue complication, broadcasting cannot reach finality.

Until we can give to such receivers robust alternative programmes, unhindered by foreign transmissions, until the electrical performance of the transmitters is equal over the audible frequency range, until the microphone, the ether and the loud-speaker form a link which truly substitutes the ear, our jobs on the technical side will not be completed.

We ask your co-operation, without which, British broadcasting cannot achieve ultimate perfection, nor maintain its pride of place. When it is all over, I suppose somebody will bring television into the range of practical politics. Then it will all start over again. I wonder if it will be as interesting!

teristic is evidenced by their unquestioning acceptance of the suggestion that "the classics are heavy." Directly such men hear a few bars of classical music or old-world songs they shut down their wireless, believing that they are to be bored. Let them be more original. Let them emulate those who think for themselves; let them dare to question this myth as to the dullness of good music, good literature, and good lectures. After a very little perseverance, they will find, to their surprise and growing delight, that on further acquaintance the only difference between good and bad music is that the good stands the test of time. The inferior article soon palls; the superior works give deeper pleasure the more often they are heard.

Life is not always full of energy and high animal spirits. Horse-play and care-free jollity, however customary amongst the young, can only touch the fringe of life. Sorrow, sickness, evil temptation, tragedy and death await each one of us in the brief passage from birth to the grave. No light entertainment helps a man when he first makes acquaintance with any one of those things. Then he comes in touch with the infinite, with the reality behind the show. Only the great in music and literature give consolation and courage to endure these mighty tests of character. Therefore, they ought to have due place in programmes designed to bring help and give pleasure to every home in this great nation.

can be avoided by those who do not care for such reading; precautions are usually taken to prevent these pages reaching the eyes of children. So, also, no one desires to see introduced constantly into the English home the light fare which is supplied to, and presumably suits the taste of, the average audience in the music-halls of a great metropolis.

Owing to physical disability, many cannot read nor write, nor leave home to visit places of entertainment; hence, for many thousands the wireless will more and more become the chief source of diversion, and even of mental occupation in the case of the very old and the invalid. Continual light entertainment is not conducive either to health or to happiness in such circumstances. And who does not shrink from the thought of providing the young adult and the child with such unnatural nourishment for their impressionable minds?

* * * *

Too many of those who cater for the public imagine that only poor or indifferent mental fare is enjoyed by the majority. But in truth it is probable that most men prefer what is wholesome, sincere and good; the proof of such a statement is provided by the history of the gramophone. The gramophone companies at first made little progress; their growing popularity and prosperity dates from the time they began to turn out large numbers of records of classical music. The enormous growth of the demand for such records proves not only that there exists a large number of people who appreciate fine music, but also that this public with a critical taste is rapidly becoming more numerous.

* * * *

There is yet another point of view which demands consideration. Too much music continued over too long a period is unhealthy for mind and body. Unhesitatingly I state that even the worker with uneducated taste would suffer were he to listen every night for several hours to light entertainment and light music. Such fare would not decrease, but increase his fatigue after his day's work. The best kind of rest is obtained by a change of mental occupation and change of thought. To be taken out of oneself is not only the most enjoyable form of recreation, but the most health giving, and the most restful for brain and body.

The clerk, wearied by monotonous office letters, the manual worker and the housewife, worn out after the day's muscular work, each and all will find refreshment by listening to news of another world, such as is obtained from a lecture on the stars, or on journeys through strange countries.

* * * *

There is much to be said for those who suffer from long hours of entertainment. Those who desire light amusement from 8 to 11 every evening, and dance music from 11 till 1 or 2 a.m., are physically strong enough to be able to find their amusement elsewhere. They can go to the halls provided for such entertainment and pay the musicians a living wage. Again, the need for long hours of sleep by the invalid, by the young, and by the workers, should not be disturbed by the loud speaker of a neighbour. Is it just that brain workers should be kept awake, night after night, by sounds which not only exasperate their musical sense, but also injure their working power on the following day? This matter demands most serious consideration. The work of this world is not performed by those who require jazz music or light entertainment every evening, and the amusements of the young must not be allowed to ruin the home life, the health and the happiness of the workers.

Every medical man knows that the uneducated are readily hypnotized. The same mental charac-

Official News and Radio Gossip.

A Successor to "Radio Radiance."

THOSE who have appreciated the various editions of that sprightly show, Radio Radiance, will be glad to hear that February 13th is the date fixed for the launching of its successor—a new Radio revue to be entitled Listening Time.

B.N.O.C. Transmissions.

Two further operatic transmissions of the B.N.O.C. have been arranged for February 9th and 16th respectively, when the second act of The Magic Flute and the third act of Carmen will be relayed to London and other stations from the Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

A Frederic Cowen Programme.

The feature in the London Station programme on February 12th will be half-an-hour of Sir Frederic Cowen's songs sung by Miss Carrie Tubb (soprano), and Mr. Ben Davies (tenor), accompanied by the composer.

"Will o' the Wisp."

That delightful Irish actress, Miss Sarah Allgood, will appear in an Irish play, The Will o' the Wisp, to be broadcast from London Station on Sunday, February 21st.

Miss Ivy St. Helier.

The week's feature at London Station on February 19th will be the visit of Miss Ivy St. Helier, who will give some of her well-known impersonations.

Novelty Half Hours.

A new note is struck in the Novelty Half Hours at Birmingham Station to be started at 8.0 p.m. on Monday, February 15th. The first half hour—8.0 to 8.30 p.m. is entitled "Musical Guessea." Listeners are invited to guess several compositions from the details and items given during this programme, and a prize of one guinea will be given to the most nearly correct result received at the Studio by the first post on Wednesday, February 17th. The second half hour will consist of "Laughteritis," which will be given by Mr. Charles Penrose and Miss Mona Grey in an original Humorous Sketch by Mr. Penrose. Between 9.0 and 9.30, Mr. Joseph Lewis has arranged a tour round the world on one valve. The last half hour before 10 o'clock is devoted to a short transmission of the most popular feature in the week's programme.

A Municipal Police Band.

An important Military Band Concert takes place on Thursday, February 18th, at 7.30 p.m., from the Town Hall, Birmingham, when the City of Birmingham Police Band will be conducted by Mr. Richard Wassell. The soloist will be Mr. Harold Casey, who will be heard in baritone songs, and Mr. Percy Owens, entertainer. Items by the band include the Overture from the Mastersingers, by Wagner, the Andante con moto from the "Unfinished" Symphony in B Minor, by Schubert, and also the Suite, "Rustic Revels," by Fletcher.

Midland Composers.

The first part of the programme to be broadcast from Birmingham Station on Wednesday, February 17th, will give Birmingham and Midland listeners the opportunity of becoming acquainted with the works of Birmingham and Midland composers. Mr. Cyril Christopher and Mr. Henry Furse both hail from Birmingham, and the first-named will be playing two piano solos which he has composed—a waltz Impromptu and a Gavotte. Miss Mabel Senior will also sing two of his songs. The item by Mr. Henry Furse is an Intermezzo to be played by the Orchestra. Another Birmingham man, Mr. Harry Parsons, contributes an Overture Dramatique, which will also be played by the Station Orchestra. Mr. Cedric Mallabey, of Northampton, contributes an English suite for Pianoforte Quartet, which will be played by the Station Quartet, and several items for the piano and violin by Montague Bull, including the Intermezzo "Margery."

"Bonzo's" Creator to Broadcast.

All listeners are acquainted with that amusing dog "Bonzo," and they will be interested to know that his creator, the brilliant humorous artist, Mr. G. E. Studdy, is to broadcast a talk on "Bonzo" from London Studio on Monday, February 1st. Mr. Studdy was originally intended for an engineer, but he had always been interested in drawing, and when at last he turned his attention solely to art he was quickly recognized as a brilliant artist and humorist.

Mr. G. E. STUDDY.

Symphony Concert at Bournemouth.

A popular evening Symphony Concert will be relayed by Bournemouth Station from the Winter Gardens, where Sir Dan Godfrey will conduct the Municipal Orchestra, on Monday evening, February 8th. Among other items the orchestra will play the "Symphony No. 3 in D," by Tchaikovsky, and the stirring "Chorale and Fugue in G Minor," by Bach. Miss Mollie Mercer will give songs at the piano, and Mr. Alexander McCredie will sing the ever-popular "Flower Song" from Bizet's Carmen.

A CHANCE FOR COMPOSERS.

The B.B.C. has decided to organize competitions for the special purpose of encouraging new and lesser-known British composers. The awards will be made in the late autumn by a fully representative Board of Adjudicators. Substantial money prizes are to be offered. Particulars of these competitions will be published in subsequent issues of "The Radio Times."

Light Music and Entertainers.

The programme at Bournemouth Station on Wednesday, February 10th, promises to be a jolly affair, for there will be no fewer than five entertainers who will convey an atmosphere of laughter and merriment. The Bournemouth Wireless Orchestra will be conducted by Captain W. A. Featherstone, and an attractive programme of light music will form a suitable background for the entertainers.

A Ladies' Night.

Miss Helena Millais is visiting Plymouth Station on February 10th to take part in a programme which will be given entirely by women. She is to give "Fragments from Life," including "Our Lizzie." Miss Mary Edgecombe (soprano) and Miss Renee Sweetland (pianist) will also broadcast during the evening.

Dickens Fare.

A feature will be made in the Glasgow programme on Tuesday, February 9th, of extracts from the works of Charles Dickens and songs of old London, in order to celebrate the anniversary of the birth of the great novelist. The singers are Miss Sophie Rowlands (soprano), and Mr. Tom Kinniburgh (bass), and the dramatic part will be presented by Mr. Percival Steeds and his Dramatic Company.

The Liverpool Philharmonics.

Liverpool listeners can look forward to further relays of the Philharmonic Concerts on February 9th and March 9th.

Which Does She Choose?

A novel competition in which The Radio Times is offering several prizes will be included in the programmes during the week beginning March 1st. Listeners will be invited to unravel a series of interesting psychological problems such as would concern three men and a woman who, after being shipwrecked, are marooned on a desert island. Each of the men represents outstanding and entirely different types. Of course, they fall in love with the woman. Which, if either of them, does she choose for her husband when they are ultimately rescued from the island? All the events of the competition will be portrayed by the Dramatic Department, and included in the programmes on three separate evenings. The first two transmissions will set out the problem, at which stage listeners will be asked to send in solutions and give reasons for the decision they would expect the woman to make. Later, the solution will be broadcast, also as part of the programmes. Further details will appear in the next issue of The Radio Times.

Edinburgh Broadcast Service.

The religious service from the Edinburgh Studio, at 8.15 p.m., on Sunday, February 7th, will be conducted by the Rev. R. J. Mackay, M.A., of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Newington, with the assistance of the Choir, under the direction of Mr. F. R. M. Lee. It is interesting to note that the late organist of St. Paul's Cathedral, Sir George Martin, at one time held the post at St. Peter's, Edinburgh.

