Broadcast the Budget Speech.

By the Rt. Hon. PHILIP SNOWDEN, M.P.

[A great deal of interest has been aroused over the question of broadcasting the Budget Speech, and special importance attaches to this article by Mr. Philip Snowden, whose opinions, as an ex-Chancellor of the Exchequer, naturally carry great weight.]

It was, on the whole, a wise decision to prohibit the use of broadcasting for purposes of political propaganda. However desirous the directors of national broadcasting might be to be impartial, it is certain they could not avoid a charge of favouritism.

If the control of broadcasting were in the hands of the Government, and if political propaganda were permitted, two things would probably happen. A conscientious Government might be so anxious to avoid the suspicion of partiality that it might hesitate to do justice to itself. But as conscientious Governments are somewhat exceptional, the other danger might arise, and national wireless might be used as a medium of Government propaganda to the disadvantage of other parties.

But there are important political pronouncements which are not strictly of the nature of party propaganda. A Prime Minister, for instance, has sometimes to make an important statement on some great national or international question for which the country is eagerly waiting.

There could be no objection on party grounds to such a statement being broadcast from the House of Commons. It would be a great advantage to hundreds of thousands of people, who are out of the reach of evening newspapers, if that were done.

Indeed, the speeches of eminent and notorious politicians, which are not always of great importance, are now sometimes broadcast, and I know of no objection which has been taken to this. It is looked upon rather as an entertainment, than as a political education.

It has often been suggested that the proceedings of Parliament might be broadcast. For the sake of the reputation of Parliament, I hope that will never be done; at least, until the proceedings of Parliament are more calculated to inspire admiration and respect.

I know nothing about the science of broadcasting, but I should think there would be mechanical difficulties in the way of broadcasting a full debate, as members speak from every part of the House. If the debates in the House of Commons were conducted as they are in the French Chamber (except on the occasion of a free fight), where all the speakers mount the Tribune, broadcasting might be practicable.

But apart from the impractical and undesirable suggestion of broadcasting a full debate, the broadcasting of a speech on a special occasion is worth serious consideration. Such rare occasions as those I mentioned, when a Minister makes a statement of great importance, afford opportunities for putting the outside world into oral communication with the House of Commons.

Mr. PHILIP SNOWDEN.

8,000 Letters a Week.

By Ralph Wade (B.B.C. Programme Correspondence Dept.)

PROBABLY, most listeners at some time or another have removed their headphones or switched off their loud speakers with some such mental or spoken thought as: "I don't think much of that," and in all possibility at that very moment a next-door neighbour is saying ecstatically: "Oh! you must listen to this, it is simply wonderful!"

It is doubtful whether at the actual moment of such switching on or off either of the listeners concerned gives a thought for the other; but if they are good enough to write to the B.B.C., their letters provide a good indication as to how the programme "goes."

What Happens To Your Letters.

Of course, it is not practicable to build programmes in absolute accord with the views of individual listeners, but the cumulative effect of all our programme correspondence gives a sound indication of the trend of public opinion.

The mail, as it comes in each day to the Programme Correspondence Department at the central office at Savoy Hill, is carefully sorted after perusal, there being three main groups into which letters fall, viz.: (1) Criticism; (2) Appreciation; and (3) General—the latter term including letters of inquiry, request, suggestion, or, in fact, any letter which calls for some kind of reply.

It is impossible, and in most cases it is not desired, that a reply be sent to postcard messages of appreciation; similarly, letters expressing enjoyment of an item, artist, or programme can only be briefly acknowledged by card. All other letters, however, do receive considered answers, and in cases of criticism a real effort is made to explain to the correspondents the reasons which caused them to complain; and in some cases, if a matter is brought to light which should be remedied, steps are taken to avoid a repetition of the trouble.

A daily precis of this correspondence is prepared and circulated, not only to members of the Programme Board, who are responsible for the construction of the programmes, but also to other officials who are directly concerned with programme building. This precis shows in detail all appreciations and criticisms of programme items, and, in the case of the latter, the actual letters of criticism are also circulated. Requests and suggestions of a general character are also noted on the precis, whereas those of a specific nature are sent to the individual departments concerned.

So much for a rough outline of procedure; not too rough, I hope, to prevent listeners from realizing that their letters are indeed "read, marked, learned, and inwardly digested."

What the Letters Tell Us.

Now for a glance into the correspondence itself.

Many of those who write to the B.B.C. will, perhaps, be surprised to learn that actual figures show that 95 per cent. of the correspondence dealing with programme matters that comes to us from listeners everywhere is appreciative. This fact may come as news both to those who write "there seems so much adverse criticism of your programme that I feel I must voice the other side," and also to the critic who says, "I am sure I am only expressing the view of the majority in saying your programmes get worse and worse."

It is obvious, of course, that only a small proportion of our vast broadcast audience write to say what they think of the programmes; but an average weekly figure of letters received at all our stations is something about 8,000 letters (these are, of course, programme letters only), which multiplied by fifty-two gives a not inconsiderable figure of approaching half a million letters a year.

The human interest attaching to all this correspondence is never ending, and one cannot help admiring the enthusiasm which prompts so many of the communications. Here, for example, is a letter from a West London listener:

Do I write you too often? I love to write you because this is the only way I have of showing my gratitude and appreciation for what you all do for me. You have relieved me from many an hour of depression, because I feel my illness very keenly, and I thank you all from the deepest pit of my heart for the hours of pleasure you have given and still give me. I must write as if you were in front of me and wanting my version of how I enjoy listening. My relatives all laugh at me now because if the topic of wireless comes up and I am about the saying is—"Hello! she's off!"

There is an enormous amount of genuine pathos in the letters, too, the Sunday evening services in particular giving rise to many touching and intimate letters. Recently from Liverpool came this appreciation:

The Sunday evening service stands out as one of my greatest pleasures. To me there is a perfect spiritual atmosphere during the whole service, and I can feel it in the singing, in the perfect reading of the Bible, and in the Address. Perhaps we invalids who are shut off from the world are better able to feel this over the ether than are the "well" people. I sincerely hope this feeling is as keenly developed in all your invalid listeners as it is in me, then they will be sharing the joy and help that I receive through the Studio Services.

Chart showing number of letters received at B.B.C. Headquarters expressing appreciation of programmes.

The reception of the human voice in the homes of listeners seems to create such a bond of feeling between the listener and the speaker that many letters are such as might be written to close personal friends. It is certain that broadcasting has given a sense of friendship to many lonely people. Here is an extract from a typical letter of this kind:

We have often enjoyed the services from "2LO" and the readings, and finally the closing down "Good night." To those especially who live alone, in tiny rooms from attic to cellars, it is like a Benediction. One old lady we know, over 80, has renewed her youth through the wireless. One evening I asked her not to wait up any longer, or if she did want to listen to the end I would fix it near her bed. "No thank you," she said, "I could not go to bed, because if the National Anthem should be played, how could I stand?" I often picture that old lady standing to attention when we hear "The King."

It would need more than a whole issue of The Radio Times to record all the joys and sorrows that are disclosed in an ordinary day's B.B.C. postbag; but perhaps what I have already written may encourage those who have not yet sent us their views to do so, and those who have already written to us to do so again.

Broadcast the Budget Speech.

The Budget Speech is a particularly suitable thing for broadcasting. In the first place, the Budget Speech, owing to the nature of the statement, and the imperative necessity of accuracy in word and figure, is always carefully prepared, and usually read from full notes. That would enable a Chancellor, who knew how to use his voice, to deliver the speech in such a way as to make himself audible to the listeners.

Further, the Budget statement is awaited with great interest by the whole country. Everybody is wanting to know how much their taxation is going to be reduced—or increased. Proposals in the Budget sometimes give opportunities to those who get information in advance of others to make fortunate—or unfortunate—speculations. Broadcasting the Budget would give the information simultaneously to everybody, and the speculators' chance would be gone.

In a sense, the Budget statement is not party political propaganda. A Budget often contains a good deal of that, but it is, in reality, an account of the nation's financial position. For such a statement the widest possible audience is desirable.

There is one drawback to securing that widest audience for a broadcast Budget Speech, and that is the fact that it is made in the afternoon, when so many people are working to earn the money the Chancellor of the Exchequer is proposing to take from them. But that fact does not invalidate the importance of broadcasting the speech.

It has been suggested that if the Budget Speech were broadcast, it would only be fair to broadcast also the critical speeches of the Opposition ex-Chancellors. I am not very keen on that; not because the Opposition ex-Chancellors in the present Parliament would not be able to pulverize Mr. Churchill's Budget plans, but because it would partake too much of party political propaganda. If these Opposition speeches were broadcast, the speeches in support of the Budget would claim a similar hearing.

However, that is a matter which might be settled by public demand. I cannot lay myself open to any charge of desiring an advantage for my own party when I say that I should welcome the experiment of broadcasting Mr. Churchill's next Budget Speech. I am sure that Mr. Churchill would rise to the occasion. The only danger I would apprehend would be that the temptation of such a unique opportunity of addressing the greatest Budget audience in history might lead the Chancellor to indulge in so many flights of rhetoric that his hearers would miss the practical proposals of the Budget.

But seriously, I see no practical objection at all to broadcasting the Budget Speech. On the contrary, it is the one occasion of the Parliamentary Session eminently suitable for such a proceeding.

But for the present, at least, I would not favour broadcasting full Parliamentary debates and proceedings. I want the public who never visit the galleries of the House of Commons, to retain their reverence for the Mother of Parliaments.

Official News and Radio Gossip.

Good Friday Programme.

ON Good Friday, April 2nd, London Station have arranged a special programme which begins with a relay of Evenson from Canterbury Cathedral, between 4.0 and 5.0 p.m. This will be followed by a Chamber Music Concert from 5.0 to 7.0 p.m. Later in the evening, listeners will hear an Organ Recital, an address by the Rev. Hugh B. Chapman, of the Savoy Chapel, and orchestral and vocal music appropriate to the season.

Boxing Broadcast.

It is hoped that the relay of the sounds from a Boxing Match, which unfortunately had to be postponed, may now take place on the evening of March 29th.

De Groot at Easter.

In place of his usual broadcast on the second Sunday of the month, the ever-popular De Groot will take part in the Easter Sunday programme at London Station on April 4th.

The Duke of York to Broadcast.

On the occasion of the Business Men's Luncheon at the Liverpool Town Hall, on Thursday afternoon, March 11th, the speeches of H.R.H. The Duke of York and the Lord Mayor of Liverpool, Councillor Thomas Bowring, will be broadcast.

St. Patrick's Day at Birmingham.

Birmingham Station has arranged a special Irish programme on Wednesday, March 17th, St. Patrick's Day. There will be Irish music and Irish songs and the whole broadcast will be full of the Hibernian atmosphere. In the Afternoon Topics, Mr. Harold Baker will tell the story of the famous Irish saint in a talk on "St. Patrick and the Shamrock." From 8.0 to 9.30 p.m., there will be an Irish programme in which the Orchestra, Miss Nancy Hepton, Miss Gabriel Lavelle, and Miss Toni Farrell will take part.