Some Good Talks.

The next of Dr. Sarolea's series of talks on "Famous Women of Modern History" from Edinburgh, is to be about Queen Elizabeth and will be S.B. to all Scottish Stations on February 8th. Among other specially interesting talks which have been arranged from Edinburgh may be mentioned the afternoon school talks by Mr. Mortimer Batten on "Days and Nights in the Blackbear Forests," and Mr. A. G. Ogilvie (University Reader in Geography) on "Man's Life by the Rivers of the Hot Deserts," to be given on February 10th and 12th, respectively.

Chamber Music at Aberdeen.

The Aberdeen programme on Tuesday, February 9th, should suit a variety of tastes. The first part is to be in the nature of a "Ballad Concert" by Mr. F. Elliot Dobie, and the Wireless Orchestra; then follows a play entitled Loyalty, presented by the London Radio Repertory Players. The last three-quarters of an hour are to be devoted to Chamber Music by the Wireless Orchestra. The soloists will be Mr. Madisky (violinist) and Miss Nan Davidson (pianist). An important item in this programme is to be the "Clarinet Quintet" by Mozart, in which the clarinet part is being taken by Mr. William Harkins.

Another Peterhead Relay.

The last concert relayed through Aberdeen Station from Peterhead was so successful that the same good results are expected from the one to be broadcast on February 10th. With the Choir under the conductorship of Mr. George A. Innes, and the soloists Miss Margaret Stewart and Mr. Alexander MacGregor, listeners are promised an interesting two hours of Scottish music.

Modern English Songs at Dundee.

Miss Dorothy Pugh, the well-known West of Scotland soprano, makes her first visit to Dundee Station on Wednesday, February 10th, when she will be heard in two recitals—the first, of songs by Roger Quilter, and the second, of songs by Cyril Scott.

The Power of the Witch.

Uncanny Stories Old and New. By Kenneth Hare.*

WITCHCRAFT is once again to the fore. There was the case at Bompon of only a few days back when two men and ten women drove up to a church and thrashed the parish priest in his own vestry for having cast spells upon them. He was removed unconscious by the gendarmes.

There was also that humorous affair of a few weeks back of the factory girl who was followed about a room by a pudding. All sorts of articles broke when this girl approached them, the threads of the looms in the factory where she worked, and some fifty pounds worth of china.

Casting Spells on Women.

But this last phenomenon is not uncommon and can be explained without diabolic agencies. And to-day the papers are full of another Staffordshire witchcraft case emanating from Haddington. A woman van dweller has been accused of casting spells over various women, and their menfolk have been bound over at Tipton Police Court for threatening the witch.

We are commonly told that belief in witchcraft and the persecution of witches was widespread in the Middle Ages. This is not altogether accurate. If we take the fourteenth century, and the days when Chaucer was composing his Canterbury Legends as a period typical of that day, we shall find that judges and magistrates displayed a wholesome scepticism when sorcerers and sorceresses were haled before them. They were regarded less as creatures of malicious minds and supernatural powers than as common impostors, and an hour or so of the pillory with the instruments of their jugglery hung about their necks was held sufficient punishment to compound for the offence.

The Influence of War.

Witchcraft usually manifests itself in the periods following great wars and has more to do with nerve exhaustion and the various ill effects incidental to economic difficulties and worry than some people would be inclined to admit. Thus, witchcraft was rife in the period following the Wars of the Roses.

Well, that was the temper of the time during and immediately after the "Wars of the Roses." It was convenient for great nobles to have a peasant populace imbued with a belief in witchcraft and they were not scrupulous in exploiting it. Thus, Richard III., in his campaign for rooting out those whose interests were opposed to his own, found witchcraft an easy charge to bring against Jane Shore and accused her, accordingly, of shrivelling up his arm like a "withered sapling"—although that was a physical defect which he had suffered from in the nursery.

"Witch-finder to the Government."

After the storm, a calm. There was little persecution during the great days of the Tudors. It was under James I. that England beheld an extraordinary revival of the whole business—again, after a period of war.

James I.'s reputation has suffered for his participation and also for his appointing himself the head of a movement that had for its avowed object the eradication of witchcraft by violent methods. But let us remember that the belief in all kinds of sorcery was universal in the country which he had quitted—Scotland. The belief in it had surged up no less on the Continent, where the persecutors were all about as superstitious as he. If he compiled his book on Demonology against the witches of England, they had on the Continent the Malleus maleficarum or "Hammer of Witches," which is a work not one iota less perverse, contemptible and absurd. He was a man of his time—it was his misfortune not to be beyond it.

* In a Talk from London.

His day saw the creation of a new office in the State, that of "Witch-finder to the British Government."

There was a man named Hopkins, a Suffolk man, and he had been a lawyer. He tells us that he began his experience of witches in March, 1644, when seven or eight of them lived near him at Manningtree. Every six weeks, these uncomfortable neighbours of his had a general family union, and Friday was their day for offering sacrifices to the Devil. He caused four to be hanged, but it must be confessed he had had enough to provoke him. They had shown themselves anything but neighbourly, having had the bad taste to send the Devil in the likeness of a bear to kill him in his garden!

Many Victims.

This amazing lunatic made a general progress, accompanied by a man and woman searcher, through Essex, Suffolk, Norfolk and Huntingdonshire. The three rode on horseback and charged twenty shillings, a sum equivalent, perhaps, to eight times that amount to-day, from every town they visited. Many were his victims. Confessions were extorted, and very curious they were. A certain Elizabeth Clerk confessed to having various familiar spirits, one like "a fat spaniel without legs," and another like "a black rabbit" who answered to the name of "Sacke and Sugar." All these ravings of poor creatures in great pain were taken by Hopkins and his staff as "confessions" worthy of serious evidence. But though Hopkins was a civil servant, he was not a permanent civil servant. He was accused himself of witchcraft by a Puritan divine, John Gaule, and consigned to the pond to see if he would "swim" or "sink." He swam and so was hanged.

A Village Fortune-Teller.

If there was one age that one would suppose must have been quite above such follies and superstitions as these, it would surely be that of Queen Victoria, which we are apt to regard as reaching the acme of materialism and unimaginative, stuffy self-complacency. But Browning's poem of Sludge the Medium would suffice to show us our error.

Charles Dickens was within eight years of his death and Thackeray within two when the good folk of Essex "swum" in the village mill pond a deaf and dumb old foreigner of about eighty years of age as a wizard.

Who Dummy was, or where he came from, was a mystery, but it is supposed that he was a Frenchman by birth, and his nickname was given owing to his being unable to speak, except by signs—which filled the villagers with dread. He was eccentric, not to say grotesque, and, though the poorest of the poor, could boast a collection in his hovel of a host of umbrellas and between four and five hundred walking-sticks. But he was an astute old impostor, and, finding himself regarded as an impostor, lost no time in turning the situation to his advantage. He turned village fortune-teller, as was proved by a quantity of scribbled questions written by the villagers and discovered by the police, Bewitched by Signs.

But Dummy went too far. He bewitched the wife of a local beershop helper for refusing to let him take up his permanent abode in her shed. He "made signs," she told the court, and then wrote up in chalk upon her door: "In ten days you will be ill," and ill she was. She wasted and wasted in perfectly good traditional style and visited two doctors in one night, who could do nothing for her. So she incited the villagers to throw him in the pond, having first offered him three guineas to remove the spell.

The unfortunate, but evidently malignant, sorcerer was rescued by one of the Guardians of the Poor, and his last moments were spent in a clean bed in the Halstead Union.

Aids to Listening.

By Robert Magill.

DURING the last month or so I have noticed that my wife and myself have become distinctly "lowbrow," in so far that we now like musical comedy in the programmes, whereas once we preferred grand opera. As it affected both of us, I was puzzled to account for it, but after considerable thought on the subject, during which I rejected the idea that it might be due to the weather, or the fact that we were both sickening for measles, I have finally attributed it to the drawing-room carpet.

A Profound Truth.

Just before this lamentable change in our musical taste occurred, we acquired a new carpet with pink roses on a pale blue background, and relegated the old dark red affair with black wiggle-waggles on it to the dining-room. Now, when one listens through earphones, one's gaze is usually fixed on the floor, as an aid to concentration, and there is no doubt whatever that dark red, especially with black wiggle-waggles on it, puts one in the mood to appreciate anything tragic, like Pagliacci, while pink and pale blue, on the other hand, suggest something light and effervescent.

Since discovering this profound truth, I have had earphones installed in every room, with the idea that we should solemnly get up before each item and adjourn to the place that provided the proper atmosphere, which we might have done if we weren't quite so nice and comfortable where we were.

Thus, talks on domestic subjects seem far more convincing in the kitchen, while there is at least one popular item which I like best in bed. Especially when I can't sleep.

Foods That Fit Programmes.

In the case of people who can afford to do the thing properly, this idea of providing the right atmosphere is capable of development. We might dress the part, although in the case of a mixed programme it would be awkward to doff the kimono one wore during Butterfly and get into football kit to hear "Rugger Topics."

Then, there is the question of foods that fit programmes.

On some evenings, after I have eaten a slab of beefsteak and a hunk of treacle tart with some Stilton cheese that can broadcast as powerfully as "5XX," I positively hate fugues and tone poems. I yearn for military bands. On the other hand, after a delicately-filleted sardine, I want to hear some sea shanties, or something marine, with a "Yo-ho" in it. I feel perfectly convinced that if those people who criticize the programmes would only take the trouble to get into training for them by dieting themselves, we should have no more grumbling. Why, after a meal of juicy tripe and onions, one might even get to like a weather forecast!

"This is a Pink Piece."

I admit the disadvantages of this scheme, of course. For instance, during the performance of some humorous item there would be such a run on something satirical, like mustard pickles, that the prices would all go up.

An easier way would be to instal three or four differently-coloured lights in the room, and switch on the one appropriate to the item being broadcast at the moment. Thus, we could have yellow—the melancholy colour—for a love-sick tenor, white for a soprano, red for the passionate contralto—imagine "Softly Awakes My Heart" with a danger signal shining—and purple for the bass.

The announcer would not only be able to give us the proper pronunciation of the composer's name, but he would be able to add, "This is a pink piece, or a mauve item, or grey, with a dash of brown." And the next time I broadcast it will probably be very blue.

PEOPLE YOU WILL HEAR THIS WEEK.

[Claude Harris.]

Miss DOROTHY YORK (Soprano) will broadcast from Hull on Wednesday, February 3rd.

Miss SUZANNE STONELEY (Flautist), who will broadcast from Belfast on Monday, February 1st.

Mr. WALLACE CUNNINGHAM (Entertainer) is to broadcast from Aberdeen on Wednesday, February 3rd.

Hymns We Sang in Childhood.

The Romance of Well-known Tunes. By A. B. Cooper.

IT is not always easy to distinguish the hymn suitable for children from the hymn suitable for grown-ups, and there are cases in which the author of a hymn has been surprised to find that what was meant for adults has been securely captured by the youngsters. A case in point is the world-known hymn: "Tell me the Old, Old Story." Miss Katherine Hankey wrote it in 1866.

"What has always greatly surprised me," wrote Miss Hankey to a friend some years later, "is that so many people, including the editors of hymnals, should look upon it only as a children's hymn; I certainly had not children in my mind when I wrote it."

"The Singing Evangelist."

The fact is that it originally consisted of a poem of fifty stanzas, Part I "The Story Wanted," Part II "The Story Told." It is the eight four-line verses which constitute Part I which have become known to all the world.

It is possible that it might never have got farther than tens of thousands of other sweet verses had not Ira D. Sankey, "the Singing Evangelist," happened to see it reprinted in the poetry corner of an American paper. Thinking it would be an attractive addition to the mission hymnal he was preparing, he sent it to W. H. Doane, requesting him to set it to music. The result was the well-known tune of eight lines, with the refrain "Tell me the old, old story," which millions can sing to-day.

But Miss Hankey never liked this tune, or the way in which the composer had made her four-line stanzas into eight. Be that as it may, it proved the most popular, perhaps, with the one exception of "Safe In the Arms of Jesus," of all the "Sankey" collection.

The Most Familiar Lines.

It might be of some interest to inquire what are the most familiar lines in the language. Two very strong competitors for this proud distinction would certainly be claimed for America, "Mary had a Little Lamb," which cannot be counted as a hymn, and

Little drops of water,
Little grains of sand,
Make the mighty ocean
And the beauteous land, which certainly can. Indeed, it is one of the sweetest and simplest of all children's hymns, one which no child could possibly fail to understand.

It appeared first in a school reading book at Boston, U.S.A., and was written by Mrs. Julia A. Carney, who was a teacher in one of the Boston schools. It was first introduced into this country through a hymnal published at Manchester in 1855. Twenty years later, Bishop Bickersteth added a new verse, which some think improves the original, and, still later, Prebendary Thring expanded the bishop's verse into three of his own. Probably, after all, the little poem is best in its original form.

A Tragic Origin.

Another of those hymns which are suitable for all ages, but are usually associated with and appropriated by the young folk, is "Stand up, stand up for Jesus!" which, next to "Onward, Christian Soldiers!" is the most widely known of all hymns of the martial kind. It had a tragical and dramatic origin, and is also connected with the great moral movement which resulted in the American Civil War and the freeing of the slaves.

The rector of one of the leading churches in Philadelphia, whose name was Tyng, had aroused a good deal of resentment in certain quarters, owing to his strong condemnation of slavery, for many members of his congregation were slave-holders. So great was their resentment that eventually the young man had to resign his charge.

However, he had a large number of very staunch friends, and these hired for him a large hall in the city, where he continued to preach to huge congregations. One Sunday he preached to five thousand men to the text: "Go now, ye that are men, and serve the Lord," and on the following Sunday he died.

The young clergyman's death was due to a terrible accident. He was in a barn where a mule was working a machine. He stretched out his arm to pat the animal, a cog-wheel caught his sleeve, dragged his arm into the machinery, and tore it off. He was asked, as he lay dying on the following Sunday, what message he had for his congregation. "Tell them to stand up for Jesus," he said, and these were his last words.

The Hallmark of Simplicity.

Dr. Duffield preached the young man's funeral service, and he wound up a moving address with a hymn which he said had been inspired by Mr. Tyng's last words:—

Stand up! stand up for Jesus,
Ye soldiers of the Cross;
Lift high His royal banner,
It must not suffer loss.

The very words of the young minister's last text, too, are incorporated in the second verse: "Ye that are men, now serve Him."

There is no doubt that absolute simplicity, both of thought and language, is the hallmark of all the best children's hymns, and the hymn which fulfils these conditions most perfectly is probably "Jesus, Tender Shepherd, hear me." Its perfect simplicity is accounted for by the fact that it was written by a young mother, who did not make any literary pretensions at all, but who wanted to put into three simple verses all the things that she thought her two little girls ought to say in their evening prayers. It is interesting and instructive to examine these three stanzas, and see how well packed they are, how sparing of words, and yet how adequate, both in thought and language, for their purpose:—

Jesus, tender Shepherd, hear me!
Bless Thy little lamb to-night;
Through the darkness be Thou near me;
Keep me safe till morning light.
Through the day Thy hand has led me,
And I thank Thee for Thy care;
Thou hast warmed and clothed and fed me:
Listen to my evening prayer.
Let my sins be all forgiven;
Bless the friends I love so well;
Take me, when I die, to heaven,
Happy there with Thee to dwell.

SONGS WORTH KNOWING.

"The Gentle Maiden."

THE English words of this song, by Sir Harold Boulton, are arranged by Arthur Somervell to an old Irish air. We publish the words by permission of the publishers, Messrs. J. B. Cramer and Co., Ltd.

THERE'S one that is pure as an angel,
And fair as the flowers of May,
They call her the gentle maiden,
Wherever she takes her way.
Her eyes have the glance of sunlight,
As it brightens the blue sea wave,
And more than the deep sea treasure,
The love of her heart I crave.

Though parted afar from my darling,
I dream of her everywhere,
The sound of her voice is about me,
The spell of her presence there,
And whether my prayers be granted,
Or whether she pass me by,
The face of that gentle maiden
Will follow me till I die.

Points From Talks.

A Wordy Problem.

THE fate of new-made words is like that of mankind, one is taken and the other left. In 1882, Frederick Myers suggested to the Psychical Research Society the Greek words teleesthesia, far perception, and telepathy, far feeling. The former has remained a word for specialists, the latter is already current English. A still more extraordinary case is that of the two fanciful words blas and gas, introduced in the 17th century by the Flemish alchemist Van Helmont, as names for vapours. Blas perished in infancy, while gas has been adopted by every European language.—Professor E. Weekley, M.A.

The Source of the Brahmaputra.

THINK of this river, two miles wide higher up, here squeezed into a rent in the mountains, 50 feet wide and 10,000 feet deep, pounding its way between smoking boulders and green jungle! From above, we could see the great snowy range behind us, with the river spouting from between its locked jaws. In front, a big gap yawned, the mountains sank down to the hills, and the hills melted away into the yet distant plains. But our task was finished; we had climbed right through the Himalaya; we had solved the riddle of the gorge.—Captain Kingdom Ward.

Brain and Brawn.

THE stoking of an express engine is a skilled job, and requires a fair amount of training before a man becomes expert at it. It has no relation, say, to simply shovelling coals into a coal-cellar. A fireman has to use both brain and brawn.—H. C. Charleton.

The Land of Dreams.

If you are in search of physical adventures, go to Klondike or Zambesi, but avoid Greece. You can occupy yourself with wild creatures in human or animal form in those regions, but in Greece your adventures are mental or spiritual. There are fleas and sheep-dogs, of course, and up in Thessaly you can make arrangements to be held up by brigands. They are sometimes a little over-enthusiastic, and lop off your ears if your ransom is held up in the post. But in Greece proper they can be avoided. Greece is so old, so old. You can hold your breath and dream.—Louis Golding.

Marie Antoinette and Aviation.

IN the history of the conquest of the air, the page of women's achievement is a great one. The woman of to-day is something more than a wife to her husband. She is his friend, his companion, his playmate, and more often than not, his business partner. The true development of the air sense of the nation depends just as much on the women of the country as on the men.—Mrs. Elliott-Lynn.

Women Who Neutralize Poisons.

THE tribes under consideration in my Talk to-night believe in the grossest forms of superstitions surrounding their women. When preparing poison prior to a battle, the presence of a woman is strictly forbidden, and should one inadvertently appear on the scene, they believe that the killing power of the poison is lost, and a fresh supply has to be made. Also, those who participate in the preparation of this poison are forbidden to occupy the same huts as their wives for a period of two days before the ceremony.—Sir Curtis Lampson.

Crusoe and the Motor Horn.

SOUNDS there are, very far from beautiful in themselves, which may become so by association. Suppose a modern Robinson Crusoe, rescued and restored to human society, were to start up from his sleep with the nightmare that he was back on his desert island. Would not the hoot of a passing motor be the sweetest music in his ears? He would realize that in this uncanny sound spoke for him the voice of humanity, the men and women of whose companionship he had been so long deprived. It was not the cry of a sea-fowl. No, he was at home again.—Fitzgerald French.

Home-Made Words.

By Evelyn Smith.*

IF you think it over, you will discover at once that not only your own, but every family you know, has a tone of voice, a manner of speech, a certain set of words and phrases, peculiar to itself. There is a good deal of interest in these little dialects, significant of family experience and character as they are. They grow up quite unconsciously. Sometimes a family which prides itself on being original tries deliberately to manufacture novel expressions, but these never really flourish, never "catch on."

The Baby's "Chestnut."

Nobody knows how or why certain expressions should "fit" and should persist, sometimes, for many years—their success is as much a mystery as that of one particular pantomime catchword or music-hall song. Anyone may contribute them—the baby, or the chance visitor, or the housemaid, or the stranger in the train.

These family dialects are, of course, of very unequal merit. Dull and irritating words and expressions are as common as badly planned menus and uninteresting colour schemes. And we all know the dreadful family where the good old chestnut is fondly regarded as the original invention of one of its young.

The Poet's Kettle.

And most of us have suffered from the people who give a human name to every inanimate object in the house. This sometimes seems entirely right. Harold Monro has a named kettle which comes into one of his week-end sonnets, the one describing the evening by the fire in the cottage.

Contented evening; comfortable joys;
The snoozing fire, and all the fields are still;
Tranquil delight, no purpose, and no noise—
Unless the slow wind flowing round the hill.
Murry (the kettle) dozes, little mouse
Is rambling prudently about the floor—and so on. We are quite ready to agree that that particular kettle was called Murry, and to believe that it demanded a name of its own as emphatically as the cat for whom Pussy or Kitty will never do. But when, in a modern novel, we meet a young woman, a teacher, who is supposed to be wonderful with children, and, on encountering for the first time a little girl of seven or so with an umbrella, informs her that this umbrella is called Karenhappuch, we become irritated. We doubt whether a seven-year-old would accept that sort of thing, for children, always great contributors to the family dialect, have a terribly critical eye for the forced and the machine-made.

Bridging the Years.