Municipal Music.

Birmingham and Midland listeners will be able to take part in the social life of the Metropolis of the Midlands during the week beginning Monday, March 22nd, as they will have the opportunity of hearing three concerts from the Town Hall, Birmingham, two of which will be relayed from Daventry. The first of these takes place on Tuesday, March 23rd, at 7.30 p.m., when a Symphony Concert, by the City of Birmingham Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Adrian C. Boult, will be broadcast. The soloists are Miss Beatrice Harrison (cellist) and her sister, Miss May Harrison.

Tennis for the Beginner.

A series of four tennis talks will be given from the Manchester Station by Mr. Hubert P. Kennedy, beginning on Friday, March 26th. Mr. Kennedy is a keen athlete and a Manchester Parks Tennis Player. He represented Manchester in most of the inter-city matches in 1925, and played for Manchester against London Parks in London. He has been twice runner-up in the Manchester Parks Singles Championship, in 1922 and 1925, and has held the Singles Championship of Alexandra Park, Manchester, every year since 1920. Last year he won the men's doubles and the mixed doubles handicap, and his talks will contain some valuable hints on tennis.

On St. Patrick's Day.

On St. Patrick's Day, Wednesday, March 17th, at Newcastle Station an appropriate programme has been arranged. The Station Orchestra will play the Overture "Shamus O'Brien," in which two old Irish tunes are used. "Father O'Flynn" and an old march of Cromwell entitled "The Glory of the West." After some old Irish songs and further items by the Station Orchestra, the Station Repertory Company present "A Dose of G. A. Birmingham." This concerns Mr. O'Brien, who is the extremely Irish Rector of a little Wiltshire village—a real G. A. Birmingham padre. The Station Repertory Company will also produce The Workhouse Ward, a comedy, by Lady Gregory, concerning two old Irishmen whose favourite pastime is arguing.

Music Old and New.

Bach's Violin Concerto in E Major and Mozart's Pianoforte Concerto in C Minor will be the chief features in the Bournemouth programme for Monday, March 15th, when Miss Winifred Small Ulster Hall, Belfast, including Elgar's "King Olaf," given by a distinguished trio of soloists, Miss Stiles Allen (soprano), Mr. Tudor Davies (tenor), and Mr. Harold Williams (baritone), and the society's chorus and orchestra—400 strong—conducted by Mr. E. Godfrey Brown. During the interval at the concert hall, there will be a talk from the studio on Elgar's "Enigma Variations," to be given later by the orchestra in the Ulster Hall.

An Irish Evening.

On Wednesday, March 17th, St. Patrick's Day, a special Irish programme will be broadcast during the evening from the Edinburgh Station. Mr. Robert Burnett, the well-known baritone, will take the solo part in the late Sir Charles Villiers Stanford's "Songs of the Sea" and "Cavalier Songs," the chorus being provided by the Edinburgh Male Voice Choir, under the conductorship of Mr. Archibald Russell, while the Station String Orchestra will furnish the accompaniment. On the same evening, Miss Grace Miller (soprano) will sing two groups of well-known Irish songs and the Station String Quartet will broadcast a number of compositions with an Irish flavour, including such well-known favourites as "The Londonderry Air" and "Molly on the Shore." The idea that St. Patrick, according to one tradition, was a Scotsman gives additional interest to the evening's programme.

Community Singing at Aberdeen.

The event of the week beginning March 21st at Aberdeen Station is the Community Singing Concert, to be held in the Music Hall, Aberdeen. The J. H. Squire Celeste Octet will also feature in this programme.

A Symphony Concert.

The programme to be broadcast from the Aberdeen Station on Tuesday evening, March 16th, is in the nature of a Symphony Concert, with a verse recital interpolated about 8.45 p.m. Other interesting items will be the Mendelssohn Concerto for violin and orchestra, and the Symphony from the "New World" in E Minor, by Dvorak.

A Military Band Début.

The local concert at Plymouth on Friday, March 19th, will be a Military Band night, when the Band of the 2nd Batt. Hampshire Regiment will make their broadcast début. Miss Emily Sutton (contralto), who is well-known to listeners of the West, will provide the vocal side of the evening's programme.

Scenes from Great Plays.

Mr. William Macready and Miss Edna Godfrey-Turner will pay a return visit to Dundee Station on March 10th and give three Scenes from Great Plays. School for Scandal, Trilby, and Nell Gwynne are the three favourite plays chosen for this occasion.

Talks at Nottingham.

Two interesting series of talks begin at Nottingham this week. On Tuesday, March 9th, Miss Constance Jeans, who was champion swimmer over certain distances, will give the first of two talks on "Swimming"; while on Wednesday and Friday, March 10th and 12th, Professor A. W. Kirkaldy, of University College, Nottingham, will give the first two of his series of four talks on "The Modern Market and the Modern Bank."

Music-Hall Reminiscences.

A special 6 o'clock feature at Plymouth on March 12th will be a talk by Mr. Harry Rice on "Music-Hall Reminiscences." Later in the evening, listeners will hear the first talk to be broadcast from this Station on the "Dialects of Cornwall," by Mr. H. C. Downing.

"SIMULTANEOUS BOARD" IN THE CONTROL ROOM OF THE LONDON HEADQUARTERS OF THE B.B.C.

This board enables an operator to link up all the principal stations with London and with each other. The action is semi-automatic and, thanks to relays, all the processes can be easily supervised by one person. The design and construction are unique and in no part of the world has so up-to-date and far-reaching a scheme been evolved.

(violin) and Mr. Maurice Cole (pianoforte) are visiting the Station. From 9.30 p.m., they will play a series of more modern compositions in contrast to the earlier classical items.

St. Patrick's Day at Belfast.

St. Patrick's Day, March 17th, will be marked by a new feature in the Belfast programme—a recital on the carillon of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Armagh. This will be followed by a relay from Dublin of a part of the special St. Patrick's Day programme that is being broadcast from there. St. Patrick's Eve, too, will not pass unnoticed, for a programme of Irish melodies will be given on that afternoon.

"King Olaf."

On Friday, March 19th, a concert by the Belfast Philharmonic Society will be relayed from the

The Story of the Hunting Horn.

By Captain L. C. R. Cameron.

[On Monday, March 8th, Captain Cameron will give a Talk from London on "The Music of the Hunting Horn," which will be followed by music illustrating the development of the horn as a musical instrument.]

MUSICIANS and archaeologists are alike agreed that the hunting horn in its original shape is the oldest form of musical instrument in the world. Whether that original shape was a hollow sea-shell, or conche—"the wreathed horn" that the poet Wordsworth imagined "Old Triton" as blowing—or the actual horn of some bovine or other beast, hardly matters. Either, or both, undoubtedly came into use as soon as aboriginal man arrived at the stage in his development when he discovered the necessity of communicating with his fellows at a distance beyond reach of the human voice.

Probably the shore-dweller used a sea-shell, and the inland inhabitant the horn of a beast, for signalling purposes. The former developed into the fog-horns and syrens of modern sea-going ships, and the latter has resulted in the hideous-sounding instrument with which the modern motorist attempts to keep pedestrians from interfering with his free use of the King's Highway.

From Hunting Field to Opera.

But it was as a necessary implement of the chase that the horn began its career. Although it was early adapted to military and ceremonial uses, and eventually took its place in orchestral music, it is still as an essential instrument in the art and science of hunting, that the horn has its raison d'être.

Had it not been for its employment in sport, it would probably not to-day be found in our great orchestras, into which it was first introduced in the seventeenth century by the leaders of the Venetian Opera—Cavalli and Cesti.

The first known piece of horn music (1639) is called "Chiamata alla caccia," or, "An Invitation to the Chase"; and in France, in 1664, Lulli composed an "Air for Servants of the Hunt and Hunting Men," "with hunting horns," of which there exists a copy in the Fitzwilliam Museum at Cambridge.

The introduction of the hunting horn into French Opera did not take place till 1735; and it was first used orchestrally in England by Handel in the reign of George I.

These horns were, of course, what are called by hunting men "compassed horns," a plain horn seven or eight feet in length so bent as to encircle the huntsman's body in such a way that when the mouthpiece is at the lips, the bell of the horn protrudes over the shoulder. Such a horn is free from all the mechanical devices of the modern orchestral horn, and was called a "compassed horn" because it possessed a compass of twelve notes, from C below the line in the treble clef to G above the line. On it simple airs could, as in the modern coach horn, be played.

A Declining Art.

This "compassed horn" was commonly used in the hunting field in England, before the modern straight horn came into vogue with the advent of fox-hunting, just before the middle of the eighteenth century. Not only the huntsman and his staff, but many followers carried these horns over their shoulders, and after the appropriate "lesson" at the death of a stag or buck—"The Pryse" or "The Mort"—had been sounded, all these blew the appropriate "Reheat" in concert, or in unison, and immediately gave a general "Who-Whoop!" to celebrate the triumphant conclusion of the chase in which they had participated.

Before, however, the "compassed horn" came into this country from France, along with most other "points of ventry," the natural horn hunting-horn and the metal hunting-horn fashioned like the natural horn of a cow, were employed by huntsmen and foresters generally, the straight horn—a sort of miniature coaching-horn—being the latest development of the cor de chasse, and responsible for the lamentable decline of horn music in England during the last century, at least.

As several writers on fox-hunting have pointed out, the art of blowing distinctive measures on the horn has declined ever since fox-hunting assumed precedence over deer- and hare-hunting in England.

The late Colonel John Anstruther-Thomson, of Charlton (Master successively of the Atherstone, the Pytchley, and the Fife Foxhounds), in his invaluable little book, "Hints to Huntsmen," complained that few among modern Masters and huntsmen of hounds did anything save "blow the same monotonous note on the horn all day long without variation or meaning"; and with rare exceptions this is the state of things to-day; though here and there we find a huntsman who tries to blow a distinctive call at the end of the day to signify that he is taking hounds back to kennels. But that and "the Rattle" at a kill, or a perfunctory "doubling of the horn" when hounds are on a scent, is as much as most modern huntsmen attempt.

Necessary "Calls."

That this was not always so is shown by the collections of "lessons" on the hunting horn (as they were called) that occur in all the older books of ventry, as in "Le Trésor de Venerie," a fourteenth-century French treatise by Hardouin, or in Turberville's "Noble Art of Venerie" (1576). These give "Lessons" or "Measures of Blowing" for almost every conceivable incident of the chase, from the "Call for the Company in the morning" to the call "To draw home the Company" at the end of the day. The first call was very necessary in the days before cards of the meets were sent out, or hunting appointments were published in the Press; the latter is as necessary to-day when hounds are about to go home.

THE HORN USED BY JOHN PEEL.