In all family dialects are phrases describing the sorrows of the parent. How many people have had mothers who said: "I don't know how it is, but I have to get like a raving lion before I can make my children obey me"? Lots of us knew that raving lion, by hearsay, at any rate—perhaps he has vanished in these milder days.

The most interesting part of family dialect is often so highly individual that it cannot be "put across" to the outsider, unless he has a natural delight in language. The compilation of such a dialect is often great fun at the reunion of a family separated for a long time, and more than anything else, with its recalling of episodes and interests that were an essential part of the family experience, it helps to bridge the years.

No one can deny that, if you once learn a family dialect, if you happen to be there when some new word or phrase creeps or leaps into it, there is no doubt as to your place by the fireside. No letter of introduction, however cunningly phrased, from however influential a mutual friend, is so sure a passport to confidence and favour.

Outside Broadcasts.

By One Who Does Them.

"WE are now going down to Brighton to hear a concert from the —"

How often have we heard that sort of announcement, and on our wireless set we have been taken here and there and everywhere? Now it is a statesman at a dinner, now we hear them clapping an encore at a dance hall, and in a few seconds it is someone in Edinburgh, or the beat of waves on the red rocks of a West Country beach.

How many stop to think how it is done? Who knows of that little band of "O.B." Engineers, as they are called, who have such an anxious time, on whom so much depends, and who work so often under very difficult circumstances?

A Dinner By Radio.

It might interest readers of The Radio Times to know something of the modus operandi. The London programme builders decide to "broadcast a dinner" (how quaint a phrase years ago, but obviously there can be no misconception now!).

First, there must be the permissions and visits and correspondence. Then at last it is decided that the programme aspects are in line: no controversial politics, no charity appeal not agreed to, no singing of denied copyright songs—and then the engineers come in. There is a line to be ordered from the Post Office, and the cost to be estimated. Someone has got to go down to see where the "extended wiring"—i.e., between P.O. diss case and the amplifier—can be run unobtrusively.

Next, the day arrives, and you will see a motor-van outside Savoy Hill, taking its load of amplifiers, heavy accumulators, spare gear, suitable wire, and last, but not least, the engineers. Off it sets, slurging through the winter slush or dustily spinning in the wan London sunshine.

Into a Million Homes.

Arrived, and no one knows what all this is about, and there's this man and the other to see. It would be tedious to go through all the stages—the wiring up, the finding of authoritative information, the buying of flowers to cover up the unlovely microphones, until—the moment arrives.

Lighted by the pale light of dull emitters, Laocoon-like, amid the snaky coils of wires crowned with headphones like some officiator at a solemn rite, we find the anxious engineer.

Faintly to us down there comes the thunder of applause as the great man rises. A hand-telephone tinkles. "Ready?... Yes, just rising now; all on your No. 1 line." "What, your programmes not ready? Well, I tell you they can't wait." "Right!" Silence; a hand moves to the volume control and faintly in a spare pair of 'phones we hear the first words passing to Savoy Hill on their winged flight to a million listening homes.

We see the same scene in a thousand quaint places. Behind the stage, the painted chorus contrasts strangely with the wiring of an installed amplifier; below the stage, rattling to the thump of many feet, blanketing the waves of applause, there again is that familiar scene, amplifier, switches, wire, and hand-telephone.

In the towers of famous belled churches, in the ante-chambers of the great, the engineers must go, leaving the microphone vis-à-vis the "noise," connected by amplifier to a line, and so "push it out" to the great concentrated network which we call the control-room at Savoy Hill, where it is sifted, controlled, sorted, and sent on again.

When Trouble Comes.

More awful than anything is a breakdown.

Suppose a microphone, the ewe lamb of the flock which has never given its guardian a moment's trouble, suddenly decides to "pack," "diss" its coil, what then? There is always a "spare," of course, but once, like a pair of horses which decide to be naughty together, both conspired to fail, and so the million-to-one chance beat us.

Again, a careless bit of wiring, a waiter's foot, and the blare of the jazz band ends in a horrid crash. Feverishly a fault is chased and a cherished record "goes west." The lines have been known to fail, a careless workman's pick, a frayed bend, and all is over and the engineers are disgraced!

How few those breakdowns are (almost one-eightieth of a second in every hour of outside broadcasts) is a tribute to the reliability of the Post Office Engineers and the hard work, under often exacting circumstances, of the "O.B." Engineers.

The next time you see that grey van stamped B.B.C. (type approved by the Postmaster-General) rolling along the Strand at 1 a.m., or 1 p.m., remember that you, in your comfortable sitting-room, owe it and its human load a debt of gratitude.

THE HULL WIRELESS SOCIETY have an interesting method of helping listeners to obtain the best results from their sets. In their fortnightly talks, a special series is devoted to Mr. Newman and Mr. Oldhand. Mr. Newman tells Mr. Oldhand his troubles and Mr. Oldhand discusses them with him and advises him what to do to overcome his difficulties. The advice is very elementary, and should greatly encourage a beginner.

The Doctor: "You brood too much. Try listening to a loud-speaker."
The Patient: "I do, doctor; I'm married."

The Children's Corner.

Adventures in Wild Folk Land.

A NEW and interesting series of Nature talks has been arranged by Auntie Dorothy to take place shortly in the Children's Corner from Birmingham.

These will be of particular interest to those children who, by reason of illness, are unable to take walks through the countryside, and can only see country life in their mind's eye, or through the medium of the ear-phones.

This series is entitled "Adventures in Wild Folk Land," and the stories, which are specially written for broadcasting by Mr. G. Bernard Hughes, will be told in the Corner by Cousin Joye.

The first two are about "The Prince Sea Otter" and "The Queen Sea Otter's Adventure," and the last two describe the Fox family under the title, "The Fox Family and Black Fox Leave Home."

A New Sort of Picture Gallery.

The Aunties and Uncles at Aberdeen have collected a number of very charming pictures which they are having framed and hung up as the beginning of a novel picture gallery. The pictures are photographs of the little people in fancy dress who attended the Radio Circle Party. A number of photographs have been received so far and more are expected. The Aunties and Uncles think this is a nice way of remembering the first big party held for Radio Circle members in Aberdeen.

"Spick" Loses His Partner.

"Spick and Span" continue to delight the Kiddiewinks of Cardiff. I never can make out whether "Spick" gets quite what he deserves. He certainly thought he was going to have a holiday when "Span" sent a message to say that there would be no history lesson that week, as he had a terrific cold. The day arrived, however, and "Mrs. Span" turned up to make poor "Spick's" life a burden to him. For one thing, though "Span" is large, "Mrs. Span" is larger still, and when she chased him out of the Studio at the end of the proceedings, the walls fairly shook.

"Spick" calls every day at "Span's" house with lozenges and cough-mixture and cold cures, and we expect that the old partners will soon visit us again.

A Canine Broadcaster.

During the Edinburgh Children's Corner recently, Uncle Jack's Alsatian wolf-hound, "Warner," broadcast a message of greeting to all dogs in the city. The usual procedure for Uncle Leslie to read all MSS. in advance was waived on this occasion, and "Warner" was allowed to speak extempore. After clearing his throat several times, he made an appeal to all Edinburgh dogs to join the Radio Circle and to collect bones for all the stray and destitute pups in the neighbourhood.

Next day, many letters were received from wireless enthusiasts of the dog tribe saying how much they had enjoyed "Warner's" address and assuring him of their hearty support of his charitable scheme.

It is hoped that "Warner" may be persuaded to give a second talk to dog listeners at an early date, possibly on the subject of cats—unless, of course, Auntie Molly objects.

A Radio Circle Party.

The Dundee Studio looked like Fairyland one afternoon recently at 4 p.m., when the special Radio Circle Party took place. All the lights were covered with beautiful shades of every hue, large bunches of holly peeped out of every corner, and even Mr. Mike had his face scrubbed and was looking ever so spick and span!

The little guests were all prize-winners in the various Radio Circle Competitions during the year, and we are sure that the other Kiddies who were listening to the Party will make a brave effort to win an invitation to the next one at the end of this year.

THREE BRAVE MICE.

THERE was once a little mouse named Hop who had two brothers whose names were Mop and Drop. Hop got his name because he didn't pitter-patter along in the usual way, but gave a sort of hop, skip and a jump wherever he went.

Mop had on his head a funny little tuft of hair, and the third brother was called Drop because he was always drinking little drops of water. In fact, he used to climb down into the bath and sit beneath the cold water tap, and every time a drop fell, he would catch it cleverly.

So now you know Hop, Mop and Drop who used to live in Mouseland.

"I'm tired of living under the floor," Hop was saying.

"So am I!" replied Mop.

"Me, too!" Drop cried. "I want to get to the bathroom."

"You can't," Hop told him. "The water's running fast now so that little Jimmy can have his night's wash. Can't you hear him crying?"

"Well, let's go in that back room where the music's coming from," Drop suggested.

"There's a man there," Mop cried. "Oh, we shall have to be careful, he might put a trap down."

"Never mind, Moppy," Drop laughed, "it'll be great fun. Come on, you mouses!"

Hop, Mop and Drop made their way through a hole in the floor, Hop jumping up first. The three of them peeped at the Big Grown-Up, who was Jimmy's father. He was sitting in an armchair listening to the wireless.

"Look at that funny horn," whispered Mop. "That's a loud squeaker," replied Drop. "You mean a loud speaker," Hop said. "I mean what I say," and Drop gave a funny little squeak himself.

At that moment, Jimmy's father looked up. He thought that the little squeak was something going wrong with his wireless set.

Presently, Hop crept up the table-cloth, followed by Mop and Drop. Luckily, Jimmy's father turned to his newspaper again, so he didn't see them.

And then what do you think they did? They all ran up the loud speaker and tumbled right into the horn.

They began to try to scratch a way back again, when they found that they could find nothing to amuse themselves with. But the more they struggled, the harder it was to get out.

"Don't crush me!" shouted Hop. "Squeak!" It was a pity Hop squeaked. The loud speaker really became a loud squeaker, and Jimmy's father wanted to know all about it.

He put in his hand and caught hold of Hop's tail, dragging him out upside down. Hop didn't like this at all, so he wriggled round and nipped as hard as he could. Jimmy's father soon dropped Hop, who then scuttled back under the floor.

Mop and Drop were then hauled out; but they both nipped, so Jimmy's father had to let them go.

And when Hop, Mop and Drop were once again settled in their home underground they all agreed that perhaps, after all, it wasn't so bad living under the floor!

SCHUBERT'S BIRTHDAY.

(LONDON, DAVENTRY AND OTHER STATIONS, SUNDAY.)

IF we were to be asked who has written the most lovable music in the world, surely the first composer to come to our mind would be SCHUBERT, whose birthday we keep to-day. Franz Schubert was born on January 31st, 1797.

The music represented the man. Picture him strolling happy-faced in the garden or along the country roads, or sitting in the evening in some brightly-lighted café and greeting his friends as they enter, and you have a notion not only of the man, but also of his music. It is warm-hearted stuff, often care-free and gracious, sometimes serious, but never either gloomy or insincere.

Like Mozart (whose birthday we celebrated last Wednesday), and like our own Purcell (whose birthday we can never celebrate, for we do not know it), Schubert composed easily and effortlessly. Well that it was so! For, like Mozart's and Purcell's, his life was to be a short one. He died at thirty-one.

HIS OVERTURE TO "FIERRABRAS."

As a stage composer, Schubert seems to have been almost a failure. He wrote about sixteen operas and operettas—and who to-day knows one of them?

Fierrabras was, apparently, never performed at all. Yet its Overture is a splendid witness to its composer's ability to write powerfully dramatic, forceful music.

First there is an almost ominous INTRODUCTION, which lays the foundation of the Overture. It begins with a quivering in the STRINGS. Then BRASS play a hymn-like Tune, soon joined by Woodwind. STRINGS repeat their "tremolo," leading to the Quick main body of the Overture.

The broken, rhythmical FIRST MAIN TUNE is very interestingly scored. It opens softly with a phrase for HORN, BASSOONS (in the middle) and BASS TROMBONE. This is answered by STRINGS; and next (an octave higher) by FLUTES, OBOE and BASSOON. Then more instruments join in, and there follows a rousing, prolonged flourish in FULL ORCHESTRA.

By-and-by, there is a sudden lull, and the OBOE is heard playing a calmer, smoother melody—the SECOND MAIN TUNE. The Oboe is lightly accompanied by Strings, and, as the Tune proceeds, joined by other Woodwind.

The rest of the Overture is clearly developed out of the material that has now been heard.

HIS SONGS.

Schubert's wonderful gift of melody found its most natural expression in his songs, of which he wrote over six hundred. By no means all of these are plain tunes. The composer seems to lay hold with clear purpose of the various types of emotion and thought in the poems he sets, and to choose for each the appropriate musical expression.

To Music is a setting of a simple poem in two stanzas, evoking Music's inspiring aid.

The Wraith is, as its title suggests, mysterious and imaginative.

Schubert's Serenade is surely one of the best-known of all such lovers' evening songs.

Impatience is the impetuous song of a man who can hardly find words or deeds to express his love.

The Ave Maria to which Schubert wrote one of his sublimest melodies, is Ellen's third song in Walter Scott's Lady of the Lake.

HIS BALLET MUSIC TO "ROSAMUNDE."

Just over a century ago a very bad play called Rosamunde was produced in Vienna. It had two performances. But Schubert's incidental music to the play was much more fortunate. It was applauded when first performed and some of it is still current.

The Ballet Music, which is included in this programme, is among the freshest, happiest music ever written, and is among the most frequently-heard of all orchestral music.

"THE WANDERER" FANTASY.

"The Wanderer" Fantasy is a work in four distinct Movements, the whole based on the composer's song of the same name, which pictures the tragic lonely figure who wanders ceaselessly over the mountains, asking "Where art thou, my own dearest land?"

Liszt has arranged the Fantasy for Piano and Orchestra, and it is his arrangement we are to hear.

The FIRST MOVEMENT is quick, brilliant and fiery. Emotionally and rhythmically it suggests the Song.

In the SECOND MOVEMENT (slow, and, at first, lyrical), which follows without a break, a theme from the Song is given out and elaborated, a great climax being built up. This subsides, and with a sudden burst we reach the—

THIRD MOVEMENT, which almost seems to suggest the Wanderer tearing wildly over the countryside—unless, indeed, it is too happy for this interpretation.

The FINALE is a quick, powerful Movement of tremendous energy.

SOME PIANO PIECES.

The title MUSICAL MOMENTS exactly describes these pleasant little trifles for Piano Solo. They ask for no further description.

Schubert's SEVENTH IMPROMPTU (in B Flat) consists of a simple Theme and Five Variations.

A MILITARY MARCH.

Included in the evening's programme is a lively Military March which Schubert originally wrote for Piano Duet, and which Liszt has arranged for Orchestra.

MOZART'S FIRST PIANO QUARTET.

(LONDON AND CARDIFF, MONDAY.)

Mozart's First Quartet for Piano, Violin, Viola and Cello, is in the key of G Minor; it consists of three separate Movements, as follows—

I.

Quick. This is a closely-woven, yet airy piece.

The FIRST MAIN TUNE is heard at once. A very large part of the Movement is made out of the rather downright little opening phrase for ALL INSTRUMENTS. Here it is balanced by a florid little phrase in the PIANO; then both phrases are repeated—and so on. Great play is made of the opening phrase, especially its first two long notes.

So many little tunes crop up that it is hard to be dogmatic as to which is really the SECOND MAIN TUNE. Perhaps this is it—the Piano at last takes a rest, and a skittish Tune is heard high up in the VIOLIN. The PIANO repeats it, with the Violin imitating.

Space prohibits a detailed description of the rest of this Movement, but most of it explains itself.

II.

At a steady pace. This Movement consists partly of slow, expressive, rather serious song, and partly of rapid scale-passages.

III.

Quick. The Finale is a gay RONDO—a piece in which one Tune comes round several times.

The MAIN TUNE of this Rondo is a long one, but absolutely clear. First of all the PIANO ALONE plays a sentence. This is repeated by PIANO AND STRINGS. Next comes another sentence for PIANO ALONE, and this is repeated by STRINGS ALONE. The Piano comes in again at the end, and all instruments round the whole Tune off.

Radio to the Rescue.

[Listeners are reminded that we do not consider anonymous letters for publication. Preference is given to letters which combine interest with brevity. The Editorial address is 8-11, Southampton Street, Strand, London, W.C.2.]

DURING the severe weather of the past weeks, some of the outlying villages and hamlets have found themselves without a preacher, when they have gathered for their Sunday services. This happened at a village in the East Riding of Yorkshire a short time ago. The small congregation gathered for their Sunday evening worship, but no preacher arrived. After a short wait, one of the stewards (the possessor of a loud speaker) invited the congregation across into his house. There they listened with pleasure and reward to the service conducted by the Rev. Prof. G. Milligan at St. Enoch's U. F. Church, Glasgow.—L. THOMPSON, Bracora, Norfolk Gardens, Chapel Allerton, Leeds.

Against the Tuning Note.

THE Tuning Note, while it was, perhaps, some use to prevent oscillation in the early days when everything was uncertain and wave-lengths changed frequently, has now the same place in relation to broadcasting as have the two buttons on the back of a frock coat! The only difference is that, while the buttons are ornamental and merely useless, the tuning note is distracting and positively hindering.

I can find no one who admits using it for tuning. A set is usually left tuned-in on the usual station, and one switches it on as required. Tuning is then altered a little to secure the best results for speech or music and the tuning note is useless for that purpose; indeed, it compels one to wait until it is finished. Oscillation is, moreover, rarely caused by those working on their usual station, but by those "reaching out," and the tuning note is absent at these times.

I have been in bed now for three weeks and have realized, as never before, the torture of the tuning note. One gets it on Daventry in the middle of transmission and I have had to provide a bed switch to cut off whenever it comes on. Often one loses part of the weather report or some announcement in consequence, but any loss is good which loses also that objectionable note! Why do the B.B.C. keep this out-of-date barbarism going? Some time ago they tried an alternative. Why not try omitting it for a week and see whether the public curses or blesses? You can count me as a "blesser" in advance.—W. FENNELL, Northwich, Cheshire.

[If all receiving sets possessed a factor of safety the necessity of the tuning note would disappear. The "barbarity" described by our correspondent was only introduced to counteract the almost equal barbarity of oscillation.]

Stations Calling.

WHILE "tuning in" one night, I picked up a station unfamiliar to me, and waited for an announcement. It came as follows: "Station calling '2RN,' you are in Dublin."

If the announcer had said: "Dublin calling!" I believe I would have missed the name of the station. I would, therefore, like to suggest that other stations should follow Dublin's example, as one is very apt to miss the first word of an announcer which comes suddenly on the ear.—E. H. CLEMENTS, Stronsay, Orkney Islands.

[Undue repetition of a station's call sign for the benefit of distant listeners irritates the majority of people, but there is no reason why some formula should not be devised to meet the point raised by our correspondent.]

"The Perfect Programme."

As a commercial traveller keenly interested in wireless, I never fail to discuss this topic with the many amateurs, also interested, with whom I come into daily contact. Almost without exception we all agree that we cannot suggest any better programmes than those provided by the B.B.C. One has only to endeavour to think out "the perfect programme," i.e., the programme that shall please everybody, to see how impossible this is.

Do not think that the grouching letters one sometimes reads represent any general feeling. They certainly do not in Cumberland; but, unfortunately, the satisfied ones have very little to write about and are content to go on being satisfied.—H. HALL, 15, Dixon Road, Stanwix, Carlisle.

Radio to Promote Peace.

A LOT has been said against international broadcasting by listeners, but very little for it. International broadcasting will, I feel sure, bring that much-longed-for link between nations—a feeling of friendship. By the aid of wireless, each country will be able to understand one another. We shall know what type of books, talks, and music our neighbours like.

Let us pray that by wireless we Europeans will be brought to a lasting friendship.—DONALD M. MURDOCH, 3, Ripley Villas, Castlebar Road, Ealing.

[We agree with the views of our correspondent, but there are many technical barriers in the way of getting perfect results from Continental as well as from our own stations. The solution at present would appear to be in terms of high power.]

Broadcast Sunday Services.

I HAVE often in writing or sermons warned my people about what I consider to be the spiritual dangers of Studio Services. For invalids and the aged such "services" are a god-send. But I see a grave danger in them to those who might well take the trouble to attend a place of worship, but are lured to remain at their fireside by merely listening. The dangers I see are (1) A religion without any corporate results in united action; (2) a religion without any almsgiving; (3) a failure to adopt a religious attitude when prayers are being said; (4) a religion without any definite teaching, but only consisting of "good advice."

I frankly state my views because I should like now to repeat what a listener has told me about his own practice. He writes to me: "When listening to a service, I always make a point of being careful about my bodily attitude when prayers are being said and I always put aside 1s. to send to some church, instead of merely avoiding a collection on Sunday."

May I pass my friend's suggestions on to others who may not have given the matter their careful thought? They will probably not agree with my own views, but I hope they will copy my friend's.—REV. H. G. PEILE, The Vicarage, S. Acton.

"Arranging" Music.

I SHOULD like to protest against the modern habit of "arranging" music. One rarely sees a programme now without finding several of the items given as, let us say, by "Smith, arranged Jones," or very often just "Smith—Jones," as though there were actual collaboration.