This famous old horn was bought in Cockermonth Auction Mart on June 7th, 1886, from the celebrated huntsman's son.

Perhaps it is not too much to hope that horn-blowing competitions as commonly conducted at French horse shows may be introduced at our own agricultural and hound shows next summer—not alone as an interesting historical revival, but as an encouragement to the brightening of the modern hunting field by the use of varied and intelligible calls, in place of the dull monotony of the present average performances, which may not inaptly be compared with that of the beetle in Collins's "Ode to Evening" "winding his slow, but sullen horn" without expression, variety, or any real significance.

LEEDS-BRADFORD listeners will be carried back sixty years in imagination on March 10th to a Yorkshire evening party, about the year 1860. The evening party as a social function is now dead, and the present generation knows little of its qualities. This sketch is an attempt to recapture the spirit of those mid-Victorian days and has been written and arranged by Mr. Frank Kidson.

My Manly Voice.

By Ruby Helder.

[Miss Helder, who is well-known to listeners on account of her remarkable tenor voice, will broadcast from London on Sunday, March 7th.]

IT is strange how my appearances in public invariably excite curiosity. Great numbers of people have, of course, heard me broadcast, but I am afraid some of them have a shrewd suspicion that I am not a woman at all, or that, if I am, I am merely simulating the voice of a man.

Let me say at once that my natural voice is that of a man. When I speak on the telephone, I am always addressed as "Sir," and I sometimes have the greatest difficulty in convincing people that it is really a woman who is replying to them.

As a girl, I had a boy's voice; ever since I was fourteen I have been unable to sing higher than the tenor top C. At the age of eighteen I was taken to Sir Charles Santley, who consented to hear me sing, though he confessed afterwards that he had a preconceived idea that he was not going to like it. He was upstairs when I was shown into his music room, and called from the top of the stairs for me to go ahead.

Sir Charles Santley's Encouragement.

Sir Charles came slowly down during my song (which I accompanied myself) approached the piano, and then walked to the other end of the room. When I had finished, he said I had a perfectly natural tenor voice. In fact, he was so impressed by its quality that though he had given up teaching, he agreed to take me as a pupil, and for seven years he gave me three lessons a week without any payment whatever.

But for his encouragement, I am afraid I should have lost heart at times, for I claim to be a serious musician, and am anxious that I should be accepted as a tenor, quite apart from my sex, and not be exploited as a freak.

Many years ago, I sang at the Irish Festival at the Albert Hall. At the end of my second song, the applause was so prolonged that the concert was held up, and the manager, Mr. William Carter, had to threaten to have the National Anthem played unless the audience quietened down.

The following morning I was offered a good contract to go to America, but I found, to my regret, that the intention was merely to present me as a freak. I did, ultimately, however, go to America, where the famous John Philip Sousa heard me sing as he walked through the corridor of a New York building. He at once engaged me for a tour of the United States and Canada.

Later, I returned to England, where broadcasting has made my talents known in a way that was never possible before.

A VERY handy book to have about the place is "Broadcast Reception, Theory and Practice," by J. Lawrence Pritchard (Chapman and Hall, 8s. 6d.). Apart from the excellent way in which the author has tackled the theory and practice of radio components used by the experimenter, the volume is packed with practical information presented in a most useful manner. Mr. Pritchard's method of giving references to other parts of the book, where the points he is dealing with are more fully explained, is of great assistance to the reader. All the mathematical calculations that are used are carefully arranged to illustrate their value to the practical man, and are easily followed. The coil winding tables and other data will be useful to elementary and advanced experimenters alike.

Miss RUBY HELDER.

PEOPLE YOU WILL HEAR THIS WEEK.

[Voice.]
Miss DOROTHY BENNETT (Soprano), will sing at Bournemouth on Thursday, March 11th.

[Voice.]
Miss ENA GROSSMITH, the popular actress, who is directing a Concert Party at London on Wednesday, March 10th. (S.B. to other Stations.)

[Voice.]
Miss LOUISE TRENTON (Soprano) will be heard by London, Daventry and other listeners on Sunday, March 7th.

[Voice.]
Captain L. C. R. CAMERON, who will talk on "The Music of the Hunting Horn," from London, on Monday, March 8th. (S.B. to other Stations.)

Miss KATHLEEN LONG (Pianist), who will play throughout the week in the 7.25 p.m. Classical Feature at London Station.

[Voice.]
Miss BINNIE HALE, who will be heard in a broadcast of "No No Nanette" from the Palace Theatre, on Friday, March 12th.

[Voice.]
Messrs. FRED BECK and GEORGE STOCKWIN (Entertainers) will broadcast from Birmingham, Manchester, Newcastle, Aberdeen and Glasgow during the week.

[Voice.]
Messrs. SCOVELL and WHELDON (Entertainers) will broadcast from Cardiff on Saturday, March 13th.

[Voice.]
The London Fire Brigade Band will play a selection of music at London Station on Tuesday, March 9th.

Some Songs About Animals.

By Edwin Pugh.

QUITE a lot of books and many poems have been written in praise of animals. Birds, particularly, have inspired some of the greatest of our poets to their highest flights of poetic ecstasy. They have also inspired the least of our poets, though, perhaps, not the least popular. And I sometimes think that these have not been sufficiently exploited over the radio.

There is, for instance, a popular chorus being sung in the streets just now, with a most delightful and humorous non sequitur in its penultimate line which is worthy of Lewis Carroll or Edward Lear. You know it, of course.

Chick-chick-chick-chick-chicken,
Lay a little egg for me.
Chick-chick-chick-chick-chicken,
I want one for my tea.
I've not had one since Easter,
And now it's half-past three,
(So!) Chick-chick-chick-chick-chicken—
Lay a little egg for me!

"The Maid and the Magpie."

This is much better than "Horsey, keep your tail up!" which, despite its grotesquerie, never made any very clamant appeal to my personal taste. It was, doubtless, too subtle for me, though I remember that in my early boyhood I thoroughly enjoyed a song which (I believe) had all sorts of political and other topical tags for its main theme, but of which I remember only this:—

The Maid and the Magpie would talk all the day;
The Maid would believe what the Magpie had to say.

She said she loved the parson—"Don't you tell mamma!"

And the old Magpie only said: "Kwaw-kwaw!"

In the selection of these old songs about animals, my trouble is that they are, almost all of them, rather too sentimental for modern taste. But then, you see, this is quite in the inevitable order of things, since man in the beginning must first have made pets of these wild creatures long before he found that some of them might also prove useful.

Indeed, to this day, we have found no real practical use for many tame birds, many kinds of dog, and for cats no use at all, except incidentally as mousers. And this last is the more extraordinary, because cats were once objects of worship and are still regarded with a sort of superstitious awe by those who dislike them and have not, even yet, after many centuries of enlightenment, altogether escaped the influences of an ignorant ancestry.

Cats and Dogs.

Perhaps this is why—so far as I know—we have no popular songs or poems about cats, except such flippancies as:—

Has anybody seen our cat?
Has anybody seen our cat?
He's got a bit off the end of his tail,
And his ear's all torn where he's been fighting.
I've nailed a kipper on the door,
But he won't come back for that.
Puss-puss-puss-puss!
Meat—meat—meat!
Has anybody seen our cat?

Contrast that banality with this homely Cockney chorus in honour of the dog:—

There ain't so much of him, but he's all gay,
And whether in shine or rain,
He knows the very hour when I knocks off,
And his tail goes "Here we are again!"

(How are you?)
Half a thick 'un ought to buy that tyke,
But there's one thing about him ain't for sale!
It's a kind of a sort of a Home, Sweet Home,
In the wagging of the old dog's tail.

Closely allied with the dog in honourable memory and affectionate regard is the horse, though, of course, the horse, being the aristocrat of domestic animals and the expensive luxury of a chosen few, does not come so closely home to the heart of the British public as the more humble dog, and, consequently, suffers such ignominious treatment as the following chorus suggests:—

You don't find me on a gee-gee's back again,
It ain't the sort of place to do a doze on.
The only horse I fancy I can manage
Is the one the missus dries the clothes on!

Now, in conclusion, to pass from the trivially absurd to the seriously fine, I will transcribe from the tablets of my memory two verses with their alternative choruses of Gus Elen's almost classic "Down the Road."

Since fust I copped a tidy bit o' swag
I've always kept a decent little nag;
But the one as I'm about to talk to you now
Was worf a fousand jimmies in a bag.
I've backed her 'g'inst the best as could be found,
Four owners made a stake o' fifty pounds,
And the race was duly run,
And I'll tell ye' how I won
Wiv my pony, my pet Polly, world-renowned.
Down the road, away went Polly
Wiv a step so jolly
That I knew she'd win.
Down the road—the pace was killin'
But the mare was willin'
For a lightnin' spin!
All the rest were licked
And might as well ha' ne'er been born.
Whoa, mare! Whoa, mare!
You earnt your little bit o' corn!

The song goes on to tell of many other races, in which the pony triumphs, and then old age creeps upon her and

Soon after that she reached the final goal,
I'd had the little wonder from a foal,
So grief too keen to talk about was mine when
My poor Polly went to fill a hole.
The missus and the kids all come w' me,
The last o' my pet pony Poll to see,
And the neighbours shared the grief
That was felt beyond relief
When the little mare was buried,
R. I. P.!

Down the road, away went Polly,
Not a face looked jolly,
'T would ha' seemed a sin!
Down the road—the pace not killin'
But the dead mare willin'
For her final spin.
Everybody looked so sad,
And I was all forlorn.
Whoa, mare! Whoa, mare!
You earnt your little bit o' corn!

I submit that the words of that song are poetry; the tune, music—a splendid marching tune. And in this opinion I am upheld by the circumstance that we have often heard "Down the Road" played by bands and orchestras of the highest distinction, very likely without knowing its humble origin.

SONGS WORTH KNOWING.

"Who is Silvia?"

THIS famous song, from Shakespeare's The Two Gentlemen of Verona, has been finely set to music by Schubert.

Who is Silvia? what is she?
That all our swains commend her?
Holy, fair, and wise is she;
The heaven such grace did lend her,
That she might admired be.
Is she kind as she is fair?
For beauty lives with kindness:
Love doth to her eyes repair,
To help him of his blindness;
And, being help'd, inhabits there.
Then to Silvia let us sing,
That Silvia is excelling;
She excels each mortal thing
Upon the dull earth dwelling;
To her let us garlands bring.

BEETHOVEN'S SECOND STRING QUARTET.

(LONDON, DAVENTRY, WEDNESDAY; MANCHESTER, THURSDAY; BIRMINGHAM, FRIDAY.)

THIS is light-hearted, easy-going music, and Beethoven at his brightest. He was about thirty when (about 1800) he wrote his first six String Quartets, and grouped them together as his "Opus 18."

This Second Quartet consists of the usual four detached Movements. They are worth keen listening, towards which the following notes should help.

I.