One finds the beautiful Schubert Ave Maria with the accompaniment to the last verse completely altered, and we were surprised to hear Aunt Sophie play his delightful Rosamunde Ballet Music as arranged by Pouishnoff—the arrangement being the addition of a series of "twiddle bits," in order, apparently, to make it more difficult. One could see no other reason.

One cannot imagine anyone playing tricks with the works of living composers, such as Sir Edward Elgar or Sir Landon Ronald; why, therefore, should any composer be so treated who is not alive to defend himself?—W. JOHNSON, Leopold Road, Felixstowe.

Our Point of View

The Relay Broadcast Service.

NO NEED FOR ALARM.

A RECENT instance at Sheffield indicates a feeling of uneasiness among listeners that the reorganisation of Europe's broadcasting services on an international basis might adversely affect those who now derive their wireless entertainments from what are known as relay stations. The discussion about fewer and more powerful stations has, it seems, created an atmosphere of alarm in some quarters that such a scheme will deprive many listeners of some essential part, if not all, of the facilities they now enjoy.

* * * *

From one aspect, we regard these events as a healthy sign. If any conclusive proof were wanting that there is no diminution in the interest of listeners towards radio, as it is rapidly becoming part of the life of the nation, we certainly see it here. It clearly means that nothing retrograde will be allowed to creep in and hamper the development of the new force which is bidding so strongly to brighten our lives and enlighten our vision more fully to the vast potentialities of things that really matter in a way which few other discoveries have done.

* * * *

But listeners need have no fear that there is, or ever will be, a factor behind any scheme which has the sanction of those responsible for broadcasting in this country that shows the slightest recoil on progress. No station, however small the number of listeners served by it, will be closed, unless its functions can be better undertaken by another. This is the definite policy of those whose privilege it is to serve British listeners; any other attitude would be a breach of confidence.

The biggest problem associated with broadcast development in Europe concerns the matter of wave-lengths. Much has already been said and written on the subject, and it is fairly safe to assume that most listeners are familiar with the existing state of affairs whereby nearly a third more stations than there is properly room for are operating in the wave band generally set aside for broadcast activities. The results are bad, because conditions will not permit them to be otherwise, and unless some sound and permanent scheme is devised, broadcasting will tend more and more to get hopelessly chaotic.

Those whose business it is to look ahead hold the view that the future success of broadcasting lies in terms of fewer and more powerful stations. Whatever may be the dimension of the wave band which the respective governments of Europe set aside for broadcasting purposes, it is never likely to be large enough to give every existing and projected station a free place to itself. In other words, there never will be enough wave-lengths for all those who want them. The only real alternative to utter disorder in the ether is to allocate to each nation the number of wave-lengths to which it is justly and equitably entitled, and to let them make the best use of these, according to their individual requirements. The basis of such a scheme, obviously, is one of arrangement between all the countries concerned.

* * * *

If we take the matter to its logical conclusion on such well-defined lines as these, it means that two stations may ultimately have to do the work of three existing transmitters. From this point, it becomes a technical question, and the experts have no fear in asserting that it is well within their power to cope with such conditions. They go further, and say that, provided they are allowed to increase the power of such stations that remain, the service given to the majority of listeners will be improved, and for no one will it be worse than to-day.

So far as this country is concerned, the closing of a transmitter does not necessarily mean the closing of a local studio. After all, there are only twenty transmitters for all our listeners scattered about the thousands of cities, towns, villages and hamlets of the British Isles; but at the same time we realize that a certain justifiable pride may be associated between the inhabitants of those places and stations to which they have given a name. This, again, is all to the good of the new science and shows the intimate feeling that has developed between the administrative side and those who listen to the programmes. It is possible that this spirit will be fostered still more by a wider distribution of their local talent; certainly it will not be allowed to disappear and be lost.

Those who depend on relay stations may, therefore, rest assured that nothing will be done in the future to disturb the broadcast service as they now conceive it. In any case, the international scheme to improve reception by any restriction and redistribution of wave-lengths is still in its early infancy. Much remains to be done before any concrete proposals can be put forward and even when, after many months of research and investigation, the time for action comes, events must move gradually, and then only after all listeners have had an opportunity of seeing that any alteration is for the general benefit of all.

SILENT MINUTES.

A SERIES of important tests to obtain data by which it is hoped to eliminate interference between European stations, has been arranged to take place in the near future. The first test will be made on the evening of Tuesday, February 9th, when from 10.30 p.m. to 10.45 p.m. all British stations will close down to enable the engineers at the B.B.C. receiving station at Keston, and stations in other parts of the country, to definitely locate foreign stations responsible for the heterodyne whistles which at present affect reception of our programmes.

The success of these tests depends entirely on the co-operation of listeners, for whose ultimate benefit they have been arranged. Everyone with a receiving set, no matter of what type, is therefore asked to switch off during this quarter of an hour. Only by the closest observance of this request can the engineers hope to obtain the information for which they are seeking.

In past tests listeners have assisted the B.B.C. by detecting the signals of stations which have clashed with others abroad or those in this country, but in this instance no good purpose can be served except by following the lines indicated above.

LONDON NEWS.

THE Ballad Concert to be broadcast on Sunday afternoon,
January 31st, will include such well-known artists as Miss Vivien Lambelet (mezzo-soprano); Mr. Dan Jones (tenor); Mr. Joseph Slater (Solo flute), and Mr. Cedric Sharpe (cellist).
Mr. Sharpe has often been heard both in solo works and in chamber music programmes as a member of the Virtuoso Quartet.
Miss Vivien Lambelet was originally a pianist, studying at the Royal Academy of Music. At Brussels she studied with Leopold Chrytens, a disciple of De Greef, and composition with Jongen and Paul Gilson. So keen was she that she practised seven hours or even more a day, and ultimately developed pianists' cramp as she was preparing for her public recital. She never regained her strength or technique, and so had to abandon her ambition and become a singer. While listeners have never had an opportunity of hearing her as a pianist, the change in her career has from their point of view been very happy, for, particularly in the singing of her own songs and the lighter type of modern art song, she is admirable.

Mr. Joseph Slater is a clever flautist, whose work in connection with the Aolian Players is now widely known.
It is his greatest ambition to help to bring the flute back into the acknowledged position it once held as a solo instrument. His work is quite individual and he is yet young. We may hope for big things from him
both in the realm of Chamber Music
and in solo work.

Old Italian and French Music.

The 7.25 piano recitals this week will be played by Mrs. Norman O'Neill.
The music is all of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, running in the following order:—
Monday and Tuesday. Scarlatti (Italian, 1683-1759). Scarlatti brought a new technique of harpsichord music,
doing away with the exaggerated ornamentation then in vogue. He wrote some six hundred pieces, wrongly called "sonatas"—they are really numbers occurring in "suites."
Wednesday. Rameau (French, 1683-1764). Rameau was France's greatest composer of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, he wrote brilliantly for the harpsichord and became famous for his ballets and operas, of which Castor and Pollux is the best known.
Thursday. Old French music by Chabonniere, who was harpsichord player to the Court of Louis XIV.
Daquin and Couperin, who followed Chabonniere as harpsichordist to Louis XIV. Lully, who was born in Italy but lived mainly in Paris, and Dandriou.
Friday. German and Flemish music by various composers, of whom the best known are Handel, who was born in Germany and came to England in 1713, and stayed here until he died, and Albrechtsberger, the famous
teacher of harmony and counterpoint,
and who was Beethoven's master.
Saturday. The famous English composers, Henry Purcell and Dr. Arne.

BIRMINGHAM NEWS.

ON Monday, February 1st, Mr. Sidney Rogers has changed the subject of his talk to conform with the conditions which have prevailed over many parts of the country-side recently, and which have submerged, in some cases, the fruit and flower gardens which have formed the subjects of his previous conversations. He will therefore to-day take as his subject "Goldfish and Water Plants."

Mr. Geoffrey Dams, who appears in the evening programme on the same day, is the principal tenor of the Birmingham Station, and is a favourite in the Midlands, having broadcast from the station since its inauguration. He has appeared many times at the Birmingham Repertory Theatre in the Immortal Hour and Bantock's Seal Woman, and in various other operas. Mr. Dams found his voice while with the British Expeditionary Force in France. Apart from classical and popular items by the Station Orchestra, this programme is completed with baritone songs by Mr. Roy Henderson, a singer whose clear diction has been appreciated by many listeners.

Mrs. Estelle Steel-Harper will give a talk on Friday, in the Afternoon Topics, on the subject of "Sicilian Donkey Carts." The talks by this author are always of much interest, from the time she first stood before the microphone with much inward quaking of heart and held forth in a short extemporary speech, a thing that, with her greater experience, she says she would not dare to do. Her "Arts and Crafts" subjects have formed an important series during the past two years, and she says that she has proved the truth of her childhood's idea that to be a "Jack of all trades" is most interesting and is not to be despised, even if it does not lead to the highest attainments in any one subject.

BOURNEMOUTH NEWS.

THE programme on Sunday afternoon, January 31st, will be devoted to works chosen from Wagner and Liszt. The Station Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by Captain W. A. Featherstone, and the artists, who will come down from London for this concert, will be Miss Sophie Rowlands (soprano), Mr. Tom Kinniburgh (bass), and Mr. Gordon Bryan (pianoforte). An interesting item at 4.5 p.m. will be the "Concerto

No. 1 in E Flat" by Liszt, played by Mr. Gordon Bryan with Orchestra.

Folk Lore in Song and Music.

An interesting morning transmission on February 2nd, at 11.30, will be given by the Bournemouth Wireless Trio, namely "Variations and Finale"
from Trio Op. 50, by Tchaikovsky.
The evening concert will consist of "Folk Lore in Song and Music." The artists will be Miss Kate Winter (soprano), Miss Nora Greene (contralto), Mr. Eric Greene (tenor), Mr.
Geoffrey Denton (baritone), and the Bournemouth Wireless Orchestra, conducted by Captain W. A. Featherstone. The "Choral Fantasia on English Folk Songs," arranged by
R. T. White, will be rendered at 8.45.
Our own folk songs have an especial appeal to all. Many of them, great songs of the countryside in the days gone by, were in jeopardy of being forgotten, but, fortunately for all concerned, they were saved and preserved for us through the enthusiasm and energy of Mr. Cecil Sharp and the Rev. S. Baring-Gould, the novelist and hymn writer. Those who have had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Sharp will remember how his enthusiasm carried them away and aroused their interest, and the monument of this enthusiasm is the fine collection of English folk songs which we now hold for ever for the delectation of the present generation and the generations
which are yet to come.