Quick. The FIRST MAIN TUNE, given without any preamble, is made up of four or five separate "sentences." First, there is a little flutter in the First Violin, answered by a jerky little phrase in octaves (all four instruments); this is answered by a smooth sentence like a bit of a song. The rest develops out of the fluttering idea and its jerky answer.

Now comes a passage leading to the Second Main Tune; it grows out of three loud notes like a bugle-call, and a gentler, quicker little phrase which answers it. Quickly there comes a climax, at which the First Violin dashes noisily up high and down again. Then quietly follows the SECOND MAIN TUNE—just a simple, brief melody simply accompanied, and repeated an octave lower with dainty tripping scales added.

After one or two more little tunes, there is a sudden climax, and a break; quietly and unconcernedly part of the First Main Tune creeps in, as if saying: "Now we'll start again and see what we can do with all these little tunes."

II.

Slow and song-like.—This Movement is the most serious part of the Quartet. Its first part is a fairly long Tune for First Violin.

When this has been closed, there follows a lighter, Quick section, throughout which all four instruments treat a little figure of four quick notes.

The slow Tune then steals in again, in the 'Cello. The First Violin soon takes most of it over again, and finishes it off, with much elaboration.

III.

Quick. Few pieces of music better deserve the name SCHERZO (or "Jest") than this playful little Movement. There is no need to describe it, beyond saying that it has two main sections—the Scherzo proper and a Trio, after which, the Scherzo is repeated.

IV.

Very quick, "quasi Presto." This is a vigorous Finale, which seems to sum up the cheerful spirit of the whole work. The sprightly Tune of the opening can never be kept out for long. Once near the start, and once near the finish, it makes way for two other dainty little Tunes, and that is all.

ACT II. OF "FAUST," BY GOUNOD.

(LONDON, DAVENTRY AND OTHER STATIONS, FRIDAY.)

Authors, dramatists, and musicians of many centuries and many countries have been attracted by the legend of Faust. The German, Goethe, owed much of his great work to our own English classic by Marlowe. The Frenchman, Gounod, in his turn, based his Opera on Goethe's drama.

In Gounod's version (to be heard this evening) the philosopher Faust, who has spent his whole life in his study, and feels that he has missed all the joys and adventures of this world, sells his soul to the devil, in exchange for renewal of youth.

Rejuvenated, he makes ardent love to a young girl, Marguerite. She falls to his temptation.

In the end, Mephistopheles comes to claim Faust as his own. Faust begs Marguerite to go with him, but she refuses and takes refuge in prayer.

Marguerite's soul is borne to heaven, whilst Faust watches in despair, then falls on his knees in prayer.

ACT II.

The Second Act (i.e., of the British National Opera Company's version, for it is the Third Act in some versions) shows us Marguerite's garden.

There enters SIEBEL (Mezzo-Soprano), a boy who loves Marguerite tenderly, but without any response from her. He gathers flowers to give Marguerite, singing the well-known FLOWER SONG.

MEPHISTOPHELES (Bass) now leads FAUST (Tenor) here surreptitiously. They and Siebel do not see one another. Siebel leaves a bouquet near Marguerite's window and goes away.

Mephistopheles retires, leaving Faust singing to Marguerite. Soon, Mephistopheles returns, and, on Faust's behalf, leaves a casket of jewels as a gift for Marguerite. Faust and his companion hide in the garden when MARGUERITE (Soprano) enters.

Presently, she adorns herself with the jewels, singing the famous JEWEL SONG.

Suddenly her old companion, MARTHA (Mezzo-Soprano), enters, and admires her dazzling finery.

Mephistopheles and Faust now return, and the rest of this scene is taken up with Faust's wooing of Marguerite, whilst Mephistopheles keeps Martha occupied in flirtation.

As night falls, Marguerite beseeches Faust to go away, but at last she yields to him, and the mocking laughter of Mephistopheles is heard.

ELGAR'S "THE APOSTLES," PART I.

(MANCHESTER, LONDON AND OTHER STATIONS, THURSDAY.)

Elgar's desire to write an Oratorio treating of the calling, teaching and mission of the Apostles goes back to his very schooldays. But he was well over forty before he actually wrote the work, and it was his third Oratorio. It was produced the year that it was finished (1903), at the Birmingham Festival, and only seven months later was greeted with enthusiasm at the Lower Rhine Festival at Cologne.

The Apostles tells of Christ's life, from His first intimate association with those who were His closest followers, until the Ascension.

The words are Scriptural. The Gospel story has continuously woven into it commentary made of material from both Old and New Testaments.

The Soloists present to us these characters: JESUS (Bass), THE BLESSED VIRGIN (Soprano), THE ANGEL GABRIEL (Soprano), MARY MAGDALENE, (Contralto), ST. JOHN (Tenor), ST. PETER (Bass), JUDAS (Bass).

The Oratorio opens with a PROLOGUE, in which the CHORUS sings The Spirit of the Lord is upon me.

PART I consists of the three following long separate numbers.

I. THE CALLING OF THE APOSTLES. We are told of Jesus spending all night on the mountain in prayer. At Dawn we hear the Watchers on the Temple roof (the ancient Jewish "Shofar," or ram's horn, is sounded), then Psalm 92 chanted to its old Hebrew melody.

The twelve Apostles are chosen. John, Peter and Judas sing We are the servants of the Lord.

II. BY THE WAYSIDE. In this Jesus utters the Beatitudes, to each of which The Virgin Mary, John, Peter, Judas and "The People" respond.

III. BY THE SEA OF GALILEE. Jesus sends His disciples over the Sea to Capernaum.

IN THE TOWER OF MAGDALA we hear Mary Magdalene. The conflict in her soul is vividly portrayed and symbolically set against the storm which threatens to wreck the Apostles' ship.

IN CAESAREA PHILIPPI Jesus questions His disciples: Whom do men say that I am?

IN CAPERNAUM there is presented the episode of Mary Magdalene washing Jesus' feet with her tears.

Part I ends with Soloists and Chorus singing Turn you to the stronghold, ye prisoners of hope. . .

Lord Aberdeen's Call to Listeners.

[Listeners are reminded that we do not consider anonymous letters for publication. Preference is given to letters which combine interest with brevity. The Editorial address is 2, Savoy Hill, Strand, London, W.C.2.]

IF one half, or even one quarter, of the listeners who from time to time are moved by a desire to express in writing their appreciation—for example, of the rendering of Elijah on Sunday evening February 21st—were to carry that wish into action, you would doubtless soon be "snowed under" with correspondence. And yet there have been signs that a certain amount of communication from listeners—even in the shape of suggestion or inquiry—is not unwelcome at the headquarters of the B.B.C.

But I am now thinking only of expressions of thanks and appreciation. And it seems that such may be, at the present juncture, of practical value.

For, apparently, the management has just now to deal with two forces. First, with reference to the relations of the B.B.C. with the Post Office. It is understood that the financial provision for the B.B.C. has been reduced.

If this is the case, it can only mean that the company will be hampered and hindered in their endeavour to supply (in the various lines) only what is of really fine quality.

Now, therefore, is the time for a great manifestation of widespread public opinion, with a view to influencing the Government.

And may it not be urged that there is a full analogy between Government recognition in the case of such an institution as the National Gallery of Pictures and Wireless Broadcasting, which is becoming more and more a national institution?

The other force with which the B.B.C. has to deal, not merely now, but doubtless at all times, will be that of maintaining what can be described in summarized form as—good taste and high tone.

How, then, can we, the army of listeners, strengthen your hands, and make known our views and convictions? That is a question which you will probably be able to answer; and, fortunately, there will always be an opportunity of addressing the entire body of British and Irish listeners simultaneously, just as on the occasion when we were requested to abstain from using our apparatus, for a quarter of an hour, in order that the engineers might deal with certain mechanical difficulties, a request which we were informed was, on the whole, properly attended to.

ABERDEEN AND TEMAIR.

From a Master Mariner.

As a master mariner, I wish to express the appreciation of myself and my friends of the very impressive announcement broadcast on January 29th, regarding the disasters in the Atlantic Ocean, and the gallant rescue of the crew of the British ship Antinoe, and the equally brave attempt—although only partially successful—made with regard to the ss. Laristan.

Most of my friends are seafaring people, and the announcement referred to has been the subject of much favourable comment. It came as a great surprise, and so did the impressive orchestral piece that followed. The reverence with which the announcement was made was an inspiration to all who heard it, and a homage to those who lost their lives.

It is very gratifying to seafarers to know that the British Broadcasting Company is ever ready to broadcast items of interest concerning the Merchant Service. By so doing, you are helping to educate the nation in marine matters about which it is woefully ignorant. You are also doing a very real service for the mariners of this country by broadcasting the old shanties which helped us so much with our work in the old days, and by the helpful weather forecasts you give specially for shipping.

I remember, with great satisfaction, a few words of greeting sent out to seafarers last year by the Director of our local broadcasting station. These were picked up, not only by many mariners who have "swallowed the anchor" (retired ashore), but by vessels in the Irish Channel, North Sea, and Atlantic Ocean, even as far south as Lisbon.—A. O. M. COOPER, Dalmorton Road, Wallasey, Cheshire.

Writ Sarcastic!

As an honest, hard-working British working man, I protest against the cruel hoax played on us the other night. My Missus picked up the headphones and heard the Military Tattoo being broadcast. When it was over, she said she would go next day with the kids to Wembley to see it. I told her I thought Wembley was closed, but there was no arguing with the Missus. She'd heard the bands, the soldiers marching, the crowd clapping and cheering and a lady and gentleman in the front seats talking about the performance.

Yesterday, when I got home from work, there was no Missus nor kids. Later on they came home. They had all been to Wembley, which they found all shut up. Of course, we had words, and the Missus has gone home to her mother, and the Schoolboard man has been round threatening a summons for me keeping seven kids away from school.

Not content with frightening listeners with riots, you now smash up a working man's home, and it's time it stopped. I expect compensation—Missus and kids' fares to Wembley, fines, if any, for keeping kids from school, loss of Missus, and a day's work lost trying to persuade the Missus to come back. Cruel, I call it, and if you don't compensate, I shall write to the papers.—"DISGUSTED," Surrey.

The Play's the Thing.

We do not get nearly enough drama in the programmes. It's a case of music, music, all the time. Of course, personally I have no wish to interfere with people who like music, but certainly there are others who like plays and humorous items, and who should be catered for more than they are. We get hours and hours of music, and when there is a humorous or dramatic item, it is generally got through within about ten or fifteen minutes, and that late in the evening when most people are thinking of going to rest.—H. J. SHINISON, 54, Montgomery Road, Southsea.

Lessons in Morse.

CAN we have some Morse code lessons in the programmes? Such an innovation would be welcome to a great number of enthusiasts, even if given out of the usual hours, say late in the evening.—ROLF HOLDSWORTH, Langley Avenue, Bingley, Yorkshire.

Music Hath Charms.