Since my own Love's gone by un-
heeding me."
- 9.5. "THE CHANGE-HOUSE."
A Play of the Hebrides.
By John Brandane.
Performed by the
CYMRO GAELIC PLAYERS.
Scene: The Change-House at Croggan, Eilean Aros, late on a September night in 1752; a large, mean, dimly-lit room—
half kitchen, half drinking-chamber. DONNACHA MAC-LEAN, the old innkeeper, is making some pretence of clearing the table. ALASDAIR, his gillie, is really working hard at the same task, yet at times he goes to the moonlit window and peers out at the driving clouds.
Eventually, as the moon breaks
through, he sees the gibbet
prepared for CALLUM MAC-LEAN, a tacksman arrested
for shooting a "red-coat."
IAIN MACLEAN, Master of the Brig Margaret, and cousin to CALLUM, enters the scene and becomes the hero of the story. Soon after his entry, two travel-stained and weary
girls, FLORA MACLEOD and her cousin, SEONAIID MAC-LEOD, seek a lodging within the Change-House. Flora is the sister of the soldier who has been shot and comes expecting to find him merely ill or wounded.
The plot is complicated by her love for IAIN and by the an-tagonism between the clans
MACLEAN and MACLEOD.
- 9.30. MARJORY
KENNEDY-FRASER.
To the Piano: Ancient Lull Song
—The Christ Child's Lullaby
..... Eriskay
Mouth Music—Dance to your Shadow Egg
"Dance to your shadow when it's
good to be living, lad,
Dance to your shadow when
there's nothing better near you,
Dance to your shadow when it's
fine to be living, lad,
Ho ro haradal, etc."—
Kenneth MacLeod
PATUFFA
KENNEDY-FRASER.
To the Harp: Seal-Woman's Sea
Joy (In Gaelic Syllables) S. Uist
Maiden's Dulse-Pulling Song:
"Ade, ade! clings dulse to the sea-rock, clings heart to
the loved one,
Be't high tide or low tide. Ade,
ade!"—K. M.

CARDIFF NEWS.

THE City of Cardiff will be dealt with in the first of a new series of "Pageants of the West," which begins at the Cardiff Station on Tuesday, February 2nd. The general aim of the series is to illustrate the art of the great cities. Aristotle and Thucydides have written in praise of cities, and in broadcasting there is a valuable opportunity to continue and to assist the development of the work of the old philosophers
in a joyous manner.
In each of the Pageants, leading citizens will speak of the beauties and activities of their own cities, local artists will take part, and the music will be of the cities concerned.

MANCHESTER NEWS.

A ROLLICKING programme, savouring of the open country, galloping horses, the cry of the hounds and the baying horn, will be heard from Manchester and Daventry on Wednesday. The Station Chorus will sing hunting songs; the orchestra will play music of a similar nature; while the Station Dramatic Company will give a one-act farce by H. Toplis, entitled "The Blarmlade Hunt," the plot of which is not based on actual fact. "Stories an' the ballads about John Peel an' th' canny Cumberland faulk o' his day" will be given by Mr. F. Horn, an appropriate name for a participant in a hunting programme.

NEWCASTLE NEWS.

Mr. J. Wilson Beveridge will broadcast from Newcastle on Saturday evening, February 6th. He began his musical career when quite a child. In boyhood, he was taught the violin, which gave him his elementary introduction to music. Mr. Beveridge was a member of the Juvenile Choir of the Co-operative Society in his native town of Blaydon-on-Tyne, when great hopes were entertained for his future. He was a pupil of Mr. George Dodds, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, at the outbreak of the Great War. On his return home, after the War, he was a competitor in the North of England Musical Festival at Newcastle, in 1919, where he was placed second in the Tenor Class (open). From that time, Mr. Beveridge has continued to meet with success in the Northern Provinces as a leading soloist and is at present leading tenor at the Grange Congregational Church, Sunderland.

"And we, that now make merry in
the room
They left, and Summer dresses
in new bloom,
Ourselves must we beneath the
couch of earth
Descend, ourselves to make a couch—for whom?"
"Danse Arabe" Ganne
"But if the soul can fling the dust
aside,
And naked on the air of Heaven ride,
Is't not a shame, is't not a
shame for him
So long in this clay suburb to abide."

"THE ASTROLOGER."
A One-Act Play
by Charles W. Hopper, Characters:
The Astrologer
RAYMOND TRAFFORD
The Husband RONALD SCOTT
The Wife .. ESTHER WILSON Picture the gloomy interior of an astrologer's den in that fifteenth-century Paris, garnished with its carefully calculated, terrifying properties: a magic crystal, a stuffed crocodile, and other mummified mysteries. Through the incense that veils the abracadabra, you can see the old grey-bearded fortune-teller, as he lovingly fingers the heavy curtain over the door. He listens, and then whispers to his unseen attendant.
Directed by R. E. JEFFREY.

GLASGOW NEWS.

THE musical event of the week is the visit, on Wednesday night, of Professor Tovey, of Edinburgh University, when he is to play his own Pianoforte Concerto with the Station Symphony Orchestra. As this is Mendelssohn's birthday, the programme will begin with his "Midsummer Night's Dream" music. Another interesting item is the "Theme and Six Diversions" of Edward German, and Professor Tovey is to conduct the Orchestra in the Haydn Symphony in C Minor.

Listeners will be pleased to note that on Sunday afternoon Mr. Robert Watson, the well-known Glasgow baritone, is to sing the programme that had to be cancelled some time ago on account of illness. The particular feature is the group of six songs from Arthur Somervell's delightful Song Cycle "A Shropshire Lad." The remainder of the programme is of popular items by the Station Orchestra, a number of which are included in response to listeners' requests.

Oh, Come With Old Khayyam.

The Beethoven Pianoforte Series will be followed at 8.30 p.m. by a light programme of orchestral music with the title of "Oh, Come with Old Khayyam," which includes such assorted items as a Weber Overture, an arrangement of Massenet's Thais and a selection from the comparatively recent musical comedy, Afgar.

On Tuesday evening, after an hour of opera from London, a French feature will be presented to Glasgow listeners. Miss Kathleen Garscadden (soprano), and Mr. Harry Carpenter (violinist), are the soloists and the Station Repertory Company present a play, The Astrologer, by Charles W. Hopper.

Miss Gretta Don (soprano) will, on Thursday evening, sing a number of Schubert's Lieder, and a series of songs from Shakespeare's plays. In the Scottish Regimental Series, on the same night, the Royal Scots Fusiliers will appear.

EDINBURGH NEWS.

MUCH delightful music has been written for children, most of it vocal, but there are many orchestral compositions specially intended for young people as, for instance, the "Toy Symphony" of Haydn. By "specially intended for young people" is meant for the performance of children, and Haydn's well-known work is one in which boys and girls can participate, scored, as it is, for two violins and bass and for seven toy instruments, namely, the rattle, cuckoo, nightingale, triangle, drum, trumpet and quail. It is not certain when this little symphony was composed and first performed, but it must have been about the year 1780.

Another orchestral piece of a similar nature, in fact, scored for the same instruments, is the "Toy Symphony" of Ferdinand Romberg, who was a contemporary of Beethoven and a cellist by profession. This work, along with that of Haydn, will be performed at the Edinburgh Station on Wednesday, February 10th, by members of the Station Staff, forming part of a "Children's Corner for Grown-Ups." It is hoped that listeners will do us the compliment of giving their opinion of this transmission, which will be something out of the ordinary and contain many elements of humour and even surprise.

- ABERDEEN NEWS.
WHEN we look at the programme for Monday night and see the announcement that the "2BD"

Repertory Players are to present John McPhail, we are strongly reminded of the day, many months ago, on which Mr. Arthur Black first presented himself at the Aberdeen Station and, producing an MS. from a capacious pocket, proceeded to amuse for a space of ten to fifteen minutes those of the Staff who were not too busy to listen to him. Since then, many of his plays have been broadcast, and each has met with singular success. We are reminded of this incident when we see John McPhail, because it was among the first of his plays to be produced. In it we get the philosophizing of an old Scot, and those who missed hearing it should make an effort to hear it on Monday night. This play forms part of a complete Scottish Programme, in which Miss Nancy Mason is the vocalist, and during which Christian MacNab is to give a recital of traditional ballads, under the auspices of the Scottish Association for the Speaking of Verse.

OURSELVES—AND THE

his secrets are ours

Think of it! Seventeen years' patient study of the vagaries of our jolly impulsive friend, the electrical impulse. And our laboratory experts have come through with intellects unscathed. Nay! Not only unscathed, but brightly furbished. They were able to establish friendly contact with the electrical impulse; he helped them with their plans for building radio sound reproducing instruments and encouraged their scientific research. Now, this electrical impulse uses his electrical energy to bring the radio as far as your receiver. To get him to talk easily and naturally is an operation we have perfected with his own help and advice. Seventeen years' study of the best way to capture and transform this spirit of radio sound has helped us to build the best radio speakers of the age; his secrets are ours. Get a Brandes and you will know that the properties of radio sound are harnessed as effectually as you can possibly desire.

Any good dealer stocks Brandes.

The G. E. C. - your guarantee

Like wine, the Wuncell improves with age—

IT is a remarkable fact that the Wuncell—alone among Dull Emitters—actually improves with age. Whereas in most dull emitters the filament loses much of its emission through course of time, that used in the Wuncell actually gains in productivity of electrons.

The Wuncell filament is unique. It is built up layer upon layer under an entirely new process. As a result it is exceptionally robust. When next you get the opportunity to examine a Wuncell compare its filament with that used in any other dull emitter—or even in any bright emitter. You will be amazed at its thickness. It is practically as stout as that used in the average bright emitter. Yet its wonderful economy of current will enable a six-volt accumulator (with its cells re-connected in parallel to give 2 volts) to give 70 hours' use where it gave but 9 before.

Couple that exceptional economy with the fact that the filament never gets hotter than a very dull red and you will readily realise that even if Wuncells cost twice as much they would be much cheaper in the long run than any bright emitter.

Eventually you'll use Wuncells—why not begin now? Buy them one by one as your present valves become useless. If they will save you money in a month's time, they will save you money now.

Build your own loud speaker

GONE ARE the days of troublesome 'phones. The LISSENOLA brings loud speaker convenience to every home at a record in low price. For 13/6—less than the cost of headphones—you can buy this wonderful loud speaking unit, needing only the addition of a horn to make it a powerful, full-sized instrument yielding results equal to an expensive speaker. And you can build a horn yourself—with each LISSENOLA we give you full size exact patterns and clear instructions how, for a few pence, you can build a big horn of proved efficiency. In addition, the LISSENOLA will fit the tone arm of any gramophone. The secret of this efficiency rests in the remarkably effective manner in which the electro-magnetic sound-reproducing system is concentrated.

Compare the price last

—before you buy go to your dealer and make this test: Ask him to put on the best loud speaker he has in stock—then use the same horn on the LISSENOLA, and see if you can notice any difference.