FROM an experience only too common I have come to the conclusion that good music has still to be tried in the prevention and cure of mental breakdown. It is not so long ago, as we are now learning to look upon time, since David with his harp brought King Saul back from the verge of insanity. Is it not a reflection on our modern curative science that nearly all we can do in this day for mental trouble is to confine the unhappy victims in mental hospitals, where, so far as the public is concerned, it is a case of "out of sight, out of mind"? We possess leagues and societies for the lame and blind, the leper and the dumb, but for those upon whom has fallen an even more tragic calamity than any or all of these, we have no public research or appeal whatever.

The discovery of wireless suggests the question: Why cannot the melodies of the harp be listened to every day by thousands of mental sufferers throughout the land?—S. T. NICHOLSON, Holderness Road, Hull.

The Children's Corner.

Pantomime By Wireless.

THE chorus of appreciation which greeted the first performance of the Liverpool Radio Pantomime and the requests of hundreds of listeners who asked for more have resulted in a repeat performance of The Babes in the Wood being fixed for Monday, March 22nd. John Henry and Blossom will again appear as the precocious "Babes," and the other members of the cast will be as before. Mr. Edward P. Genn will present the pantomime, which is to be "re-dressed" with new musical numbers.

Books the Children Like.

The Aunts and Uncles of the Plymouth Station have started a literary campaign. They are determined to discover the literary views of young West Country listeners and, incidentally, provide for Auntie Madge books that the children themselves will choose for their own edification.

Many an ingenious suggestion has been forthcoming. For instance, a bright young member has decided upon "Lamb's Tales from Shakespeare," and this work is being broadcast every week.

It is hoped that, before long, Auntie Madge will acquire a unique library of books that the children themselves consider essential literature.

Belfast Wolf Cubs.

An interesting event in the Belfast Children's Corner on Saturday, March 13th, will be a performance by the 33rd Belfast Wolf Cubs (Inchmarlo). This Wolf Cubs' Choir, conducted by Mr. James Graham, made a most excellent impression at the recent Belfast Musical Competitions.

On Thursday, March 11th, Nursery Rhyme Quartets of Sir Walford Davies will be sung, and short talks during the week include "How to Make Sweets" (Monday), "Boyhood of Famous People" (Tuesday), and "Stamp Collecting" (Thursday).

Peter Pan and Mr. Mike.

I really thought things had gone topsy-turvy the other day at the Bournemouth Studio. I had already heard the announcement that in a minute the children would receive their hour, so I waited, determined not to miss a single word of it. Suddenly I heard some most beautiful chimes, so clear and rich. "What's the matter?" I said to myself, I must have been dozing with my headphones on, and only dreamt I heard the Announcer. Surely, this is the time signal, not the children's hour! I looked at my watch. It was just 5.15, but still I was doubtful, for I know even my watch sometimes has a joke with me, and tries to catch me napping. "Ah!" I thought, "I know what's happened. Big Ben is tired of looking out across the Thames, day after day; he has come down to Bournemouth for a holiday, and popped into the Studio to amuse the kiddies this afternoon."

I was just getting comfortable in my armchair, wondering what sweet message he was peeling out to them, when he stopped, and instead I heard two little voices talking, and one was very sweet. Who could it be? I listened very carefully, and then I discovered the secret. It was Peter Pan talking to Mike in the Studio. They were very jolly and just full of mischief. I think they didn't know the Kiddies were listening or could hear them. Anyhow, just then Auntie Nan and Uncle Ray came along, so Peter Pan hid away somewhere in the Studio, and, of course, Mr. Mike was on his best behaviour.

Mr. Thimblethorpe.

Another visitor to the Studio was Mr. Thimblethorpe. He has come to live somewhere in the Studio, but nobody can quite find out where. He is a funny little old man, with a long white beard, and he wears glasses perched on the end of his nose. He loves the Children, and Uncle Alan and Uncle Pongo had no difficulty in getting him to read a story to them. He says he lives in a little dark corner, and he has all sorts of wonderful arrangements which tell him everything that is going on.

Now the Uncles are busy trying to find out where that corner is, because if there is anything they want to know, they are going to ask Mr. Thimblethorpe.

An Uncle's Picture.

It was all the fault of Uncle Hamish! Uncle Leslie invited him to make some portrait drawings of the various Uncles and Aunts at the Edinburgh Station—for Uncle Hamish is a famous artist—and the result of his efforts can be better imagined than described.

In order to keep fit, Uncle Leslie has a class of physical jerks every morning and this was selected as the subject for a picture. Auntie Molly, Auntie Maymie, Auntie Nancy, Uncle Dick, and Uncle Jim are portrayed in various fantastic attitudes endeavouring to follow the instructions of Uncle Leslie, who is shown directing the class. Auntie Maymie declares that her legs don't bend outwards, while Uncle Dick maintains that his don't bend inwards. Auntie Molly is furious because her hair is not in perfect order and Uncle Jim insists that he has never worn a checked suit in his life.

Altogether, there has been a very big rumpus indeed, and Uncle Hamish has wisely kept away from the station since the picture was published. Uncle Leslie alone maintained an attitude of dignified silence and declined to discuss the matter. If any of you wish to see the picture you will find it in the January number of the Edinburgh Children's Radio Magazine.

REVIVALS of old popular music always appeal to a large number of listeners. At 8 o'clock on Saturday, March 13th, Belfast Station will broadcast an hour of "Old Memories" contrasted with a perfectly brand-new modern revue which will be relayed from London at 9 o'clock.

Who Started Hospital Radio?

Claims From Many Quarters.

IT was recently stated in The Radio Times that the idea of the general provision of wireless for hospitals had its origin with Mr. Keble Howard, who advocated the plan in a broadcast talk on December 29th, 1924. We have received numerous letters disputing Mr. Keble Howard's claim to priority, and we print a selection here.

The interest in radio for hospitals is growing almost daily, and it is to be hoped that very soon no such institution in the country will be without this great boon for its patients.

SURELY, the credit for starting hospital radio should go to the British Broadcasting Company itself, as on Christmas Eve, 1923, the first receiving set, which, I think, can claim to come under this heading, was installed in The Woodlands Home for Crippled Children, Birmingham, through the generosity of the members of "5IT" Radio Circle. Since then, these kiddies have been instrumental in supplying the following Birmingham hospitals and institutions with valve sets: the Eye Hospital, the Orthopaedic Hospital, the Queen's Hospital, the General Hospital, the Coventry and North Warwick Hospital, the Blind Institution, the Dartmouth Street School, the Taylor Memorial Home, and also to the Forelands Cripples' Home for Children at Bromsgrove.

In addition, ninety crystal sets have been given to the Birmingham Cripples' Union, two crystal sets to the Blind Institution at Walsall, one crystal set to the Convalescent Home at Showell Green Lane, Birmingham, and six pairs of headphones to the Pelsall Sanatorium at Walsall. Furthermore, donations of £15 and £20 have been made to the Leominster Hospital and Worcester General Infirmary respectively.—PERCY EDGAR, Director, Birmingham Station, B.B.C.

It may interest you to know that the Horley Cottage Hospital (Surrey) was equipped with a loud speaker wireless set in both wards in December, 1923. I imagine this was one of the earliest installations.—A. P. LINDLEY, Woodfield, Russell Crescent, Horley, Surrey.

IN January, 1924 (date of licence, 23/1/24), through the generosity of Mr. Joseph Ward, of Sheffield, the King Edward VII. Hospital for Crippled Children, Sheffield, was equipped with a receiving set. The hospital is so wired that loud-speakers may be "plugged in" in any of the six wards and the various staff recreation rooms.—GEO. W. COOLING, King Edward VII. Hospital Sheffield.

PRELIMINARY tests for the installation of a wireless set in the Fazakerley Sanatorium were made during the first half of June, 1924, after which, a six-valve set was installed in August of that year.—S.L., Liverpool.

IN reply to the inquiry on this subject, I may say that I installed a three-valve set with four loud-speakers in the Blackfell Hospital, Birtley, Co. Durham, for the Durham County Council, in May, 1924, and a three-valve installation in the Sealburn Hospital, near Newcastle-on-Tyne, also for the Durham County Council, in October, 1924.—E. BRAYFIELD, Alma Road, New Shildon.

THE Northern Hospital for Women and Children, Manchester, had wireless installed in July, 1924, when the Leeds-Bradford Station was opened. A friend of mine was a patient and told me she heard the Rev. B. O. F. Heywood, then vicar of Leeds, now Bishop-Designate of Southwell, speak on the occasion of opening.—H. GREAVES, Deans Road, Manchester.

The Broadcast Pulpit.

The World Is One.

PEOPLE are everywhere becoming more outwardly alike. Distinctions of nationality are less plainly marked, as are also those of class; even the dividing lines of sex appear to suffer some abatement. Places tend no less to lose their individuality; foreign countries grow steadily less foreign, cities more cosmopolitan, provinces less provincial. The extremes of fashion are as likely to be met with in Arcadia as in Belgravia. Whatever the causes at work may be, the world is certainly on the way to appear, and even in a sense to become, one. The vital question is, What kind of one? There is a oneness of uniformity, and there is a oneness of variety, and between these two, a gulf. "A multitude of dingy dittos, turned out by the gross and dressed everywhere in the same ugly clothes," is a description given of the oneness to which we are inclined. But the ideal body is that in which the different parts are actuated by one spirit and directed to one common end, which is the general good.

The Greatest of These is Charity.

TO make the whole world one we need the spirit of a true Christian religion, the universal Church of God. Charity is the one cement that can be trusted to secure the necessary solidarity of the race, for it alone respects diversities of gifts, opinions, customs, creeds. It is the all-uniting gospel of ministry, the religion of mutual service; it has relation to life, and its life consists in doing good. It is more than all almsgiving, than the most generous of benefactions, than leniency of judgment or tolerance of view. It spells devotion to the duties of home, office or employment; consideration for the rights of others; the suppression of all ill-will, hatred, malice, greed, the lust of possession and the pride of rule.—The Rev. H. Gordon Drummond, Manchester.

Why Be Religious?

WE say that people should be religious; we have a right to say it, but they, too, have a right to ask why. The answer I give is this: It is only in being religious that we can make the most of our life. It is often said that man is wonderful in his power and strength; the fact of the matter is that man is exceedingly poor and weak as he is in himself; he becomes powerful only as he goes out of himself to take possession of power outside of him. The horse is stronger than he and the bird is swifter than he, but when man goes out and takes hold of the powers of steam and electricity and wireless telegraphy, he becomes clothed with those powers and he is stronger than the horse and swifter than the bird. But he is stronger and swifter through powers outside of him, which he has taken into his life and made his own. Now, that is just what religion does; it brings man into touch with a power that is higher than human, and it enables man to make that power his own.—The Rev. R. J. Mackay, Edinburgh.

No Cloistered Virtue.