THE LISSENOLA

Now no home need lack a loud speaker.

Full directions for making this horn are given with every "Lissenola."

A cone diaphragm loud speaker can easily be constructed. The illustration shows one method of mounting.

ORDER all your wireless requirements from us by post. We are the pioneers of this method of selling wireless and the overwhelming success which has attended our policy proves that you can have every confidence in it. All goods are sent on SEVEN DAYS' APPROVAL* against cash, packing free, carriage forward (unless postage is stated). You can make your selection from our 40-page illustrated catalogue which is free on request, and you can rest assured of the quality of our goods which is entirely above reproach.

By dealing direct with us, or our branches—the only way in which Fellows' apparatus can be obtained—you ensure complete satisfaction and you effect a handsome saving in money.

* This does not apply to Louden Valves, H.T. Batteries, and Accumulators which nevertheless carry our full guarantee.

THE JUNIOR. 19/6
(Old Price 30/-).

The finest medium-sized Loud Speaker it is possible to obtain. Adjustable diaphragm, over 18 inches in height. Gives a clear mellow tone which, except for sheer volume, is unsurpassed by any big "Speaker" on the market.

THE FELLOWS LIGHTWEIGHT HEADPHONES. 11/6
(Old Price 18/6).

A first-class pair of British Headphones. Cheaper than foreign 'phones and incomparably better. Non-rusting duralumin headbands. Combine extreme sensitiveness with remarkable lightness. Weight only 6 ounces with cord. Postage 6d.

THE VOLUTONE. 55/-
(Old Price 90/-).

Without doubt, the finest value obtainable in Loud Speakers today. The adjustable diaphragm enables you to obtain the best results from either speech or music, while the rich clear tones are of a quality usually found only in instruments costing several times as much. Will give sufficient volume to fill a hall or large drawing-room without trace of blurring.

A GOOD DOUBLE

A Good Double for efficient reception is the Climax Radio Earth and the Climax aerial equipment.

Double good signals by getting Climax Equipment to-day. If you are troubled with Weak Signals, Intermittent Signals, Electric Main Disturbances, Local Set Interferences, Muddy Reception, the probable cause of trouble is an inefficient earth. Get a better earth to-day. But it must be a genuine Climax Earth.

The genuine Climax Earth is easy to instal. Just drive it in. The patented plough point and watercourse forming projections are an essential feature. An ordinary tube is a poor earth because it fits loosely in the ground. Insist on the genuine Climax and ensure perfect earth contact. Now available in two models.

CLIMAX COPPER EARTH for the 5/-
connoisseur, full size CLIMAX GALLOY EARTH for the 2/6
economist, full size
 Climax Insulated Low-loss earth lead, 20ft. 1/8
For aerial insulation de Luxe.

One pair of Climax Insulators fitted with a Climax Shock Absorber Spring at each end of your aerial mean perfect insulation and freedom from sudden strains due to mast sway or backyard rope shrinkage. Each Climax Insulator (Reg. Design No. 708718) will stand four times the flash-over voltage of the ordinary insulator while it has far less capacity to rust. It will stand a direct pull of hundreds of pounds, is entirely non-hygroscopic, cannot absorb moisture even if fractured, is self-cleaning and insulates perfectly during rainfall.

CLIMAX SHOCK ABSORBER SET comprising four Climax Low-Loss Insulators and two Climax Shock Absorber Springs ... 3/-

PROTECT YOUR SET WHETHER IN USE OR NOT. The Climax Lightning Arrester is made on the multi-gap quenched spark principle. Provides atmospheric space charges and lightning discharges with a straight path to earth of very low reluctance. No switches necessary and no spark effects, thus leaving your signals at maximum strength. Protected by glass cover from dirt, damp, and other semi-conducting interference.

THE CLIMAX LIGHTNING ARRESTER 7/6
 complete ready to fix

THE CLIMAX FOLDING FRAME AERIAL is constructed on an ingenious mechanical system by which it may be opened or folded in a few seconds. The wire folds into the frame, or opens out to its final form without the least trouble. The winding is arranged in two flat coils which are mechanically and electrically balanced. They combine the advantages of the pancake type of winding with the solenoid type. A centre tapping is provided for use with various special circuits. This frame aerial is very attractive in appearance, extremely efficient in operation, remarkably simple in construction, and is very easily folded into a conveniently portable form. The stand also folds. Undoubtedly the best folding frame aerial and offered at a particularly attractive price.

Established in public service

— in your service

Amongst electrical engineers the name Tudor stands for reliable accumulators.

This reputation was not achieved in a day; it has been slowly but surely built up. Every accumulator bearing the name of Tudor has been so solidly designed and constructed that it is more than equal to its job.

The result to-day, after 25 years of steady progress, is that Tudor Accumulators are to be found throughout the civilised world, employed in the driving of electric trains, trams and vehicles, and in the lighting of cities, hamlets and country houses.

They are, in fact, firmly ESTABLISHED IN PUBLIC SERVICE — in your service.

Now this service is to be extended.

The same sterling qualities which have marked the giant Tudor batteries in Central Stations are to be found in the Tudor Low tension and High tension accumulators, made for service in your wireless receivers.

Ask your dealer for full particulars; if he does not yet hold stocks let us have his name and address and we will supply you.

The Ducon

If your house has electric light a Dubilier Ducon enables you to do two things:—

1. To run your set without erecting an aerial.
2. To use your set in any room you like.

The Ducon converts your electric wiring system into an aerial. All you do is to plug it into the lamp socket, and connect it to your set according to the instructions.

The Ducon does not use any electric current, and does not interfere in any way with your lighting system. Over 500,000 Ducons are now in use all over the world. The price is 10/-. (Note that the Ducon is not recommended for use with crystal sets.)

Sixty-Seven stations in one evening on the Ethodyne Receiver!

THIS remarkable performance was achieved on a standard Burndept Ethodyne receiving set. Most of the stations, including those indicated in the lists on the left, were heard at full loud speaker strength, and the instrument virtually "toured the world."

The Ethodyne is a seven-valve super heterodyne receiver of an improved type, and is operated by the adjustment of TWO DIALS only. It gives results hitherto considered impossible, and its success can be largely attributed to the exclusive use of the guaranteed Burndept Super Valves supplied with the set.

Write for particulars of this wonderful receiver.

Demonstrations can be arranged.

Model No. 2

It Really Is Surprising!

Such a thought is the common experience of many a listener when he first uses the "Brownie Wireless." Never before has he heard such clear-toned voluminous reproduction from a crystal receiver. Results have conclusively proved that in spite of its moderate price the "Brownie Wireless" has no peer in efficiency. At a distance of 25-30 miles from the local station (15 miles relay stations) or 120 miles from 5XX you can't better "Brownie."

D.L.5—the ever-sensitive crystal.

The crystal that made the "Brownie" famous. Adds volume and distance to every receiver.

Two pieces with "Palladium" Catwhisker, per box, 2/6.

One piece Crystal in square sealed carton, 1/6.

The "Brownie" Wireless Model No. 2 embodies all the features of the Standard "Brownie" Receiver. It is capable of resisting extreme climatic conditions. The outer casing is hydraulically moulded under a pressure of 50 tons, forming a pleasing and substantially designed piece of apparatus. The receiver has a natural wavelength up to 600 metres and a Standard plug and socket coil attachment is provided, which with the aid of a special coil—see illustration (price 2/9 extra)—makes the set adaptable to 5XX. Complete, including the famous D.L.5 Crystal and "Palladium" Catwhisker, price 10/6.

The Standard "Brownie." Just as good as ever, but now complete with ebony base, 7/6. 5XX Loading Coil for the Standard, 2/6.

JUST WHAT DAD'S LOOKING FOR.

Dad's never seen anything quite like the Handy 2-in-1 Ladder before. It's a step-ladder and a long ladder combined; it comes in useful for dozens of jobs for which he would have to borrow the builder's ladder. And Mother likes it, too. She can use it for the attic. It has steps both sides, all bolted underneath and an extra wide one for bucket, etc. And it locks automatically for either position, rigid and safe. It's varnished, and all steelwork is rust-proofed. Guaranteed and British made.

Louden VALVES

BRIGHT EMITTERS 4/6

Filament Volts - . 4.5 to 5.
 Filament Amps. - . 0.4.
 Anode Volts - . 40 to 80.

Made in 2 types.

F1 (Plain Louden) for Detection and L.F. Amplification.

F2 (Blue Louden) for H.F. Amplification.

DULL EMITTERS 8/- and 9/-

(4 Volt) Filament Amps. - . 0.1.
 (6 Volt) Anode Volts - . 40 to 80.

Each made in 2 types. FER1 for Detection and L.F. Amplification. FER2 for H.F. Amplification.

N.B.—These valves consume only one-seventh of the current taken by ordinary bright emitters. They will work straight off a 4V. or 6V. Accumulator without alterations to filament resistances or set. When ordering please state clearly the type and voltage required.

All Fellows apparatus can be inspected and purchased at 20, Store Street, Tottenham Court Road, W.C., and 34, Bridlesmith Gate, Nottingham.

HOW'S THIS?

Messrs. Fellows Magneto Co., Ltd.

Dear Sirs,

Some time ago, availing myself of your offer in the Wireless Papers, I purchased two Dull Emitters, and have since rejoiced, as my charging bills are cut down to about 2d. a week, and my set has much clearer reception than hitherto—in fact I am very proud of my Louden D.E.s.

Yours faithfully,

N. R. (Redhill).

What is your weekly accumulator bill? Why make frequent journeys to the charging station and pay heavy charging bills? Louden Dull Emitters reduce these charges and these journeys to ONE-SEVENTH over ordinary bright emitters; there is no finer dull emitter on the market, and THEY ONLY COST EIGHT OR NINE SHILLINGS. Fill in this coupon now.

Lucas Quality and Finish

These are the advantages of "Milam"—

"MILAM" (which means Moulded In Lucas Acid-proof Material) is the new Lucas moulding material used in the construction of Lucas Radio Batteries. "Milam" is the outcome of continuous and careful research and its introduction was a notable advance in battery design.

It is acid-proof.

It adds to the mechanical strength of the Batteries.

Each Battery is moulded in one piece and entirely self-contained with cover—making a separate case or crate unnecessary.

"Milam" is non-inflammable—Lucas Batteries, therefore, are immune from the risk of fire usually present in the ordinary type of battery.

Its finish resembles polished ebony, and the consequent handsome appearance of Lucas Radio Batteries makes them an acquisition to any room where a wireless cabinet is installed.

Each model is provided with a strong carrier which facilitates handling. The cells of 6-volt Batteries are grouped so that they can be used for 2, 4 or 6-volts, and it should be particularly noted that all Prices include Cover and Carrier.