WE may think to make a bird's life safe by putting it in a cage; the strong bars will exclude the intruder. Yes, but have you the bird as Nature made it when you have robbed it of its freedom? The soul of a child, or the soul of a man or a woman, is naturally protected only by the sense of divine protection. You can separate a person artificially from the material associations of evil; you can put him in a straight-waistcoat of severe restrictions, you can shut him up in a prison and you may thus keep him from certain kinds of harm. But you will not be sheltering a growing soul; you will be suppressing proper development.

You imperil the song of the bird as you cut it off from its liberty to roam the fields of air; you imperil the song of the soul by forbidding it to roam the spaces of normal experience. We should not seek to be excused the ordinary risks and trials of humanity, even if, for some reason past our understanding, they should assail us in a special degree.—The Rev. E. L. Rowlands, Stoke-on-Trent.

The B.B.C. is News.

EVEN to the most casual reader of our daily and weekly newspapers, especially those with the big circulations, one fact stands out as plain as a pikestaff; almost anything about broadcasting, and especially about the British Broadcasting Company, is considered to be worthy of publication.

There can be no mistake about that. A glance at any of the popular papers nowadays shows that the slogan of every live editor and sub-editor in Fleet Street is "the B.B.C. is news."

This close attention to all that concerns radio development in this country is the tribute that the British Press pays to British Broadcasting.

If a winter storm does damage to the Daventry Station and transmission is interfered with for five minutes or so, those highly-strung gentlemen who handle the big type that is used for posters and headlines, sharpen their pencils and dash off a brilliant caption like "Another B.B.C. Breakdown."

If a disgruntled author feels himself in need of the consolation of a little profitable publicity, he can step out into the limelight of the editorial page with a few choice sneers at a pioneering organization which, in the face of incredible difficulties, is discovering and developing a new art with a new technique of its own. And if Mr. Pro Bono Publico, of Putney, wishes to see his name in print, he may be sure of a high place in the correspondence columns of his favourite paper if he will but proclaim some such interesting fact as that the dance music broadcast from "2LO" is not to his liking.

This attitude of criticism towards the B.B.C.—which like a prophet is not without honour, save in its own country—sometimes makes its appearance also among our lesser public men who in Parliament and elsewhere have only to fling a stone at the B.B.C. to achieve a brief notoriety in the columns of certain newspapers.

But signs are not lacking that the general public is losing patience with these attacks. We do not imagine, for instance, that the Honourable Member who in the House of Commons a few days ago relieved his feelings by declaring: "I fervently hope that we shall not be troubled with that institution (the B.B.C.) very much longer," would care to make that sentiment one of the planks in his platform when he offers himself to his constituents for re-election. We make bold to say that "Down with the B.B.C.!" would hardly make a winning slogan in any constituency in any part of the country.

In this matter, as in so many others, it is pretty certain that these newspaper critics are barking up the wrong tree. The idea which they have laboured so hard to fasten in the minds of their readers, that the B.B.C. is a wasteful and blundering monopoly spending vast sums of money which have been extracted by force from a helpless and protesting public, is sheer nonsense in which nobody believes, least of all the promulgators of the notion themselves.

The record of growth in the number of wireless licences issued by the Post Office is surely the most effective answer to such critics of the B.B.C., as that other gentleman who stood up in his place in the House of Commons recently and declared: "I regard these B.B.C. programmes in many cases as innocuous inanities, suitable only for infants and imbeciles." The following figures show the number of wireless licences issued at half-yearly periods since January, 1924:

January, 1924	636,139.
July, "	872,548.
January, 1925	1,191,625.
July, "	1,379,147.
January, 1926	1,846,000.

There is little indication in those figures of any widespread dissatisfaction with the work of the B.B.C. If any newspaper could show an increase in circulation comparable with that, the fortunate editor might well consider himself justified in claiming some merit for the contents of his paper.

The truth of the matter is that much of this criticism of the B.B.C. is as ill-considered as it is ill-informed and undeserved. It will pass. And it will pass because, sooner or later, editors, authors and publicists alike will find that they are not carrying public opinion with them.

ONE MILLION POUNDS.

IT is good to hear that, last year, British exports of wireless goods topped the million mark for the first time in history, and by the substantial sum of over £300,000. That is surely not a bad achievement for an infant industry! The detailed figures which have just been published in the Board of Trade returns make interesting and encouraging reading. They show clearly how wide ranging is the distribution of British-made wireless apparatus. Japan stands out as by far the best of our foreign customers. Last year, Japanese buyers took more than £220,000 worth of radio goods from us. Holland is our next best customer, taking £60,000 worth, and then comes the United States of America, where we sent over £50,000 worth of British apparatus last year. Every country in Europe is on the list, including Russia, to whom we sent nearly £12,000 worth, which is only £3,000 less than the total of our trade with Germany.

In the record of our sales within the Empire, Australia stands out far above all the other Dominions with a total bill of £200,000. To Canada, where American goods have easy access, we sent only £50,000 worth of apparatus. Ireland is a very good customer, with a total of little less than half Australia's. South Africa and India both show substantial purchases. Altogether, our manufacturers of wireless apparatus are to be congratulated on a rapidly growing overseas trade—a state of things which reflects credit on their enterprise and management. Next year may they double this year's million!

LONDON NEWS.

THE programme of light classics to be given by the Wireless Symphony Orchestra on Sunday will be conducted by Mr. Maurice Besly, who conducted a concert at this station early in December. Only recently, Mr.

Besly was organist at Queen's College, Oxford. In addition to his reputation as a conductor, he is rapidly making a name for himself as a composer. Listeners will remember several of his songs, including the effective settings of Walter De la Mare's poems, "Epitaph," and "The Mocking Fairy," and also "The Second Minuet." The programme on this occasion will open with one of Haydn's Overtures which is very rarely heard at concerts. It is called L'Isola Disabitata ("The Desert Island"), and was revived for London concert audiences by Sir Henry Wood last year. Mr. Besly's Chamber Orchestra at Oxford last January gave the only other performance which has been heard.

During the same afternoon programme, listeners will hear the second Peer Gynt Suite (Grieg), and one of the best known of Mozart's Symphonies, that in E Flat. Mr. Louis Fleury, the famous French flautist, will assist in this programme.

On Sunday evening listeners will hear two favourites in the persons of Miss Ruby Helder and Laffitte. The latter has just returned from a successful Continental tour, which included a recital at Brussels and solo work in symphonic concerts in Amsterdam and elsewhere. He will play again a Concert Study by Dohnanyi, for which he has had a special request since his last broadcast.

On Tuesday, March 9th, the London Fire Brigade Band will visit the Studio. This combination was founded as recently as March, 1918, and has been conducted from the beginning by Mr. Peter Anderson. The 40 players in the full Band are all firemen attached to the various stations in the London County area, and on active service; most of them, however, have played in famous army bands before joining the London Fire Brigade. Since its first public performance on October 9th, 1918, at the Royal Exchange, the Band regularly appeared at Wembley and in the principal London parks, and listeners had an opportunity of hearing it last January.

The Casals Quartet.

The Chamber Music on Wednesday, March 10th, will be given by the Casals Quartet, which is directed by Signor Enrie Casals, who is a brother of the famous 'cellist, Pablo Casals, and is himself a violinist and composer. He is the leader of a famous orchestra in Barcelona and is visiting England with his colleagues to give some special concerts for the Musical Society. Mr. Sinclair Logan (baritone), who will sing during this programme, is one of our best known blind musicians and has earned a reputation for himself both as a song writer and an organist. He will sing a group of English songs, including Vaughan Williams's "Silent Noon."

Sir Edward Elgar's Oratorio, "The Apostles," part of which is to be relayed from Manchester, where Sir Hamilton Harty is conducting the full performance at the Hallé Concert on March 11th, was intended to be the first in a trilogy. The second work, "The Kingdom," has been completed, but the third has yet to be published. "The Apostles" gives the Bible story from the time of Christ's calling of the Apostles to the Ascension. It is divided into seven distinct parts.

BIRMINGHAM NEWS.

IN the programme of orchestral and vocal music with which the Birmingham Station will open the activities of the week on Sunday afternoon, there will be included some representative Belgian and Dutch compositions, some of them first performances in Great Britain. Another distinctive feature of the programme is the inclusion of a suite by Professor Granville Bantock, an outstanding figure in present-day music.
Songs from Elgar's "Sea Pictures" will be sung by Miss Anne Sanders (contralto); and Mr. Gordon Bryan (solo pianoforte) will be heard in MacDowell's Concerto No. 1 in A Minor, and in pianoforte solos by such composers as B. Van der Sigtenhorst Meyer, Alex Voormolen and Joseph Jongen. The last-named writer's Petite Marche Militaire has not been performed in this country before. The orchestra will play Wagner's "Siegfried Idyll" and Beethoven's "Turkish March."
A Walsall Programme.
At 9.15 p.m. on Thursday, March 11th, listeners will be switched over to the Walsall Town Hall again, and in the miscellaneous portion there is to be included a musical tour de force in the playing by Mr. T. W. North, borough organist of Walsall, of Reubke's Organ Sonata in C Minor, arranged on the 94th Psalm. This great organ music is rarely heard. Another item in this portion of the broadcast will be the Finale from Faust by Miss May Blyth, Mr. Parry Jones and Mr. James Howell.

BOURNEMOUTH NEWS.

THE most important events in the programmes this week will be the performance on Thursday evening of

The Golden Threshold, composed by Liza Lehmann, and the Bach Peasant Cantata. On this occasion, the Bournemouth Wireless Orchestra, conducted by Captain W. A. Featherstone, will have the support of the Frome Choral Society, trained by Mr. A. M. Porter. The authoress of The Golden Threshold, Sarojini Naidhu, an Indian girl of high birth and caste, fell in love with a man somewhat below her in caste, and her family, who were averse from her betrothal, decided to send her to England to be educated. During a successful University career in England, she wrote a considerable amount of poetry, and she came to know the late Mme. Liza Lehmann, who set to music her poem, The Golden Threshold. The whole of the music is decidedly Oriental in character.

The work was not orchestrated until after the composer's death; still, in its present form, it contains many clever examples of characteristic orchestration. At the termination of her University career, Sarojini Naidhu had become so Westernized, especially as regards her ideas on the subject of woman's freedom, that, in spite of all opposition, she married her first love. Listeners may remember that this year she presided over the Indian National Congress.

This little Operetta will waft Listeners away into the realms of Phantasy, where Witches war with Fairy Godmothers, and Handsome Princes are turned into—but we must not disclose the plot before the Announcer has broadcast the quaint title. There is a plot, and an amusing one.

Mind Picture: A Forest—a Weird Forest that might have been modelled by Rackham. A number of Witches, wrapt in mystery, are grouped near a fallen log in grotesque attitudes. With eyes aglow with mystic fire, they sing a strange, unearthly chorus.

CARDIFF NEWS.

IN co-operation with the Musicians' Union, an exceptionally fine concert in public will be given by the Cardiff Station at the Empire Theatre, Cardiff, on Sunday evening, March 7th. The Station Symphony Orchestra will number over 120 performers, the musicians giving their services free, as the proceeds of the concert will be devoted to the Musicians' Union Benevolent Fund. Two popular vocalists, Mr. Tudor Davies and Miss Mavis Bennett, will also take part in the concert, in addition to the "5WA" Male Voice Choir. Mr. Davies is not only the possessor of a magnificent voice, but he is an excellent musician as well. Miss Mavis Bennett is an artist who will need no introduction to Cardiff listeners, who have frequently enjoyed her singing both in the Studio and at various outside concerts organized by the Cardiff Station. The programme contains some of the best musical works, without being "heavy," and an especially popular item will be the Miserere scene from Il Trovatore, in which the "5WA" Choir will take part, singing behind the scenes.

"Bubble and Squeak."

Cardiff listeners will have the opportunity of hearing the first broadcast performance of Bubble and Squeak, a new comic opera by Mr. Laurance Tanner, on Thursday, March 11th. Bubble and Squeak takes a little less than an hour to perform, but it will be an hour of delightful entertainment, and Mr. Tanner, who has written both the libretto and the music, is to be congratulated on the work, which showed signs of great popularity at the first public performance recently. The artists constituting the cast are all favourites with Cardiff listeners and they have taken part in many of the most successful programmes given from the Station.

MANCHESTER NEWS.

IN Saturday night's concert there are to be songs by Mr. Thomas P.
Wilson; cornet solos by Mr. Harry Mortimer and humorous interludes by John Henry and Blossom. Mr. Wilson is a versatile musician, for, besides possessing a fine baritone voice, he has also been a member of the Runcorn Orchestral Society for some twenty years, first as a violinist and then as a cellist. Mr. Harry Mortimer began his career as a cornet player at the early age of ten, winning his first competition when only eleven, and he comes of a musical family, his father being the conductor of the famous "Foden's Motor Works" Band. Although this is Mr. Mortimer's first appearance at the Manchester Station, his playing is familiar to many listeners and he has already played on several occasions at the London Station.

NEWCASTLE NEWS.

MISS SIDONIE GOOSSENS, who will visit "5NO" on Sunday, March 7th, is the sister of Mr. Eugene Goossens, the composer. She will perform two Ballades by her brother.

The Station Orchestra on Sunday will perform the "Siegfried Idyll," by Wagner. In pure beauty and tenderness, neither Wagner, nor, indeed, any other composer, has ever surpassed this piece. All those who are familiar with Wagner's great Trilogy, The Ring of the Nibelungs, will recognize many tunes from various parts of the work, mostly connected with Siegfried and Brunnhilde. The melody which chiefly dominates the Idyll is the chief melody in the great love-duet. The only tune used which does not occur in the Ring Trilogy is an old German Cradle Song.

The Newcastle Station's programme for Thursday, March 11th, will be relayed to "5XX." This may very rightly be termed "An All-Brows" concert. It will begin at 7.30 p.m. with a performance of Act III. of Wagner's Opera Lohengrin. This was the first of Wagner's operas which won general acceptance, and still remains the most popular. A noticeable point in the score of Lohengrin is the further development of the idea, which is carried out also in Tannhäuser, of associating a certain instrument or group of instruments with one particular character. The idea itself, it may be noticed in passing, dates from the time of Bach, who used the strings of the orchestra to accompany the words of Christ in the Matthew Passion, much as the old Italian painters surrounded His head with a halo. In Lohengrin, Wagner used this idea more systematically than in Tannhäuser; Lohengrin's utterances are almost always accompanied by the strings of the orchestra, while the wood-wind is specially devoted to Elsa. This plan emphasises very happily the contrast, which is the root of the whole drama, between spiritual and earthly love, typified in the persons of Lohengrin and Elsa, and which the poem symbolizes in allegorical fashion.

GLASGOW NEWS.

IN view of the success of our Wagner Feature, which was broadcast on January 20th, we have arranged to include another in our programme for Wednesday. Some of the orchestral items are different. We have had so many requests for a repetition of "Wotan's Farewell and the Fire Music" from The Valkyrie that this will be given by Mr. Robert Burnett (baritone). In the main programme Mr. Burnett is to sing one special group, which had been noted for his performance last December when illness prevented his appearance.
The main orchestral item in the programme is the well-known Pathetique
Symphony of Tchaikovsky, while the latter part includes the popular Peer Gynt Suite.

Empire Phono-Flight No. 8.

Captain John Duncan Cameron, of Winnipeg, will act as Guide in the programme to be given from the Glasgow Station on Monday, March 8th, which will depict incidents in the life of Lord Strathcona. Captain Cameron is peculiarly suited by long association with Canada to give a real atmospheric picture to listeners. He is a Canadian, born of Scottish parents in a settlement where Scottish people predominated. He grew up as a farmer's son, owned his own farm, and farmed it successfully; studied at the University of Manitoba during the winters; graduated with Honours in Arts; read Law, and was called to the Bar, but still continued to hold his farm. Enlisting in the early days of the Great War, he went Overseas and served in France and Flanders with the Canadian Division, and was wounded on the Somme in 1916.

ABERDEEN NEWS.

THE first part of Monday night's programme is to be devoted to Chamber Music, in which the *Clarinet
Quintet*, by Mozart, figures promi-nently. This Quintet belongs to a group of quintets, many of which were written for a combination of strings and wind instruments. The one to be played this evening is particularly noticeable for its charm and melody.
It was known as the "Stadler Quintet"
and was completed in 1789.

Following on this Chamber Music,
there is to be broadcast a short programme of Grieg's works, during which, Miss Thelma Petersen is to sing his songs, and the Wireless Orchestra is to illustrate his orchestral music.

An interesting feature of the Peer Gynt music, of which the Second Suite is to be played this evening, is that, written for a performance of Ibsen's play, it was first published in the form of pianoforte duets, and afterwards turned into the two orchestral suites, the picturesque character of which is now very well known.

The Dvorak Concerto.

On Saturday night, as part of a short instrumental programme, Miss Beatrice Eveline is to play, accompanied by the Wireless Orchestra, the Dvorak "Concerto" for cello and orchestra. Miss Eveline started learning the cello at the early age of seven years, and after studying at the Royal College of Music, appeared at the London Promenade Concerts and Ballad Concerts. She did a considerable amount of war work as a member of the Lena Ashwell Concert Party in France and Malta.

BELFAST NEWS.

"WHAT'S Wrong With This?" is the title of a competition programme which will be broadcast from Belfast on Tuesday, March 9th. There will be an hour's programme of orchestral music, violin solos by Mr. Ernest Stoneley, and a group of verse spoken by Miss Jeannie Erskine. All kinds of mistakes will be made and the listener who succeeds in "spotting" the greatest number of errors will receive a prize of one guinea. Entries for the competition must reach the office of the B.B.C., at 31, Linenhall Street, Belfast, not later than first post on Thursday morning, March 11th. The competition will be preceded by Philemon's talk, relayed from London; At 9.0 the Belfast Radio Players will give the first performance of a new play called Sally's Chance, by John W. Coulter. This is described as a drama of rural revolt and the scene is laid in a desolate part of County Tyrone. English listeners who suppose life in the Irish countryside to be a light-hearted affair of red-skirted "Colleens" in picturesque "cabins," and comic "Paddies" on "jaunting-cars" will be disillusioned by Mr. Coulter's rather grim presentation of a very different picture. The play will be followed by dance music. On this evening, at 9.30 p.m., an interesting experiment is to be tried. The Studio drapery will be hooked up, leaving the walls partly bare, and the doors left open, the object being to provide the necessary resonance required for dance music. Listeners are invited to pay special attention to the transmission and to report to the Station on the subject. On Wednesday, March 10th, the first movement of the stupendous 9th (Choral) Symphony of Beethoven will be performed by the Augmented Station Orchestra. The interest in this programme promises to be enhanced by the inclusion of Stanford's Irish Rhapsody No. 4—"The Fisherman of Lough Neagh and What He Saw." Irishmen are proud to remember that Sir Charles Villiers Stanford was born in Dublin, and that he cherished a warm affection for the North. Lough Neagh is quite near to Belfast. There is a legend which tells how a giant picked up a piece of Ireland and dropped it in the Irish Sea, thus forming Lough Neagh and Manxland! Curiously, the Isle of Man is practically the same size and shape as the Lough in question. In the process of this upheaval, it is supposed that an Irish cat lost its tail en route.

Of Duty well performed . . .

THE monk in his cell—the worker at the bench. Between these two a great gulf, yet by one common bond they are united. The bond of Duty. No monk ever possessed more enthusiasm for his tasks in life than those loyal workers—men and women alike—engaged in the business of making Cossor Valves. Without their co-operation—so cheerfully and willingly given—the nation-wide reputation for long service and dependability enjoyed by Cossor Valves must inevitably suffer.

Whether you buy your Wuncell Dull Emitter

in Eastbourne or Edinburgh, in Canterbury or Carlisle, its unique standard of performance will be worthily and creditably maintained.

Long life—exquisite purity of tone—unequalled sensitiveness—supreme economy of operation—all these features are ensured in the Wuncell by reason of its patented design and construction. Only the arched filament in combination with a hood-shaped Grid and Anode—by utilising almost the whole of the electron stream—can achieve such magnificent and unparalleled results.

Lissen's Renewable H.T. Battery Saves You Money.

The new "Lissen" way gives you bigger and better H.T. current at much less cost. You pay only for the essential cells. Previously you paid for the box, the soldering and the assembling, and all these things were lost when your battery had had its day. With the new "Lissen" way you build or buy a renewable battery and eliminate this waste. You renew the "Lissen" cells only and pay only for what you renew.

You can build the box yourself from the full-size diagrams given with each set of cells or you can buy the container separately, complete with springs, ready to receive the cells. Price 2/-.

Or if you prefer the battery completely assembled with 45 cells the price is 11/6d.

Ask your Dealer for the Lissen Renewable Battery.

LISSEN CELLS are made throughout at our Richmond Factory. These cells have a large discharge capacity and they come to you fresh and full of life because of the method we adopt in marketing them.

Lissen Cells are sold separately, and also in boxes of 45's. Each cell gives $1\frac{1}{2}$ volts. The price of the cells is the same whether you buy them singly or in 45's, but with every 45 lot you are provided with the necessary special springs for building your battery. Extra springs for extra cells can be purchased separately.

If you want to use a Power Valve in the last stage, the extra H.T. needed can easily be added, at any time.

2d. each cell
(9/4d for the 5 cells to give 67½ volts, including drawings and springs). Extra springs 2d. each

AGAIN, though the outstanding purity of resistance-coupling has been fully recognised, its use has been retarded owing to the expense of increasing H.T. voltage. The Lissen system now makes its use possible in the simplest manner. You can add extra H.T. whenever you need it.

With each 45 lot, you are given full-size drawings and clear instructions how to put the battery together—you cannot go wrong.

The purchase of every 45 lot of Lissen Cells entitles the purchaser to a limited licence to use the Lissen method of construction—for which patent application has been made—and also to the exclusive use of the drawings and other data provided.

IMMEDIATE DELIVERY.

Orders received for the famous Fellows Battery charger were so overwhelming that we were compelled to cease advertising it until adequate arrangements had been made to increase production.

Immediate delivery can now be given again of chargers for all normal frequencies and voltages.

If you have alternating current electric light you can charge your batteries at home in perfect safety, and at a fraction of the cost and trouble entailed by sending them to garages, etc. The charger will charge at 2 to 3 amps for 10 hours for approximately 1d. and is suitable for both 4 volt and 6 volt accumulators.

You simply plug it into any lamp holder, turn on the switch, start the small motor, connect your accumulator, leave it for a few hours and it will be fully charged. No danger, no mess, no carrying of heavy batteries, no expensive valves or chemicals to renew—write to-day.

Price 45/-

The Fellows Battery charger is simplicity itself and forms the ideal method for charging batteries at home.

Why have two accumulators when you can do with one by leaving it on charge when not in use?

State the voltage and frequency of your mains. You will find this information on your meter.

Power for your Power Valves

You can do away with H.T. batteries from now on.

The M-L Anode Converter (illustrated) gives a reliable, constant and cheap supply of H.T. current for all your valves. It is connected to the same accumulator as that which lights your valve filaments. The H.T. end is fitted with terminals and controls, enabling you to give your valves practically any H.T. voltage they require—as you will see from the following particulars:—

Type BX, driven from a 6-volt accumulator, gives two H.T. voltages—one from 35-85 volts, and at the same time a second range up to 120 volts. Type BX can also be run from a 4-volt accumulator, giving about two-thirds of the above H.T. voltages.

Price £12-15-0.

Type CX runs on a 12-volt accumulator, giving 35-85 volts and also an upper range to 300 volts.

Price £15-0-0.

These machines need no attention and last for ever. They represent a real money-saving investment.

Figures to Remember

The Town Crier

Old Times are changed—old manners gone, leaving just the remembrance of perfect service and faithfulness. With quickened feelings of real pleasure you can recollect the service Six Sixty Valves have rendered you—nay more, you will always remember the figures 660 as the mark of

PERFECTION OF QUALITY.

This is true for every valve in our new range. You say you want a valve suitable for a small or medium-sized Loudspeaker, and which will cost very little to run. You can't do better than get the S.S.3 L.F. (green disc) The filament consumption of this valve is only .06 amps.—a remarkable saving not only on Bright Valves but even on the average Dull Emitter on the market to-day. Bear this in mind and effect the maximum economy whilst at the same time ensuring perfect quality of tone. Two good dry cells are sufficient to operate these Valves, but a 4 Volt accumulator—in conjunction with a 30-ohm filament rheostat—may be used with equal success and increased economy.

If you want a power Valve—you have the S.S.7. to fall back on. This wonderful D.E. is absolutely non-microphonic, has a current consumption of only .1 amps., and is capable of handling output sufficient to work the largest Loudspeaker without distortion. For long Life, good Service, perfect Tone, insist on Six Sixty Valves.

IT is doubtful if there is a single wireless enthusiast who has not heard of Brown A-type Headphones. Not everyone, however, who has coveted them has been able to buy them—in fact, owing to their comparative high price, only a small proportion have been able to enjoy their advantages.

Brown A-type, as supplied to the Admiralty and War Office in large numbers, have always been acknowledged to be the world's best headphones and in a class apart from competition. Governments, shipping and telegraph companies have all paid tribute to their wonderful efficiency and have taken the bulk of the available supplies. But the insistent demand for a cheaper instrument compelled us to consider the production of a modified A-type Headphone suitable for mass production on a large scale.

Twelve months have been spent in designing the new Brown Type A2. We can now guarantee that they contain all the essential details of the standard A-type—that in sensitiveness they are still without equal—that the same superb Brown standard of workmanship is maintained. That, in short, although produced in huge quantities by the aid of the most elaborate and costly machinery, they are a good second to the world-renowned standard Brown A-type. Their production at the amazing price of 30/- is a truly remarkable achievement.

IS FURTHER PROOF NEEDED?

Messrs. Fellows Magneto Co., Ltd.,
 Dear Sirs,
 Having taken advantage of your offer in Radio Times, I purchased two Loudens Dull Emitters.
 Previously my accumulator (4 volt 60 amp.) needed charging every 14 days, at a cost of 6d. per charge.
 Now, I am pleased to say it only needs charging every 6 weeks, amounting to 1d. per week.
 During that period I have been working my Loud Speaker for 276 hours.
 Loudens every time for—Yours faithfully, J. H. B. (Wednesbury).
 Is it not time you had Loudens in your set?
 They are British throughout; capital labour, and materials; their performance is equal to that of any other valve on the market; they are most economical in current; and they are extremely low in price—owing to the fact that we sell them direct to you through the post.
 When you buy Loudens you may be buying something cheap—you are most assuredly buying something good. Fill in this coupon to-day.

Christopher Columbus found a better earth

It took him an awful long time and cost a fortune. But that was four hundred years ago. To-day Climax offers a Better Earth at the right price. It can be installed in five minutes and it provides equally wonderful results. Follow Columbus and get yourself a better earth to-day.

If you are troubled with Weak Signals, Intermittent Signals, Electric Main Disturbances, Local Set Interferences, Muddy Reception, the probable cause of trouble is an inefficient earth. Get a better earth to-day. But it must be a genuine Climax Earth. The genuine Climax Earth is easy to install. Just drive it in. The patented plough point and water-course forming projections are an essential feature. An ordinary tube is a poor earth because it fits loosely in the ground. Insist on the genuine Climax and ensure perfect earth contact. Now available in two models.

Super Economy B5

THE feature of the B5 Valve is that its current consumption is so small— $\frac{1}{10}$ th. of an ampere—that dry batteries of very small dimensions can be used. It is, therefore, the ideal valve for use in portable receivers, or wherever accumulators are undesirable or impracticable. As an all-round general purpose valve it is unsurpassed. Its electrical characteristics are given below:—

Filament Voltage	-	-	2.8 volts
Filament Current	-	-	0.06 amp
Anode Voltage	-	-	20 to 80 volts
Anode Resistance	-	-	17,000 ohms

The B5 Valve is as good a detector and amplifier as any bright-emitter, but only takes $\frac{1}{10}$ th as much current as the latter.

READ THIS LETTER which shows the results you may expect from this wonderful set.

Messrs. Fellows Magneto Co., Ltd.
Dear Sirs,

Many thanks for your prompt despatch of the Little Giant. I have now got my aerial up and my accumulator charged. Last night I received Liverpool, Cardiff, Bournemouth and Aberdeen at good Loud Speaker Strength. London, of course, was very loud, and Coventry was loud enough for dancing. In addition I received on the headphones a French, a Spanish and a German Station.

I am highly delighted with my Little Giant and shall certainly tell my friends about it.

Wishing you every success.

R. W. P. (Weybridge).

The above is one of hundreds of similar letters received from delighted Little Giant users any of which may be inspected at our offices. Do not hesitate, you will certainly never find such wonderful value anywhere else.

Finale

You have just listened to Tchaikovsky. The music has crashed down through its final chords to a quivering drum-tap. A pause—and then the rattle of a thousand hand-claps. It is all so real and living that you are on the point of reaching under your chair for your hat. But no! You are at home. The S.P. 18 Valve has worked its magic.

S.P. means Short-path. The path between the filament and the anode has been shortened to a minimum. The shortened gap increases amplification. The special filament reduces current consumption. The tone is strikingly improved in purity. All S.P. 18 Valves (Red & Green Spot) work off a one-cell accumulator and are priced at 12/6

THE RED SPOT VALVE is the only real power valve taking as low a filament current as 0.3 amps. It compares with other power valves requiring 3 cells instead of one and costing nearly twice as much.

THE GREEN SPOT VALVE designed primarily for H.F. Detector or intermediate amplifying stages, gives twice the amplification of any similar valve on the market, takes less current, and is 10% cheaper.

He asked for the Cable O.V./

He wanted to be certain of maximum efficiency in his indoor aerial, so he asked for the genuine Cable O.V. Aerial, packed in the box clearly printed with the name Cable. And after he had tested the O.V. aerial he wrote a letter to us giving his opinion of its efficiency. Perhaps you would like to read it.

Dear Sirs,
I have received the "O.V." Aerial and hasten to thank you for having placed such a unique and efficient piece of receiving apparatus on the market, and at such a ridiculously low price. I have tested out your standard "O.V." Aerial and have found it most efficient in every respect. The ease with which the Aerial can be rigged up and its efficiency in reception is indeed unsurpassed.
Signed, N. M. B.

Remember that he safeguarded himself by getting a Cable O.V.

Cable Standard O.V. Aerial, ready to fit. Length 11ft., diameter 1/2in. Price 2/6
Cable Super O.V. Aerial, Flat with copper flexible base, induction material and straight outside separator. Length 12ft., width 4in. Price 5/6

Cable O.V. Aerials can be bought from your local dealer, but should you have difficulty in obtaining one, write direct to us.

Reduced facsimile of Electron Earth Mat.

A PERFECT COMBINATION FOR PERFECT RECEPTION

For perfect reception a good aerial and earth system is more than half the battle. The most ingenious and expensive set will not give satisfactory results if the aerial and earth system is bad.

On the other hand, a very ordinary set will give amazingly good results with the SUPERIAL and ELECTRON EARTH MAT combination.

Many crystal users do not know the capabilities of their sets, and are generally satisfied with very ordinary reception. They hear something—a tinkle of music, a whispered talk—and that's all they expect.

Tell them to instal the SUPERIAL and ELECTRON EARTH MAT and they will be amazed at the increased volume.

Why? Because this combination is built that way.

CHEAP, SIMPLE AND PERFECT.

The ELECTRON EARTH MAT is supremely efficient. Its very simplicity compels it. The enormous surface offered by the innumerable strands of the fine mesh of which it is composed affords unusual freedom of release to the high frequency currents.

The ELECTRON EARTH MAT is made of the most expensive phosphor bronze fine-grained gauze, mounted on a strong metal rim, to which is fixed 25 feet of EARTH WIRE, complete.

Remember it also includes 25 feet of EARTH WIRE already fixed, all for 2/6.

EXTRA-HEAVY INSULATION FOR LONG-DISTANCE RECEPTION.

The mathematical combination of heavily tinned strands with a plated copper core in SUPERIAL—the King of Aerials—greatly improves the reception, both of voice and instrumental music.

SUPERIAL, being insulated with extra-heavy vulcanised rubber, renders insulators an unnecessary extravagance, besides increasing the long-distance range of your set.
